

Limitations: The adverse event and product problem reports contained in this record are not necessarily causally related to (caused by) the reported product, nor do they mean the product was defective. Consumer complaints involving animal foods are received by FDA through voluntary reporting systems. Not all reports undergo follow up actions by FDA; however, each report received is important to FDA as part of our ongoing surveillance efforts related to pet food safety. Trends in reporting can provide an early warning of emerging safety issues of concern.

Other limitations:

- For any given report, there is no certainty that the reported pet food caused the adverse event. The adverse event(s) reported may be more related to an underlying disease, condition, or concomitantly administered medication.
- The report narratives are provided in the form in which we received them, the quality of the information provided about the adverse event/product problem is dependent on the quality of the information received from the veterinarian and/or pet owner.
- Adverse event report numbers should not be used to calculate incidence rates or measures of relative risk. It is not data from a controlled study, and there is no accurate way to know the true size of the population exposed to a product, nor the true population affected with an adverse event.
- Adverse event data should not be used to compare the safety of different products. Many factors can influence reporting, and products that are more widely distributed or sold in greater volume may have more reporting than those with limited distribution or sales. Products for which there has been recent publicity may experience more reporting for a period of time afterwards. Underreporting is also common with adverse event reporting systems.

EON-312931	4/30/2017 22:16	Purina Busy Bone Mini	On Friday 21 April 2017 we gave our daschund a Purina Busy Bone. We monitored him while consuming you product to ensure that he did not choke. Immediately after consuming your product he was being to act odd as if he was in discomfort. After several hours of his perculiar behavior we took him to the emergency veterinarian in which he was examined to ensure he did not have your product stuck in his throat. There was no foreign object in his throat and he was sent home. The next day (b) (6), we were still observing odd behavior which led us to take him to the veterinarian to be re-examined and to have an xray performed. The xray revealed that he had a foreign body in his lower esophagus. After recieving pain medication and an appointment for an endoscopy for Monday morning we took him home. Our dog was not able to hold down any water or food the whole weekend. On Sunday evening (b) (6) (b) (6) we again took our dog to the emergency veterinarian so that he could recieve pain medication, anti-nausea medicine, and subdermanal fluids. He came home with us to spend the night in discomfort until his appointment on Monday morning. On (b) (6) our dog under went an endocopy procedure. The veterinarian informed us that there were pieces of "Busy Bone" product in his esophagus. The veterinarian was able to remove a portion of the pieces from our dogs esophagus however he could not remove it completly though his mouth. The veterinarian called us to inform he tried to push the bone into our dog's stomach since he could not remove it from his mouth. He was unable to push the bone into our dogs stomach and communicated that he would have to perform emergency surgical to remove you product. He told us that our dog was bleeding a lot and he was not sure if he would make it alive out of surgergy. By the grace of God the veterinarian was able to remove bone from our dog's esophagus by opening his stomach and using the endoscopy instrument. The veterinarian informed us that there was no way that the bone was going to naturally enter our dog's stomach and pass through his system. We were extremely lucky for our dog to still be with us after. We are still working with our dog to ensure he has a full recovery. I have seen many complaints about Busy Bones where others have experienced the same situation with their pets. It seems that Purina has done very little to nothing to address the danger of its product to pets and their owners. We were lucky that our dog survied however others were not that lucky. I can only hope that Purina responds to this messge to make its product safer before more pets and pet animals suffer. Medical Records can be submitted to support concern/claim.	8	Years	Dachshund - Miniature	Dog	10	Pound

EON-312457	4/26/2017 20:28	Sheba Pate in Natural Juices Turkey Entrée, Sheba Pate in Natural Juices Chicken Entrée	This may not be a real issue. Just wanted to inform you that the Sheba Pate small cans have disappeared from the shelves of Publix Supermarket. We have two cats. They previously liked the Sheba Pate, but recently after purchasing the smaller packs of Sheba Pate, they refused to eat it. It makes me wonder why both cats would independently refuse to eat.
EON-312387	4/26/2017 16:08	Taste of the Wild Pine Forest Canine Formula with Venison & Legumes	We have been feeding Ever Taste of the Wild - Pine Forest dry food since we adopted her back in August of 2016. It is highly rated grain-free food and she has done very well on it. Recently, however, she has fallen quite ill - loss of appetite, vomiting, not able to keep food down, lethargic, etc. and when we took her to the vet, they found that her liver enzyme levels have skyrocketed, meaning that her liver is damaged enough to be leaking a significant amount of enzymes. Her ALP level, which should be in the 10 to 150 range is over 1500. Her eyes, gums, and skin have yellowed (jaundiced) because of this and she is now at the vet on an IV for the next several days, trying to flush her liver and prevent permanent damage to her organs. We have done tests trying to figure out what could have been the cause for her sudden illness. After considering several possibilities, we decided to look online to see if there had been a recall of a recent batch of her food since we had recently opened a new 30 lb bag. Although we could not find a recall, we found dozens and dozens of recent reviews (within the past 3 months) from owners of dogs who had been on TOTW for several years or months falling seriously ill shortly after opening a new batch of the food and sometimes experiencing organ failure and in a few cases, death. If you'd like to read some of these reviews, many can be seen on the Consumer Affairs website ( https://www.consumeraffairs.com/pets/taste-of-the-wild.html ) and we've also noticed several on places like Amazon. We did call the manufacturer, but were told that they could not investigate the incident as we no longer had the original bag with the batch number listed on it.	2.7	Years	Coonhound - Treeing Walker	Dog	46.7	Pound

EON-312203	4/25/2017 23:24	Nulo medalseries Turkey & Chicken, Nulo medalseries Beef & Lamb Recipe	I purchased the cat food "Nulo" brand, wet food in the chicken flavor and beef flavor from petsmart. After several cans I was noticing white fragments left in my kittens bowl that he picked around. I got concerned after seeing it day after day, so the next day I inspected the can before I fed him and I found a BUNCH of bone fragments. I immediately contacted the company, and I sent them photos of the bones and can. They said it was not normal and that they wanted me to send the bones in, so I did. And then they sent me another case of food, which is the beef/lamb flavor and (b) (6) and behold, there are MORE bones. I also found a huge chunk of mold. I am sonuosed and disgusted. This could have created a huge health issue for my baby kitten that I won't even know about until later on. They told me the bones should not have been there, and that it was not okay. Yet the replacement food has the same issue and then now there is mold. They did not do a recall, and are charging an arm and a leg while false advertising and giving animals unsafe food. Please do something about this. Because they won't.

EON-311988	4/24/2017 20:40	Natural Balance Wild Pursuit Beef & Lamb Meal Formula	I had bought a bag of Natural Balance Wild Pursuit Beef and Lamb Meal from www.chewy.com and noticed after a week of feeding this to my dog she is now very ill. She has been throwing up, gassy and not her energetic self. I have fed her this kinda about a year ago. Normally I just feed her the normal flavors of Natural Balance but felt like jazzing up her normal routine. She is still pretty ill and has yet to hold even rice in her tummy. I am not sure if this is a bad bag of dog food and a case of allergies to the "different" food. If she continues to act this way tomorrow I will be calling off work and taking her to an emergency vet. I wanted to bring it to your attention that may dog may be ill from consuming this food. Hopefully this can be looked into to see if there is a possible contamination? Her symptoms have lasted since 4-20-17.

Upon opening the bag, the kibble inside was different than we had purchased in the past. It did not match the picture on the outside of the bag. It did not match the picture on the manufacturer's web site. &gt; Because I have an elderly dog on a restricted diet, a significant change in fat or protein content could trigger organ failure and so I would not feed it to my dog. I contacted the manufacturer (Mars) on 04/17/2017 and they took my information. EON-311788	4/24/2017 13:20	Wellness Sliced Salmon Entree	(b) (6) the male eats primarily Sliced Salmon Wellness. Prior he had been eating Sliced Chicken Wellness, but he really prefers fish. So I got him the salmon. He does not vomit. Tuesday 18Apr17 he threw up a huge amount of compacted food. Took him in right away, thought he might have a foreign object. Ex-ray showed some gas in the small intestine so he was kept overnight on put on fluids to see if the gas pattern would move. It did, no evidence of a foreign body. No bunching or two populations of intestine. Did a blood test. Liver enzyme AST (GOT) 781 normal range 14 - 68. CBC taken, profile consistent with infection, vet suspects Isteria. My girl cat (b) (6) ate 1/2 of the same can the next morning while Alex was away and before we suspected the food. This was her first salmon meal. She vomited that night and the next morning. That can is likely in recycling and out of the house. I had mixed case of Sliced Salmon as far as lot numbers go, so I have several lot numbers. The other one not listed is 7XSSM4. I listed the most common time stamp, I have 3 time stamps from the most common lot and two from the other.	3	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	11	Ounce

Food was falling out of his mouth. Took him to see vet. They started him on antibiotics, did dental cleaning and oral exam. Labs and exam normal. He did not improve. Took him to see veterinary internist specialist. She suggested a neurological problem. Performed labs, X rays and upper endoscopy. Only problem noted was tumor on cervical spine, but she felt it was not related to his eating problem. Vomiting got worse, medication did not help. Saber stopped eating anything we tried to feed him. He become weak, thin, depressed, unsteady on feet. We had him put to sleep on (b) (6). Made in Thailand by Big Heart Pet Brands. From Winco food at (b) (6) I am a 68 year old male who lives with my 38 year old daughter. There are no children in the house. We have an older cat named (b) (6), grey and white. This cat can to us about 7 years ago. He is the sweetest cat even, never hurt anyone, and always love to lay with us. We can do anything to him and he never gets upset. He loves to sleep with me, right on my head, loves his belly rubbed and keep the house free of mice. He is the most lovable, kind tender cat we have ever seen. No we do not say this without experience as my daughter was in charge of all animal health care at (b) (6). She was known to all as the cat whisper. She has degrees from (b) (6), (b) (6), (b) (6) (b) (6). Our act loves tuna so I was the 4 part of this cat food from 9 lives. I took it home and feed him ½ can at 4pm. Now he had dry food 24/7 and gets wet food twice a day. This night about 3am or 4am while in bed with me he sat up Hissed, growled, loud became mean and nasty. It scared the hell out of me. I was so afraid of the way he looked I jumped out of bed, he went after me clawed me and ran into another room to hide. No one could approach him. We waited till next morning around 10am when he can up for his food. He seemed fine but we were afraid of him. I feed him the tune again. Around 2pm he went nuts again. He took after us then ran and hides. This went on for 2 days. We feed him on the 2nd day at night. He crawled on the couch with us and went to sleep. We were on our guard. He fell off the couch lifeless and we though he was dead. My daughter found a faint heart beat. She said it looked like he was a deadly drug. She gave him CPR worked to wake him up. After 3 minutes he woke up went crazy again clawing thing and again ran and hide. My daughter never saw anything like this.	9	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	40	Pound

			We had 2 options now 1 to find out what is causing this, the second was to put him down being so dangers. We never give up on our animals. We both looked for everything possible and the only thing we came up with is the cat food had sometime it. We took him off the 9 Lives food; feed him just water to flush his system. We change back to his usual cat food and after 2 days he returned to the cat we love and now is sleeping with me again. He is our lovable cat again. 9 lives tuna cat food was making him dangerous mean and nasty. I also killed him. It need to be taken off the market and all the people who had he cats put down because of it be notified. I enclose a can for testing as proof.

EON-311261	4/19/2017 22:00	Friskies Classic Pate Poultry Platter	I came home from work and I was about to wash my cats food bowl when I noticed a green thing within the Friskies Wet food. I figured out that it was a piece of plastic. I took pictures of it and the can that it came out of, I proceed to contact Purina. I sent them an email first but no one responded back to me by email . So I called the customer service number and spoke with a rep. I explained to her my concern of finding the piece of plastic and that I wanted to be compensated for the money that I had spent. She was very nice and told me that I should receive a check and coupons soon. The rep sent me a email to send my pictures to, but again no one responded to my email. I really thought that they need to do something about this, what if other animals have possibly consumed the same piece of plastic. I called their corporate office to speak with the CEO but I was transferred to a manager. She apologized to me and said that she was able to see the pictures I sent and that she appreciated me contacting them to address the issue. She asked if I would consider sending the piece of plastic to them and I said yes. She said that she would send me a envelope to mail it in and that there would be a investigation done. I asked her how would they investigate the situation, the numbers on the bottom of the can would allow them to find out where, when and so much as to when the product was made. I asked her to please send me a email per our conversation that day and to please keep me updated on what could have caused that piece of plastic to end up in the wet food. I have not received a email from the manager that I talked to, but I have received the package to mail the plastic piece in. I also received a check along with a bunch of coupons. I still have the can and the piece of plastic. I just want to make sure that they alert the public and prevent any issues or deaths from occurring. EON-311112	4/18/2017 21:12	Party Animal Cocolicious	I have two dogs, two cats. (b) (6), the Pekingese, was diagnosed a couple years ago with some food allergies. His allergies manifest as itchy skin. Since he was diagnosed with food allergies, I have been very careful what I feed him. Since he munches on the other dog's food and the cats' food, every pets' diet is restricted by (b) (6) allergies. The cats didn't seem too happy with the canned cat food that I was feeding them (which was the same brand as what I was feeding the dogs), so I decided to research a new brand that I could feed them that would also be safe for (b) (6) in case he ate some of their food. I determined that Cocolicious by Party Animal was a potential option, so I bought some canned dog food of this brand to try it on the dogs. Between both dogs, they ate probably 6 cans total over the course of 1.5-2 weeks in early-mid March 2017 while also still feeding them the brand that I had been feeding. The morning of March 19, (b) (6) vomited food. He vomited a few other times that morning (white foam) and was lethargic. He stopped vomiting in the afternoon, but remained lethargic. I worked from home on March 20 so I could observe him. He remained lethargic this day and refused food. Late in the afternoon, I found what appeared to be a pool of blood on the floor. I found (b) (6) and he had blood on his back end. The vet's office was closing soon, so I called to ask what I should do. They said to observe him and take him to the emergency vet if he appeared to get worse, and they made an appointment for him the following morning when their office opened. That night, I found another pool of blood on the floor and more blood on (b) (6) back end. I took him to the emergency vet that evening. He was diagnosed with acute pancreatitis based upon blood tests and later, an ultrasound. (b) (6) had never had pancreatitis before. One of the blood test results was off the scale. The emergency vet thought it was strange that he would develop pancreatitis, with no history of it, with blood test results so high and with how carefully I feed him. I also cook for the dogs, but I cook meats that are low fat and to which (b) (6) is not allergic. The emergency vet wanted to do an ultrasound to look for a potential cause of the pancreatitis. The ultrasound confirmed pancreatitis but did not find a cause for it. The only thing that she and I could identify as a possible cause is the introduction of the Cocolicious food, but we assumed it was because of the fat content.	12	Years	Pekingese	Dog	17	Pound

EON-311002	4/18/2017 0:04	GlycoFlex Moderate Strength Stage 2 Joint Support Feline Formula	All 3 of our cats got diarrhea after they have been given the treat for four days (2 pieces each per day). They were also fed their regular wet food (Natures Variety Instinct) which they have been fed for several years. While the diarrhea in two of the cats was relatively benign, the third cat ((b) (6)) had extremely watery stool and developed high fever and became lethargic. We took the cat to the emergency clinic where the the temperature was taken and Metronidazole 50 mg, 1 daily, prescribed. His CBC und blood chemistry was unremarkable, no heart murmur was found. Diagnosis was inflammation of the GI tract, possibly a bacterial infection. The cat's condition worsened within the next 15 h after we took him home: short, raspy breath, weakness and lethargy, the body temperature fell below normal. We took the cat back to the emergency clinic where it was initially (after X-ray) treated for pneumonia and where he died 6h later. The final diagnosis was congestive heart failure with significant amount of fluid accumulation in the lungs, apparently pneumonia was not the cause. The other two cats recovered after one or so and recovered.	6	Years	Mixed (Cat)	Cat	11	Pound

EON-310981	4/17/2017 18:48	Natural Balance L.I.D. Limited Ingredient Diets Venison & Green Pea Formula	Upon opening a NEW order of Dick Van Patten's Natural Balance Limited Ingredient Venison and Green Pea Formula canned cat food 5.5 oz. I noticed a MARKED difference in smell, color, and texture of food. The Best used by date is 2/22/20. The numbers of the cans read #7053803 B1VPM2338; UPC code is 723633532327. I had a can of the PREVIOUS weeks order of food and it had a different best used date of 10/18/19 and the number stamped on the can is #6292803 B1VPN0353; UPC code is 723633532327. I read the label of BOTH cans of food and it was identical. It is OBVIOUS that is was altered or changed but the label was identical. I fed it to my cat and within a couple of hours he projectile vomited. I do not make an accusation that the food is tainted in any way but there is marked potential for many cats to become ill if consumers are not privy to the new formula. Food of any kind should not be altered or changed without a change of labeling. The old textue of the food was "meatier" it was darker in color, and it had a course texture. The new formula is much lighter in color and is pastier like liverwurst. That is the best way to describe it. It also has a different smell to it. Consumers need to know the content and/or correct order of the content of this food.

I mixed her medicine with her food as I always do but she didn't want any so I figured she knew the medicine was in it. I went to add more food to dilute medicine. The next spoonful had mold in it. I reported the incident to the pet food store and was instructed to contact Fromm. She could care less. She said she would see if any cans were damaged. I told her my can wasn't damaged, but she said that was all she could do. I would have thought as a responsible business owner she would pull every can from that lot and contact Fromm herself....guess not though.

EON-310801	4/15/2017 23:48	Orijen Original	I spotted something that looked like it didn't belong while measuring my dogs dinners into their bowls one evening. I sifted through the food and found one kibble with something embedded on the surface that appeared to be a piece of plastic. I looked through the rest of the food more closely and found a few other suspicious pieces embedded in other kibbles. I have two different foods on hand (one of my dogs eats a blend of two different foods) so instead of continuing to feed them the Orijen (with the suspicious pieces embedded in the kibble), I gave them the other food/brand. I took pictures of the suspicious kibble and emailed the manufacturer through their website to inquire about what might be in the food (since it looked like it could be natural, bone or eggshell, maybe). I took some more food out of the bag the next day and began looking through it more closely, including breaking open a few of the kibbles, and continued finding more suspicious pieces embedded in the food. The pieces did not all look the same; some were opaque, others translucent, long and thin and segmented, or wide and flat, etc. I took as detailed pictures as I could (one piece was especially difficult to photograph...it was completely clear, embedded inside a kibble I broke open, and only glinted at certain angles). The manufacturer replied to my email and I sent them the pictures I took. They requested that I send them the kibbles for further testing and sent me a prepaid, addressed FedEx envelope for the samples. I put them in the bag they included, sent them the kibble samples, and waited for the results. I was notified on 4/12/17 that the kibble was indeed contaminated with plastic. They considered it an isolated incident since they received no other complaints, but it was pure chance that I happened to discover the issue. Had I not seen the one kibble with the one piece of plastic embedded at the surface, I would not have started looking through the food and breaking open the individual pieces. I still have approximately 1/3 of the bag left and have no doubt there is more plastic to be found if I keep looking since I found it disconcertingly quickly once I actually knew I was looking for something. I replied to Champion, addressing my concerns and that I would like further information on exactly what type of plastic it is and the country of origin but have not yet received a reply.

