

Limitations: The adverse event and product problem reports contained in this record are not necessarily causally related to (caused by) the reported product, nor do they mean the product was defective. Consumer complaints involving animal foods are received by FDA through voluntary reporting systems. Not all reports undergo follow up actions by FDA; however, each report received is important to FDA as part of our ongoing surveillance efforts related to pet food safety. Trends in reporting can provide an early warning of emerging safety issues of concern.

Other limitations:

- For any given report, there is no certainty that the reported pet food caused the adverse event. The adverse event(s) reported may be more related to an underlying disease, condition, or concomitantly administered medication.
- The report narratives are provided in the form in which we received them, the quality of the information provided about the adverse event/product problem is dependent on the quality of the information received from the veterinarian and/or pet owner.
- Adverse event report numbers should not be used to calculate incidence rates or measures of relative risk. It is not data from a controlled study, and there is no accurate way to know the true size of the population exposed to a product, nor the true population affected with an adverse event.
- Adverse event data should not be used to compare the safety of different products. Many factors can influence reporting, and products that are more widely distributed or sold in greater volume may have more reporting than those with limited distribution or sales. Products for which there has been recent publicity may experience more reporting for a period of time afterwards. Underreporting is also common with adverse event reporting systems.

EON-492176	6/9/2022 16:12	Fresh Pet Dog Food Slice and Serve Roll	I usually feed (b)(6) at 7pm, but I was busy and got sidetracked. I fed (b)(6) at 11 pm and by 12:15, she was pacing around the room. I picked her up to see what was wrong and then she laid down on the couch and wouldn't open her eyes. It seemed like the lights were bothering her. Her body became stiff and she developed tremors. She was unable to hold her urine. I took her to the ER immediately and she was diagnosed with Amphetamine toxicity. (b)(6) does not leave the house and I live alone with very few visitors. There is no possibility of her eating anything like Vyvanse, Adderall or any other ADD/ADHD medication in my house. The vet kept her overnight and gave her treatments and I am following up with her vet to make sure there are no long term consequences.	6	Years	Shepherd Dog - Australian	Dog	10	Pound

The vet found issues with her lungs and an enlarged heart on chest xray. After 10 days of antibiotics the condition did not improve and we returned to the vet and were told heart meds, antibiotics, and steroids would be needed. These prescriptions were given for 10 more days and upon a third vet visit were told that the analysis indicated cardiomyopathy and was likely caused by grain free dog food. They thought he had pancreatitis. He started drinking water excessively and urinating uncontrollably. We brought him to an Emergency Animal care hospital called (b)(6). The admitted him immediately and within 48 hours his numbers crashed and he nearly died. He was in the hospital on a feeding tube and on 4 machines to keep his numbers stable. He went from 5.5lbs to 4lbs and extremely weak. We spent about $26,000 in vet and hospital bills and are now on on-going medications we administer 3 times a day and a new special diet. He was diagnosed with Fanconi disease from the Pet n Shape Chick 'n Twists we had been giving him which we learned have been known to cause issues due to the chicken jerky from China. EON-491863	6/7/2022 15:00	Purina Cat Chow Complete	Throws up immediately or within 10 minutes of eating the dry cat food "Purina Cat Chow Complete bag # 204410861808LO4. She has eaten this brand of cat food for almost 4 years with no problems what so ever. She gets very sick and is in a lot of distress. I have tried to repeat giving her this cat food several times thinking it might just be an isolated incident, however, she gets very sick every time. I discontinued the Purina Cat Chow Complete for a different brand of dry as well as wet cat food and she is just fine, no incidences what so ever. Last night I wanted to see if she could tolerate the Purina Cat Chow Complete so I gave her a very small half of a hand full. Within 10 minutes she was in distress and throwing up two different times. I got on the internet and discovered article after article about the Purina cat food products and to my shock, the amount of sick cats and unfortunately many deaths caused from this same brand!	6	Years	Domestic Mediumhair	Cat	12	Pound
EON-491861	6/7/2022 14:40	Greenies Hairball treats	A couple months ago we purchased greenies hairball cat treats and began giving them to our cat (b)(6) About a month after giving them to her she began to lose her appetite and become lethargic. It got so bad we had to take her to the vet. She was diagnosed with pancreatitis. I didn't know what caused it until the vet recommended we check their food. They are on prescription food and the only new treat she had was the greenies hairball. When I looked at the label it said 19% fat! This is extremely high and the cause of her pancreatitis. She wasn't given many treats a day either. I believe the company should be held accountable for making something so unhealthy for cats. I contacted them and they don't plan to do anything. Most people don't know about fat content for cats and they need to have a warning label at the least. Please do something so someone doesn't lose their animal. Her vet confirmed this was the cause of her pancreatitis. After $600 of vet bills and weeks of her taking steroids she starting to improve.	4	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	11	Pound

EON-491579	6/5/2022 10:44	Whole Hearted Culinary Cuts Jerky Treats - Chicken Recipe	My dog had a severe bout of gastrointestinal upset (diarrhea) after eating a large piece of Whole Hearted Culinary Cuts Chicken Jerky treats from Petco. The dog was having perfectly regular bowel movements prior to being given the treat. That day they had two regular bowel movements. Approximately 3.5 hours after the treat was ingested, the dog had severe diarrhea several times over the next 12 hours, even needing to go out in the middle of the night which they never do. In hindsight, I did some research and found the these treats have historically been linked to issues similar to the one my dog experienced so I will not be giving these to my dog anymore. EON-491568	6/5/2022 1:52	Diamond High Energy	We bought Diamond High energy for our great Pyrenees and German Shephard. They had been on the same food for several months and it was time to buy more. As soon as we gave the first 2 bowls our German Shephard started acting strange. She threw up the food and got very weak. Had diarrhea and just seemed disoriented, would no longer eat or drink. We kept giving fluids through a syringe and she got better within a few days. She wouldn't eat the diamond food anymore though so we bought her some puppy food and then she was back to normal. As soon as she got better our great Pyrenees started with the same symptoms. Vomiting, diarrhea that night and the next morning her breathing was very labored and she kept drooling and wouldn't get up. It wasn't long before she stopped breathing completely and passed away at 2 years old. She was up to date on her shots and had been completely healthy up until that point.	2	Years	Great Pyrenees	Dog

He was Lethargic and unable to focus for the entire day and night. He kept drinking water, lots of water. Then the next day he did not eat at all. So I left the food out all day and then that evening I tried giving him a piece of bread which he devoured. EON-491457	6/3/2022 1:12	Venture Limited Ingredient Diet for Dogs Rabbit Meal & Pumpkin Grain Free Formula	Upon starting this new bag of dog food (we have been using this brand since she was a puppy), (b)(6) started having diarrhea that progressively got worse over the course of a few days that got to the point of having blood in her stools. She became very low energy and almost to the point of being lethargic. I switched her food immediately upon seeing the blood in her stools as I felt it was the new bag of food. Within 24 hours she was becoming energetic again and her stools looked much better. After 48 hours she was almost her 100% self again. I had this problem once before with this brand of food about two years ago that was part of a recall I was unaware of at the time. I am not seeing a recall on this particular batch as of now, but I feel as if this needs to be looked into because it may be the same issue again. I will be switching brands and not going back now that this has happened twice weighing the last couple of years with her.	2	Years	Terrier - Boston	Dog	19	Pound

EON-491406	6/2/2022 15:16	ACANA Free Run Poultry Recipe	Animal was suffering shortness of breath and cough, much in line with kennel cough or a pneumonia. After a week of being treated for kennel cough the animal became weaker and was X-ray and received an ultrasound. The dog was diagnosed with Heart failure, pulmonary edema and dilated cardiomyopathy. The vet asked what food the dog was being fed, and I explained we have switched from Buffalo Blue Wilderness to Acana in October of 2021, and immediately he found studies indicating a link/ties. This breed is not susceptible to DCM. I find incredulous that a pet owner can walk into a Petco or PetSmart and unknowingly buy a food that may be "harmful" to your pet. I understand some food may be "better" than other but it appalls me that food with potential harmful impact are allowed to be sold and marketed in such stores. This is not akin to knowingly buying cigarettes. Studies have shown that a change in diet to a "Mainstream food" with grain has at times reversed the course. My dog has been on Purina for 2 days now and is taking 6 pills per day x 2 - 2 antibiotics and 2 supplements (Taurine and L-Carnitine), and hopefully is recovering.	82	Months	Pointing Dog - German Short-haired	Dog	55	Pound

EON-491328	6/1/2022 22:00	F224-AssrtdHmlynDgChws	A few months ago, I received a mold covered ordered of Yak chews from the company Chewy. The product is made by Jack N Pup. Believing it to be a one off, I reported it to Chewy and they send out a replacement that way mold-free. I reordered two packages of Jack N Pup, thinking everything was okay again. However, they are again covered in mold. The Lot number for both packages in the repeated issue is LOTA15CB and is also says EXP12023. The Chewy barcode is 057733007420. I'm reaching out because when I reached out to Chewy's support, they didn't acknowledge the problem and just sent a return label, which since this has happened to me multiple times, makes me worried that the reseller and/or manufacturer may actually know of this problem and not be voluntarily recalling unsafe lots or stopping sales of the sku until they can determine the issue.