Normally patients who have increase sugar (glucose) in their urine also have a concurrent elevated blood sugar (glucose) levels. However, (b) (6) had normal blood glucose levels, thus this indicates that the kidneys are not reabsorbing the glucose appropriately. We suspect, especially given the history recently ingesting chicken jerky treats made in China, that she has Fanconi-like syndrome. This syndrome is where patients have acute kidney damage, and are unable to resorb appropriately and should be reversible with time. Therefore, patients commonly have a glucose in their urine with normal blood glucose, electrolyte imbalances, such as low potassium and phosphorus, acid/base abnormalities, where the blood pH is more acidic, and elevated kidney values. All of these factors, especially electrolyte imbalance, elevate kidney values, and acidemia, will cause patients to be feel sick.	8	Years	Havanese	Dog	4.33	Kilogram

By 1200pm (b) (6) our dog (b) (6) is now having another seizure about hour later 100pm he has another seizure, now it (b) (6) and getting a vet is not an easy task but I was able to get a hold of out vet at (b) (6) in (b) (6). The dog is now seizing about every 30 minutes, the doctor agrees to see us so we now are headed into the vet and the dog begins to seizure every few minutes. Taking him to the vet and was asked if he could have gotten into any poison of sort. This was impossible we have nothing around that he could have gotten into and they have a dog door with a fenced yard so it couldn't have been something outside. Ran blood and all his stuff was normal liver, kidneys ect..... The doctor gave him some medicine to slow down the seizures. All night he was seizing the doctor had given me a couple shots to help him if they kept up and worsened. I gave one that night before bed and another again first thing in the morning that's when we had decided that the dog needed to be put down it was getting worse and worse and was not fair to him. Couple days later I seen where there had been other dogs get sick on the same bones bought around same time at a Walmart store. That is when I realized that was the only thing that was changed in his normal diet. I did some research to find out there are a lot of times there is formaldehyde is used in processing these bones. I believe that there is a good chance that these bones did have some kind of poison in them. EON-309646	4/6/2017 4:28	Greenbrier Kennel Club Munchy Bones	After consuming at least 1 a day each of the GkC, Greenbrier Kennel Club's munchy bones for about a week, both my one year old and my 9 year old female pitbull's behavior changed. Both dogs had horrible gas (much worse than normal with a stronger odor), my 9 year old pit had vomitted twice within a 4 day time period, and both dogs were lacking their normal energy and playfulness. the older pit had swelling in her neck, throat and face that appereared within 5 minutes of eattng the bone. she became extremely aggated, cried when she was pet on or around the neck, and lathargic. My husband and I thought they were both just adjusting to the weather change and possibly their allergies, or the fact we had been in and out none stop due to work so they were not sleeping as much..On Saturday, April 1, 2017 i had givem both dogs a munchy bone. No more than 5 minutes later i noticed that one of the bones (a red colored one) had been eaten about a quarter of tge way and the rest completely ignored, which is extremely uncommon for these two girls. the older pit had swelling in her neck, throat and face that appereared within 5 minutes of eattng the bone. she became extremely aggated, cried when she was pet on or around the neck, and lathargic. My husband and I attempted to examine her neck area but was unable to determine the cause of her pain. After looking a little closer at the munchy bone i noticed a foreign metal object pertruding from the bone. Upon inspection i could see that at least a 1 inch long metal rod was sticking out of the munchy bone. I am unable to determine how long the rod is because i did not want to pull it completly from the bone incase i needed proof other than a photo <sup>(b) (6)</sup>, the 9 yr old pitbull, was immediatly taken to a vet that thankfully is less than a mile from our home. the veterrarian was able to conclude that without a doubt the bones were the cause of both dogs aliments. Mia also under went xrays to see if there was any damage done by the bones or foreign objects within the bones. She had to receive fluids for dhydration that the bones caused, antibodics for the damage done by other foreign objects shown on xray, a steriod, and pain pills. she has to return to the doctor on thursday, april 6th to check her recovery progress and to have more blood work and one more xray to see if all harmful items have been passed. I have photos of the bad bpne, a receipt of when they were purchased along with the actual bone and packaging. I also have all paper work from the vet visit.	9	Years	Pit Bull	Dog	112	Pound

He drank a little of the water and then walked away... which is extremely unusual for this dog as he usually loves his food and eats every last morsel. We tried feeding him the same food again the next day with the same response. We tried 1 more time at the next meal, he ate a little but not much...which we feel was mostly because he was so hungry. I went to the store and bought a small bag of similar food (Orijen Puppy... they did not have a small bag of the Orijen Puppy Large) and feed it to him the next meal - he ate it excitedly and finished the whole bowl full. We opened a new bag and gave it to her for dinner. That night she needed to go out 4 times when she normally sleeps through the night and raced out to poop. She had the food again for breakfast which she later vomitted up, and at noon when we came out she had explosive diaherea in her cage. Fed her beef and rice to get her stomach back to normal as we thought she had just gotten into something. She was back to normal a day and a half later, so she ate the puppy food again for breakfast today and I came home to her crate full of diaherea. This started on a Saturday and by Monday morning the eight that ate wet & dry had stopped vomiting and were eating OTHER food. The TWO that only ate dry food were still vomiting and at that point had started to vomit blood. I rushed those two to my vet. They had to stay at the vet 3 days each for treatment. My vet said ABSOLUTELY food related. Personally I missed 2 days of work dealing with Purina, researching & buying different brand food and spending time with my cats at the vet. Customer Service at Purina took information: Numbers off the bags of the food and she told me to go ahead and dispose of them. They sent me a reimbursement check for those bags. After cats came home from my vet, I called Purina Customer Service back with the amount of my vet bill - $2201.73. I was given the information for their Insurance Company (Sedgwick) to file a claim. I sent them all the information, as did my vet. I also requested reimbursement for 6 unopened bags of the same food that I had stocked up on at the same time...and sent them pictures of the bags for proof. I waited two weeks and just called today (3/23/17) for the status of my claim. I was told that I was denied and the "letter of denial was in the mail". I plan on taking legal action, I am so upset! She had been on Beneful her entire life and I thought maybe it was time for a healthy alternative as she was a little overweight. I started with the Blue food, check flavor and she didn't really like it so I thought I would buy the wet food to mix with it and she seemed to like the Red Meat flavor the best, so that is what I mixed with her food. She went through 1 bag of the Blue food in chicken flavor and the next bag I bought was the Red Meat flavor in addition to continuing the wet food with it. About 2 weeks ago, she started vomiting and shaking and very lethargic. We took her to the vet hospital where she was diagnosed with kidney failure. She was released after 4 days because her kidney levels were not going down and there wasn't much else they could do. She has not fully recovered and we are not sure she will as she is in bad shape. EON-306219	3/16/2017 18:08	Best Bully Sticks Premium Chicken Jerky	Around January 17, 2017, our dog (b) (6) vomited a few times. The next day he stopped eating. He was also drinking large amounts of water. On January 20, he was still not eating anything but still drinking a lot of water. We brought him to the emergency room at (b) (6) in (b) (6). They gave him some medicine for his stomach, and an appetite stimulant, but it did not solve the problem. 2 days later, he still would not eat, and now also was not drinking anything, so we brought him into an internist at (b) (6). After several days of testing, and still not eating, they narrowed it down to his kidneys which were failing. He was admitted to the critical care unit at (b) (6), as he had gone from 22 to 15 pounds. Eventually, after over a week-long stay at (b) (6) they suspected Fanconi Syndrome most likely caused from a chicken jerky treat. After treating him for this, his renal tests slowly improved and he started to eat a little. He is almost completely recovered now, but it has been a long process and the financial costs were high. While this was going on, the doctors at (b) (6) had submitted a sample of (b) (6) urine to the (b) (6) (b) (6) and the report did indeed come back positive for Fanconi Syndrome. Before this occurred, we were unaware of the issues people were having with pets and chicken jerky treats. We had regularly bought them for (b) (6) (different brands), and had no problems in the past. We had though recently (12/20/16) purchased a large bag of chicken jerky treats online from BestBullySticks.com SKU#BBS13 and we are pretty sure that they are the culprit. The bag says the chicken jerky treats are from Brazil, and I know the problems have been treats coming from China, but they were the treats that (b) (6) was eating at the time, and for at least the 2-3 weeks before this happened. It would be great if we could recover some of our medical costs for (b) (6) As I write this, we have not as yet contacted BestBullySticks.com about the incident.	9	Years	Dachshund - Miniature	Dog	17	Pound

EON-304645	3/8/2017 15:52	Wellness Core Grain-Free Original Formula, Wellness Core Grain-Free Indoor Formula	Purchased two bags of Wellness-Core-bagged dry cat food (both cats had been eating this same food prior to buying the two new bags). One bag was the "original" product line and one bag was the "indoor" product line. Upon feeding the cats the newly purchased food one of the cats began to vomit shortly after eating. At this time cat #2 did not show any symptoms. Cat #1 became increasingly ill after eating as time went on until he could not hold down as few as 6 pieces of the kibble and would vomit it up almost immediately. Cat #2 after about 1 1/2 weeks then begin to vomit immediately after consuming the food. Upon seeing cat #2 eating and then immediately vomiting I realized it was the food as cat #2 is purely indoors and has only vomited twice in the 3 years prior to this. To test my suspicion I went to the store and purchased a couple of cans bland wet food and fed a table spoon of the wet food to the sickest cat #1. He consumed it with no problems what so ever. I increased the amount until he had the eaten the entire can - again with no vomiting. Shortly after I fed him another can ( he weighs 15 pounds) again with no problem. Age and weight of cat entered above on form is for cat #1 estimated age 6 years and 14.9 pounds-neutered male. Gave him one on Wednesday night after he was chewing on it for a while he swallowed like all dogs do with these type of bones. In fact my dog usually chews his food very well not a food gobbler. I noticed him acting very restless I figured it did not agree with him. He was pacing all night so next day brought him to vet because he would not eat anything and still was acting very strange and lethargic. Vet gave me something for upset stomach to rule out something not agreeing with him. By Saturday morning there was no change so I took him to VCA an emergency animal hospital. They did an ultrasound and X ray which reveled the bone had lodged in his lower esophagus. They had to do a scope and it took nearly 4 hours to chip away at the piece of bone lodged in esophagus. Doctor said she never seen anything like it and could not believe that the bones are for dogs 90 pounds or more. They are too big and would not soften up. I feel saying gulping a product can be harmful is not enough of a warning. how does one stop an animal from gulping? product should not be made that large perhaps or should soften up. They surgeon thought at first she could push it through to his stomach but once in found just how hard the product was and did not soften but expanded and stayed hard with the water he was drinking. I feel dog owners need to be made aware of this and they did to recall and redesign product. If it got stuck in a 100 plus pound dog clearly it's not for any large breed dog.	3	Years	Boxer (German Boxer)	Dog	100	Pound

He did not have problems when switching over his dry dog food. During the past 1-2 months, I noticed that (b) (6) skins get healthier with less scratch for itchiness or hot spot (which I can't tell if that's the benefit from the dog food or the new shampoo and disinfectant I used when I showered him), (b) (6) poops are firmer and not as watery as he had when he was on his previous diet. (b) (6) did drink a lot of water and poops pretty good size of poop during every walk, has bad gas, and vomited a couple times. I honestly did not think twice that his drinking a lot of water, bad gas, has large amount of poops 3x/day and the two-time vomiting were issues. But out of nowhere, on (b) (6), (b) (6) suddenly lost his mobility and balance, he shivered, looked very lethargic and drowsy, panted (which was quite unusual in cold winter days), restless at night, with decreased appetite and watery eyes. I rushed (b) (6) to the local vets, his MRI and X-rays ruled out arthritis or brain/ear problems (for his losing balance and mobility). I was trying Rachael ray dog food because she had so many flavors so I mixed 1/4 of Rachael ray dog food with 3/4 his normal dog food so he had eaten about 3/4 of a cup of Rachael ray dog food total. He was unstable he could not jump. He was having major neurologic symptoms related to eating this food. Nothing else new had been added to his daily routine except the new dog food. This was a very scary moment for me. I constantly had to monitor his respiratory rate, thinking that this would be the next sign of deterioration. I also monitored him for seizing. I did not note any seizing to take place. This food has something in it that is causing horrible neurological signs and symptoms. I could not image what would have happened if I would have fed him his normal 2.5 cups with this food. I think he would have seized to death. I am also concerned that this will affect him forever. Noticed larvae in the container being filled. This is the second bag in a row we found this in and from the same store. Took the food back to the PetSmart and spoke to the manager. He said this has been a problem, primarily with Purina products for the last year. He's had to throw out ~$7,000 worth of food due to the moths and that they were Indian Meal moths. There have been other stores with the same problem. He has contacted Purina but can't be sure if its a problem in the distribution center or manufacturer. I don't know if Petco or other sellers are having the same problem.

EON-302607	2/20/2017 21:28	Friskies Meaty Bits Chicken Dinner in Gravy	We noticed that our cat had began to vomit, it took one more feeding time after the first adverse reaction to notice that he was doing so within four hours (as short as 1 hour, as long as three hours) after consuming Friskies Canned Cat Food, of the Meaty Bits line, as well as appearing very ill after vomiting. Normally this line is the only type of food he will eat and digest well. We tried one more time, and after he threw up again, I decided to look in the box. I realized that we had only fed him the Chicken Dinner in Gravy so far. In order to make sure that that particular food was what was making him sick, we decided to try and feed him the other kind and if he was still sick take him to the vet as it would then clearly be some other factor. However, after switching the food, he has stopped vomiting or appearing ill after eating. I decided that this was evidence enough to raise concern and to submit this report. I bought Pedigree small dog healthy longevity complete nutrition (dry dog food) and pedigree choice cuts in gravy (canned dog food) approximately 3 weeks ago and mixed the dry with the canned. My kids and I started to notice she wasn't as lovely as normal immediately but didn't realize it was a reaction to the new food. 5 days ago I witnessed her having a seizure and she had another one 4 days ago and another one 3 days ago. She was weak and when she walked she was off balance and falling over and she was disoriented and confused and scared and flinched when the kids or I came near her. I would put her outside to go to the bathroom and she wouldn't leave the porch and would do her business all over the house. She was completely potty trained. So two days ago I decided to give her the champion complete dog food instead and she has not had another seizure she is walking around totally balanced not falling over. She isn't confused or scared and she is doing her business outside again. Three days ago her health was deteriorating so rapidly I thought I was going to need to have her out to sleep. Today she is back to her old self. I'm filing this complaint because after looking up pedigree dog food online, there are 100's of complaints about pedigree dog food causing seizures in dogs. Dented cans: On at least 3 shipments (2 flats each) of Evanger's organic chicken canned dog food, approximately 50% of the cans were dented moderately to severely. All cans appeared to maintain their vacuum seal, So, I used them. The dented sides of the cans were all hidden by either being turned towards the inside of the flat or actually being in the inside of the flat. My opinion: it is statistically impossible for this to happen by chance. The cans were turned to hide the damage.</li> <li>2. I received a can of the same organic dog food that did not have a vacuum on the can. I did not use that can and made a video telling people how to detect if a can has a vacuum before opening the can, I published it on Facebook and sent a copy to either Evanger's or the product distributor (I can't remember which one or both).</li> <li>3. I received a shipment (2 flats) of the same organic dog food. The texture, consistency and color of these cans made me believe that the contents were not chicken, but beef. My dogs reacted to the food with the typical (what is this?) look, this from 2 bullmastiffs (they are known to eat anything), this behavior led me to believe that the contents were not in-fact chicken.</li> </ol> Given the push back I received from Evanger's (from 1 of their VP's), I made the decision to change dog food brands. This occurred prior to the recall. As a mechanical designer, I understand that manufacturing mistakes happen, and hold no ill will towards Evanger's; My dogs did not become sick. I took him to the vet the following Monday (it was a Friday that he returned home) and they informed me that he was in kidney failure and that they're not sure what could have caused it. He was mostly an outside cat so it's hard to know what he could've gotten into. I had to have him put down. I didn't find anything in the yard that could have caused him to get that sick. I started giving the treats to my dog & within a few days she stopped eating her regular food. The night of (b) (6), she was panting very heavily & couldn't lay down. She was becoming very lethargic as well. I brought her to my local veterinarian & they ran every test possible, but everything came back normal. They then did an x-ray to discover that her abdomen was filled with fluid. They told me to take her straight to the Emergency animal hospital in (b) (6). While there, they drained 3 liters of fluid (blood) on (b) (6). On (b) (6), they drained 1 liter & another liter on (b) (6). After multiple x-rays & 2 ultrasounds, they informed me that she most likely had cancer & would probably not survive. After running a c-scan, it was conclusive that she did not have cancer or lacerations that was causing the internal bleeding, but had no idea what was happening! We were able to take her home on (b) (6) & she is slowly recovering & is on many medications. She most likely will need a blood transfusion by the end of the week & also a stint inserted to continue to drain the blood. We have spent almost $5000.00 in a matter of days. After talking to a neighbor about what happened, they told me of a friend's dog that went through the same thing (unusual internal bleeding), after eating Golden Rewards Chicken jerky. I started doing some research only to discover to my horror that the FDA is aware that this product has been making dogs severely ill & or died. Walmart has also been made aware of this & yet they still carry this product. I contacted another veterinarian's office & they have posted a picture of this product warning owners to not feed this product to their dogs. I know that there was a class action lawsuit over another chicken jerky product that was made in China with the exact same symptoms. This product was found to have mold contamination and spores growing on the kibble. My cat experienced two bouts of excessive vomiting accompanied by esophageal hemorrhage, dehydration and general discomfort. Each bout required visits to a veterinarian's office for testing (physical examination, bloodwork, x-rays), symptomatic treatments (subcutaneous fluids, anti-emetics injections) and at-home medical treatment. This product was brand new to his diet and was used only twice, of which both servings resulted in stated vomiting episodes. After his second episode, we inspected of all his food products and discovered the mold spores in the pouch of FreshPet, which had been properly stored since purchase. Investigation of this issue resulted in finding complaints and partial recalls of Freshpet products, specifically for mold growth resulting in illness and death in pets, dating back to 2014 with no concern or attention shown by their company. Even a simple Google search for "freshpet mold" returns a multitude of consumer reported problems. This unapologetic and apathetic approach is unacceptable, highlights a lack of ethics and directly opposes the Freshpet Commitment stated on their website: "Freshpet is dedicated to bringing the power of fresh, real food to pets. From the care we take to source our ingredients and make our food, to the moment it reaches your home, Freshpet's integrity, transparency and social responsibility are the way we like to run our business. Our goal is to do the right thing for pets, for people and for the planet." In the spirit of your stated business commitment I request swift resolution to be brought to this issue.	9	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	12.1	Pound
EON-301809	2/14/2017 20:52	Kirkland Signature Super Premium Adult Dog Lamb Rice and Vegetable Formula	(b) (6) was an 11 year old mixed breed (beagle/basset/shepherd, I think) with NO history of medical illness and who was never even remotely sick 1 day in his life. On Friday, (b) (6), I gave him Kirkland Super Premium Lamb, Rice, and Vegetable dog food for the first time. I do not recall if I fed him that in the morning or if evening was the first time. At 7:30 p.m. I noticed him shaking and wobbly and arching his back. Within 15 minutes, I have him at the emergency vet who tried for 3 hours to get the seizure under control to no avail. Euthanasia was recommended.  I don't know that it was the food but it certainly seems very odd and I would not want anyone else to endure this pain.	11	Years	Beagle	Dog	55	Pound

EON-301801	2/14/2017 18:40	Pedigree Adult Complete Nutrition Dog Food	On 1/24/17, we purchased a large bag of Pedigree dog food from a Sam's Wholesale store. (We have the receipt as well.) Two days after the food was purchased we began noticing symptoms such as fatigue, difficulties getting around and loss of appetite. Our dogs' abdomen became distended, and he began to be extremely thirsty. We received medication from our vet based on the initial symptoms, but he then began vomiting and unable to keep the medication or water down. We went to the vet and after lab work was completed, the vet informed us that (b) (6) liver enzymes were elevated and he was also in kidney failure. Two weeks ago this past Saturday (b) (6), our chocolate lab, "(b) (6)" passed away.(We opted to euthanize as our vet informed us that he could buy him a few days but that he wouldn't recover as his kidneys were too far gone) We couldn't stand the thought of our dog suffering. 6 days after (b) (6) passed our other family dog, (b) (6) ( astray that we have had over two years) also passed, she also had similar symptoms as he did. We have since through process of elimination felt that the dog food could have been the cause and are no longer giving it to our remaining dog, a siberian husky that is 10 years old.	9	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	45	Pound

EON-301712	2/14/2017 8:24	Orijen Original	I have purchased all of my pet food from Chewy.com for just over a year. I switched my dog's dry dog food recently to Orijen Originals. I mix half dry and half canned each morning and evening. I did not change his canned food. The first two days I used his new dry food (b) (6) picked out the dry pieces and left them on the floor outside of his bowl. The third day I finally got him to eat some of the dry food by letting the mixture sit for a while first with water in it. He ate about half of it. A few hours later he started vomiting and continued to do that about every 3 hours for almost 12 hours. He had no other symptoms. I went on-line to Chewy and read customer comments about the product. I learned that others had problems getting their dogs to eat it so I posted my experience there. Then I went to the Orijen website and sent them an explanation about what happened and included the product lot number and expiration date for the product (300396-62992, BB26 APR 2018 19 06BS). That was Sunday, Feb. 12. Today is the 14th and I have not heard back from them yet. Chewy sent me an email this morning and said they read my comments and are refunding my money for the product. They are a good company. I didn't even ask for that. Since Orijen has not responded to my email yet, I thought it was smart to let you know what is going on in case you receive other reports. I hate to think other dogs are having to go through this. (b) (6) (my dog) is an Aussie who is very healthy, only two years old, and competes in agility. He is very strong and healthy. I hate to think what this stuff would have done to him if he were old. He seems fine now, and I have been mixing his canned food with oatmeal for a couple days to calm his stomach. There doesn't seem to be any lasting effects of the incident.	2	Years	Shepherd Dog - Australian	Dog	155	Pound

EON-301699	2/13/2017 19:52	Taste of the Wild High Prairie Canine Formula with Roasted Bison and Roasted Venison	When we received a fresh, sealed 15 lb bag of Taste of the Wild, (b) (6) (dog) was reluctant to eat the kibble but proceeded slowly. He then had diarrhea and vomiting for the next 2 days. After recovery from illness, he refused to eat Taste of the Wild. The kibble smelled off so I contacted Chewy's, the retailer, and obtained a refund. The remaining kibble (about 14 lbs) in the airtight container was discarded and the container was thoroughly cleaned and air dried. The water and food bowls were hand washed and dried thoroughly. A second fresh, sealed bag of Taste of the Wild from Amazon's was opened and fed to (b) (6) (dog). After a day, (b) (6) (dog) again refused to eat the kibble. Even after storage in a clean, dry airtight container, the kibble developed an odor rapidly. I suspect the kibble was contaminated during the manufacturing process because 2 bags of the same kibble spoiled within a day of opening. Food Storage: The 15 lb bags are stored in a temperature regulated kitchen. After opening, the kibble is stored in a 25 lb Gamma2 Vittles Vault Plus Pet Food Storage. Dog's Behavior: (b) (6) (dog) previously ate Purina, Hill's Science Diet, Fromm's Gold, and Taste of the Wild enthusiastically. The "picky" eating behavior is not typical for him. In fact, (b) (6) (dog) had been eating Taste of the Wild for over a month and loved it so much we used it as treats sometimes. The rapid aversion to the food is unexpected and continues even after recovering.	17	Months	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	65	Pound