EON-491324	6/1/2022 21:00	Purina Fancy Feast Gravy Wet Cat Food Variety Pack Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection - (24) 3 oz. Cans	I ordered fancy feast wet canned cat food and friskies wet canned cat food from Amazon. When the item was delivered, I was home and as soon as I brought the box in you could clearly see something was leaking. I opened the shipping box and there was wet cat food all over the friskies box and the inside of the box was very hot. I opened the friskies box and all the cans were also very, very hot and one of the cans actually exploded open and it leaked all over everything. I decided to open one of the cans and you can clearly see and smell the food was not good. I then proceeded to open the fancy feast box and that box was also very hot and all the food cans were very hot. Fortunately, when I opened one of the fancy feast cans, the were not spoiled, however, at the bottom of the box was dead dried up maggots! I tried to contact amazon since they sold and shipped this item, it was not through a 3rd party. When I called, they just said they will not it, but when I sent something in writing I was told it was a shipping/delivery problem and all they can do is give me a refund. This is not acceptable. What if I didn't check the cans and fed my cats this food. Amazon needs to ensure any wet animal food they sell and ship is not kept in a location or amazon truck where there is no temperature control. Especially when the weather is 100 degrees out. Amazon is not taking this serious and is not being responsive to the concerns. Hoping the FDA can do something about this. I have pictures and emails that can be provided.

EON-491145	5/30/2022 22:04	Special Kitty Complete Nutrition	Purchased a bag of Special Kitty Complete Nutrition from Walmart on (b)(6). Have purchased this brand before so I trusted it. Within a week of feeding the cats the food, they started acting weird. A week after starting the food, found one cat deceased. Next day, found two cats deceased. The next day, five cats were deceased. The day after that, four more cats were deceased. The day after that three cats were found deceased. This all started after feeding them this food, which I stopped feeding after the first week. These are inside/outside cats that were all healthy and became lethargic, then stopped eating and drinking, stopped urinating, could not hardly walk, had seizures and then passed away.	3	Years	Domestic (unspecified)	Cat	7	Pound

EON-491109	5/30/2022 9:04	Fruitables Skinny Minis Pumpkin & Berry Flavor	I recently purchased a 5oz bag of Fruitables Skinny Minis in Pumpkin and Berry Flavor (Lot: BB Feb/05/24 03622 02:29) for my 11 month old dog, (b)(6) (Bernese Mountain/Dalmatian mix). Unfortunately, this particular bag of treats has made her ill — throwing up on four occasions over the course of six days. I wanted to bring this to your attention as we are near certain her throwing up is a direct result of the Fuitable treats (parent company, Manna Pro). Allow me to provide you with a bit of background that made us draw the above conclusion. Last weekend I picked up two new bags of dog treats for (b)(6) — the above mentioned bag and a bag of another brand. She has had both types of treats perviously, but certainly has been provided Skinny Minis more often than the other brand. In fact she has had Skinny Minis in a variety of flavours. Unfortunately, soon after we added the new treats into rotation she became ill and threw up. Initially, we attributed her being sick to drinking lake water; however, after throwing up on two separate occasions over two days, we realized it must be something regarding her new bag of treats. As I mentioned, two different brands of treats were purchased at the same time, so at first we didn't know which was making her ill. We cut out both types of treats from her diet. However, on the morning of Saturday, May 28, 2022 I provided her only two Skinny Minis (she was being a good girl and we had just run out of her liver treats). Within ten minutes, (b)(6) threw up again. In total she has thrown up four to five times over six days. The only days she didn't get sick were the days that the treats were removed from her diet. As the other brand of treats were not provided to her Saturday morning, nor did they come in contact with the Skinny Minis provided to her, we are relatively confident that the issue is the Fuitable Skinny Minis. To be clear (b)(6) is otherwise fine. But considering the frequency of her getting sick, I thought it important to bring this matter to your attention.	11	Months	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	70	Pound

We opened a new can of Purina ProPlan focus sensitive skin and stomach adult wet dog food (and we've been feeding her this brand for a long time now). She started acting different, being aggressive to neighbors and hiding in her crate. The next morning, we fed her the morning feeding (second feeding with this can) and about 1 hour later, she started vomiting excessively and having diarrhea with mucus. She was so dehydrated and in so much pain, we took her to an emergency animal hospital. She was given fluids because she was so dehydrated. Her bloodwork showed hemoconcentration of her CBC values, her bilirubin, amylase and liver tests were elevated. After hours of hydration, they were able to get her PT/PTT/INR, all of which were elevated. She received a transfusion of FFP, given denamarin for liver protection, vitamin K in case she had gotten in poison, IV fluids, and antibiotics in case this was bacterial. The morning after (today now), her coagulation tests normalized, but her liver tests had increased. She is having to stay a second night at the clinic for IV hydration and denamarin. We looked around the house she was in and the yard and found no trace of mushrooms, gum, medications that might have been on the ground, rat poison, etc.	2	Years	Terrier - Boston	Dog	22	Pound

He would only eat his food if we mixed it with some gravy and the cough never stopped. The previous weekend we were camping and while we were walking/hiking he wasn't able to keep up with us anymore, and eventually he could not walk so we had to carry him to the car. We took him to the emergency room and he died there. The doctor said based on the symptoms we reported and the condition in which he was in that it was DCM. She asked if we were giving him grain free food. We were. Then I found all these articles about Acana and other grain free dog food brands which might be linked to this disease. I have never before heard about the DCM before. EON-490552	5/23/2022 16:48	I and love and you Baked and Saucy beef and sweet potato	Dog became extremely sick after eating the dog food. She was lethargic for days. She had diarrhea and frequent heaving. It did not occur to me that the food was the culprit as that is the only brand of dog food we have used until I realized she refused to eat the food after getting sick. The brand is the same as her usual food but not the type. This was the first she had eaten the "baked and saucy." After giving the dogs this food from this particular bag, they started vomiting, diarrhea, lethargic, and not wanting to eat. I didn't realize it was the food for about a week. To check to see if it was possibly the food, I bought them another bag, a 20lb bag this time. They were excited to eat it. The vomiting stopped, they got their energy back, and are no longer sick. I sent Diamond an email to inform them of the issue, but they have not responded.	9	Months	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	85	Pound