EON-301583	2/12/2017 19:12	Pur Luv Grande Bone Bacon Flavor	Gave this product to my dog around 3pm on 2/2/17 which she ate within 10 minutes. Within 4 hours, my dog was vomiting up chunks of the red center that this product is comprised of. For the next 10 days (2/2/17-2/11/17) my dog was vomiting up chunks of the red center along with bile. On 2/11/17, however, my dog began to show severe signs of distress (lethargy, confusion, restlessness, vomiting, lack of appetite, etc). After many hours of nervous pacing and vomiting, I called an emergency vet to consult on what to do as I was beginning to think that my dog may pass away. Eventually my dog was able to find enough comfort to lie down and rest. The next day upon inspecting her stool, I found more marble sized rock-hard & completely undigested chunks of this red dog treat. If my dog had been unable to vomit/pass this through her system, I fear that the undigested treat remaining in her stomach for over a week would have killed her. Upon further investigation, I have found countless petitions and reviews online of people who have experienced the same situation that my dog and I had to get through, with many people claiming that this treat caused thousands in vet bills, surgeries, or that they were too late and that the treat killed their dog. This product NEEDS to be removed from stores and the company needs to be investigated properly on why they are putting indigestible ingredients in their treats.	15	Years	Collie - Border	Dog	45	Pound
EON-301577	2/12/2017 16:44	Pure Balance Grain Free Salmon & Pea Recipe	I began (b) (6) on PURE BALANCE (Salmon) purchased from Walmart a few months ago. It is a fishy smelling food. However, when I opened the third bag of food, it seemed unbearable to smell, but I didn't really think it was bad. About 3-4 weeks later (b) (6) slowly started seeming ill. He wasn't himself, he got bloated, he wouldn't roll over, he seemed to have something going on is his head because he kept looking up and sometimes stretching while he did this. He also seemed to stop drinking at the end of the 4 weeks and constantly licking his chops. I finally remembered that the food didn't smell good after thinking for a while that he must have gotten into something that made him sick. It wasn't until his last day on the food when he literally would not eat it that I knew something was wrong and it was likely the food. (Believe me, my dog does not turn down food!!!!) Anyway, I bought a new brand and gave it to him that night and he threw up, and then I noticed that he had thrown up earlier that day. By day 2 on the new food, (b) (6) was like a puppy and his bloat went away and he is the naughty dog he always was. I am coming to you with this because I cannot find a phone number for the MFG. EON-300975	2/8/2017 9:56	Evanger's Organics Turkey with Potato and Carrots Dinner	I have seen the recall for Evanger's canned beef that is contaminated with Phenobarbital. I looked up the symptoms online because one of my dogs had recently acted sick after eating and I had no idea why. I feed my dogs Evanger's canned organic turkey. A week ago, 2/3/17, about an hour after they ate, one began showing symptoms of Phenobarbital poisoning. I didn't know then what they were symptoms of, but only that he was acting sick. I took him to the vet, who looked him over but did no tests. The vet said to bring him home and watch for vomiting. He gradually improved and was walking and eating after 5 hours but not back to his usual self for about 24 hours. My other dog was fed from a different can of the same food and showed no symptoms. I buy the food in quantity from Chewy.com and pile the cans up in my cupboard, where cans from different cases get mixed up. I throw the cans away as soon as I've emptied them. So, I can't determine now which can that particular meal came from. It could have been one with a July 2020 best-by date. Not long before that, I opened a can to find a golf-ball-sized irregular lump of something hard and yellowish-grey in it. I reported it and gave the numbers on the can lid to Chewy. They were going to report it to Evanger's. I threw that can away. For almost the entire time I was buying this food, I received many dented and smashed-in cans. Chewy always refunded or replaced them, but it seemed as though Evanger's had some problem they couldn't or wouldn't fix. But a good OG canned dog food at a reasonable price is hard to find, so I stuck with Evanger's till now. After the lump and the recall for Phenobarbital, I quit buying anything made by Evanger's. I think you should investigate this company thoroughly, especially the possibly presence of Phenobarbital in other types of their food and the possibly criminal source of the Phenobarbital. Thank you --    (b) (6)	12	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	40	Pound

EON-300842	2/6/2017 23:28	Exer-Hides Rawhide Rolls	On (b) (6) I had went to Walmart and purchased raw hide bones for a (b) (6) treat for our dogs. On (b) (6) I gave our dogs the bones about 630 in the morning. Our very health, happy never had any health problems what so ever dog (b) (6) started having seizures about 9am. This dog had never had a problem with raw hide bones in the past. Again about noon he started to seizure again then it become about every 30 to 1 hour he would seizure. (b) (6) so took me a bit to get a hold of our vet. By 3 we where at the vet hospital now the seizures have become every few minutes. Our vet suggested poison I told him no way this dog has not been out of the yard and we have nothing in the home for him to find to get into. And honestly dog wont hunt for anything to get into. Our vet gave him shots to help with the seizures and did some blood work checking his liver and all that. Everything came out fine. Vet sent me home with more shots if needed to give him if he kept seizure. I had to give (b) (6) one before bed then again in the night. By morning he was so bad that we decided it was best for him to put him down and not suffer. 3 days later on facebook I seen a post about the same kinda thing happened to other dogs about the same time and also where given the rawhide bones from Walmart. That is when I really put things together. I realized that (b) (6) also had been given the bone and that was only change in his diet or anything. I hadn't really thought about the bone on the day of the incident just cause it didn't really come to mind. I contacted Walmart and they had me put insurance claim in. They sent info to the manufacture who contacted me. He told me that nothing like this had ever happened and they wanted to make it right. Well they where not exactly telling the truth, I started researching the product and found other dogs had same thing happen to them. The company sent me a contract that if I excepted 400.00 and could not look into this anymore and had to drop it. Well I did not sign it and now I believe they have something to hide. I do have a couple to the bones that I have been holding onto in hopes that I can have them tested for poison. So now that is when I turned to you in hopes that I can have these bones tested and can maybe save another dog and family from going thru what we did on (b) (6).	7	Years	Cattle Dog (unspecified)	Dog	70	Pound

EON-300790	2/6/2017 13:24	Alpo Prime Cuts with Beef in Gravy	Less than 8 hours passed after giving my small dog this canned food mixed with her normal dry brand "Iams", when she began vomiting, diarrhea, and unfortunately suffering a severe and deadly seizure lasting 20 full minutes. This occurred precisely one week after giving our dogs the canned mixture as a "treat" for them, and our senior dog experiencing similar symptoms at that time. Assuming that she possibly reacted negatively to it because of her age, it didn't occur to us that the reason for her illness could have been because of the food she was given. After having this happen once again to another dog, following allowing our pets this food, we now feel certain that it is completely the fault of the Alpo Canned food.	4	Years	Chihuahua	Dog	3	Pound

EON-300705	2/5/2017 19:16	Duckles Duck Breast Fillets	(b) (6) was 13 years and 7 months old at the time of the event. He was happily engaging in social activity, eating his meals, and unfortunately, consuming Duckles Duck Breast Fillets for Dogs. (Link here: http://www.entirelypets.com/duckles-duck-breast-fillets-2lb.html) His normal diet consisted of dry pet food (all FDA approved and researched to receive a 5 star rating from Dog Food Advisor), apples, and other safe foods for dogs. The only potential hazard in his diet were the Duck Breast Fillet treats. On (b) (6), (b) (6) fell very ill. He was lethargic, unwilling to move, resisting food, and vomiting. He was taken to his veterinarian's office on (b) (6) (b) (6). On the morning of (b) (6), it was discovered that he was suffering from acute kidney failure. Despite IV medication for several hours, he developed pancreatitis, liver failure, neurological symptoms, anemia, and tachycardia. Furthermore, his kidney function worsened to next to 0%. At this stage in his life, it became apparent that extreme measures would only lengthen his life by 7 days at the maximum. In those seven days, he would have undeniably suffered and been in more pain than humanely allowed. For this reason, the family chose to euthanize him. Upon his death, the family began to reevaluate his diet, in hopes of a better life for their other, approx. 8-year old dog. Reevaluation brought them to Duckles Duck Breast Fillets for Dogs. These treats had been a commonplace item for both of the dogs. However, the strange variance between these treats and other dog foods purchased for the dogs was the lack of description available. The website claims ingredients of "100% duck" and no preservatives. However, these treats can last for a year, perhaps more. It is unlikely that there are no preservatives at all. Moreover, the "100% duck" could be 100% duck fat, or 100% duck product. The most unusual fact about the advertisement of these treats is the claim that they are "tested safe in the USA." There is no seal of FDA/USDA approval, therefore allowing for countless consumers to believe that "tested safe in the USA" means FDA/USDA approved. Countless attempts to contact the provider, Entirely Pets, were left unanswered and "read" through social media. The family strongly believe these treats caused his death. A great deal of research online shows other pets have suffered and passed away in the same way. The unwillingness of the company to cooperate is just another demonstration of this issue.	13	Years	Spitz - German Pomeranian	Dog	9.6	Pound

EON-300703	2/5/2017 18:08	DreamBone Vegetable & Chicken Chews Made with real Chicken	(b) (6) - (b) (6) was her normal, energetic self. It was her birthday so my wife picked up a "treat" for her while shopping at Target that day. Gave one (of three) of the treats (DreamBone) to (b) (6) at approximately 3:30 PM. She ate it quickly. At approximately 6:00 - 6:30 we noticed that (b) (6) appeared to be lethargic, not as energetic as is typical. She then vomited twice consecutively. I noted that the first time she vomited while laying down, didn't attempt to get up on her feet as dogs typically do when vomiting. We then called and talked to the Vet, who thought based on symptoms at that time that (b) (6) could wait until the next morning to be seen as it was after hours on a Sunday evening. We continued to monitor (b) (6) and over the next hour she quickly lost her ability to walk and then to even sit up without falling over. Her eyes were dilated and unresponsive to light and her breathing became labored. We called the vet back at 9:15 PM to establish an emergency visit and (b) (6) vomited again while I was speaking to the Vet. Upon hanging up the phone, I looked down and (b) (6) had stopped breathing. We attempted CPR for approximately 5 minutes to no avail. We then took her corpse to the Vet who confirmed death. Eating the DreamBone treat was the only thing that day that was different from any other day and her demise was quite fast after having eaten that treat. The Vet believes she died from a toxin of some type based on her symptoms and how fast they progressed. We called the Vet the next day to see if an autopsy could be performed but were informed that it could not as (b) (6) corpse had been placed in the freezer overnight. There were three "bones" in the bag of DreamBones from PETMATRIX. I still have the other two bones and would be glad to provide them to the FDA for testing. I have read on-line where many other pets have been gravely sickened, and some killed as a result of eating this same treat.	9	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	55	Pound

As soon as we opened the bag we noticed a weird smell, it didn't smell like dog food, it smelled like a weird plastic. We figured it was nothing and fed him that day and the next day, he had three meals, 7.5 cups all together. He reacted differently to this food, he didn't want to eat it. He left it laying around all day and finally ate it since there was nothing else. We noticed a drastic changed in his health and behavior. He began vomiting, had diarrhea, and refuses to drink water. He's been shaking his head a lot lately as well. We didn't give him any food for 15 hours and then slowly got him to eating rice and bland chicken, he's managed to keep it down somewhat, but he's still not drinking water and shaking his head. He's lost weight and seems lethargic. His energy level has dropped and we're severely concerned he's got a neurological disorder from being poisoned from the dog food. We have taken him to the vet and he's been given meds for nausea, vomiting, and upset stomach, as well as Metronidazole, and a special diet. If he doesn't improve in 2 days were to take him back right away. This food smell is unlike anything i've smelled before. I took the bones away from the dogs immediately once we found where the smell was coming from. The bones are especially smelly around the "knot" part of the bone. I opened another small bone I had purchased (same brand and UPC code) and the "knot" of the bone fell off. The bone has a fuzzy white, brown, and a little green material on it where the knot should have been connected to the rest of the bone. I have retained the receipt and bones from this purchase. I have a bone that we had bought a few weeks ago that I had thought I had purchased at PETCO that had the same issue. EON-298348	1/16/2017 4:20	Royal Canin Veterinary Diet Feline Hydrolyzed Protein Adult HP	Here is the product review Royal Canin refused to publish citing "profanity" as the reason:  After a slow two week transition to this food my 13 year old cat suffered his first seizure. The seizure lasted from the time I discovered him suffering at 5:30 am until the emergency vet gave him a sedative- about 20 minutes of pure hell. My cat was diagnosed with diabetes 7 years ago. I was worried the seizure was due to low blood sugar. But the test run by the emergency vet said his blood glucose was in the normal range for a diabetic cat. After reading reviews on Consumer Affairs and other sources I am worried that this food was the cause of the seizures. The comments posted about soy based pet food have been scathing. But the diet was recommended by my vet to treat the inflammatory bowel disease my cat was diagnosed as having. There was no improvement in his condition and then came the seizure. I wish I could take him off this food and try something that is grain free. But I chose to say goodbye to him instead. I have no way to know for sure the food triggered the seizure. So I am posting this comment to urge you to think long and hard before making this purchase.	13	Years	Unknown	Cat	20	Pound

Dog #2 ( (b) (6) ) started urinating on everything (took her to the vet and had her treated for a UTI but she was still having symptoms after the medication was finished), vomiting, and her eye wandered off to the side. Two days within changing their food, dog #1-the anus swelling went down and the bleeding slowed down, dog # 2- eye went back to normal but she was in such bad shape, due to the fact that she would finish dog#1's food if she didn't eat it, that the vomiting and urination continued and she was having a hard time keeping the new food down. I contacted the vet and gave her chicken and rice but it took her a few hours to be interested in even taking a bite. EON-298317	1/15/2017 9:52	Nature's Domain Salmon Meal & Sweet Potato for Dogs	Our dog began experiencing sudden spells of weakness and/or disorientation that would cause her to lose her footing momentarily and stumble. This started around 12/23/16. She lost her appetite, started vomiting, and stopped eating over the week starting 12/23. She would not touch her dog food (Costco Kirkland brand) but would occasionally eat small amounts of my moms dogs food (another brand). She would eat human food. By January 3, 2017, she was extremely ill. She had lost a great deal of weight, was refusing to eat, was having what looked like sudden convulsions and she would fall to the ground. She was pacing, nervous, could not sleep at night, panting and drinking excessive amounts of water. She was still able to eat small amounts of human food. I took her to the veterinary ER on January 5, 2017, and all of her blood panels (we did an extensive panel, and at least two others) came back normal. They could not find the cause of the problem although they could see that she was very ill and had mobility problems. We were afraid we were going to lose her over the next two days. She was vomiting everything and could not eat or drink or walk at all. We continued to care for her, and as she rested, she started to improve slightly. We began feeding her canned dog food to entice her to eat. She regained the ability to walk, eat small amounts, and drink small amounts. As she seemed to be recovering, we mixed a small amount of her Kirkland dry dog food into the canned food that she was eating to make it more filling. Once she realized the dry food was in there, she stopped eating it. It was too late as she had already had a few bites, and once again, her condition worsened. She started having convulsions again, lost her ability to walk, started vomiting all food and water. That was approximately between January 10-13.	11	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	55	Pound

			At this point we realized she had been poisoned by the food and on January 14, bagged it up and cleaned the area. We prepared our own homemade food for her to be certain of the safety and she has recovered again somewhat, although she is still experiencing weakness and mobility issues with occasional (and less severe) convulsions which cause her to fall to the ground. We are not sure what will happen now but deeply regret the re-exposure to the poisoned dog food as she had been recovering very well until we re-introduced it. It is important to note that my toddler had two weeks of a mysterious diarrhea and we realized later that he had been playing with her dry dog food. Once the food was removed from our home and the dogs eating area sanitized, his condition cleared rapidly.

In December, (b) (6) (8 months old at the time) started throwing up and getting little polyp-like bumps all over his body. I took him to the vet. The vet did a biopsy on the bumps. The results came back for hives, but the bumps were not red or itchy at the time, so the vet had the labs run again. Results came back for hives again. Vet had no explanation for this, advised giving Benadryl drug. The other dog, (b) (6) has also been throwing up &amp; having diarrhea, but since he is heavier (15 lbs.) &amp; older (4 years), his symptoms were not as severe. Later in December, (b) (6) began to throw up &amp; on Christmas Day he started to throw up while twisting violently (possible seizure). The hives also began to itch and he would scratch constantly. All thru the night &amp; day. He became lethargic. I googled reviews of the Nutro dog food and found reports from other consumers stating that they have been feeding their dogs Nutro for years, however in NOVEMBER 2016, they began to notice their dogs throwing up, having diarrhea, and seizures. I removed the Nutro from both their diets and noticed a lessening of their itch/scratching &amp; vomiting within a few days, although they are both still having these issues, intermittently. I believe something in the Nutro recipe or their resources has changed, causing this recent outbreak in sickness of dogs that consume the Nutro brand dog food. EON-297278	1/5/2017 12:56	Cesar	My fiancé was dog sitting ours and my sister's dogs, 4 total. After feeding my sister's older dog, (b) (6) (10 yo, Carin Terrier mix) a partial can (small plastic container) of Cesars wet food, she started vomiting the following day (Friday) and had bloody diarrhea, and became very lethargic. We ended up taking her to the Emergency Care on Saturday (regular vet clinic closed). She was extremely dehydrated, extremely low blood sugar, low platelets, etc. Long story short, she ended up getting a blood transfusion because of her constant bloody diarrhea. She received 24 hour care, antibiotics and fluids for 5 days. Because the team of vets could not figure out what the problem was, they labeled it as Hemorrhagic Gastrointestinal Enteritis (HGE). Two days later, not knowing it was the food that caused the illness, I mixed the remaining of the Cesars in my Belgian Malinois' kibble. The following day (Monday), she had violent bloody diarrhea and vomited. I brought her to my vet ASAP since it was the same symptoms as (b) (6). At this point we had not yet realized it was the food. My vet thought it might be some type of toxin in my back yard and we searched everything and found nothing. She labeled the illness as HGE as well, but it's NOT a contagious disease, so the two could not have got it from each other. We then later realized the only thing those two dogs had in common was the backyard environment and the Cesars food. The other two dogs in our care were exposed to the same environment but did not have the Cesars food...they did not get sick. My dog ended up going on antibiotics, liver medicine (enzymes were elevated), daily fluids and 8 hour/day vet observation for a week. She's still on liver meds until blood retest but seems to have made a good recovery. I started doing research on Cesars dog food and found tons of people who this has happened to with the exact same symptoms...great one day and on their death bed the following day after eating Cesars food: http://petfoodtalk.com/dogfoodreviews/cesar/. The problem we all have is no one saved the food to get it tested (we threw our can away as well, not thinking it was the food). I don't know the lot number or 'use by' date because we threw away the can. I know that my sister buys the Cesars food weekly at the King Soopers in (b) (6)...not sure it can be traced that way or not?? I'm sure you probably can't do anything about our case, but I hope that someone in your agency starts taking a closer look at what they are putting in Cesar food (made by Mars, inc), if the ingredients are expired, etc. and test it occasionally because it seems there are a lot of complaints out there: http://petfoodtalk.com/dogfoodreviews/cesar/ and dogs that have actually died because of it. EON-297154	1/4/2017 20:56	Acana Pacifica Regional Formula	This is in part what was submitted to Dog Food Advisor in September 2016. Since then on a blog link, many many people are reporting problems and lodging complaints with their sick animals. DFA suggested I contact you as well. Here is one of several entries, and others on the site can be found: http://www.dogfoodadvisor.com/forums/topic/so-bag-of-acana-bought-today-is-from-the-new-kentucky-plant-anyone-else/page/2/#post-93077. We have had a terrible, terrible experience when the Acana Pacifica that our Sheltie was on for years stopped being produced. In its place was the new US version vs former Canada produced. My dog got sick almost immediately, even though we were very slowly transitioning her over with only about 10 kibbles or less. In a short time we noticed an awful puddle of greasy "goo" at the bottom of the bag as well as in the smaller container we had put some in. It was awful, probably rancid or soon to be, and we returned it to the pet store. They took it back immediately but then suggested we try another, this time the mackerel. Our dog continued to be sick and 3 visits later to the emergency clinic now over a month later, she refuses to eat ANY kibble at all. They put her on a temporary prescription canned formula for easy digestion which she ate for awhile, but now again, not eating. Now I am having to make rice and boiled chicken for her and she only eats less than 1/4 cup of anything and has lost 3#. Many tests and x-rays reveal no other problem other than the "hit to her liver" that bad dog food did. I have contacted the company, Champion, who refuses any accountability whatsoever other than to admit that early batches of food "appeared wet" and "the problem is being fixed". We are really upset about what she has had to go through and want to avoid other dogs and pet parents suffering, so contacted Dog Food Advisor for suggestions. They suggested this blog and also included helpful links to other resources we can contact. Has anyone else experienced this? Granted we do have a senior dog (10) with an autoimmune disease (SLO) that could make her more sensitive, but we have never had a problem like this before she had absolutely no problem and thrived on the original Canadian produced Acana Pacifica. As a follow up, (b) (6) died a month later. Unfortunately we did not save any product to have it analyzed and more of our blog entries can be found on Dog Food Advisor. We spent over $4,000 so did not do an autopsy when it was recommended that we euthanize her. Our vet specialist could therefore not say for sure the dog food caused her death, but definitely told us to go to a different dog food to be sure for our next pet. Since so many others are having continuing issues and have sick dogs, I believed it best to notify you even though inclusive, and especially since Champion refused any accountability. Perhaps this could save others from the horrible grief we have experienced. Thank you.	10	Years	Sheepdog - Shetland	Dog	30	Pound

I am not sure if my cats ate any of it - I hope not but I will be watching them closely and already contacted my vet just in case. This was a 16lb bag and it takes me awhile to get through it so I do not have the receipt. Also, the manufacturer number is a little hard to read due to wear on the bottom of the bag but here is all the info I can make out: Best By April 2018 Number below that is, I believe, 628760010952L06 The UPC is 17800-03385 There is some data on the top of the bag where the seal was, which reads as follows: LN-3319-322-TFT2 06/16/2016 02:26 I have bought many bags of this food before believing it to be of superior quality and value for my cats, but I am very concerned about this discovery. Had I not looked closely at the bowl after filling it, there is a very good chance my cats could have ended up very ill. There is still a possibility that they did consume some of the moldy food and have not yet shown symptoms. The bag is mostly used up but there is roughly another couple pounds worth of food left, which I will be bagging up and storing in a cool location so it can be tested if necessary. I understand accidents happen but I have done some research and I see this is not the first time this issue has arisen. I am very displeased with this situation and would very much like to hear from you ASAP so we can determine how best to move forward. I will also be contacting the FDA and the State Department of Agriculture to investigate this further. I am sure your company does not wish to harm animals, so I expect this will be dealt with professionally and swiftly. If you need any additional information from me, all you need to do is ask, you have my full cooperation. I would ask that if possible you contact me via email as due to illness I tend to sleep odd hours, but I understand if you need to call. Thank you very much and I look forward to hearing back from you soon. "

EON-297102	1/3/2017 22:00	Sojos Complete Lamb Recipe	I just purchased a new bag of dog food, which requires you to soak it in water before serving. When it was ready for consuming, I noticed what looked like a black string sticking out of the food as I was putting it into the bowl. I grabbed it and it turned out to be a black wire over an inch long. Fortunately I did not feed it to my dog, but it had the potential for damage to my dogs intestines, stomach and digestive track. I called the manufacturer on 12/30 and even though their office said they were open, no one answered. I left a message, but they did not call me back and it's now 1/3. I find this alarming. I called Chewy.com where I ordered it from and they said they would contact SoJos, the manufacturer, but I'm not sure I believe it.

She wouldn't eat the food, although she would eat other things... dog bones, chewiness, anything that fell from the table. I thought maybe she was just being picky, then she wouldn't even eat the dog bones she normally does. We took her to the vet who thankfully said there was nothing wrong with her, and we have gone to buy a different brand of dog food. EON-296676	12/29/2016 11:08	Special Kitty Gourmet Cat Food	Hi There! I am writing to you guys as I would like for you all to take a look into Special Kitty Cat Food (Dry Food) sold at Wal*Mart. We purchased this about 2 weeks ago from our local Wal*Mart. Normally we buy different food but my husband went to there instead of the grocery store. We HAD a two year male HEALTHY house cat. On (b) (6) we noticed that Thunder had thrown up a couple times in the night. Not really thinking about it we did nothing. Then Friday he was still throwing up so we took his food away and decided that evening to give him water via syringe. Saturday he was acting different then his normally cuddly self. He was hiding but would be so where he could see us. We got different food but he would not eat it and we continued the water via syringe. Christmas Day (Sunday) he was still staying away but would not really move from where he was. Around dinner time I gave him water and left him on the counter, I came about 30 minutes later and he was laying in his split water. We dried him off and wrapped him in a towel. The family left for about 45 minutes. When we came back he was still in the same spot. My daughter cuddled him for a few minutes and went to bed. We tried to give him water but he was breathing funny. I cuddled on him for about 15 minutes. I believe then he had a seizure but I am not sure as he was breathing weird and shaking. I loved on him and cuddled him and told him how much we all loved him. (b) (6) then died in my arms. When I had to tell my 6 year daughter (Cat was really hers) the next morning, it was awful. She cried so hard I felt so bad. I did not know at that time it was the food. Please help get this food off the shelf. A friend of my recommended I look up the food. Here is a link about it. http://www.petfoodratings.org/dry-cat-food/special-kitty-walmart-brand/ After reading that is when I discovered it was because of the food. Opened the bag a few days later. Noticed a white-ish tint to the food. It was also clumpy and stringy. Assumed the appearance was due to the fact that it was a grain free food (we had never used grain free food before). Fortunately we were very slowly transitioning our dogs onto the food due to prior gastrointestinal issues because I opened the bag to feed them on 12/22/16 and at least half a dozen insects that looked like moths flew out of the bag directly into my face. After getting rid of those I then inspected the food. There were dozens if not hundreds of maggots or some type of white worms crawling all over the food, some made their way onto the outside of the bag.

He Chewed on it for about 30 min and then we went to bed. I woke up to hearing my dog vomit in the bedroom at 1 am. He was throwing up shards of the bone with a pasty wax build up that was the same color as the bone. I knew it must of been from that Bone. He threw up for 4 more hours, but oddly he was trying to go number two in between throwing up but he was constipated. I gave him some water and called my vet at 5 am. I brought my dog into the vet and she thinks he could pass this item through but I have been looking up if anyone else has had this issues and many cases pop up with this same complaint. They have to go in to remove this build up from his intestine and stomach. This product is a hazard to dogs bones should not curl off like butter. Management (CEO / CFO) tries to skimp on cleaning and whenever an inspection is performed by officials, they will have the officials put into a conference room while an assistant will call the warehouse managers and have them perform a "fire drill" to clean everything and have the employees put on hats, gloves, etc BEFORE the inspectors walk through. I have been in many conference meetings where discussions of customers have called in to report their pets have gotten very sick from the treats (mold, etc). Still have the Beneful bag with about 3 pounds remaining. 14 November (Monday) Boxer fed and ate approximately 2 cups of Purina Beneful Originals, a 2-cup morning meal. Terrier-beagle mix (second male dog, 11 years old) fed and ate about 1.5 cups. (b) (6) Boxer slept in, extremely rare, and had reduced appetite, never seen before. This dog had been perfectly healthy until this point in time. Terrier-beagle mix seemed fine. (b) (6) Boxer noticeably lethargic. (b) (6) Condition worsened. Vet visit early afternoon. Jaundice skin, pale gums, low temperature. Early diagnosis of anemia. Blood samples taken. Next-day result was high white and low red blood cell counts. Liver and kidney function indicators were good. Immediately (Friday afternoon) began treatment with doxycycline and prednisone. (b) (6) Began steady improvement. Continued full course of antibiotic and tapering prednisone treatment. (b) (6) Noticed streaks of blood on edge of dog bed. Thought blood came from a front paw; now think it came from internal bleeding and mouth. Increased water intake. (b) (6) Seemed strong and well so decided not to talk with vet about earlier bleeding and increased water intake. (b) (6) Noticeable deterioration in condition, very low energy, loss of appetite, increased water intake. Down to every-other-day prednisone pill and this was a no-prednisone day. Discomfort and coughing prompted a prednisone pill in the evening, about 5 PM. Spoke to vet and confirmed that giving prednisone was right. Planned to visit office Saturday for additional pills. He passed away at 6:30 PM on (b) (6) evening. She has been very healthy since adopting her. Today at 11:30 am I opened up a new can of Purina Pro Plan Focus Puppy canned food and fed her, within an hour and a half she began vomiting. From 12:30pm to 2:40pm she vomited five times. Then around 2:45 I noticed her face beginning to swell. By time I got her to the vet her entire face was swollen and her eye was beginning to close shut from the swelling. They immediately took her in the back and gave her Benadryl through IV and administered a shot to stop the nausea. It was explained to me that she was in Anaphalactic Shock. We immediately decided to draw blood work to check her organs. To find out that she has abnormally high liver enzymes (Alt). Normal enzyme level is 10-125. Her level was 725. She is staying overnight in the animal hospital and they are going to flush her system with IV Fluids. She has never been giving any other dog food. For treats she gets beggin strips, little jacs treats, and milk bones. 			The 46 ppm DM zinc concentration in the company-provided typical analysis of this diet is well below the AAFCO 2016 minimums of 100 mg/kg DM for growth/reproduction and 80 mg/kg DM for adult maintenance. Furthermore, the zinc concentration of the diet is even lower after correcting for the diet's high calorie density (5842 kcal/kg DM as provided by the company or 5873 kcal/kg DM when calculated using the moisture content of the typical analysis provided). After correcting for energy density, the zinc concentration is 31 mg/kg DM.

EON-294437	12/7/2016 20:32	Primal Pet Foods Nuggets for Cats Rabbit Formula	Hello, I've been feeding my two cats and dog the Primal Raw Rabbit for over a year. They have never had any problems with it. I keep it in the freezer and bring it home immediately after purchasing from store. I give it to them at least once or twice a week and never had any problems. Well, I had just bought a new bag and gave all three of them some after thawing. My Siamese cat vomited all over the house and threw it all up. The dog had no adverse reaction, but the other cat wouldn't eat it. He seemed ok though, so not sure how much he ate. Well, that had never happened, and the other two animals (other cat and dog) didn't get sick, at least that I could tell - no vomiting. So I thought maybe Noah was just sick already. So almost a week later, I fed it to them again. Again, Noah the Siamese, normally very healthy cat, vomited all over the house again. At that point I knew I couldn't feed that food to my animals again. The dog seemed to have an upset tummy too, as she was belching, which she never does. I'm afraid the food is bad, but the store where I bought it said I could bring it back and get an exchange. Just want to report this so no other animals will get sick from it. I'm going to call the company. I took a picture of the bag with the lot number.	19	Months	Siamese	Cat	13	Pound

EON-294191	12/7/2016 8:12	Purina Cat Chow Indoor	A 22 lb. bag of Purina Cat Chow Indoor formula was purchased last week on Thursday or Friday (Nov. 24-Nov.25) from H-E-B Food-Drugs # (b) (6), (b) (6) (b) (6). I put the food out that night for my cats. I have seven cats; I had written in previous reports (on this same matter) that only five had eaten the food. Two should be on a canned food-only diet, but the dry Purina food was not out of reach of them. I suffer from PTSD and have had problems with sleeping disorders since I was a teen. My sleep schedule is very erratic. On weekends, my husband is usually awake long before I am, and to keep the cats from waking me up, fills the food dish. He also puts out canned food, but that has not stopped the other two from sneaking into the dry food. Since submitting reports for five of the cats, I've learned that the other two who I thought were not affected, do indeed have symptoms. One is quite ill at this time. On Saturday (Nov. 26), I noticed the youngest cat (4 years old), (b) (6), dragging her bottom across the floor. She's never exhibited this behavior, nor have any of my other cats. I looked the symptom up online and saw that it could be caused by worms (my cats are strictly indoor cats, have no fleas, and have been de-wormed. They also exhibit no other symptoms of worm infestation), or possibly bottom agitation from straining or diarrhea. (b) (6) was behaving normally otherwise, so I decided to keep an eye on her, but didn't think much of that initial incident as anything other than maybe she had an itch. Later that evening, one of my other cats, (b) (6) (approximately 6 years old) vomited up food several times. I have had (b) (6) for a little over a year, and this was the first time I had seen him vomit. On Sunday (Nov. 27), another cat, (b) (6) (approximately 6 years old), vomited up food. I have had (b) (6) for nearly four years and have seen him vomit less than a handful times prior to this, and it was always due to a hairball.	17	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	8	Pound

Later that evening, (b) (6) had a bowel movement outside of the litterbox. (b) (6) vomited up yellowish water, but was behaving normal otherwise. I caught (b) (6) dragging her bottom again. A few hours later, as she was in the litterpan, I saw that she had diarrhea. (b) (6) tries to "cover up" in the litterpan but is horrible at it; this is the first I've known her to every have diarrhea, and I have had her since she was ten days old.

On Monday (Nov. 28), after I woke up, I walked out into the house and found several areas where a cat or cats had vomited food and liquid, though I don't know which cat or cats vomited. There was more stool outside of the litterpan, softer than usual, I assum(ed) from (b) (6), as I had seen him have a bowel movement outside of the litterpan the night before. While I was cleaning vomit from the floor, I heard an unusual squirting sound. My cat, (b) (6) (approximately 8 years old), was standing tall, having a bout of diarrhea (entirely liquid). I have had (b) (6) for five years now. I have never seen him have diarrhea. He has been a healthy cat. He has had times where he has eaten too fast (a result of being abandoned by his previous caretakers and starving) and has thrown up immediately, but I have never seen him vomit otherwise, nor has he had bowel problems.

A couple of hours later, another cat, (b) (6) (6 years old), used the litterpan and had diarrhea also (very loose). I have had (b) (6) since he was two months old and he's had one instance of diarrhea ever - when he was first brought home from the Humane Society in 2010. The doctors weren't sure what was wrong, but placed him on a round of antibiotics (7-10 days, I can't remember which). He has not had any bowel problems since. He is another cat that I have only ever seen vomit less than a handful of times previous to this, and it was always due to hairballs. (b) (6) vomited twice that day.

		All of the cats who had access to the Purina Cat Chow had become sick with vomiting and/or diarrhea after eating the food. The did also have access to Friskies pate canned food as well, but it is not the Friskies that made them sick. The Friskies had come from a pack of 24 cans. The cats had been working through those for several days before without any sign of illness. I took the Cat Chow away immediately. The cats had their food restricted (but had access to water) for approximately 13-14 hours. They have been on boiled chicken since. I was gradually working small amounts of canned food back in with the chicken, but I have since been instructed (by a veterinarian that I consulted yesterday, Dec. 6) to keep the cats on a bland diet of boiled chicken or tuna for a few days or until their stool is all solid. The vomiting and diarrhea in the cats has been sporadic. The vomiting has ceased in all but (b) (6). Prior to (b) (6) vomiting yesterday morning, (b) (6) was the last to vomit (water) on the night of Nov. 30. (b) (6) stools are still on the soft side, but he is having bowel movements inside the litterpan again. (b) (6) and (b) (6) now have normal stool. (b) (6) still had loose stool as of Nov. 5, some appearing to be soft solid. I have not seen a bowel movement since. (b) (6) stool had improved from full liquid to a thick puddling-like state a few days ago. I have not seen him have a bowel movement since. The cats had all initially slept more, but have been more active as their symptoms have improved. I contacted Purina through a form on their website (Purina.com) on Tuesday, Nov. 29th to inform them of the situation. I provided them with the UPC and manufacturer numbers. I received an automated reply stating that I should receive a response from someone at Purina within 24-48 hours. Purina has not
--	--	---	--	--	--	--	--	--

			responded to that query aside from the automated response. The following day (Nov. 30) I sent a message about this situation through the Purina Cat Chow Facebook page. I received a response yesterday, which I believe was mostly cut and pasted (it said "cat" rather than "cats," and asked the number on the bottom of a can, but I clearly stated that the food was bagged). I was asked to provide the location of the store where the food was purchased as well as numbers (UPC and the date from a can, but as that was not applicable, I provided the manufacturer number). There has been dialogue with Purina; someone named (b) (6), who said she is a supervisor. She has asked to speak to me on the phone, but I told her that I prefer to stick to written correspondence at this time. While she seems to have put more effort than cutting/pasting into her responses, over the weekend I received a message from her. Actually several messages - two very similar, sent some hours apart. She'd forgotten in that time that she'd responded to me already, but the content of the message was the same. That felt very much as if that was or is a scripted response. She later wrote asking that I disregard the last message. In her latest message to me (Dec. 5), she asked if I would speak with a claims adjuster about the veterinary costs (there were none at the time). I replied to her, but have not heard from anyone at Purina since. As I understand it, a mailer was supposed to be overnighted to me so that I may send a sample of the food back to Purina, but at the time of this writing, I have not received that mailer. I understand that I am to provide more detail about how the food was handled and stored. When I fed my cats the Cat Chow, I used a clean scoop to put the food into a clean bowl. The rest of the food remained in the bag in which it was purchased, with the bag rolled up and books placed on top of it to prevent the bag from unrolling. The bag has been sitting in the house that sits at 74-75 degrees Fahrenheit around the clock. The cats have been eating Cat Chow for a long time (years). Some of the cats eat more than others; (b) (6) definitely eats the most of all of them, and he is the one who remains ill. The cats that eat significantly more canned food than dry stopped vomiting and/or diarrhea sooner, to the best of my knowledge. The food has been disposed of, but I have saved a few zipper bags of samples. I would estimate that 6-10 cups of the food were consumed. The date I have selected as the onset of symptoms is the date when I first found saw that each individual cat was exhibiting symptoms. In (b) (6) case, I am listing the day when I first saw blood (Dec. 1, and though I didn't know it was from her), the infection had to start days prior to show blood.

EON-294157	12/6/2016 20:56	Acana Grasslands Regional Formula	My cats have been eating Acana grasslands cat food for several years. The latest batch from Chewy.com with their new formula made one of my cats very sick. All four cats generally avoided the food so we knew something was off. Our largest cat who tends to eat the most dry food vomited profusely several times in the days following introduction of the new formula. He then vomited up pink tinged fluid and solid matter which we believe is blood from his digestive lining being raw. We took him to the vet and he was treated for dehydration, nausea and given an antacid. We hope he improves soon. We stopped feeding them the new formula when we noticed the issue and Chewy sent us a bag of the original formula which arrived today. If you look on their website you can see a number of customers saying the new formula made their cats sick. Please take note and investigate. Maybe it's not just the new formula - maybe there is a food spoilage issue making them sick.	10	Years	Domestic Longhair	Cat	15	Pound

He had diarrhea and vomiting. Then he spent the rest of the day hiding, not eating or drinking, which is very abnormal for him. He was lethargic and we thought he might be dying. We took him to the vet and they ran blood work and took x-rays and could not find any underlying cause. He was running a temperature so they kept him for three days in-patient on IV fluids and antibiotics. He refused to eat those three days when he finally came home for the first week we could only get him to eat mostly broth. It took about two weeks before he started eating normally. He still will not touch poultry of any kind, remembering that was the last thing he ate before becoming deathly ill. His vet bills were over $1200.00. I contacted the manufacturer Ainsworth Pet Nutrition Inc. on Monday 11/21/2016 and they took until 12/2/2016 to call back and only after two follow up calls. They claim no other cats became ill after eating the food and that they were going to test the batch. I still have the original tub which I froze to preserve and bacteria.	10	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	9.7	Pound

In the last two years i have noticed when she goes and takes a dump, she is very loose. with in hours of eating she like the others are full gas. and the amount of Poop is unreal... Two months ago, she had a seizure or ( or i thought she had). It is unclear if she did or not, my other dogs are showind signs of medical problems too.. As stated in the first report my chocolate lab is showing the most issues. At times she laxtates and then nothing. I have noticed these problems over the past two years and now it is to the point I think the damage is taking its toal.. I have read the internet and all the complaints regarding Pedigree and I too am seeing the problems. I called Pedigree and discovered that they purchase thier ingrediants form China. No Way.... EON-293912	12/5/2016 17:40	Pedigree Adult Complete Nutrition Chicken Flavor	i have been feeding my dogs Pedigree Adult for over 10 years, two years ago, i notice my dogs were having loose stools on and off,,,, and then more and more. I had them checked for worms, they have all their shots, the vet found no problems. In the last year, i had to put one dog down for an unknown illness we "assumed" was due to old age. Now my remaining three dogs are all showing signs of a medical issue. April i had to take my Chocolate lab to the vet, all the blood, urine and x-rays, ultra sound test were taken and all they found was an elevated liver count and no explanation why. She cries out and passes urine. No seizure's she just acts really sad, her face looks like a blood hound and she will wimper and pee a little, she has control of her bladder but acts like something hurts, and she is full of gas... This issue with my dogs has be concerned, all of them have been seen by my vet and two of three have had all the test and no one knows what the hell is going on. SO HERE IS WHAT I DID. I took my bag of Pedigree Dog Food and Called the phone number in Canada, I ask on question.... Does Mars Inc. Purchase ingredients from China for the dog food? I was told Yes,,, Today December 5th 2016 i am online and investigate this futher and what do i discover to my horror, Pedigree was purchased by Mars about the same time i noticed these issues begining. I believe they are using ingredients that are causing harm to my dogs... I stopped using thier product because i am not feeding my dogs anything that comes from China. the FDA has no control what comes from China to Canada and then from Canada to the USA. there for enough of that,, What i do find so disturbing,,, you no longer have that right to KNOW WHERE PRODUCT OF ORIGIN IS,, there is no more Made in U.S.A. and we are more and more consuing products from China without Knowing it, Thanks free trade. We took him to our vet who found elevated white blood cell count and liver numbers off. He said he had a bacterial infection and immediately started IV fluids and antibiotics. We picked him up at the end of the day on Friday and have continued the antibiotics and Denemarin. He has improved over weekend. We have attempted to start feeding him again but he will not eat. I put the food out that night for my cats. I have seven cats, two are on strict canned food only diets, the other five have access to the dry food at all times to graze. On Saturday (Nov. 26), I noticed the youngest cat (4 years old), (b) (6) dragging her bottom across the floor. She's never exhibited this behavior, nor have any of my other cats. They also exhibit no other symptoms of worm infestation), or possibly bottom agitation from straining or diarrhea. (b) (6) was behaving normally otherwise, so I decided to keep an eye on her, but didn't think much of that initial incident as anything other than maybe she had an itch. Later that evening, one of my other cats, (b) (6) (approximately 6 years old) vomited up food several times. 			On Monday (Nov. 28), after I woke up, I walked out into the house and found several areas where a cat or cats had vomited food and liquid, though I don't know which cat or cats vomited. There was more stool outside of the litterpan, softer than usual, I assum(ed) from (b) (6) as I had seen him have a bowel movement outside of the litterpan the night before. While I was cleaning vomit from the floor, I heard an unusual squirting sound. My cat, (b) (6) (approximately 8 years old), was standing tall, having a bout of diarrhea (entirely liquid). I have had (b) (6) for five years now. I have never seen him have diarrhea. He has been a healthy cat. He has had times where he has eaten too fast (a result of being abandoned by his previous caretakers and starving) and has thrown up immediately, but I have never seen him vomit otherwise, nor has he had bowel problems. A couple of hours later, another cat, (b) (6) (6 years old), used the litterpan and had diarrhea also (very loose). I have had (b) (6) since he was two months old and he's had one instance of diarrhea ever - when he was first brought home from the Humane Society in 2010. The doctors weren't sure what was wrong, but placed him on a round of antibiotics (7-10 days, I can't remember which). He has not had any bowel problems since. He is another cat that I have only ever seen vomit less than a handful of times previous to this, and it was always due to hairballs. (b) (6) vomited twice that day. All of the cats who had access to the Purina Cat Chow had become sick with vomiting and/or diarrhea after eating the food. The did also have access to Friskies pate canned food as well, but it is not the Friskies that made them sick. I know this my two senior cats, (b) (6) (17) and (b) (6) (15) eat only the Friskies canned food, the same cans that the other cats eat from/had eaten from, but (b) (6) and (b) (6) both have showed no signs of illness. This told me that it was the Purina Cat Chow.