EON-490341	5/22/2022 0:16	Hill's Prescription Diet k/d Kidney Care Chicken and Vegetable Stew Dog Food	(b)(6) was brought to (b)(6) on 1/6/2022 because of arthritic signs noticed with his back and to have his anal glands expressed. (b)(6) suggested bloodwork, which was agreed to. After receiving (b)(6) bloodwork results a week later, the vet discussed his levels indicate kidney issues which we were fully aware of. Due to this, instead of recommending an NSAID for (b)(6) (b)(6) suggested he take a steroid for any spine discomfort and switch his food to Hill's Prescription Diet k/d Kidney Care with Dog Food as it was suggested that he be on a kidney friendly diet. Friday January 14, 2022 A prescription for the dog food at (b)(6) was filled onsite. (b)(6) devoured the food on 1/17/2022, and small amounts on 1/18/2022 and about 24-36 hours after the initial digestion, the dog totally stopped eating and would not go near anything that resembled this new prescription food. On 1/20 (b)(6) was taken back to the Vet and they were advised of his symptoms (lethargic, inability to eat, dehydrated, vomiting, diarrhea) and they provided fluids and anti nausea medication to continue to administer at home and was told to adhere to a bland diet. That evening he would still not touch soft food but he managed to eat some hard parcels of food after receiving the medication that day. On Friday he was not himself, and Saturday morning 1/22/2022 we rushed him back to (b)(6) as his balance was off, he appeared to be fainting, very lethargic and overall not well. (b)(6) initially was advising us that he could likely receive fluids and go home until it was demanded that he be given further attention as he appeared poisoned after eating this dog food and he was declining at a rapid rate. (b)(6) made the decision to keep him as an in patient for the day and later called on January 22, 2022 to advise us that (b)(6) needs to be transferred to (b)(6) speciality animal hospital for 24 hour care and it was going to be paid for by (b)(6) herself. (b)(6) arrived that evening at (b)(6) with hopeful intentions and within days he developed a heart murmur, heart failure, organ failure and more. He was a dog that had minor concerns, overly inquisitive parents and it appears that the care prescribed and potentially the DOG FOOD appeared to poison (b)(6) and cause for a rapid decline.	14	Years	Pinscher - Miniature	Dog	20	Pound

EON-490216	5/19/2022 19:24	PetAg PetLac Kitten Milk Replacement (powder form)	I foster newborn kittens for a non-profit rescue organization and have fostered almost 100 kittens over the past 5 years and recently had an unusually high number of kitten deaths all in a row. Between the end of March through mid April, 9 kittens from 3 separate litters, each litter kept separate from each other, all died after they were fed kitten formula from the same can of PetAg brand PetLac powder version of Kitten Milk Replacer. Only 2 remaining kittens survived after switching to a different can of kitten milk replacer after realizing the milk was the only thing the litters of kittens had in common. Although newborn orphaned kittens are known to have lower survival rate, 9 in a row out of 11 kittens total is very unusual especially for an experienced bottle feeder and it didn't seem coincidental that the last two kittens thrived after switching to a different product after their 3 siblings had just passed away and 6 other kittens before that. The kittens came to me as healthy 2-4 day old newborns and over the course of 2-3 days they would slowly decline, begin refusing to nurse well then eventually refusing food at all which required me to tube feed every 1.5-2 hours and subcutaneous fluids every 8 hours but to no avail. The kittens would continue to decline and show some slight neurological symptoms and extreme lethargy and inability to keep their temperature up despite being in an incubator at 90°F. Once a kitten is truly moribund and mouth breathing they are unable to continue being tube fed at which point they would receive Karo syrup on their gums every 3 minutes to try to stabilize and keep their blood sugar up until they are stable enough to digest food. The kittens never made it out of this stage as it is very difficult to bring a kitten back from being in that state without knowing/actively treating the underlying cause. The kittens all had blue swollen abdomens in this stage until death, which I've been told is bleeding and bruising due to sepsis. 2 of the 9 kittens who passed also got swollen paws, likely cellulitis secondary to sepsis. 1 of the 9 kittens had symptoms of pulmonary edema, blood tinged pink fluid coming from the mouth and nose shortly before dying. The kittens would one by one be in this moribund stage for up to 12 hours before dying despite constant 24/7 care receiving tube feeding and fluids until I switched formula. The 2 kittens from who survived from the 3rd litter bounced back immediately after changing formula and continue to do very well. I can submit a separate report for each of the 9 kittens who died if needed/asked but their stories are almost identical and likely redundant aside from date of death as they died on different days in that period of time.	3	Days	Unknown	Cat	160	Gram
			I have contacted the manufacturer who asked for the information on the can for their own private testing purposes and I gave them the information on the can but have not heard back as of yet. I am also wondering if this could have any possible connection to the recent human infant powder formula recalls going on as well as it could be possible for the companies to have ingredients in common from the same source/another manufacturer they may have in common although I would have no way to know where the companies source each of their ingredients or if they may have received ingredients from the same batch of a certain ingredient, etc.

EON-490123	5/18/2022 16:44	Hill's K/D prescription diet	My dog was put on the Hills K/D prescription dry food in 2021. Her kidney function did not seem to improve much, maybe worse. I am waiting for medical records to compare. In May 2022, I went to the vet to buy more of this food. I was offered a free bag that had been opened and returned from another pet owner, due to the recent passing of their dog. After a week, maybe less of eating the food from this bag, my dog would barely eat it anymore. She had weight loss, upset stomach, decreased energy, and eventually wouldn't even drink water. We took her to the vet, which resulted in finding that she had bleeding masses on her spleen and kidney. Spleen was removed. She seemed to be doing ok, and then died the next day after eating the food again. She had not eaten the food for at least 2 days prior to the day she passed away. I felt it was odd that another dog had died as well after eating the same food from the same bag. I understand this could be a coincidence, as these dogs did have kidney problems, per the reason they were on this diet, however, after researching myself, I found many articles with other pet owners losing their dogs after eating this food.	8	Years	Terrier - Bull - Staffordshire	Dog

When I took him back in the vet 3 days later, his kidneys were so damaged by infection, he had to be euthanized. I believe the vet did not understand what happened to him. We opened a new bag on 5/11 and mixed it in with what was left of the prior bag. (I store it in a plastic container.) After eating in the morning, he had diarrhea within 90 minutes, but didn't seem sick through the day. After having it for dinner, he had diarrhea all night (outside at least 12 times over the next 16 hours, visibly straining and cramping as the night went on, and he'd mostly purged what was in his system, but was still trying to go). The next day and a half, I fed only rice and pumpkin, and he had a normal stool mid-day 5/13. I gave him a little bit of kibble with pumpkin that night for dinner, and he had diarrhea again pretty soon after, which again continued through the night. I bought a new bag of different dog food, switched back to pumpkin and rice, and started introducing the new kibble with pumpkin at night on 5/14. He did have some diarrhea with the new food, but much less severe. (Not fully liquid, more normal color, less frequent, never seemed to be straining to go or cramping up after he'd gone.) EON-489910	5/16/2022 7:56	Pedigree Chopped Ground Dinner Chicken & Rice	I immediately noticed the wet food was very hard toward the bottom, however, I dismissed it believing perhaps somehow it did not get mixed well at the factory. While it had somewhat of an odor, it was not necessarily foul, just seemed a little "off" or a little like "this could just be the smell of this flavor", and so I mixed the food to break up the harder portion of it and fed it to my dog. I did not observe anything that could have caused the hard texture and assumed it was "just a weird flukey thing". Within 30 minutes she had a large explosive diarrhea episode extremely foul in odor. She began panting a little bit. Took her outside. She had another explosive foul smelling episode of diarrhea that is very watery in consistency. My other dog who did not consume wet pedigree is fine and has no symptoms. I gave him only some dry Beneful brand food. (b)(6) started panting a little bit once back inside but laid down and went to sleep the rest of the night. She awoke me at 6am today panting at the door which is not her usual behavior. He was whining so I walked him to the backyard to relieve himself. He had explosive diarrhea. Over the course of the day he vomited 6 times, had diarrhea 5 more times, was drooling excessively, could not urinate, was drinking water excessively, had no appetite, and was lethargic. I took him to his vet who administered a subdural fluid injection to rehydrate him. He had been 67 lbs one month earlier but after today was only 62.5 lbs. He is still very lethargic and has only slightly improved.	3	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	67	Pound