		I took the Cat Chow away immediately. The cats had their food restricted (but had access to water) for approximately 13-14 hours. They have been on boiled chicken since. The vomiting and diarrhea in the cats has been sporadic. The vomiting has ceased. (b) (6) was the last to vomit (water) on the night of Nov. 30. (b) (6) stools are still on the soft side, but he is having bowel movements inside the litterpan again. I have not seen (b) (6) or (b) (6) use the litterpan, but I also have not seen (b) (6) drag her bottom across the floor since. I did not see (b) (6) in the litterpan on Dec. 1, so I can not report on his stools other than that he still had diarrhea on the night of Nov. 30. (b) (6) still has diarrhea, but it appears to be a jelly-like consistency now rather than entirely liquid, as it was on the 28th. (b) (6) and (b) (6) have slept more than usual in this time, and (b) (6) has been less active. She was playing earlier, so she is back to that. (b) (6) was last lethargic on Nov. 30; he too was more active earlier. (b) (6) is still lethargic. (b) (6) is able to hold water and seems to be able to hold food at this point, but he has eaten very little and still has diarrhea. As the consistency appears to have improved in the last day (though it is still very loose/thin jelly-like), I giving it one more day to see if his stools go back to normal before taking him in to see a doctor. I contacted Purina through a form on their website (Purina.com) on Tuesday, Nov. 29th to inform them of the situation. I provided them with the UPC and manufacturer numbers. I received an automated reply stating that I should receive a response from someone at Purina within 24-48 hours. Purina has not responded to that query aside from the automated response.

			The following day (Nov. 30) I sent a message about this situation through the Purina Cat Chow Facebook page. I received a response yesterday, which I believe was mostly cut and pasted (it said "cat" rather than "cats," and asked the number on the bottom of a can, but I clearly stated that the food was bagged). I was asked to provide the location of the store where the food was purchased as well as numbers (UPC and the date from a can, but as that was not applicable, I provided the manufacturer number). I have not received a response. I understand that I am to provide more detail about how the food was handled and stored. When I fed my cats the Cat Chow, I used a clean scoop to put the food into a clean bowl. I did not see (b) (6) in the litterpan on Dec. 1, so I can not report on his stools other than that he still had diarrhea on the night of Nov. 30. (b) (6) still has diarrhea, but it appears to be a jelly-like consistency now rather than entirely liquid, as it was on the 28th. (b) (6) and (b) (6) have slept more than usual in this time, and (b) (6) has been less active. She was playing earlier, so she is back to that. (b) (6) was last lethargic on Nov. 30; he too was more active earlier. (b) (6) is still lethargic. (b) (6) is able to hold water and seems to be able to hold food at this point, but he has eaten very little and still has diarrhea. As the consistency appears to have improved in the last day (though it is still very loose/thin jelly-like), I giving it one more day to see if his stools go back to normal before taking him in to see a doctor. I contacted Purina through a form on their website (Purina.com) on Tuesday, Nov. 29th to inform them of the situation. I provided them with the UPC and manufacturer numbers. I received an automated reply stating that I should receive a response from someone at Purina within 24-48 hours. Purina has not responded to that query aside from the automated response.

			The following day (Nov. 30) I sent a message about this situation through the Purina Cat Chow Facebook page. I received a response yesterday, which I believe was mostly cut and pasted (it said "cat" rather than "cats," and asked the number on the bottom of a can, but I clearly stated that the food was bagged). I was asked to provide the location of the store where the food was purchased as well as numbers (UPC and the date from a can, but as that was not applicable, I provided the manufacturer number). I have not received a response. I understand that I am to provide more detail about how the food was handled and stored. The bag has been sitting in the house that sits at 74-75 degrees Fahrenheit around the clock. The cats have been eating Cat Chow for a long time (years). Some of the cats eat more than others (b) (6) definitely eats the most of all of them, and he is the one who remains ill. The cats (excluding the seniors who only eat canned food) that eat significantly more canned food than dry stopped vomiting and/or diarrhea sooner, to the best of my knowledge. The food has been disposed of, but I have saved a few zipper bags of samples. I would estimate that 6-10 cups of the food were consumed. The date I have selected as the onset of symptoms is the date when I first found saw that each individual cat was exhibiting symptoms.

EON-293535	12/2/2016 6:40	Purina Cat Chow Indoor	A 22 lb. bag of Purina Cat Chow Indoor formula was purchased last week on Thursday or Friday (Nov. 24-Nov.25) from H-E-B Food-Drugs #41/085, 10718 (b) (6). I put the food out that night for my cats. I have seven cats, two are on strict canned food only diets, the other five have access to the dry food at all times to graze. On Saturday (Nov. 26), I noticed the youngest cat (4 years old), (b) (6) dragging her bottom across the floor. She's never exhibited this behavior, nor have any of my other cats. I looked the symptom up online and saw that it could be caused by worms (my cats are strictly indoor cats, have no fleas, and have been de-wormed. They also exhibit no other symptoms of worm infestation), or possibly bottom agitation from straining or diarrhea. (b) (6) was behaving normally otherwise, so I decided to keep an eye on her, but didn't think much of that initial incident as anything other than maybe she had an itch. Later that evening, one of my other cats, (b) (6) (approximately 6 years old) vomited up food several times. I have had (b) (6) for a little over a year, and this was the first time I had seen him vomit. On Sunday (Nov. 27), another cat, (b) (6) (approximately 6 years old), vomited up food. I have had (b) (6) for nearly four years and have seen him vomit less than a handful times prior to this, and it was always due to a hairball. Later that evening, (b) (6) had a bowel movement outside of the litterbox. (b) (6) vomited up yellowish water, but was behaving normal otherwise. I caught (b) (6) dragging her bottom again. A few hours later, as she was in the litterpan, I saw that she had diarrhea. (b) (6) tries to "cover up" in the litterpan but is horrible at it; this is the first I've known her to every have diarrhea, and I have had her since she was ten days old.	4	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	14	Pound

		On Monday (Nov. 28), after I woke up, I walked out into the house and found several areas where a cat or cats had vomited food and liquid, though I don't know which cat or cats vomited. There was more stool outside of the litterpan, softer than usual, I assum(ed) from (b) (6) as I had seen him have a bowel movement outside of the litterpan the night before. While I was cleaning vomit from the floor, I heard an unusual squirting sound. My cat (b) (6) (approximately 8 years old), was standing tall, having a bout of diarrhea (entirely liquid). I have had (b) (6) for five years now. I have never seen him have diarrhea. He has been a healthy cat. He has had times where he has eaten too fast (a result of being abandoned by his previous caretakers and starving) and has thrown up immediately, but I have never seen him vomit otherwise, nor has he had bowel problems. A couple of hours later, another cat (b) (6) (6 years old), used the litterpan and had diarrhea also (very loose). I have had (b) (6) since he was two months old and he's had one instance of diarrhea ever - when he was first brought home from the Humane Society in 2010. The doctors weren't sure what was wrong, but placed him on a round of antibiotics (7-10 days, I can't remember which). He has not had any bowel problems since. He is another cat that I have only ever seen vomit less than a handful of times previous to this, and it was always due to hairballs. (b) (6) vomited twice that day. All of the cats who had access to the Purina Cat Chow had become sick with vomiting and/or diarrhea after eating the food. The did also have access to Friskies pate canned food as well, but it is not the Friskies that made them sick. I know this my two senior cats, (b) (6) (17) and (b) (6) (15) eat only the Friskies canned food, the same cans that the other cats eat from/had eaten from, but (b) (6) and (b) (6) both have showed no signs of illness. This told me that it was the Purina Cat Chow.

		I took the Cat Chow away immediately. The cats had their food restricted (but had access to water) for approximately 13-14 hours. They have been on boiled chicken since. The vomiting and diarrhea in the cats has been sporadic. The vomiting has ceased. (b) (6) was the last to vomit (water) on the night of Nov. 30. There are sharp pieces of what feel and look like splinters or stickers in the pieces of food! They are so sharp that when you press it with your finger it does not bend or break. Some of them actually made my finger bleed they were so sharp! I am extremely worried about my cats now and hope that they don't have any pieces stuck in their digestive system or stomachs! I returned the bag to our local Petsmart and will now be taking our dog off of the brand of food as well. That is very scary to see and even the manager and employees at Petsmart were in shock and worried about the other bags on the shelves.

EON-293211	11/29/2016 12:40	Blue Buffalo Blue Freedom Adult Indoor Chicken Recipe	After I changed his food to "Blue Buffalo Freedom Indoor Adult Chicken Recipe Grain-Free Dry Cat Food, 11-lb bag" on Nov 17 evening, he started to vomit next day, I thought it was mild reaction to changing food. Then my cat vomited another 3 times about once 1-2 days, so I changed his food back to what he ate before immediately. But the next day he slept all day long and right after he wake up he vomited once again (around 11:00 pm on Nov 24.), this time he vomited blood. I took him to doctor next morning, and the doctor gave him a shot to settle his stomach and baby food to help him digest, now he looks ok (has not vomited for 2 and half days and looks active). According to doctor, the possible reason is the food of Blue Buffalo Freedom Indoor Adult Chicken Recipe Grain-Free Dry Cat Food. The last time because he has not eliminated all the blue buffalo he ate before. (b) (6) does not like canned food but my other cat likes, at that time (b) (6) ate more dry food of blue buffalo and my other cat mostly ate canned food and the other possible reason is ragdoll has more sensitive stomach. But it dose not mean it's right for this food is possible to cause my cat vomit blood. I changed his food for a lot of times, this situation is the first time. I am reporting to leave a record in case other cats has the same situation.	2.7	Years	Ragdoll	Cat

The cats were eating normally until Thursday 11/17, when (b) (6) stopped eating. 11/18 he began to have copious amounts of bloody diarrhea and was very weak. He was given fluids at the vet 11/18. He continued to have bloody diarrhea. We brought him back to the vet 11/19 and he was given IV fluids for the day, and given metronidazole. They suggested further hospitalization but we were unable to afford that. We brought him home and he has slowly recovered. The bloody stool stopped by 11/20. His appetite has now returned. His stool remains abnormal but is returning to normal. We have a second cat, for whom I will submit a second report, who also became ill stopped eating and had one bout of bloody stool. He did not get as sick and did not require further supportive care. Neither cat had any other changes preceding this event, no changes in household products used, no other medication or food changes, which is what leads me to believe it was the cat food that caused this illness.	12	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	9	Pound

EON-293003	11/28/2016 11:32	Rachael Ray Nutrish Chicken	We have been feeding our 3 dogs Rachel Ray Nutrish Chicken Formula dog food for at least 2 years. Over this time they have had intermittent vomiting and stools with mucus. There have been times that they have all had these symptoms at once so we thought that they were passing a sickness between them. Our dogs are usually very healthy and active. Over the past few days, our dogs have been vomiting large amounts of mucus. They do this intermittently, but lately it is happening in the middle of the night. I moved a book case today near a door and found multiple spots of dried vomit, all probably mucus. We thought we were not feeding them frequently enough so we added a snack at bedtime. We have done this for the past few months. It seems that the symptoms are worse. All three of them have vomited over the past few days. My husband and I are physicians and thought it might be the food as we are giving them more now than in the past. I looked the food up online to see if this has happened to anyone else. There are plenty of reports of the reactions above from other pet owners. It seems to be mostly with the Chicken Formula. It seems to be associated with pancreatitis, kidney failure, and death. We have noticed that our dogs are drinking a huge amount of water. I was worried that they might all be diabetic. I am absolutely sure that the food is at fault. I am filing this report to protect others who might give it to their pets without the knowledge that something is not right about it.	7	124	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	70	Pound

Prior to this food I had Blue Buffalo for small breeds but wanted to save a few dollars, and it was a huge mistake. This is not good food for dogs, and some of the ingredients are even toxic to dogs, such as pea protein. They cannot digest this well and it may be an allergy for some. I am hoping my dog pulls through this just fine, since I now have had to throw away a huge bag of Zero Grain and continue with Blue buffalo. EON-289931	11/3/2016 23:48	Friskies Indoor Delights	I opened the bag of cat food Friday October 28 and poured my cat a healthy portion as we would be gone for the weekend. Upon coming home we noticed she hadn't touched it, which was unusual. Two more days passed by and she barely ate but acted as if she was starving. She drank her usual amount. This morning she was acting very strange and by noon her pupils were very large and she was spinning in circles and acted as if she were drunk. I took her to the vet where he said she likely got into something toxic. But looking through the whole house found nothing but a very small amount of her food gone. After coming home we have spent several hours trying to get her to eat some food, to which she literally hissed at. When I tried soft canned food she ate it as if she hadn't eaten in months, which leads me to believe thier may possibly be something wrong with it, or it is contaminated. I'm not sure of this however I bagged up the rest of her food and the remaining of the new bag and have stored it. I don't know if this is who I should report to, but just in case maybe you can help me find out if this is the cause. She has severe swelling in her pupils and is currently blind.

Not knowing it was this food causing her problem, 2 days later, I fed the same food to the male cat that I keep in a separate room. Within 1 hour of consuming the food, he vomited. He is now going through the same watery, bloody stool problem my female cat had. My female cat is 11 years old and my male cat is 13 years old. I keep them separated, due to my male cat still having his feral tendencies from when I adopted him as a young kitten. The primary veterinarian diagnosed him with idiopathic vestibular disorders and recommended MRI; we were referred to a veterinary neurologist, who gave the same diagnosis and recommendation. I declined the MRI, citing 1) undue stress to the animal, especially 2) not yet having results of bloodwork and 3) high likelihood that radiology would only confirm the idiopathic diagnosis. Upon reviewing the client handout, we suspected thiamine deficiency. After consulting the veterinary literature, we supplemented the cat with 50 mg thiamine daily for two days; after consulting with a veterinary expert in nutritional disorders, we increased the dose to 100 mg daily. Signs improved remarkably in a few days, and disappeared completely by two weeks. We tapered the dose down to 25 mg/day over ~11 days, and mild vestibular signs relapsed. This response to treatment (and relapse upon reducing treatment) strongly suggests thiamine deficiency. The dose was increased to 50 mg/day for 10 days, and tapered down to 12.5 mg/day over the next 10 days. Cat is has been completely normal with only a slight head tilt. Purchase records revealed an introduction of several new brands of food into the diet over the 6 months preceding the onset of vestibular signs. Uneaten samples were submitted to a food testing laboratory for thiamine analysis in January 2016; results confirmed suspicions that the new food was very low in thiamine (=1mg/1000kcal), compared the previous food, which was very high in thiamine (~20-30mg/kcal). We performed comprehensive testing (3 different lots of each brand/variety given to the cat, according to purchase records) and identified several lots that were below NRC RDA (and some below NRC minimum). However, we would like to emphasize that while the vast majority of foods met or exceeded NRC and AAFCO standards, the cat is very large (almost 17 lbs) and old (thus with a reduced overall food intake), so the food likely did not meet his requirements even though they met NRC standards (which are based on a 9-lb cat eating 250kcal/day). We are thus reporting lots that met or exceeded NRC/AAFCO minimums, because they are clearly not formulated to meet all life stages (especially for big cats).	14	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	16.5	Pound

EON-288386	10/22/2016 16:04	Cesar Classics	My dog went from being happy and playing, to acting a bit down. She threw up once in the middle of the night outside and then was just a bit more quiet for the next week, spending more time in her bed than usual. She stopped eating her Cesar dog food for the most part, though I did put fresh food down for her each day, I only saw her eat table food. She went to the groomer on September 24th. Over the next two days, she spent more and more time in her bed. I noticed that the skin around her rear-end looked red, she gets shaved at the groomer and the area seemed irritated. We brought her to the vet on (b) (6). He said it looked like irritation from diarrhea and gave us an antibiotic pill and an antibiotic spray. She had a doggie door and would go out as she pleased so I had not noticed an issue with her bowel movements. The antibiotics did nothing to help her, over the weekend (b) (6), she went down hill, I made her chicken and she would eat a little bit. She would occasionally make a yawning type action like there was an issue with her throat or mouth. She had to be carried from her bed to go outside and her abdomen seemed very swollen. When I carried her outside and put her down, she could barely stand. She could only release little drops of diarrhea, so I couldn't even get a good stool sample for the vet. I analyzed a little drop of watery stool that was on a leaf and saw a few small pieces of what looked like uncooked rice, I used a plastic knife to check the consistency of the white pieces, thinking it could be a worm type thing, the pieces were firm and unbreakable. I took her to the vet again on (b) (6), they did an xray and said that she had a whole lot of fluid in her abdomen and that it could be a blockage or cancer. I had the option of bringing her to a specialist for exploratory surgery but I didn't have the money for that and I work so I wouldn't be able to give her the care she would need after surgery. The vet assured me that she was suffering so I had no choice but to have her put to sleep that day. On October 16th, I went to Shoprite, as I had gotten two Cesar dog food variety packs and we only used one, the other was unopened so I went to return it. 			I reflected, it all made sense, I feel my dog was so sick because of the cesar dog food ( filet Mignon flavor was her favorite)unfortunately I did not keep the plastic pieces in the stool, but the next time I was not working and had daylight(10/22) to look in my yard, I went to the area where she had thrown up that night and even though it had been a long time, I saw a little remainder of vomit and in the middle of it was a white flat object. I saved it and the sample from the ground if this would be of any value, it is very different then the rice-like pieces that I no longer have. I dropped off a letter explaining the situation and asking my vet if I should contact the FDA, when I went to pick up the impression of my dogs footprints today at the vets. I wanted the vets opinion and did not want to contact the FDA if she felt that the illness was most likely caused by something else. The office called me later and said that foreign objects in the cesar dog food could have indeed caused the symptoms in my dog and that it would be reasonable if I felt the need to contact you. I have looked online and the company says that there are no reported injuries or deaths related to the recall, its upsetting and I truly believe that my dog became sick because of their food. My vet said they will provide me with a report this week. Please let me know if I should contact the company as well.

EON-285650	10/16/2016 14:36	Natural Balance Original Ultra Whole Body Health Small Breed Bites Chicken Chicken Meal Duck Meal Formula	My dog (pure bred Irish Cocker Spaniel 3 1/2 years old) had been eating this dog food since he was 2 months old. He loved it and never had any reaction to it what so ever! It is; Natural Balance Original Ultra Whole Body Health Small Breed Bites with Chicken, Chicken Meal &amp; Duck Meal Formula. It is the 4.5 lb. bag and cost's $15.00, so quite expensive. He would eat about 1 &amp; 1/2 to two cups daily. This was the only dog food he has ever eaten! About a month ago after I bought a new bag of the food I noticed something happening to my dog. At first he just had soft stools,then within a week the stools had been replaced with watery blood filled diarrhea. It became worse &amp; worse. I took his food away &amp; gave him a bland diet of white rice, chicken,egg,etc. It went away within hours. The next week I began giving him just a little of his dog food, within hours his stool had went from normal to bloody &amp; watery diarrhea, as well as him heaving some of it up along with a lot of mucus. I took a sample of his stool to the vet. We thought maybe he had Giardia. They tested for all microbs, parasites,etc. &amp; found nothing! No worms or any other thing that would be causing this. They found nothing wrong with digestive tract. They advised taking him off the Natural Balance &amp; keeping him on a bland diet until I could find another dog food that was better for him. I have been keeping him on a bland diet &amp; trying to make my own dog food. Immediately after stopping the Natural Balance he began to improve! Within a few days he was back to his happy self although he really wants that dog food. I am looking into alternatives. Here is my theory; when Dick Van Patton was alive the food was wonderful! They would even have special coupons from time to time.He had improved the ingredients in the formula. It even says so! After he died they almost immediately changed the formula! And since it already said that on the label they could get away with it! I believe the food is not nearly as good as the original. They may be cutting corners to try &amp; make as much money as possible! They no longer give or promote coupons as well. I am so glad that I discovered this about the food. My dog is fine now, &amp; will forever be on either a homemade dog food diet or a very bland one! This last bout took him longer to recover so maybe there is something in the food now that is toxic. That is all I can think of since he ate it for three years &amp; was very healthy, &amp; now he eats from the new packages &amp; he almost dies from it!	3	Years	Terrier - Sealyham	Dog	27	Pound

I then went to pull blood results to compare April 2016 to August 2016 and sure enough all the levels tied to liver and pancreas were elevated. I immediately took (b) (6) off the food and within 48 hours she was no longer panting. Over the last month, I have been working with my Vet and Veterinary Specialist at (b) (6), We have done tests to rule out Cushing's, pancreatitis, and kidney; all of which were normal. Throughout the night, (b) (6) drank water and vomited it all up, (b) (6) the active golden laid still. We took them to our vet at 8 am, no doctor in; called a vet who used to work at our vet and she agreed to see them at 9 am. She came in, immediately looked at (b) (6) (10.5 years) then (b) (6) (11.5 years). Took both temps- (b) (6) high normal, (b) (6) had one. She took (b) (6) away to X-ray her abdomen. When the doctor came back she told us she could treat (b) (6) but could not treat (b) (6) and we needed to take her to the emergency vet in (b) (6). An IV was started and we got there about 15 minutes later where (b) (6) needed to be put on a stretcher. The doctor there put her on pain meds, and placed a needle in her abdomen to release the gas. We were told (b) (6) had bloat, esophagus was dilated and could not release the gas, her stomach had twisted. We had her euthanized as the prognosis was not good. Suspicious that both otherwise healthy dogs became violently ill. I had discussed the food issue with both vets about the food and both said changing food would not cause this.....contaminated batch? (b) (6) spent the day at the first vet getting fluids and medicine, not feeling back to herself until Sunday. Did not see an expiration date on bag.	10	Years	Retriever - Golden	Dog	65	Pound

When it was done... just poured the new dog food. Since it was the first time I used this, thought it was beginners jitters. They would not eat it unless they were very very hungry... and that too gingerly. Then both of them had diarrhea and vomitting for a couple of days. (IE: maybe not sealed properly but not sure if that is even a possibility with that type of lid.) There was a big "black" spot along the side and so I decided to smell it. It smelled absolutely "putrid". I kept the can and placed the food in a baggie in the refrigerator for now. Unfortunately I seem to recall another can at some point in time having a small black spot which I "scooped out" and since it did not smell bad, I did feed it to the dog. The vet treated him with medication and put him on Science Diet c/d dog food. After a few weeks of eating the food, his eyes started to look irritated. Within 24 hours of these symptoms, he quit eating and drinking, became very lethargic; and wouldn't even open his eyes because they had so much mucus in them. We took him to the vet, ran multiple tests that showed nothing. Blood work, urinalysis; kept him overnight and treated dehydration. In three weeks, my 13 pound dog had also lost over a pound. The vet determined that he probably had cancer and gave him a week or a month to live. I started feeding him different food after reading some bad reviews on the food. Now, three weeks later, after having NO MORE c/d food, he is better. I spoke to a friend about what had happened and she said the same thing had happened to her dog, except she never took her dog off the food and ended up putting the dog to sleep.	13	Years	Schnauzer - Miniature	Dog	11	Pound

The microwave made a loud humming sound and the I saw a spark come from the right side of the microwave toward the food. I was standing in front of it so I immediately opened the door. Nothing different about the food. I thought it was my microwave and still gave the morsels to one dog. I put 5 more pieces in for the other dog. The microwave did the same thing. Made a loud humming sound but this time, there was a bigger microwave "lighting bolt" strike to the meat. My concern was that others may put food in microwave and walkaway. I was concerned that I could have caught fire. There was no indication on the package as to "DO NOT MICROWAVE". Supposed to be raw food but I don't see why it should act as if a type of metal was in it to cause such a reaction.