EON-489455	5/9/2022 23:40	Blue Wilderness High Protein Food for Dogs Rocky Mountain Recipe with Red Meat - Adult Healthy Weight	(b)(6) a 7 year old male neutered Shetland Sheepdog, presented to (b)(6) (b)(6) on (b)(6) for evaluation of respiratory distress/lethargy. (b)(6) reported that in November or December, (b)(6) began to get where he could only walk 1.5 miles on his walks, whereas he used to walk 3 miles with no difficulties. He also developed a cough around this time which was presumed to be allergies by his primary care veterinarian and Benadryl was suggested. He had bouts of diarrhea in November and January and has a history of vomiting roughly every 4 months. In January he began to eat feces, and he has always eaten cigarette butts. On 3/21/22, (b)(6) walked 3 blocks, lunged at another dog, then went limp with his back legs trembling and laid down. He also ate cigarette butts on this walk. He was taken to the veterinarian where hypoalbuminemia (1.4g/dL) and mild anemia (HCT of 32.8%) were noted. The hypoalbuminemia had been noted before on bloodwork. A dog chewable multivitamin was started with instructions to recheck in two weeks. The next day, (b)(6) began to cough more. On 3/24 the cough was more progressive, and (b)(6) was taken back to the vet. Chest radiographs were performed and the primary veterinarian was concerned about pulmonary edema and heart disease and recommended an echocardiogram (b)(6) was hospitalized overnight for medication and cage rest. He was discharged the next day and sent home with benazepril (0.5 mg/kg SID), atenolol (0.9 mg/kg BID), and furosemide (1.4 mg/kg BID). The (b)(6) declined echocardiogram at this time and (b)(6) was instructed to return in 4-5 days for recheck. (b)(6) reported that (b)(6) clinical status waxed and waned during the time before the recheck with the primary vet on (b)(6). At this visit, no murmur was auscultated but quality of life issues were raised by the vet (b)(6) was advised to try to decrease furosemide to 1.4 mg/kg in the morning and 0.7 mg/kg in the evening, and if coughing returned to go back up to 1.4 mg/kg BID. On 3/31 Vito collapsed and was taken to the (b)(6). He was placed in oxygen and was hypotensive throughout the night. He was given a dobutamine CRI, furosemide (2 mg/kg q8h), and pimobendan (3.9 mg/kg BID). He was up to date on vaccines but rarely received flea and tick prevention per (b)(6). She also reported that he missed his Proheart injection by 3 months last year while transitioning veterinarians, but that a negative heartworm test was performed on February 14th. He traveled frequently to New Orleans and lived with a Schnauzer in the home. On triage exam, (b)(6) heart appeared dilated and weakly contractile on TFAST scan. After obtaining a diet history from the owner, we were strongly suspicious of dilated cardiomyopathy (DCM) probably secondary to (b)(6) grain free diet. (b)(6) was informed that there was an approximately 35-45% chance of survival for DCM once it progresses to the point at which (b)(6) presented. She elected to leave (b)(6) for hospitalization and cardiac workup. We performed a baseline cortisol level on (b)(6) to look for Addison's disease, which would be consistent with his history of collapse and chronic GI issues, but the level came back normal. An echocardiogram was performed along with a 6 lead ECG. Those tests, along with the thoracic radiographs from AERC, were sent to IDEXX for a cardiology consult. The cardiologist diagnosed dilated cardiomyopathy and believed it was probably secondary to (b)(6) grain free diet, as Shelties are not a breed known to have a predisposition to DCM. (b)(6) was hospitalized in the oxygen kennel for continued care and monitoring. Per the cardiologist's recommendations, (b)(6) was continued on furosemide (IV Q6h) and pimobendan (PO Q12h). We also gave butorphanol for sedation/pain relief and (b)(6) blood pressures were measured via Doppler every 6 hours. The morning of (b)(6), (b)(6) appeared clinically stable, wanted to eat, was bright and alert and able to breathe relatively comfortably outside of oxygen. By the evening of (b)(6) (b)(6) appeared more glazed over and did not want to eat but was still able to walk. He continued to decline overnight and early the morning of (b)(6) he respiratory arrested. Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was not performed due to the (b)(6)' wishes. Cardiac arrest and death was confirmed, and the (b)(6) were informed of (b)(6) passing.
			(b)(6) dilated cardiomyopathy is probably secondary to his grain free diet. The consensus among cardiologists is that grain free diets interfere with taurine absorption, an essential amino acid for myocardial health. There are multiple reports of dilated cardiomyopathy in dogs on grain free diets. A Chagas disease (trypanosomiasis) IFA was pending at the time of (b)(6) passing, as there is one report of this disease causing congestive heart failure in a dog in the Jackson area, but the results of this test were negative and inconclusive with Chagas disease.

He was at daycare and they noticed he was foaming at the mouth a little which could have been from his breakfast and then immediately after eating his gums, tongue and lips became swollen with uncontrollable drooling to the point of his fur being soaked in the front (similar to taking a bath).  The vet treated him for what we thought was an allergic reaction. He was given a shot for nausea and a shot of antihistamine. We went home, and I continued to monitor him. He would not allow anyone near his mouth and continued drooling and foaming at the mouth. He ate chicken and rice which I prepared fresh that night and drank a lot of water. By 5am the next morning he had thick mucus coming out of his mouth and brown/black pieces of skin. We went back to the hospital where he was sedated then admitted to be treated for chemical burns in the mouth.  He was hospitalized from Friday April 29th through Monday May 2nd. He had to be given food via IV and had a difficult time chewing for over 7 days. He was on meds for an additional 5 days and went through an extremely painful and traumatic experience.  In April I received a 40lb bag of food that smelled like strong plastic/chemical smell. I noticed after pouring the food that he wouldn't eat so I smelled. I threw this food out and didn't get the lot number. I however did order another 5lb bag that smelled normal and fed him this food. I am 95% certain that it was the new food I gave him, but there's a chance that he was given some of the food that smelled bad. We were educated that it was so small so we had no worries. (b)(6) had absolutely none of the symptoms that was life threatening, absolutely no symptoms to have health issues in the near future. From there we proceeded to live normal lives, the next month we picked up the case of pedigree canned food and fed him and (b)(6) like normal. The next day 2 out of 3 dogs started not feeling to well. This slowly continued untill it did become alarming and led to vet visits. We have 3 dogs here, 1 does not eat this food and that one is not sick at all. Well about a week later as we were only focusing on tummy issues (b)(6) went to the vet and was prescribed medications for his tummy upset like he had stomach flu, then the middle that night he woke sicker, we rushed him to the vet and he died. At the time the vet told us that due to him becoming constipated it was to much strain and he tore a heart string. Official cause of death. If him and the other dog did not become so sick to there stomachs this was avoidable. The other dog is normally a garbage disposal but was also sick and extremely bloated. Gassy. Obviously his stomachache at same exact time. Something in this case of pedigree has made our pets so sick it has led to death. The other dog is in his deathbed as I email you. (b)(6) died of heart string tore but what we did was focus on his tummy trouble caused by his food like food poisoning. She does not have the bag/serial number as they dump their dog food in a large plastic tub. They previously were feeding lams but could not find any of that. Dog was fed this food on Sunday-Tues. On Tues afternoon, dog acted drunk, lethargic and could not get up and walk. Owner also has 2 Mastiffs who were eating the food. They seemed a little lethargic to her, but did not progress to the extent of this dog. She brought dog in on Wed 4/27 AM and she was ataxic and weak. Blood work was ran and the dog was anemic HCT 27%, leukocytosis and elevated BUN and Crea. She was tachycardic upon exam. Rectal temp was 102.3 F. CRT was about 3 seconds. IV fluids were started at 1 1/2 times maintenance rate. She did well and was clinically normal within 24 hours. Renal values and leukocytosis resolved, but anemia persists. The owner's parents also purchased the same Pedigree Adult Bonus size dog food but from Tractor Supply in (b)(6), that same time. EON-488670	4/28/2022 9:56	Pet Pride Sweet Potato Wrapped with Chicken Treats for Dogs	Purchased Pet Pride Sweet Potato wrapped with chicken (which is advertised on Kroger website as being made in USA and on bag says Made in Thailand) Initially gave only to (b)(6) because our other dog is smaller and I didn't think he could manage to chew them. She received 1-2 a day for maybe 3-4 days with no effect. Then in night began severe diarrhea. Symptoms lasted for almost 10 days - gradually waning until today when she had her first normal bowel movement. Didn't eat much during this time Initially I attributed it to age or some other potential irritant unknown. Did not take to vet as her overall demeanor remained fairly good during the time and she continued to drink water. The reason I think it is the pet treats is because our little dog (b)(6) ended up getting one that I dropped and was able to handle it well so I ended up giving 1 a day to him as a treat and after the 3rd one he too became violently ill.	14	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	45	Pound

EON-488415	4/26/2022 14:32	Pedigree Steak & Vegetable Adult Complete Nutrition	On April 18th I purchased a bag of Pedigree dog food for my three dogs. All were in good health before this week. I began giving them this brand on the date purchased. Through out the next few days (b)(6) was fine, he showed no signs of illness. On the fifth day (b)(6) I came home to find (b)(6) laying on the ground breathing but unresponsive. He was surrounded by multiple piles of dog food that he had vomited. Within 10 minutes of me finding him, he passed. During that same night my other dog had vomited in her crate once. On the afternoon of (b)(6), my boyfriend came home to find our other dog had passed sometime during the day. Just as (b)(6) she seemed to be fine and hadn't shown signs of sickness other than vomiting once a couple of nights before. (b)(6) had last seen the vet on March 1st, for neuter. He was in good health and fully vetted and up to date on shots. He was perfectly health following the month after until he suddenly passed after switching to Pedigree Dog food. I have contacted my vet and spoken with them, they believe that the food was the probably death of both my dogs. She researched Pedigree and although there are not current recalls on this brand there have been multiple reports of healthy dogs suddenly becoming very ill and even passing suddenly. Considering that the food was the only common factor between the two and all signs seem to be the same, we are almost certain that this was the cause of our family losing two our two fur babies. They were kept separated, since (b)(6) had just been neutered and had to be kept away from (b)(6) for 60-90 days. Within 5 days of switching my dogs, two perfectly health 1 and 1 1/2 year old dogs suddenly passed, with vomiting from the dog food. I will be contacting the manufacturer as well to file a complaint. Losing one dog suddenly is heartbreaking but to lose two is horrible. My family is heart broken!	2	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	37	Pound

EON-488402	4/26/2022 13:00	Unkibble Cod & Salmon	There are two problems: 1. On 4/25 I gave my puppy his nightly manufacture recommended portion of food. A few hours later he became violently ill. Symptoms, included vomiting, diarrhea, muscle spasms/heaving, inability to keep water down, extreme lethargy, vomiting and defecating bile, foaming at the mouth, heavy drooling. There's no evidence that he ate anything else and these symptoms were unlike more common cases where the dog may eat something they later jack up. His vomit only contained his dog food and water. Symptoms persisted for about 8 hours. Of the 2 flavors of food (b)(6) and (b)(6) sold me, the cod, which contains pieces of freeze dried fish, smells off. 2. Since using this product for approximately the last month, first tapering onto it and for the last week, exclusively using it, my puppy has been loosing weight, particularly since being exclusively on it. At first, this appeared to be him naturally loosing some of his early puppy chubbiness but it's clear now that he's not getting adequate calories following their recommended guidelines. The 1 month portion sold to me that is supposed to be based on a custom created dog and breed specific meal plan, does not include enough food, even when following their tiny portion sizes. The amount sold to me will not last half the length of time it's supposed to even if I follow their guidelines. My Vet has expressed to me that their 2 servings a day guidelines are inadequate. It's my concern that their recommend portions are intentionally too small. A growing very active puppy cannot survive for a month on a few pounds of very low density kibble. This company does a lot of heavy marketing with a lot of sponsored online reviews, but when you do some digging you'll find actual customers that have similar complaints as I do, with inadequate amounts of food, too small portions, and dogs getting sick. They also have very poor pricing transparency which should have been a red flag. I have since asked them to cancel all future orders and I will be switching to a traditional store-bought brand.	2	Months	Cattle Dog - Australian (blue heeler, red heeler, Queensland cattledog)	Dog	11	Pound

EON-488357	4/25/2022 20:48	Rachael Ray Nutrish Savory Bites Yummy Chicken & Veggies Dry Cat Food Recipe	Description: I was filling my cat's food bowl today, April 25th, 2022 at about 7:00pm EST. I walked away and put the bag back, came back to check on my cat eating, and noticed a flat object at the top of the food bowl. I immediately picked it up, flashed my phone camera at it to see what it was, and noticed black fibers sticking out of it. It's coated in the cat food blend, but clearly has something nonedible in it. It is nowhere near the shape of the cat food. It is roughly the same size as a US Quarter. My first assumption was that it was probably dropped in during manufacturing; possibly a piece of the conveyor belt or something (but that's not my job to conclude). My first reaction was to take photos and send them to friends to ask what I should do, and here I am making a report because I am fearful someone else may not pay attention to their pet eating and they could choke on such a large object, nor would they digest it. I would like to note that I am probably about 3/4 the way through the bag, so there is 1/4 of it left. I did not notice any other objects prior to this, I have only seen a few strange-shaped, small pieces of cat food that I tossed assuming my cat shouldn't or wouldn't bite something that hard or brittle. I have always seen that in other dry pet foods, though, and deemed those ordinary. I will likely not use the rest of this bag, but I am keeping it in case any further information is required outside of the rest of this report. Also, when I received this bag after purchasing it online, there were no punctures and no damage to the pet food bag itself. This was ordered from Amazon, and I have high doubts about getting any sort of response to this issue through the company, so I have not contacted them yet. I would rather file an official complaint immediately. To conclude: my pet did NOT consume the foreign object. My pet has not exhibited any symptoms so I assume he has not ingested any other potential foreign objects in this pet food.

EON-487674	4/18/2022 12:44	Pure balance- Lamb and Fava bean recipe	On Sunday (b)(6) I bought a bag of pure balance dog food from freehold Walmart. On Tuesday morning I woke up to my ten year old dog having seizures. My four year old dog seemed normal. We rushed my older dog to the hospital and due to his old age we put him down. When I returned home my younger dog just seemed sad (she seemed fine in earlier hours) I didn't leave her side all day long because she's never been without my other dog. Throughout the day we noticed her starting to act more weird and no longer thought she was just sad. At 7:00 pm same day my younger dog started having seizures. We rushed her to garden state animal hospital and she stayed there for three days. After seeing no neurological advances in her condition and still no answers we also had to put her down. We searched everywhere for signs of something they could have gotten into but found nothing. We also have two other dogs on the property and the only difference is their diet. I bought this bag of dog food two days before my dogs started showing odd behavior.	4	Years	Boxer (German Boxer)	Dog	55	Pound