I purchased a brand new bag and fed it to her for several servings - she vomited, and we ended up back at the vet. After an anti-emetic, we came home and she was on beef and rice again for several servings, and once again got better. I began to feed her her regular food again - while I was feeding it to her, her brother/litter mate that belongs to my parents and sister came over and ae half the plate. He usually eats this food as well, but hadn't had any from this bag until this point. He is in excellent health and has vomited only a handful of times before. However, he started throwing up that night and got sick again in the morning. My dog also developed diarrhea the following day, which got progressively worse, -: then developed vomiting. We had three emergency vet visits within 24 hours of each other, ending up with my dog being hospitalized. The vets are very suspicious of the food since they saw both of our dogs with similar symptoms, and the only common factor they had was that food. Since my dog had been sick already and struggles with digestive health, she was hit a lot harder than her brother. I wouldn't have thought anything of it if her symptoms didn't return BOTH atones I put her back on a food she has done well on previously and if her brother with an iron stomach didn't get so sick as well.	2	Years	Shepherd Dog - Australian	Dog	15	Pound

Last night at 3 am we were outside of the hotel with diarrhea. Again at 6:30am. And again at 7:30 am. I mean like 4 or 5 times in each outing. I decided to look up the reviews on these! OMG!! THEY ARE TERRIBLE!! Dogs are sick with diarrhea, puking, blood! Some small dogs even died of kidney failure! They immediately went into the trash!!! When I bought them I realized I had bought for small/ medium dogs. Glad I didn't get the large dog ones!!!! I'm off to go out again he's at the door!!!	1	Years	Rottweiler	Dog	110	Pound
EON-282249	9/23/2016 23:04	Wellness Complete Health Beef & Chicken Recipe	Cats have not been eating wellness canned cat food well for several weeks despite this being their standard food. 9.23.16 I picked up the leftover food and one dish had a green "capsule" shaped foreign object in it along with uneaten food. I kept the object and have it in a ziplock bag. I am concerned the batch of good I purchased is not "right". I did send an email to the manufacturer several days ago to see if they changed the formula due to the sudden failure of my cats to eat it. That was prior to my finding the object.

He was well trained, yet couldnt even hold his diarea. He peed and pooped all over our house, and was a complete mess. for the last 2 weeks we had to restrict him from his normal food and be put on a "vet diet" with medication and probiotics to help improve his stomach again and get rid of "salmoella" type virus. On the night of the third day he yelped in pain and immediately had uncontrollable diarrhea in the house. Unless very sick, he will NEVER go to the bathroom in the house. He then proceeded to throw up 2 times. I stopped feeding him for the day (all food and especially the treats). I went to identify what could have possibly made him sick and the only change in his diet/day/routine was the chicken jerky treats. He had been on this food for 6 years but the labeling had recently changed. I mixed the old and new food and changed it over the course of a week. I tried treating the rash at home but it got worse. I took him to the vet on July 19th he had lost 11 pounds, he had been on the Venison for 2 weeks. They gave him a steroid shot and started him on steroids, probiotics and antibiotics. We returned to the vet on July 30th because he was still losing weight even though he was eating 6 cups of food per day. He looked like a skeleton and was down another pound. On August 8th we returned to the vet again and he had gained 6 pounds eating 9!!! cups of food per day. I had purchased a new bag of Nutro Venison on August 6th and on the 8th after returning home from the vet He refused to eat the food from this new bag, both my dogs acted like there was something wrong with the food. He did eat some of it and for the next week would eat it with chicken broth on it. I changed him off this venison food on August 18 when my other dog was in the hospital. I feel his weight loss was from this food and his rash was from a food allergy to something they changed in the Nutro Minichunk.	7	Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	70	Pound

My daughter and I observed both my dogs act like there was something wrong with the food. She was seen by the vet and started on antibiotics and steroids with little effect. She stayed overnight at the vet for observation and then started on doxycycline. They did an ultrasound and found that her spleen was very enlarged, a biopsy was negative. She continued to lose weight and refused to eat. I watched her become weaker and weaker as she continued to lose weight.(about 20 pounds) She ate very little, refusing most everything offered to her and died of a stroke on Tuesday (b) (6). The lot# for this product was LT20090. And I have pictures of the worms. I didn't open this package and notice the worms until I believe it was Tuesday, September 6th. I contacted the store as soon as I noticed and spoke to Pet Department Manager (b) (6), who said he would be calling Nylabone and taking off shelf as well as putting in the system so the other Walmarts would be notified... I also contacted Nyla bone regarding this product and asked them what they were going to do about it and they said these things happen, and its likely just the Lot it came from and they would look into it. I asked if there would be a recall and they said no, they said it was just due to a bad batch.. I visited the Walmart again today (Sept 18th, 2016) and went to check the shelve where I found more infested Nylabone 360 cleaning bones (I didn't go and check every single one and I didn't inspect any of their other products) 4 of the maybe 8 bags I checked had nests and little moth like things in them. The 14 pack which is what I checked Lot#'s T22702, T21065 and T22677. Please note all the Lot #'s are different and when I contacted Nylabone, they said they were only going to check into the Lot #s.... Must be a infestation in their warehouse/factory.. I am concerned for my dog, because I had this worm infested product from Sept 2nd with a chip clip and big ziplock bag on it, and I found one of the worms escaped the chip clip and was inside the zip lock bag which had a few holes in it it possibly chewed and is now possibly in my house! I have told the department manager, Ali, as well as the store manager, I believe his name is (b) (6) about this, and showed them the infestation and also e-mailed Nylabone explaining this again to them.. I don't think they are taking this seriously based on their responses to me on how they are handling this and the continuous shipment of infested products and am concerned for other dog owners including my own if they escaped which I think they did, and would like to see this problem resolved. Thank you kindly, (b) (6)

(All of my three cats love this flavor so it's a win-win when all three finicky eaters enjoy the same food.) When I picked up one can off the shelf, it felt a bit swollen, but I naively thought it was okay (I mean, it was from Whole Foods' own line of cat food after all and they supposedly place a high level of scrutiny into the products they sell) and placed it in my cart. I realize now that I should not have done that. With 3 cats, I routinely set out three bowls and a can each night for their breakfast the following morning. My husband, who gets up at 5AM to get ready for work, takes on the responsibility of feeding them. This morning, as he opened this particular can, he was greeted with a loud popping whoosh from the can and an awful smell. He soon realized that there was something wrong with the cat food when one of our cats, a normally voracious eater, smelled, ate a small bite out of his bowl, and recoiled. He then tried the other two bowls and refused to eat what clearly was contaminated and spoiled food. The other two cats wouldn't even go near their bowls after smelling it. My husband then cleaned up the bowls and flushed the contaminated food down our garbage disposal. He even washed the can before throwing it in the trash. (I have since retrieved it for the product info and notified Whole Foods.) I have been monitoring my cat and so far he seems fine. I will continue to monitor him just to make sure he does not experience any adverse effects after eating that small amount. My husband suspects that the can may have had botulism or some other contaminant. (b) (6), from Whole Foods, instructed me to inspect all the other cans I bought and bring back the original can along with the others that were in the same lot number. I will be going to the store to get a refund.

She wouldn't lay down at all - as if she was in terrible pain! She threw up a yellowish foamy substance. I didn't realize the first time this happened (after feeding her these treats) that it was the cause! I gave her 3 more last night and it happened again!! First he vomited his nightly meal, followed by white foamy liquid. He also began drooling a lot. He continued vomiting through the night, and began a trembling in his legs. By morning he was unsteady on his feet and would fall over when trying to walk. I brought him to the vet that morning, where he was treated with IV fluids, anti-nausea drugs, etc. After a blockage in his stomach was ruled out, after several xrays, he was treated with activated charcoal. The vet was especially concerned over his continued ataxia. When symptoms didn't resolve after several days the vet began treating for possible Addison's Disease, and tested for Addison's Disease and liver function. Both tests came back negative. On the 6th days he was finally recovered and allowed to come home.	10	Months	Terrier - Irish Soft-coated Wheaten	Dog	38	Pound

EON-279782	9/10/2016 20:01	Vital Essentials Freeze-Dried Duck Mini Nibs Entrée for Dogs	The only thing I can 100% say is the food is that she started to skip her second meal and then refused to eat completely for three straight days. I believe this happened over two small 1lb bags. The skipping with the first bag and the refusal with the second bag. I only have the packaging for the second. During this time I didn't suspect the food because she actually had a urinary tract infection. Normally with her when I see her squat more than once we are instantly off to the vet because of her history of making crystals. This time there were zero crystals, never happened before, but lots of blood and bacteria. So it was cultured to find the right antibiotic. About 5 days later we had a 14 day course of an antibiotic specific to the bacteria she had. With a few days of that left I called my vet to tell her I felt like we had originally made progress, but she was lethargic, off, squatting a bit more and had thrown up a couple of times. We decided to switch to an antibiotic shot that lasts 10 days. By the time I got to that appointment the next day, she hadn't eaten in two days. She gagged down a meal the next day. Following day she refused to eat again. I tried everything I could think of after she pulled apart a toy and started to eat pieces, she was starving. That day I got a new delivery of 4 1lb bags from chewy.com. So I thought, I've tried everything else, I opened a new bag and put a few kibbles next to the other bags. She hesitantly sniffed the new stuff and then gobbled it down. She ate a regular meals worth from the new shipment. My dog was starving herself to not eat from this bag. There is clearly something wrong with it. It could also be why she is sick with the timing of feeding the first bag, she got worse on this second bag. She became more lethargic, threw up, her illness worsened and she was off and refusing to work for the first time ever in her life.	9.5	Years	Shepherd Dog - Australian	Dog	22.5	Pound

EON-279627	9/8/2016 21:48	Cadet Gourmet Duck Breast	(b) (6) had her normal dog food, Taste of the Wild, the evening before. She had no signs or symptoms of anything being wrong. She jumped up into bed and she always stays there. There is no poison of any kind in the house. There are typical household cleaners under the kitchen sink, but there is no way she can get the doors open to get to those, besides you would have to be blind if you didn't see a mess in the kitchen from a dog getting into something. I woke up in the morning and she walked over to my face and gave me the typical nose nudges and the "get up" trot that she does across my stomach with her tail wagging. There was no signs or symptoms of anything being wrong. I took her outside to go to the bathroom and, as always, watch her to make sure she goes so that she can get a treat. She knows that if I don't see her go, then she don't get a treat. I've even seen her go out to go to the bathroom just to make it look like she did something so she could get a treat. The point is I do watch everywhere she goes. She did not go anywhere unusually way away from me, stayed pretty close. We outside altogether probably five minutes at most. She went to the bathroom and we came back in. She got her dog treat, Cadet Duck Breast. My dad also took his dog, (b) (6), out as well and she got a treat too. (b) (6) wandered into see what my dad sitting in the living room chair, about 15 feet away and came back. I would say five minutes would have really been too long before she came into the kitchen and starting throwing up. She wondered around for a second and threw up again and again and started dry heaving. Then she collapsed as if she lost all muscle control and pooping uncontrolled, just laying there and dad scooped her up with a towel and took her outside while I was cleaning up behind her. I let her lay there for a minute just trying to figure out what the heck was going on. Her eyes would watch me, but she couldn't move. I scooped her up and we headed to the vet, about five minutes away. She still lay motionless, The doctor got her in right away and they new right off she was going to need major help fast. She was started on an IV, then it wasn't too long after that blood started coming out of her butt in large amounts and I think it was maybe two hours later she passed away. The vet had taken x-	4.5	Years	Dachshund (unspecified)	Dog	12	Pound

			rays and there was nothing seen in here that could have caused the massive amount of blood coming out of her. The doctor said if he didn't know any better, he said this looks just like an animal that got into some kind of poison. We took (b) (6) into the vet to have her checked as well and her blood results came back as heading in the same bad direction, but certainly not in a severe as turn as it was for (b) (6). The vet quickly put her on a medication to help possibly counteract anymore effects (b) (6) may have. I feel that with as close as an eye as I kept on (b) (6), it is safe to say from what I saw, that it was the dog treat that caused this reaction. I discussed all the possibilities with the vet. I feel that this dog treat did kill (b) (6). The vet and I both agree that it may have only been one treat that was really tainted that bad in the whole bag and that's why (b) (6) did not have the same adverse reaction, but only milder symptoms like no appetite and no real action out of her for the whole day. She has seemed to recovered at this point. We contacted the seller of the food, Tru-Value, and they pulled the food from the shelves and called the district office they placed a "Stop Sale" on all of these treats. This is as summary is as detailed and accurate as I know it.

My dog would not eat any of the food out of this bag even though he has been eating this brand and type of dog food for over 5 months with no issues. He was still interested and eating cheese and peanut butter, so no apparent issues with his appetite. I tried for about a week to get him to eat the dry dog food until I gave up and purchased a different brand and type of food. He ate all of the new food immediately. So I thought i should try to transition his food over. When I put a little of the old Purina Pro Plan food in his bowl with the new food and he would not eat it. I also noticed over the past week I have had a large amount of flies in my house, which I never do and figured out that they were coming from the basement near when I store the dog food in a closed bin. My dog had eaten Evo most of her life and had transitioned back onto Evo after using Blue Buffalo grain free. The next day she had fecal incontinence problems which progressed into diarrhea. I assumed she had a virus so I fasted her for 24 hours then put her on rice and rice water with some improvement. Her feces had a very fishy smell and her anus and skin on the tail and perineum became raw. I continued the same diet for a couple of days and her stools while soft were formed. I boiled some ground beef and added it to rice without a problem after which I started to add back approx a tbls of Evo again. She was soft the next am and I gave her about an 1/8 of a cup mixed in with rice and ground beef. I noted later in the day she had vomited and the diarrhea and incontinence began again and this time with vomiting which continued for the next 24 hours even with Pepto Bismol. Went back to the fast for 48 hours and then rice and ground beef again with gradual improvement over a few days. At this time I added about one tbls of the Evo and overnight the vomiting and diarrhea happened again. This time it was so bad I gave her Imodium. I then made the connection to the dry Evo. and gave her only the rice and ground beef again. I bought Blue Buffalo and although she had not eaten it in over a month she has been able to eat it with no diarrhea or vomiting without a period of transitioning. He has eaten this food for over a year with no problems. I fed both of my dogs this food and they refused to eat it at first. I put down more food the next day and they ate part of it before I went to work. When I came home, they both had vomited multiple times with blood in the vomit. I had to rush <sup>(b) (6)</sup> to the vet because of his dehydration and continued vomiting through the night. The vet diagnosis was pancreatitis. I almost lost him. He had to be hospitalized. The other shepherd has slowly recovered. I informed Royal Canin and they said they had no other complaints. I am solidly convinced this food was poisoned in some way. EON-277984	8/29/2016 11:00	Annamaet Salcha Poulet Formula	After feeding from the new bag of Annamaet Salcha, a few days thereafter our puppy developed diarrhea. We took her to the vet and no parasite was listed. She got better on a bland diet. Once the Annamaet Salcha was reintroduced slowly, she developed diarrhea once again. We paid for another vet, fecal test. The fecal test reported Imeria (sp?) which is attributed, the vet said, to contaminated food, hunting, or eating poop, and causes diarrhea. Since she does not hunt nor eat poop as she is a puppy and closely supervised at all times, we know it was the food. We also happen to know a Littermate of hers who was having the same exact problems, eating the same food. We will compare lot numbers as this is too great a coincidence and evidence points to tainted food.	5	Months	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	21	Pound

With the first poring into a cat dish came a questionable lump 1 1/2 inches by 3/4 in diameter with dry food as part of it. The lump was solid and brown. You can use your imagination as to what it could be. My son (46 years old) was sure someone was poisoning our two main coon cats. These insects may even bore a hole in the package to get to the contents. For this reason, it is difficult to determine exactly where these insects may have gained entry into the product. We noticed that both times you purchased the food from PetSmart. We would suggest that you notify them of the problem as well." And suddenly started to get sick. I unfortunately threw away the bag... but I do have some of the tainted food leftover, if needed for testing. I have just about gone through my first bag of a very expensive, vitamin enriched food diet, along with plenty of fresh vegetables. Since I changed the food, my rabbit's coat is just starting to look better, and now has regular urine (not discolored) and feces look healthy. After arriving and opening the box, I noticed a really bad smell in the packaging (box, packaging materials etc) - it was very similar to cat feces. Once completely opened, I pulled out the cases of food and noticed that the smell was coming from the case of H&G. Upon further inspection, I found that there were small eggs and worms on many of the tops of the cans - the worms were alive and moving. At this time the smell was horrific. I finally found one of the cans had exploded. My biggest concern is the presence of parasites and the fact that the smell wasn't of sour/rotten cat food, but of fecal matter and putrefaction. Perhaps it's because this is a paleo formula, without the addition of vegetable matter to temper the smell. Unfortunately, I could not stand the smell anymore and double bagged the case and disposed of in the dumpster. I notified the online store, Chewy.com and they offered to replace, but I chose a refund b/c it's not a product I can trust to feed to my cat now. So, unfortunately I did not get the lot #, etc., but I did take a couple of pictures (I was not aware of this online safety reporting portal). EON-275117	8/14/2016 15:52	Cadet Gourmet Duck Breast	Duck jerky treat purchased at Costco in (b) (6) was given to (b) (6) the morning of 8/5/16 - when I came home from work he was lethargic and then laid on the floor shaking. I thought that perhaps he had been stung by a scorpion or meat bee as he does have allergies. When he did move, it was like he was walking on eggshells. He would not eat or drink anything. Eventually he did get into his bed and seemed better in the morning. He seemed fine and we gave both dogs duck jerky the morning of 8/7/16. (b) (6) (our Boston terrier) took the treat outside and buried it - he would not eat it which was uncharacteristic. (b) (6) sniffed the duck jerky and eventually ate it. By 6 pm, he was shaking again and laying on the floor in distress. We called the (b) (6) (b) (6) in (b) (6) as well as poison control and took him to the vet in (b) (6). They did blood tests and several very high levels of toxins indicated kidney issues. The vet thought it was perhaps Cushing's Disease - we all thought that the duck jerky smelled funny. Eventually we took him home and he was able to walk, though again he was having problems and walking very deliberately. He was drinking a lot of water and again seemed better in the morning. I took him to my vet (b) (6) in (b) (6) for follow-up. He gave him some medication and will follow-up with another blood test on 8/22/2016 to check for kidney issues.	12	Years	Bulldog - French	Dog	42	Pound

The type on the labels being so small, I had to use a magnifying glass once I returned home in order to be able to read the ingredients list and the guaranteed analysis. There is NO taurine listed in either the ingredients list or the guaranteed analysis. I was under the impression that taurine is a REQUIRED addition to all cat foods unless they are labelled for supplemental/intermittent feeding only. This food is labeled as manufactured according to AAFCO standards for adult maintenance but it cannot be used for maintenance without the addition of taurine. And at a big-box pet food store like PetSmart...I do not want for anyone to feed this food for adult maintenance and have their cat go blind or suffer from HCM due to insufficient taurine in this canned food. I did notify PetSmart tonight via email about this problem. Thank you for allowing me the opportunity to report this.