EON-487535	4/15/2022 21:44	Royal Canin Ultamino	(b)(6) had been eating Royal Canin's Ultamino for dogs for almost as long as we had her, from about the age of 2-3yrs up until she stopped eating just before her passing. She had a chicken allergy and we suspected a grain allergy as well, though she tolerated eating Greenies and Zukes treats; she never tolerated cooked chicken and rice. Because Ultamino is technically a grain-free product, it is in hindsight that we are curious about a link between her cardiac condition and being on this food for so long. 11/11/2019 - (b)(6) had collapsing/tremoring episode and was evaluated by primary vet. A heart murmur was heard on auscultation and she was referred to a cardiologist. Labs were also done with appointment showing leukopenia and an elevated proBNP (1,561), BUN 15, Cr 0.9. 11/20/2019 - Cardiologist evaluation with EKG and echo. Diagnosed with a grade III/IV late systolic murmur lattice of left cardiac apex. Heart rate sinus rhythm at 114, pulmonary sounds clear. Echo showed "murmur was secondary to a mild-moderate jet of mitral valve insufficiency. This is occurring secondary to mild degenerative change affecting the distal portion of both mitral valve and leaflets. There is very mild prolapse of the distal segment of the anterior mitral valve leaflet. This has led to mild left ventricular volume expansion and a very mild left atrial enlargement. Contractile function is well-preserved. The tricuspid valve remains competent and no right-side enlargement is seen. Outflow patterns are normal. Mitral inflow patterns normal. No masses or effusions are seen. Diagnosis: Degenerative/mixed mitral valve disease with small torn chordae tendonea segment and mild left ventricular volume expansion and mild left atrial enlargement." Started on 2.5mg pimobendan BID, follow-up in 5-6 months. 6/18/2020 - No new issues. Planned cardiologist follow-up and echo. Diagnosis: "Myxomatous degenerative valve disease - ACVIM stage B2. Very similar condition to initial evaluation; continue pimobendan at same dose, recheck in 9-12 months. 3/25/2021 - Cardiologist follow-up and repeat echo. "...ACVIM stage B2 (based on pre-treatment echo on 6/18/20...while this stage was previously appropriate for (b)(6), her condition would technically be staged as B1 at this time, given normalization of left atrial size. Current echo abnormalities include the following: moderate mitral valve regurgitation, normal left atrial size, mildly increased left ventricular chamber size, no tricuspid regurgitation or right-sided cardiac chamber enlargement." Continue pimobendan at same dose, follow-up again in 9-12 months. 12/29/2021 - (b)(6) was taken to primary vet "for increased coughing and recent syncopal episode. The episode was described as occurring after going up stairs, then collapsing and recovering quickly. An EKG on this date was normal. Bloodwork was normal aside from an elevated NT-proBNP of 3,129. Chest x-rays revealed mild to moderate cardiomegaly with left atrial enlargement. A mild diffuse bronchointerstitial pattern was seen, possibly indicating early CHF or bronchitis. A trial with [25mg] furosemide BID was started. Hydrocodone was also initiated to use as needed. 1/6/2022 - Bloodwork repeated and revealed BUN 40, Cr 1.6. Furosemide was decreased to 12.5mg BID at that time and diet was changed Royal Canin Renal Formula with Hydrolyzed Protein." After the furosemide was decreased, (b)(6) did well for about a week before having three syncopal episodes over a series of days, all of which occurred after some form of activity. 1/19/2022 - Cardiologist re-evaluation, physical exam notable for "HR 184, sinus rhythm, grade IV/VI left apical systolic murmur, RR 24, normal respiratory sounds and effort." moder left atrial enlargement. Mild generalized interstitial pulmonary pattern. Normal pulmonary vascular size with mildly decreased vascular detail. Overall, findings are suspicious for pulmonary edema..." Labwork: BUN 37, Cr 1.47. Echo showing "left atrial size appears and measures moderately to severely increased. Mitral valve appears moderately and diffusely thickened. A portion of the anterior leaflet is oriented toward and located within the left atrium, indicating previous rupture of one or more chordae tendinae. There is moderate to severe mitral regurgitation, with an eccentric jet directed toward the dorsal and left atrial free walls. Left ventricle: intraventricular septal and left ventricular free wall thicknesses are normal. Left ventricular chamber size appears and measures severely increased. Tricuspid valve appears mildly thickened. Normal right atrial and right ventricular size. There is very mild tricuspid regurgitation. Diagnosis: myxomatous valve disease - ACVIM stage C. This stage includes previous or current congestive heart failure that is treatable with standard heart failure therapy. Possible mild residual pulmonary edema based on today's x-rays." Furosemide increased to 20mg BID, pimobendan increased to 3.75mg BID; started on 5mg enalapril BID and 12.5mg sprionolactone BID. Instructed to call cardiologist with update in one week, formal follow-up in 3 months.

2/3/2022 - Follow-up labwork completed. (b)(6) had been doing well, no syncopal episodes, mild coughing throughout day. BUN 60, Cr 2.08. Long discussion with cardiologist regarding whether or not to decrease doses of medications to alleviate strain on the kidneys. After much back and forth, decided to continue on the same doses with follow-up labs again in 1-2 weeks.

2/16/2022 - We reached out to primary vet after (b)(6) had shown decreased appetite on Royal Canin Multifunction Renal + Hydrolyzed Protein, then finally no appetite. Increased reluctance to take treats, even some of her favorites like apple slices and greenies; she had previously been a very food-driven dog, so this was a dramatic departure from her status quo. Multiple different canned food and toppers introduced to try and stimulate appetite with only some success. Increased water consumption and we began noticing that she seemed like she was having more trouble walking on our hardwood floors slipping when just the

We also noticed her hind legs trembling intermittently when she would eat. Differential diagnosis advancing kidney disease vs. taste alterations from enalapril and spironolactone. 2/17/2022 - Appointment for labwork and exam with primary vet. BUN 88, Cr 2.9, SDMA 30 (previous SDMA values: 22 in 1/2022, 12 in 12/2021). Instructed to stop enalapril, decrease spironolactone and furosemide, added appetite stimulant. 2/24/2022 - Follow-up with primary vet; (b)(6) had been increasingly eating less, decreased interest in any foods, wobbly on her feet. Bloodwork re-checked: BUN 105, Cr 3.7, DMA 38. Instructed to stop spironolactone, decrease furosemide; primary vet to consult with cardiologist re: plan. 3/2/2022 - (b)(6) had stopped eating completely, some interest with appetite stimulant up until the day prior; a few episodes of vomiting, increasingly clumsy on feet, even when outdoors. Bloodwork completed. Presumed that her kidneys were failing; discussion held re: euthanasia vs an ICU stay to see if gentle rehydration could be attempted. Admitted to ICU later that day for gentle overnight hydration. Received antibiotic in case of kidney infection, received trazodone to ease anxiety. Urgent labwork completed showing BUN 127, Cr 9. Abdominal ultrasound completed 3/4/2022 that did not show any concerns. Labwork had not changed the following day and we discharged her from the hospital so she could be home. Her condition gradually worsened until she could no longer get up on her own. She was fed and given medications via syringe. Discomfort increased gradually until she was vocalizing and jumping up suddenly to readjust or just stand, trembling. Decision made to proceed with euthanasia on (b)(6). Seizure in the afternoon prior to arrival of vet. While much of (b)(6) decline was a result of the cardiac medications taking a toll on her kidneys, and perhaps an underlying kidney issue that hadn't been diagnosed, the potential that her need for cardiac medication was precipitated by eating a predominantly grain-free diet. The first ingredient in Ultamino is corn starch. CORN STARCH. We never thought to have her taurine level checked, and it has only been after her passing that we have done research into all of this, and so are submitting this report with hopes that it can aid others and prevent this from happening to another family.

I recently purchased 24 cans of his wet food, Hill's Prescription C/D Chicken and Vegetable Stew flavor, from our vet. About a day after feeding him the new batch of food I noticed his stool had softened. I didn't initially associate his soft stool with the food because at the time he was weaning off the medication Atropine. I thought it was perhaps a withdrawal symptom that would improve over the next few days. It did not, nothing else had been changed with his medications or food except this new batch of wet food that we purchased. He had been on this diet for nearly a year, and I know Hill's announced they are changing their labels but said nothing about changing the food, so again I assumed it wasn't the food. I discontinued the food for a few days and seen that his stool returned to normal. I then gave him the wet food again yesterday (4/10/2022) and this morning he is back to diarrhea. I will be returning the remaining 21 cans to the vet. I don't know if this is a bad batch (#T2540848A 057 3386, Best Before 03 2024) but it still has the old/original label on it, not the new kind Hill's has been promoting. I attempted to take the food out of the van into a container so I could examen what was wrong, but the stench was so foul I could not stop gagging and just threw it away. I can't believe this was on the shelf of a store for anyone to buy. Thankfully my cat didn't go anywhere near this food.

EON-486833	4/6/2022 21:40	Horizon Legacy All Life Stages Grain-Free Salmon Dry Dog Food 8.8-lb bag	I regularly order Horizon Legacy All Life Stages Grain-Free Salmon Dry Dog Food, 8.8-lb bag from the online retailer, Chewy.com. However, since the last order, they shipped the already expired dated old food. Since the expiration has 1 month by the actual date expired, I did not claim. Then, now 04/2022, I received again the expired date old product (Lot # B10341, Expiration date is 03/2022). I contacted this company, Chewy.com and they requested to return the food and they send the replacement (the CS promised to send the Fresh item at least exp/2023). However, I received the replacement today, 4/06/2022 the same Lot NO. &amp; Expiration Date, 03/2022. I contacted Chewy.com again and what they told was IT IS THE PRINTING MISTAKE for the expiration date. HOW COME???? This is really excuse. What the important issue is YOU SENT THE OLD PRODUCT TO MY DOG. Generally, if it tells Exp/03/2022, the food was produced about 1-2 years ago. This item is Fish/salmon product. you know the bacteria grow. Also, they used to have Vacuum bag (The fresh one) but I received the old looks like the returned by somebody item. Anyway, I buy this same product since I had my EX-dog who died in 2019 as 17 years old, and know well about this products. So, When I got a new dog in 2020, I give the same one. I'm very familiar with this food, maybe more than the Chewy.com's CS. I contacted the brand manufacturer already but what the agent told me was They don't know why Chewy.com shipped such old product and tells go to AMAZON. I can't believe this answer from the manufacturer also. Anyway, this claim is about Chewy.com. who know they shipped the old products 3 times but they did not fix correctly, they shipped the same old products twice. They excuse this is from the misprint by the manufacturer. Then, what the consumer like me can do? I just give the OLD PRODUCTS to my dog? This is not a cheap dog food. It is $33.99 plus Tax for just 8.8 LB. Chewy.com should do something to solve this issue. YOU can not send the OLD PRODUCTS to consumer.

The vet gave her a IV and a anti nauseous pill. We didn't know the treats were moldy because you couldn't really see the treats in the bag. I looked at reviews on amazon and chewy and there were hundreds of complaints of the same white mold. We called the company and they did not seem concerned and seemed to not care. It's much wetter (soupy) and, when mixed up, instead of being smooth (like all pate cat food) it's chunky. Also, the color is darker and more brown than all previous orders. We contacted the manufacturer regarding this issue and their response was that this is a natural product and that "These slight variations are perfectly safe and natural." My observation is that the "variation" isn't remotely "slight." And, given that we've never seen any significant variation in appearance and consistency in the several years we've been using this product, we're not remotely convinced this is within the "normal/natural slight variation" range. Quote from Nulo's email response:          "There are several factors that can affect the aroma, texture, and color during production. For instance, the moisture, density, and cooking conditions can vary slightly based on the natural ingredients we use. As part of a robust quality assurance program, all of our products are evaluated for physical attributes prior to distribution, including the color, aroma, and texture. These slight variations are perfectly safe and natural and should not affect how well your cat does on our food!"

EON-486316	3/30/2022 14:08	Unrefined Smoked Turkey with Ancient Grains & Superfoods.	I purchased a bag of dog food from Midwestern Dog Food Company. The name of it is "Unrefined Roasted Turkey with Ancient Grains." My dog has been on this food for many months. When I got to the bottom of the bag, there was a 3" x 3" hard substance mixed in with the food. It is a hard resin looking thing. I immediately went to the store to purchase another bag of food and stopped giving her any more from this bag. I also immediately contacted the company on a Friday. I went to the contact page and filled out my info and did not hear anything back. I emailed. I did not hear anything back. I left messages and did not hear anything back. I private messaged them on facebook and did not hear anything back. The person who is in charge of consumer complaints is on medical leave. She did call back finally but I could not get the call at the time. 10 minutes later I called her back and pleaded for her to call me back. She did not. She is working from home while she is on medical leave. She finally emailed me and said she did not get any of the messages stating what was wrong! And did not address anything further. I emailed her screaming for her to call me. She emailed me today and asked for the date on the bag. Well the date is on the very top of the bag where you rip it off to open the bag, so the date is long gone. I again begged for her to call me and I have not heard back a thing. No one messaged me back from facebook and no one else contacted me through messages I left on the phone. Finally today I had enough and called human resources of the company. The woman was very nice but was not trained as to what to do so she assured me she would call (b)(6) the woman who is home on medical leave and tell her to call me. That was early this morning and it is almost 2:00 pm and I am sick of this. This is the WORST customer service of any company I have ever encountered. You would think that if anyone found ANYTHING in their dog food, that they would call or contact the consumer back immediately. It is going on 7 days and I have not heard back. I fully believe this company needs to be reported and reprimanded on the way they are not handling this situation at all. I do not know what this substance is. I have photo's of it and I still have it in the bag. If it is a food source of some kind, well then fine, but at least we need to know! But I have never heard of a 3" piece of hard substance in food before. This company is horrible!! Thank you.

She only ever has coughed bup a Hairball when we were out of or could not find the product in stock at Petco / or Unleashed by Petco. The next day with the Greenies she would cough up a hairball. She Stan too really love this treat. I'd never had a cat that likes it loved treats. About 45 days ago I found really without looking for it a small bump on her chin. I tried looking this up online but could not find much execute for feline acne but she don't show any signed if that . Just this bump. I thought maybe a tic m. I'd never seen one so I purchased anything I needed to remove we it if it were the day after that which was about 3 days after the first notice if it it had grown but not like a tic would and daily it grew and grew. It is now the size of a large. Marble. I lump extruding from here chin almost at the tip . But to see it I need to make her look up ir move her head up. I have not touched it. At a week or more I took her to the vet who explained she'd tested to out rule scabies and acne and told me this was a tumor and to remove it would cost alot if money. I took her home to start to raise the money through go fund me but a week about 3 weeks into that growth she developed another it too had grown to this size on her back close to her spine but not so far that she can't reach it to scratch or lick it so it's hard to keep either of these wounds medicated. It was suggested I try Vitericyn Plus, Antimicrobial Hydrogel twice daily to keep it then was instructed by a Vetranarian to clean it with,an feline DouxoS3 PYO, Antiseptic Antifungal, Ophytrium Chlorhexidine pads, then gently apply Neosporin 2 times daily. These two processes the first four a week and the second for 2 weeks lead me to a also recommend product to keep her from licking the wound which is what she'd been doing with the ointment and scratching the scab off the chin daily. During the first month she developed 4 tumors a very small one in the back of her neck which did not as if yet grow. It's 2 weeks old. But at that same time I doing that one she'd been awkwardly licking her lips almost as if she'd eaten peanut butter I looked to see and there's a small marble size tumor on the inside of her right side of her lip. Not on her gums and teeth but lip.lve then but only a few times tried to put a thin coat of a Pierces All Purpose NU-STOCK that creates a hard type she'll over the wounded area and small like menthol and will keep the animal from licking. She's not eating she's lost at least 3 lbs. I was told by friend who's pets had cancerous tumors she'd likely die	5	Years	Mixed (Cat)	Cat	10	Pound

In the 6th week after I have not f I thought long about how this 5yr old healthy cat could have developed these huge tumors that are quickly killing THAT prompted my thought about the Greenies I'd repeatedly purchased without hesitation for 4 please years feeding them to her without worry as they are sold by a large healthy petty food supply store Petco, Unleashed by Petco and I've trusted the employer inocent to this issue I am sure. But the company. I started by googling GREENIES and Tumors I found a story about a dog 2005 . Agreed it , then kept looking for more , Greenies Is at the TOP of a DO NOT GIVE YOUR CAT THESE TREATS list in an article by a blogger I believe I can look for that and add any detail about anything later. (b)(6) is sleeping in the tub she use to hop in too tell me to wanted to play fetch. This cat is it was the most active cat I've ever (b)(6) owned it even heard of she talked , followed me anywhere and everywhere, she and I trained each other for specific things. Indoor outdoor (b)(6) had waited to tell me she wanted out, them in. Several ways she wanted the Greenies depending on which room or I need a wagon which shed ride in , a certain chair on the patio, a soft side box in the bedroom. Her cry was beautiful. All of that is gone she can not meow Yesterday I tried googling "Lawsuits Greenies Tumors" so so many stories. It was a page that was Titled "Poisoned Pets" that led me here. EON-485795	3/22/2022 20:44	Kitzy Cat Food	I ordered my very first bag of Amazon kitty cat food on April 27 , 2021. I was getting ready to move in a month and did not open this bag of cat food until after we had moved into our apartment on Mat 29, 2021. Probably was between 1 to 2 weeks before I opened the bag of Kitzy cat food by Amazon. My cat suddenly started urinating outside of his litter box. This went on for about a week. We had just moved so I had assumed the move had stress (b)(6) out. I am new to owning a cat. We moved into her new place on May 29th, 2021. I already had the bag of cat food but had not opened it until we had been living at her new home for a couple weeks. The only thing I noticed was (b)(6) started urinating outside of his litter box daily. His you're nating outside his litter box went on for a good week. I only noticed the blood after he had urinated on my daughter's mattress cover. That was when I saw Blood mixed in his urine. He was squatting and giving a little push every 5 to 10 minutes at this point. I thought it was because we had moved. I thought it was stress. . He probably had been on Amazon's Kitzy cat food for maybe a good week . I had been around a week after starting the food Dazai started urinating outside of his litter box and to when I Saw The blood on my daughters mattress protector. So he probably was bleeding for a good week without me knowing it. I took my (b)(6) to a doctor the next morning. That was on June 23,2021. The 2nd time I bought Amazon's brand of cat food. About a week after I started feeding Amazon's food he started using the litter box every few minutes. (b)(6) would do a squat. I checked and did see blood in his urine when he urinated on a blanket. I had to take him to his doctor again. (b)(6) doctor clearly stated there are no urinary stones or anything. * I will be getting (b)(6) medical records so that I can provide the exact details of his visits. After each of these doctors appointments the doctor had me put him on a expensive prescription food so he had stopped taking his normal food and eight only a prescription pro plan food. 			So in February I received a new Amazon cat food bag on the 11th. I started feeding it to (b)(6) on the 12 \ 13th of February. One February 23, 2022 I started to notice the exact same symptoms. (b)(6) was going to his litter box every 30+ minutes. I immediately checked and saw that his urine did have blood in it. This is when I made the connection to the Amazon cat food. I use a clumping litter. After my cat would squat with a little push only a clump barely the size of a pea was made. (b)(6) would urinate normal amounts as well. The quick squat and the cat litter clump that was the size of a pea was in between his normal urinations. Since it was still early on I pulled him off Amazon's Kitzy Cat Food and purchased a bag of purina one food. Within a week his symptoms disappeared. I saved the cost of another very expensive that bill.