Gradually I introduced your product into the food they were currently eating (Purina Pro Plan - Sensitive Skin and Stomach), which your representative claimed was comparable. Initially everything appeared to be fine but after about three weeks one dog started to refuse to eat it in the morning. He would eat the second meal in the evening, but now I think it was because he was so hungry. The second dog - (b) (6), who will eat anything, continued to eat it regularly. About a month after they started to eat Blue Buffalo (b) (6) developed an insatiable thirst and began to throw up his food after every meal. I took him to the vet on June 13th who did blood work and ruled out conditions such as diabetes. Finding nothing physically wrong he recommended restricting his water intake after meals. I restricted water for several days at meal times but (b) (6) continued to vomit up his food. Additionally, no matter how much water he was given at other times of the day he started drinking water from any source he could find and would attempt to dive into the toilet if you opened the lid. The second dog now refused to eat any of the Blue Buffalo. The vet prescribed a medication on June 17th to coat (b) (6) stomach and switched them both to Science Diet. The vomiting lessened and completely stopped within a few days, the second dog began eating again. (b) (6) continued to have an insatiable thirst and I took him back to the vet for more testing. Again, nothing was found. Last week (b) (6) finally started to drink normally again. I had just purchased a second bag of Blue Buffalo on June 10th and was able to return it to the store for a refund. I have attached the receipts for that transaction as well as the one for the first bag. I have also attached copies of my vet bills and the vet's notes. EON-274197	8/8/2016 17:08	Milk-Bone Good Morning Daily Vitamin Treats	I have a detailed video of a extremely disturbing situation that can best be show in a video, but here I will describe in writing. It was around 4pm CST today Aug 5, 2016 when I noticed the first of two Milk Bone vitamin treats was empty and it was time to open the second container of the same product. We store our dog food products in a clean pantry along with other pet products. The product we are extremely disturbed about was sealed with a foil by the manufacturer and had a secure plastic top. It is one of Milk Bones new vitamin treat products which comes in a uniquely contoured plastic container featuring branded red and white predominant shrink sleeve with a under the top branded foil seal that is presumably airtight or within regulation. The product was purchased at Petsmart in (b) (6) on (b) (6) around July 14 (there is a itemized receipt and transaction record, will need to check those for date/time confirmation). The product had a yellow circular sticker on it saying 20% off which enticed me to make the purchase. I purchased other items in the same transaction including the exact same product from Milk Bone but it didn't have any human eye visually observable product discrepancies. So here's the experience that has disturbed me and my wife greatly regarding quality control on products for our beloved dog. I ran out of the first of 2 milk bone products I bought. The other product had not been opened until this afternoon around 4PM CST. After looking inside it also made my own health feel threatened. A fungal like web was the first thing I saw upon peeling off the foil seal. I instantly saw moving yellowish wormlike bugs and immediately pushed the foil seal back down and closed the top. Then I freaked out a little cause I've never seen anything like this before. So I washed my hands and face and neck not knowing what pathogens may have been released when I opened the milk bone container. Then I got some plastic cling wrap and wrapped the opening just in case. After thinking about what I just experienced for a few minutes, I decided to document the Milk Bone debacle on video with my dog on the couch in the room, wondering if he could have died if it was dark and I blindly reached for a treat after a typical night walking session. I'm appalled at the most extreme example I've personally ever seen or heard of in the pet food industry. These are milk bone treats. I don't understand how this could have happened. I have a relatively extensive yet unprofessional video that documents the entire disgusting reality in unimaginable detail. I am considering legal action because it is so horrendous and I am a non-litigious person.

They kept him over night. The doctor on call and my veterinarian found no signs of infection so they determined he must have been fighting off inflammation. Their suggestion was to boost (b) (6) dose of Prednisone from 10 mgs to 30 mgs 2 times a day since the smaller dose was too low to maintain a dog of his stature. (b) (6) responded remarkably well. He was standing up straight for the first time in a long time. Other than being excessively thirsty he was bouncy, full of life and just happy over all. I was elated not only to have my ole friend back but was thrilled for him that he felt so much better. He continued to eat like a horse. Slowly (b) (6) began to regress again. He appeared to just not be feeling well. He continued to eat &amp; drink well but his stool was much softer. He had lost control of his bowel movements on occasion so once he started to slip I would wake up and find him sleeping in his stool. Prior to this he had accidents but at least he would jump up and try to make it to the door. At this point he no longer had the energy and would just lay there. He never lost control of his bladder however he struggled getting outside to go. I was giving (b) (6) a few slices of the franks when I gave (b) (6) his medications and he had soft stool too but I didn't think anything of it. I keep Flagyl and Endosorb on hand so I gave him the required doses and he got better. (b) (6) had a nervous habit of chewing his nails. I had a sock on his left rear paw so one of his nails could heal. Approximately three weeks after increasing his Prednisone I noticed a blood spot on the upper side of the sock. When I removed it I saw what appeared to be an abscess. It looked different from the cysts that he had years before. I scheduled an appointment with a different	10	Years	Great Dane	Dog	152	Pound

I took his temperature and he had a fever. I watched him all night. At the appointment the doctor saw that (b) (6) other rear paw was red too and treated the abscess with an injection of Convenia since I told him that had worked so well in the past. Later that evening (b) (6) right rear paw, not the one with the abscess, began to swell. It was red and oozing like his anus. I took his temp and he was burning up with fever. I rushed him to the ER. The infection was rampant throughout his body. They kept him for two nights, giving him fluids and running tests. They got the fever under control and the infection was slowly dissipating from his body, the swelling around his anus had gone down, but his right paw was still huge &amp; oozing. The doctor thought he would do better recovering at home. I was to soak and massage his foot every few hours and monitor his situation. He was too weak to walk &amp; go to the bathroom so I basically carried him to the yard. I tried expressing his bladder, he couldn't go on his own. I finally gave up and got him upstairs to his bed, a pillow top mattress on the floor in my bedroom where I knew he would be most comfortable. I got him to urinate on a puppy pad later that night. He was awake and aware but weak from the infection. I held him &amp; loved him. He coughed all night trying to hack up phlegm. He finally got a big wad up. I called the ER vet twice worried about bloat around 1am and then again around 5am. We decided I could watch him, take his temp every half hour and bring him in for 7am. He was burning up all night with a 104.5 temperature. I had ice packs all over him. I brought him back in at 7am. The doctor said to leave him and they would start fluids to get him temperature down. It worked &amp; I went to see him later that day. He was OK but very weak. He wouldn't eat which had the doctor concerned. I told the doctor that he was

I stayed with (b) (6) for a while. He got fidgety and I got upset. I knew he was trying to tell me something. I petted and loved him and started to tear up. I thought they would treat him through the night and send him home again so I kissed him good-bye, told him I loved him and would call to check on him and told him good-bye. The doctor called a few hours later and said (b) (6) vitals went the opposite way. His temperature was too low, he was giving up. I rushed over there with (b) (6). I held my best friend tightly as we said our final good-byes...My heart was crushed ~ I knew (b) (6) inside &amp; out. I knew every lump on his body down to if a hair was out of place. He was my heart &amp; soul. He greeted me every morning by throwing his head on the side of my bed demanding a hug before I could get up. (b) (6) was my depression monitor and my protector. He was there for my ups and downs, my faithful companion that always went the extra mile. He literally smiled when I would walk through the door. He was a happy, happy companion...Until the last two weeks of his life...And then the last three days when the infection really took control. The doctor explained that his immune system may have been weakened from the Prednisone. Days later I saw that the some of the Bar S brand products had been recalled. This got my attention. I find it hard to believe that (b) (6) was a new dog after we increased his Prednisone and just a few weeks later an infection of unknown origin took his life. The timing from when I increased his Prednisone to when I started giving him the Bar S Brand hot dogs and his passing all coincide. I still have 2 packs of the franks that I purchased at the same time. Please let me know if there is anything you can do to help me resolve this issue and help me to get closure. I look forward to hearing from you...Thank you. Sincerely, (b) (6)

When I returned it today to Petsmart in (b) (6), where I bought it, the "Assistant Store Leader", (b) (6), told me those Dentley bones are "a known issue". I said "If you already know that, then why are they still on the shelf?" She said they just get "whatever Corporate sends them", and did not remove the other ones from the shelves. That is lame and inexcusable, and it is unacceptable to be selling products that they have knowledge can tear up a dog's insides or even cause them to bleed out and die. What steps do we need to take to get these removed from Petsmart's shelves?

A new bag was purchased from the PETCO in (b) (6) on 07/29/2016 which is where we have always purchased the food. The bag was opened the next day, 07/30/2016 and he was given his normal amount of food in the AM. When we arrived home that evening there were 6 piles of both vomit, feces, and diarrhea in the home. He was clearly lethargic and not feeling well. We immediately placed him on pumpkin/rice in small amounts and did so until the morning of 08/01/2016. He perked up and was acting more like himself. In the AM of 08/01/2016 we mixed in a small amount of the food listed above, assuming whatever gastrointestinal bug he was suffering from had hopefully passed and we could work towards getting him back to his normal diet. He ate the food and halfway through the day began having runny stools again, though he was not acting lethargic. We again mixed a little bit of the food in with his dinner that evening and by morning he was having diarrhea in the house and acting lethargic. We again took him back off the food and fed him pumpkin/rice; within a few hours he was perking up a little bit though clearly weak from feeling sick. Today we switched him to a different brand of food, mixed it in with his breakfast, and he has a soft but formed stool with no lethargy. We will continue to wean him back into his dry food but we feel this sickness is related to this bag of dog food. Blue Buffalo did have a recall a few months back due to moisture/mold. It was not the senior food but was the same Life Protection Formula. I do still have the bag of food and packaging and am willing to send samples wherever I need to.	11	Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	109	Pound

Soon after she started gaining weight and she no longer wanted to eat her dry food (we mixed the new food with her dry food). She was on her menstrual cycle, or so we thought, and she started bleeding heavily and excessively. We stopped feeding her the new semi-wet food once she started pooping excessively. After we stopped feeding her the new semi-wet food she started pooping normally, however she continued to bleed for about a month. We had not taken her to the vet because we do not have the money for it and she seemed fine for a while. Once she finally stopped bleeding she started acting lethargic. She wasn't eating at all or even drinking water. We are currently giving her water through a syringe and trying to feed her boiled chicken breast. She still will not eat her dry food and she barely wants to eat the chicken breast. She hasn't pooped for about 4 days and the last time she did it was a small puddle about the size of a quarter and it was almost black and extremely watery (it may as well not even be called poop) and it had a bit of blood. She doesn't get up even when she needs to urinate. We have to carry her to a doggy diaper so she can go and she can barely walk. We finally have enough money to take her to the vet but we fear it may be too late. About 3 weeks prior to feeding her this new food we had taken her to the vet for bloodwork and urine and feces tests and her results came back perfect. Unbeknownst to me, I opened the freshly sealed bag that I bought from the Walmart on (b) (6) and it was filled with Indian Mealworm Moths, Egg sacks, larvae and mold everywhere!!!! The sell by date on the bag is JUL 17, so there is no excuse as to why this should be happening. I want others to be cautious and AWARE because the company has had dozens of complaints (after I did some research) and many pets that have suffered!!!! I am a military Veteran and I am extremely disgusted with the way this is happening and the fact that it is even going on at all!!! Dog food shouldn't be contaminated like this!!! ESPECIALLY when they have a "guaranteed fresh" stamp on their bag! They are trademarked as being a grain free product, but they are falsely advertising!!! There is corn by-product and grain in the dog food!!! I called Purina and asked to speak to the supervisor and I was told no. They also told me that they will handle it and to not tell the news or get an attorney. Purina also told me to throw the bag away immediately and that they would send me coupons in the mail!!! I then contacted the Walmart that I purchased the 14lb bag of dog food at and was transferred to the supervisor in customer service. I told him that the bag of dog food I just bought from that store was filled with Indian Mealworm Moths, eggs, etc. and he told me "My manager and I are not going to open the bags of dog food just to check for bugs" This needs to be investigated and be talked about; especially in our (b) (6) (b) (6) area, because who is to say that others haven't purchased the same bag of food with the same problem and didn't notice it!!!! I still have the bag of food to save as evidence because I am so appalled at this whole situation. This company has already killed hundreds of cats and dogs with their "Beneful" food line because of the toxic ingredients that were in the pet food!!!! I am NOT the only one!!! PLEASE help me to spread the word so others can start taking a closer look at not only the food that their families consume, but also the food that is given to our pets! I always bought the small foil packages but the last time that I was in Walmart I noticed for the first time that they had a large plastic container (16oz), New Value Size, filled with the treats. I thought it was a better buy and they would last longer so I purchased them. After giving him about 5 treats he started vomiting. I didn't think anything of it until I gave him 5 more the next day and the same thing happened. I thought it might be the treats but still wasn't sure. I waited until later that night and gave him more. Again he threw up about 15 minutes later. Again I gave him 5 more the next day and the same outcome. Waited until the next day when the same thing happened so now I was convinced it is the treats. She was doing OK until she tried to vomit but she couldn't throw up. i asked her to come inside and she was just standing in the middle of the backyard with her head down .. i called her inside once again and once i stepped in to the house she ran inside as well. Once she was inside she again was standing in a strange position with her head down and tried to vomit.. then she looked at me having this strange look in her eyes that i have never seen before that made me concerned.. then she walked towards me and collapsed . She was not moving or reacting to anything like "lets play or lets run" . She was just laying on her side , breathing really deeply, her eyes were open but she was not reacting at all.. I immediately took her to our veterinarian.. she could not walk on her own . She was at the state where i had to carry her. Once at the veterinarian and veterinarian performing physical exam, (b) (6) started excessively drooling ( she never drools) and loosing balance. Also making discomfort noise as she had discomfort/pain and started to leak from her rear top end. The veterinarian ran with her in a back to perform x-rays and blood work. Also (b) (6) was put on the IV fluids and was given medication. The x-rays showed that her liver was enlarged. Her blood work showed that her liver levels were almost a 1000 close to that of a failure, her glucose was high too and low proteins. The veterinarian couldn't determine what could of caused this type of toxic illness . Neither did I. I am very careful with my children which one of them is my dog (b) (6). (b) (6) spent the night in the emergency veterinary clinic as she was monitored and had IV fluids. The next day she felt better although she still was weak. By the another day she was back to her normal herself and seemed fine. She was given medication course to take at home. A week after the hospitalization we had a follow up blood work done. Fortunately her liver blood levels dropped to 218 which is still above normal, but in a safe zone. Later this week we will be going for another blood work to see if her levels are at the normal range. So that is what happened. We almost lost her due to unknown reasons. I do not have no poisons in my house or backyard. I have no outdoor or indoor poisonous plants either. Immediately after opening the bag, I noticed a foul odor (like plastic). The smell was really bad. I tried to give the food to my cats, but they refused to eat it. Definitely something is wrong with that food, I left the bag for a week, but every time I opened it, the smell was still present. I didn't want to feed my cats with something that may be not safe. I also contacted the company from which I always order pet food, and the manufacturer. Supplier came back to me with money refund, but I never got any reply from manufacturer. From their web I know that they have a recall for dog food (same flavor - chicken), so I'm afraid that similar issue can be found in cat food.

When we got home the food left in his dish had molded (it was put in that morning, and had no exposure to any type of liquid) and smelled awful. As a test I put some in a dish and placed outside in a dry place. After an hour the dog food had changed colors, attracted flies by the dozens, began to smell really bad, and some of it started to mold. This dog food is obviously made with bad products not to be ingested by any animal. I found over 500 complaints with the BBB online. They were all for the same problem (mold, hurting the dogs stomach or worse). It took medicine and several weeks before our dog was back to normal after eating this dog food. EON-271067	7/12/2016 9:00	Beneful Originals with real beef	My 2 Labrador Retrievers (aged 6 and 11 yrs.) became violently nauseated after eating Beneful Originals with Beef. I've fed them Beneful Healthy Weight and Purina True Instinct before with no problem. Had just opened the Beneful Originals bag (purchased days earlier and stored in kitchen cabinet) and after the first feeding the yellow lab vomited up his food and then vomited again. Didn't think too much about it as he sometimes has a sensitive stomach. At the second feeding, the yellow lab ate half his food and then stopped and looked like he didn't feel well. The black lab ate all of his food, but then he started vomiting too. The two dogs vomited 5-6 times over the next 24 hours. The odd thing was that typically if they vomit you see the stomach contents plus watery gastric juices. This time it was the stomach contents - the dog food - plus a large quantity of what looked like strawberry jello (thick and gelatinous and tinted red). I don't think the red was blood but rather the red food coloring in the dog food, but it was this jelly-like substance that they continued to vomit after there was no more dog food on their stomachs. I put them both on saltines and water for the next 24 hours and then switched them back to True Instinct dog food and they now seem fine. I'm not going to give them any more of the Beneful Originals though and I thought you should know that it made them sick. My dog finds very interesting hiding places and I didn't see exactly where but knew he hid a couple. A couple of days ago he started choking and throwing up. I watched him and found foamy yellow vomit with huge orange chunks in it. I knew this had to be the culprit. So, I tried to give him a bit of white rice with beef broth. He wouldn't eat it. Then he was lethargic and woke from snoring to throwing up. I kept trying to wet his mouth until yesterday when I got ground beef to mix w the rice. He ate some and I thought he'd be ok. But he threw it up too. He slept last night but vomited all day and his one BM was runns. The product is Sergeants PurLuv bacon mini bones. 6oz.lot#3575SKC101, exp date Nov 2018. The label identifies the product as USDA certified organic and lists the food's ingredients. The PROBLEM: NATURE'S DOMAIN is NOT the manufacturer. When I called NATURE'S DOMAIN to ask about ingredients, the respondent on the phone told me that they - in fact- do NOT make this food -- and have asked Costco repeatedly to remove their name from the label. NATURE's DOMAIN says it only makes dry cat food and not canned. Given that this is a NATURE'S DOMAIN LABEL -- and the company of origin is NOT correct -- it leaves the consumer to wonder if ANYTHING on the label is correct. Where is this product made and by whom? Have never seen where it is okay for a company to use the name of a company known for its organic foods -- when in fact that company is NOT the manufacturer -- and fail to disclose the TRUE MANUFACTURER of the product. We have had enough scares when it comes to cat and dog food. Wet, soft stools; 2. Cat defecating outside litter box (i.e., not reaching litter box); 3. Vomiting. My cat has NEVER defecated or urinated outside the litter box, and he very rarely vomits, so I knew something was wrong. However, I had not found these issues until after two feedings. Therefore, I fed him this combination of cat food twice in total, before realizing what was going on. Upon realizing that my cat was ill, I threw away both of these cans, and started him on fresh cans. His vomiting ceased, and his stools returned to normal. He has not defecated outside the box, nor vomited, since feeding him different food. He seemed otherwise normal and alert aside from his vomiting. By noon something drastically changed. His body was cold and he was listless and limp. I immediately rushed him to the vet. He was admitted. Had a body temperature that was well below normal and was sick and weak. A couple hours later the vet called me - after looking at his bloodwork he was having a liver problem. They told me he needed to be transferred to the animal er immediacy. I went back to the vet and we took him to the er with his catheter in place. He was admitted to the er. Was in intensive care for a few days, received a ultrasound of his liver and more bloodwork. The er vet told me that he had an "acute insult" to his liver and believes it was from I ingesting a toxin. I searched all over my house and there was nothing he could have been exposed to. Then I thought of his new dog food. I googled walmarts ol Roy dog food and was absolutely shocked at the reviews - dogs are dying and being poisoned by this stuff!! I spent 3500 dollars (so far as my dog is still sick) on his vet care for this! Most people shopping at Walmart don't have those kind of funds for vet bills -so they watch their dogs die in front of there eyes. It's just so sad. This food is poison. There are over 500'complaints on consumer affairs website all detailing the exact symptoms my dog had from this food. I have all of his bills, his records, bloodwork and the original bag of food he consumed. . Please get this stuff off of the shelves. Walmart doesn't care. People complain and hey do nothing. Switched to the beef version, and the dog with the gas, etc. got better. The other dog had diarrhea and some vomiting off and on for a week with no fever, apparent pain, or loss of appetite, so the vet ruled out pancreatitis for now, and prescribed Imodium and home cooked chicken and rice until better. EON-267898	6/13/2016 6:40	Blue Buffalo Blue Wilderness Salmon Recipe	Copied below is the description of the product complaint that I reported to Blue Buffalo, the manufacturer via email on 06/12/16: My 2 cats (both young adults) have been on an exclusive daily diet of Blue Buffalo dry (Adult Healthy Living formula) and wet (all Blue Wilderness - Chicken, Chicken &amp; Turkey, Chicken &amp; Salmon and Salmon) for the last 1-1/2+ years. The dry food is supplemented daily with one (1) 3 oz. can of the wet food. The can of wet food is divided and shared by both cats. Both cats are in excellent health and have never had any digestive system problems or food intolerance issues. I had not had any previous concerns about Blue Buffalo food products until a recent event occurred that I believe is directly associated with Blue Wilderness Salmon Recipe. I routinely purchase 30-day supplies of the Blue Wilderness dry and wet food products from Blue Buffalo's Petco distributor in (b) (6) (b) (6). I purchased the product in question on 04/27/16. Approximately 1 week ago, I fed both cats one (1) 3 oz. can of Blue Wilderness Salmon Recipe. Within minutes after eating, the younger male cat profusely vomited. I did not see any evidence of a hairball, and he had no other signs of illness at that time and seemed to be fine immediately after vomiting. There have been no signs of illness or other changes, i.e. diarrhea, behavior changes, etc. since that time. Since this cat had no history of vomiting for any reason in the past and seemed fine otherwise, I originally assumed that maybe he may have eaten too quickly or some other non-serious issue had caused the isolated incident of vomiting. My older female cat did not vomit that day, but she routinely eats less wet food than the younger male. Both cats had been fine within the last week. Both cats have been fed the Blue Buffalo Health Living dry food and different flavors of the Blue Wilderness wet food without any vomiting or any other signs of food intolerance during the last week. This morning (June 12, 2016) is the first time since the vomiting incident that I fed both cats another sealed 3 oz. can of the Blue Wilderness Salmon recipe. The food is always stored on my kitchen counter and is served daily in clean stainless steel bowls.	2	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	9	Pound

			The same type of vomiting incident occurred, but this time both of the cats vomited. My younger male cat profusely vomited within a few minutes after eating and my older female cat vomited approximately 5 minutes later. As both cats have no history of vomiting (for any reason) and/or no previous signs of food intolerance issues or other health problems, and the vomiting has only occurred after eating Blue Wilderness Salmon recipe, I believe there is a direct correlation with the product and that the product is contaminated. I did not save the can at the time of the initial incident, but I have saved the can from the repeat incident that occurred this morning. The expiration date and lot information on the can is: "BEST BY MAR 03 19 - 2329 U 61WSM4". The bar code number is 40243 10499. I have three (3) additional sealed cans from the same lot number and six (6) additional sealed 3 oz. cans of Blue Wilderness Salmon Recipe from a different lot number - "BEST BY JAN 07 19 - 0012 U 61WKSM4" with a bar code number 40243 10184. As this issue may pose a serious health and safety risk, I am requesting that Blue Buffalo take immediate action to initiate a quality investigation to address this issue. Additionally, I would like to return the products from the lot(s) in question to be tested by Blue Buffalo, and will look forward to receiving pre-paid shipping instructions. Since this written complaint is being submitted by email through "Contact Us" on your web site @ bluebuffalo.com/contact on Sunday June 12, 2016 at 9:40 am EST, I will also contact your Customer Service department by phone during normal business hours to ensure this complaint has been received and to confirm the next steps and expected timing for Blue Buffalo to address this issue. Blue Buffalo representatives may contact me by phone at (b) (6) (preference) or by email at (b) (6). I trust that a prompt and adequate response will be provided by Blue Buffalo.

EON-267869	6/12/2016 13:36	Blue Buffalo Blue Freedom Senior Chicken Recipe, Blue Buffalo Blue Wilderness Wild Rolls Beef Recipe	On Thursday, 6/9/16 I purchased Blue products that were recommended to me in the PetSmart store in (b) (6) by a representative from Blue Buffalo named (b) (6). I told (b) (6) that both dogs were older and needed softer food. I fed both dogs a combination of Blue Freedom Grain-Free chicken recipe for Senior dogs with some of the Blue Wilderness Wild roll beef recipe that night for dinner. After about 4 hours - around bedtime - (b) (6) became sick. Every hour or so she would cry out in pain. Her belly was very swollen, and she was very distressed. She couldn't lie down, and spent a lot of time walking around because she was so uncomfortable. It took about 8 to 10 hours for the pain and her crying out to stop. She refused to eat again until dinner time the next night (24 hours later.) I didn't realize that the Blue products were the problem, but on Friday night I fed them something else. On Saturday morning, 6/11/16 I fed her only the Blue Freedom Grain-Free chicken recipe for Senior dogs. About 6 hours later she started having an even worse reaction, including the belly pain and crying out, but this time she had two reasonably major seizures. I sincerely believed she was going to die. This time it took about 10 hours for her to improve. Right now, after nearly 20 hours, she's better but still lethargic. I went on line and found numerous examples of dogs having the same reaction, so I returned the food to the PetSmart store. I explained to the head cashier what happened, she told me that it wasn't unusual for some dogs to have bad reactions to the Blue products!!! If this is the case why are they being sold??? I have discarded all remaining product and will never purchase or feed any Blue products to any pet again.	12	Years	Chihuahua	Dog	8.5	Pound

EON-267783	6/11/2016 17:41	Milk-Bone Healthy Favorites Granola Biscuits with Real Chicken	On the morning of June 8, 2016, I went to feed my two dogs a few of the Milk-Bone Healthy Favorites Chicken Granola Biscuits. When I reached my hand in the box to grab a few biscuits for my dogs I had a sudden pain in my finger below my fingernail. When I quickly pulled my hand out of the box my finger was painful and bleeding as if I had a splinter stuck under my nail but nothing was there. When I looked in the box there were a few broken biscuits in there and one had a small thin black thing protruding out of it. I took that biscuit out of the box and found that the black thing was hard, sharp and almost like a small thin nail or pin. That is what most likely stuck me like a pin under my fingernail. I was horrified thinking what is that doing in there and what are these biscuits doing to dogs stomachs that eat them? Then I realized it must be one of the flax seeds which is an ingredient in the biscuits. Either way, if it penetrated my finger under the nail and caused it to bleed, the flax seeds when baked in the biscuits dry out and harden into pin-like objects and can do the same thing and cause injury to dogs throats, esophagus and stomach. I wanted to contact the company that made the biscuits but the only information I could find was the distributor. I would recall the product and use an alternative healthy ingredient instead				Other

Then as day went on I noticed her slowing down on the day of 6/7/16 my Dog fell very ill, vomiting multiple times red hard pieces , couldn't eat or drink, couldn't sleep crying out in pain couldn't sit or lay down, she was lethargic. Had no idea what was wrong with her. Took her to my Vet . Vet did XRay and pulled out of Rectum with finger what was described to be as red hard possibly rubbery object and 1 to 1 1/12 CM. XRay shows possible 2-3 Cm pieces left in stomach. After returning home with bagged evidence of object from vet started to think what could it be. After (b) (6) was able to eat her first meal went to give her a treat and was immediately overwhelmed and shocked that I looked down and the treat I was about to give her matched what the doctor what handed me the night before 6/8/16. Product we gave her "PUR LUV Grande long lasting Dog chews in Bacon Flavor. Inner center of this treat is the exact match to what vet removed from my dog!!! Had no clue what I gave her as a treat could possibly kill my dog. She still is not clear but stable at the moment and I'm watching for signs of further distress as she may still have pieces in her stomach that I was told by my vet may not pass the small intestines. I noticed that very soon after eating the treats my dog became very thirsty and began drinking a lot of water. Then, he developed a urinary tract infection. I took him to the emergency room since he began to strain to pee and then blood began to come out. The Emergency room Dr. prescribed a very heavy antibiotic and he seemed to improve. It had not yet dawned on me that the chicken jerky treats could be the cause until I took him for a regular check-up and blood work a few weeks later, which was actually just recently on June 3rd. According to the vet, his blood work indicated that he had the beginning stages of Kidney disease. They requested a urine sample, and it just came back normal. I began to wonder what could be the cause and I really feel that it is the Jerky treats due to the fact that he was fine prior to giving them to him, and the fact that I observed that he becomes very thirsty very soon after eating the treats.	15	Years	Shiba Inu	Dog	23	Pound

A markedly increased free T4 (>77.2 pmol/L RI: 7.7-47.6) was detected on 5/11/16 on routine blood work. The markedly increased free T4 concentration was subsequently documented an additional time one week later (different blood sample) in my laboratory (>77.2 pmol/L RI: 6.7-31.1). A 10 year old dog in the household has the same abnormality noted on the thyroid panel. Neither dog is exhibiting signs of hyperthyroidism. This combined with a normal total T4 and TSH concentration increases the likelihood that it is a biologically inactive form or is another substance interacting with the assay. This type (increased free T4 in a dog) of reproducible result in two unrelated dogs of very different age in the same household is an unlikely coincidence. We believe it is worth investigating because of the potential for exogenous thyrotoxicosis. (b) (6) (b) (6) has been contacted and is aware that a report is being filed.	2	Years	Collie - Border	Dog
EON-265832	6/2/2016 10:36	Nature's Variety Prairie Beef & Barley Recipe, Platinum Performance, Grizzly Salmon Oil, Pup-Peroni Lean Beef Flavor, Grreat Choice Pup Puffs Cheese Flavor, Sportmix Gourmet Biscuit with Roasted Peanuts	I have not evaluated this dog but have consulted with the primary care veterinarian and performed thyroid testing in my diagnostic laboratory.  A markedly increased free T4 (74.6 pmol/L RI: 7.7-47.6) was detected on screening blood work during an assessment for lack of weight loss. First noted on 5/11/16. The markedly increased free T4 concentration has been documented twice (three blood samples total) since initially being discovered in two separate laboratories(73.4 pmol/L; 75.5 pmol/L). The 2 year old dog in the household has the same abnormality noted on the thyroid panel. Neither dog is exhibiting signs of hyperthyroidism. This combined with a normal total T4 and TSH concentration increases the likelihood that it a biologically inactive form or is another substance interacting with the assay. We believe it is worth investigating because of the potential for exogenous thyrotoxicosis.  (b) (6) has been contacted and is aware that a report is being filed.	10	Years	Collie - Border	Dog

Rabbit with bone comes in 2 lbs frozen tube. I have already used over a half of tube then noticed foreign materials when I was preparing meals for my cats. I have kept the unused food with foreign materials in it and will take it to retail store tomorrow. I have also contacted Blue Ridge Beef via e-mail today on 06/01/2016. Materials could be from their processing machines? My cats has not showed any signs of illness as of today but I am not sure if they have consumed any of materials since I did not notice till yesterday. I am not sure if the entire tube of frozen meat could be contaminated or not.

I remembered hearing about pet food recalls so switched to a totally different food and she got better. Wanted to make sure it wasn't that she ate something random that got her sick and after checking again to make sure there were no recalls I fed her 1 bowl of the Blue Wilderness and by the next morning she started having multiple bowl movements again and they were soft. I immediately switched her back to her different food and she's fine again. EON-264909	5/30/2016 9:52	Canine Caviar Leaping Spirit Grain Free Entrée	About a month or so ago I had to take my 5 year old (b) (6) to the vet because I smelled a strong chemical type smell coming from his breath. The vet smelled it too, and said it was horrid. She ran blood tests and we determined his liver had been affected. The first assumption was that he had gotten into something he shouldn't have, and began treatment to fix his liver with supplements of Same and milk thistle for a month. Fast forward to 2 weeks ago. I switched my female Flat-Coated Retriever to the same food as the Doberman was on, Canine Caviar Leaping Spirit. Within 10 days of it she also had the strong chemical odor coming from her breath, and the (b) (6) had returned too. I immediately stopped using the food and switched brands. The smell disappeared almost within a day. As an experiment (in case they had gotten into something) I put the (b) (6) back on the food. Within 2 meals his breath took on the chemical smell again. I still have the bag of food here, I would like to find out what is causing the issue and what my dogs were exposed to. I contacted the company and they say they are testing it, but I feel that more should be done. This is quite troubling since I suspect they have both now had their livers affected, but who knows what else. I also worry that other pet owners may not notice anything until it's too late. Please advise on what I should do next. I should mention that the bag I am reporting is not the same bag that this issue started with, so I suspect it has gone on through at least 2 bags that I have purchased.

EON-264821	5/29/2016 0:08	Nudges Jerky Cuts Made with Real Chicken	(b) (6) was given a Nudges chicken jerky treat for two days (Sunday and Monday) prior to the main incident (which occurred on Tuesday). She had never consumed the product before; I purchased it to hold her over until I could buy her normal brand. On Monday she began to tremor but it passed within several minutes and I did not think much of it. The third day (Tuesday) at 8 AM she woke panting heavily, trembling violently, and was severely unbalanced. She laid down and did not attempt to walk, but remained alert. She looked repeatedly right and left as if paranoid, and she exhibited nystagmus (eyes darting back and forth) in her eyes. The episode lasted about 1.5 hours until she fully recovered. As she recovered, she stopped panting and trembling, and attempted walking, but remained unbalanced to the right side and slowly regained balance over time. When fully recovered, she exhibited no signs of the episode having happened and was fully normal. I realized that the only change to her diet was the Nudges chicken jerky treats, so I did not give her one that night. At 11 PM the same day (Tuesday), she had another episode with the same symptoms as described above, but this episode lasted 1 hour until full recovery. The next morning (Wednesday) at 9 AM, she had another episode with the same symptoms, which also lasted approximately 1 hour. I took her to the veterinary hospital, which ran a blood panel, physical, and neurological exam, none of which presented anything of concern. The vet released her with an open diagnosis, not able to identify the cause of her symptoms. She was released and prescribed 50 mg of Gabapentin to be given every 8-12 hours, to reduce neurological pain in case of epilepsy or a slipped disc. She has not had an episode since, and it has been three days since she was released from the vet. She has not consumed a Nudges jerky treat since the last was given on the Monday prior to the episodes. While we are not certain that the Nudges jerky treats are the cause of (b) (6) symptoms, they were the only dietary and routine change prior to the event. (b) (6) is an inside dog and is closely monitored, so if the seizure-like episodes had an external cause, chances are low that it was some other object or toxin.	7	Years	Spitz - German Pomeranian	Dog	6	Pound

They also get some frozen cut green beans at meal time. The treat bags are at different locations in the ouse as we give them a treat whenever they come indoors and a bag of treats is at each door. They have been on this diet for some time, with the only new item being the Orijec Six Fish dry food. Samples from each of these foods described above have been delivered to (b) (6) (b) (6). In (b) (6), he began to throw up every time he would eat it and would seem lethargic for hours after. He still would eat carrots and other treats without throwing up. After a few days of throwing up and/or not eating, I took him into the vet. They gave him IV fluids and anti-nausea medicine, and also a soft canned food for digestive care. He was eating that food and his condition seemed to be improving, with no more throwing up or lethargy. A few days later I mixed some of the Purina One into the canned food to begin to transition back to his normal diet, and he threw up again in the next couple hours. From doing some online research, I found that several other pet owners had the same issue with Purina foods. I took him back into the vet for a blood test, and found that his liver enzyme numbers were extremely high, showing signs of liver damage. He spend the next few days in the ICU to keep him hydrated and do tests for cancer, infection, and toxicity. Through taking samples of his liver cells and monitoring his condition improve over time with antioxidant supplements, and without antibiotics, the veterinarian cancer and infection, and concluded that (b) (6) was suffering from a toxic insult. There was nothing else in my house that he could get into, as it is completely dog-proofed, and the fact that he only threw up when eating the specific Purina One food, allowed us to conclude that the food was toxic. Through more research, mycotoxins from mold growing on the food seem like the likely culprit.	5	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	14	Pound

He would stretch constantly as if trying to push something away. He would cry in pain when I picked him up or if he stretched the wrong way. I took him to the vet and was told the only thing they could see was it might be pancreatitis. He was given pain medication and had to be put on a strict bland diet. I was asked to review everything he was given to eat to be sure it wasn't that. When I returned home, I reviewed his dog food. Simply Nurish Grain Free has all good ingredients. I checked the new treat from Pedigree and to my surprise found not only did this dog treat contain eucalyptus oil, but then found MANY pet owners had experienced the same thing. Pedigree has noted that "SOME dogs can tolerate eucalyptus oil". Why on earth would you chance giving your dog something that could cause such pain to your animal and wallet?? A person cannot tell if their dog will tolerate these treats until it is to late. I took her to the vet and had bloodwork done. She was diagnosed with diabetes. I thought this was weird to come out of nowhere so fast for a perfectly healthy dog. Within the last year my parents dog (who also eats the Beneful Healthy Weight) was diagnosed with diabetes and has come close to death. I thought over and over what could be linked between the two... BENEFUL. I then did some research and learned about other dogs with similar symptoms, some who have died from this food. EON-262681	5/17/2016 14:04	Nutro Ultra Large Breed Adult	The week of (b) (6) our previously healthy dog, (b) (6), suddenly stopped eating his dog food which was not common as he has been eating the same brand of dog food since the day we brought him home at three months old. He had been taken to the vet for labs and a wellness exam to determine what the problem could be and diagnosed with Pancreatitis. He was given Cerenia and IV Fluids, antibiotics and pain medication on the (b) (6) and sent home. We tried a bland diet (rice and ground meat) and prescription canned diet food while waiting for the final lab results to return. He ate the new diet on and off, however, his demeanor was not what it used to be. The lab results determined he had extremely high liver enzyme levels as well as high kidney levels. Xrays and Ultrasound were performed with no abnormalities found. We immediately started treatments to regulate the levels and retested his blood on (b) (6). Liver enzymes were still high, continued treatment and started an appetite stimulant as he was still not eating regularly. He was seen again on (b) (6) by his vet as he was declining in energy. On (b) (6) we retested his levels again to find that they were not improving with his current treatment and in additional other levels had increased. (b) (6) was then sent to the Emergency Room to see an internal specialist for a complete work up. All of the above testing were repeated at the Emergency Room and confirmed all previous results. At this time, we admitted him for a liver biopsy to determine the root cause of his high liver levels. It was found that he had copper toxicity, which was concluded to be from his diet. Additional treatment began for his specific diagnosis. (b) (6) initially responded to such treatment, however, declined fast within a week's time. He had lost a total of 12lbs, stopped bearing weight on his legs, became extremely lethargic, depressed, vomiting and urinating blood. He was rushed back to the Emergency Room. Following a joint tap, it was determined that he had excess fluid in his joints which was both infectious and filled with blood. We were told he was suffering from end stage liver failure causing his blood not to clot and that he was internally bleeding. Long term prognosis of available treatment was poor and it was determined the best course of action at that time for (b) (6) was to euthanize him.	6	Years	Retriever (unspecified)	Dog	65	Pound

One of the cats was so allergic to the 4health food she was missing hair and completely raw down her chin and part of her chest and from the top of her tail down the back of both of her legs. When I took her to the vet they said she was really bad and it was an allergic reaction. she was put on steroids and antibiotics immediately and all cats were taken off of the 4 health food. My dog also was on 4heath food and during the 3 months he was on it he suddenly was missing a large patch of hair from his back. he was not eager to eat and most of the time would not even eat his normal portion. he acted as if he didn't feel good and always just layed down. I took all of my pets off the 4 health food a week ago and the hair has already started growing back on the cats and the dog, and all of them look forward to eating again. The cat that was affected the most will need 2 more steroid shots but she is doing much better since I have taken her off the food. His veterinarian confirmed that he has no parasites or other symptoms that would give another explanation for these problems. Additionally, in the approximately 1 month since I stopped feeding the Kirkland food, my dog has not had any episodes of diarrhea or vomiting. EON-261890	5/11/2016 14:32	Blue Buffalo Life Protection Formula Healthy Weight Chicken & Brown Rice Recipe Adult	Bought a new bag of Blue Buffalo Healthy Weight Adult at PetSmart on a Friday. I used all of my dogs old food first so on the following day I opened the new bag and fed my dog. Three hours after eating the new food he threw up all of the dry food. I though nothing of it since he his a dog and occasionally throws up so I took him for a walk and made sure he was drinking his water. Then I decided enough time had passed so I gave him his dinner which was two scoops of the dry food from Blue Buffalo. So yet again three hours later he was literally sleeping and jumped off bed and threw up all dry food again. I was starting to worry now at this point but we have been using Blue Buffalo since he was born so I just did same routine took him for a walk, gave him some water and we went back to bed. FYI during the entire time he was able to drink water and hold it down so we figured he just ate something bad and was getting it out of his system. Next morning we decided to feed him again using the same food and yet again three hours later he threw up all of the dry food. At this point I was extremely worried, contacted Vet, and was told to take him off the food and feed him white rice and chicken for 4 to 5 days after keeping him food free for 24 hours after last throw up session. So we compiled no more dry just 24 hours of no food just water in which he kept down and was still his active self, after that we started to feed him white rice and chicken for the next four days. He had no problem with the prepared food, we then called the Vet back and was instructed that he could go back to dry food, so we used the Blue Buffalo from before and yet again three hours after eating the Blue Buffalo dry food he threw up. Now just to add to this we also mixed chicken with his Blue Buffalo the last time and he only threw up the dry food, all chicken was processed and not thrown up. I believe they have a bad batch of food circulating.	6	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	115	Pound

EON-261732	5/10/2016 11:12	Golden Rewards Duck Jerky Recipe	So first of all I would like to say that I remeber the big recall put out originally on jerky treats made in china. I remember throwing out what i had and then looking for items made in the US. So just in the last couple of months I noticed Walmart having a this jerky back on its shelves thinking the product was now safe for my dogs again plus it was Duck Jerky not Chicken, Boy was I wrong!! So I bought a new bag at Walmart in (b) (6) a few days ago because there current bag was almost gone. When I opened the bag I noticed it smelled a little different but thought it's probably ok it must just be my nose this morning. So gave each of my dogs a small piece. Within the next ew hours my dogs started acting lie they were not well. They both then started puking and then started having diarrhea, this went on for four days. I was treating them with Pepto Bismol which at first they puked back up too. They both were still drinking water. I made sure they rested and kept a close eye on them. Finally on the end of the fourth day they started acting slightly better. By the sixth day they were back to themselves. The Treats I feed them ar Golden Rewards Duck Jerky distributed by Wal-Mart Stores and list a product of China. What I would like to know is why are these being allowed back on the self and why is Wal-mart allowed to do this!!the Best before says 6/11/2017 there is also the following stamped on the bag. 201511202400512, ho356 34615 115. When I noted the odor, two days later, I stopped feeding this kibble to our Border Collie. We later found vomit where our Border Collie vomited during the night. She is ok and did not require a vet visit. I contacted Halo and they requested I return the bag for inspection. I did return some of the food to Halo. I kept some food for others to inspect as well if needed. I also kept the bag. My Border Collie seems to be doing fine.