EON-485750	3/22/2022 13:04	Nature's Promise Free From Real Country	Our dog (b)(6) had been fed Nature's Promise free from real Chicken dog food for many years. As of the past few months we were noticing she would vomit up her food some times and was having bad gas in the house. She also did not seem to want to readily eat the food first thing in the morning like she used to. We decided to throw away that food and get a new bag. After a few days the same symptoms occurred and we got worried so we took her to the vet on (b)(6) for tests and they did a stool sample and blood work. We also then changed her from that Nature's Promise food to Nutro senior formula which we did on (b)(6). After we switched her away from the Nature's Promise food to the Nutro we noticed she wanted to eat it right away. After starting on Nutro on the (b)(6) she stopped throwing up her food and also the bad gas stopped happening and she seem like she had more energy and always wanted to eat her food again first thing in the morning. The vet came back with all of the tests and gave her a clean bill of health. Switching her away from the Nature's Promise food atleast helped with all of her symptoms she was having. We did see this food was recalled 3 years ago for high vitamin D levels and the symptoms she was having matched some of those due to that food and high vitamin D levels. This is why we wanted to report this issue recently to the FDA, this could be harming many other pets again. Sadly and we have no idea if it is related to this terrible food or not, our dog did end up dying on (b)(6). A week after switching her food to the Nutro and having her do so much better on that food, she had a seizure during a thunder storm on the (b)(6) and we don't know why, and she ended up dying in the car on the way to the Emergency Vet. We are very concerned that possibly the exposure to that terrible Nature's Promise food for a period of time while it was causing her issues could have caused her to finally have this seizure but we can't say it did or didn't kill her as the seizure could have been unrelated and there is no way to know if it's related to her death. Her symptoms while on that Nature's Promise Free From food though were very bad with the gas and vomiting and something was definitely affecting her within that food and we switched her food as soon as we thought there was a problem, but maybe that food was bad for her longer than we realized! Currently she did die of the Seizure on the (b)(6) and I'm concerned this food may harm other animals and this needs to be investigated.	12	Years	Bulldog	Dog	55	Pound

Then reading the USDA and FDA websites, I see that food becomes unsafe at temperatures above 40 degrees. They also know that my other dog (b)(6) is only 8 lbs and they continue to send food cut into 2" pieces. EON-485140	3/14/2022 13:08	Purina Friskies Pate Mixed Grill Amazon purchased 12/29/2021	(b)(6) passed away on (b)(6). We had to chose to euthanize her. What I am concerned most about, is that I have 2 cats, one is 13 and the other was just turning 16 this month. Both were indoor cats their whole lives. I am writing because of two main things: 2 cats experiencing abnormal symptoms after eating new flavor of food. and one resulting in death. I want to make sure I report this, in case others are experiencing something similar, and to prevent it from happening to another cat. Both cats have been on Friskies wet poultry platter most of their lives. I have been unable to get that food for months- not sure what the issue is. I tried Friskies wet Mixed Grill Pate for the last week. One the previous food a week back- cats were fine. 5 days into the new food- both cats throwing up, bile, loose stools, one cat with bloody type. Eventually the 16 year (b)(6) female grew more ill. The bile was yellowish and I could tell it wasn't normal. She started to have trouble walking and eyeballs had the white sheath over the eyeball- indicating severe dehydration. I also saw her consume 2 bowls of water, and took her in the next day. we confirmed she didn't have a uti- and we did a urine test and blood work. she was in severe DKA- with the worst case acidic blood. If I gave her fluids and antibiotics, for another day and took her home- the doctor said she was at risk to go into a coma or pass more severely. The only other option was a 4/5 day hospital stay with constant monitoring, her blood was all acid sugar levels out of control. I am not a scientist and I am not placing blame, but I do want to report it in case it is happening to others. The other cat- male, 13 years old- was also throwing up bile, 3 times that I witnessed. This cat doesn't throw up, I have seen it twice and it's always a hairball. This throw up with bile yellowish/green.	15	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	15	Pound

He's been laying in his bed for days pooping on himself. After looking up his symptoms online, I found a lawsuit that was filed in 2018 against Kibbles 'n Bits for food that contains a Euthanasia drug, Pentobarbital. I noticed she pooped a lot during the evening, but not diarrhea. About 2 hours later, I heard her vomiting and saw that she had made some diarrhea on the floor. I then noticed she was acting dazed, frozen for a few minutes, and when she tried to walk her hind legs were dragging. This continued, so I wrapped her in a towel and held her. It was 11 pm on a Saturday, my only option was emergency vet, so I watched her closely. She continued to be lethargic and dazed, but her respirations were only slightly elevated, no panting. I let her sleep, and the next morning she was better, normal, and fine all day. Trying to rule out food vs illness, I opened a new can in a different flavor from a different case and gave her half her usual amount. About 1.5 hours later, she vomited the food up, and began that same behavior, staggering around dragging her hind legs. She also seemed to lose control of her bowels a couple of times. It seemed to me like she was poisoned. I called the emergency vet, a 2 hour wait in the car they said. So I watched her closely again, hoping that since I had only given her half the food, it would be less severe. I held her again, her breathing was ok, put her to bed and stayed close. The next day she again was better. So I haven't given her any more of that food since and she has been fine, no more issues. I'm not risking trying it again, so I will be throwing out 2 cases of dogfood I guess. I will keep it just in case you deem it worthy of testing. Tests showed his heart was enlarged and he had atrial fibrillation. He was diagnosed with Dilated Cardiomyopathy and A-Fib. and given a grim prognosis of about 1-3 months. He was put on Digoxin, Pimobendan, and Diltiazem to control his heart rate. (b)(6) had no prior health concerns. He was a perfectly happy and energetic 4 year old Great Dane. He never showed signs of A-Fib, lethargy, never had pale gums, etc. This collapse was a complete shock. The cardiologist immediately asked us if (b)(6) was on a grain-free diet. He had been on Roosevelt Grain-Free Dry Dog Food. He mainly oscillated between the "Big Ron's BBQ Beef &amp; Green Lentil Grain-Free Recipe Dry Dog Food" and "Wishbone Chicken &amp; Green Lentil Grain-Free Recipe Dry Dog Food" variations. The cardiologist immediately suspected this might be diet caused but there was no way to be sure. Along with the medications, Remington was prescribed Royal Canin Early Cardiac Diet Dry Dog Food and has been on that since May 2021. (b)(6) improved enough to make it to his follow up appointment in October 2021. This re-check echocardiogram indicated a smaller heart (though still enlarged) but the a-fib still persists. The cardiologist explained how the change in diet along with the cardiac medications have helped steer clear of that previous grim prognosis. Though (b)(6) still has DCM and A-fib, his life-expectancy is shorter than normal but not as short as we had once thought. I feel Roosevelt Grain-Free Recipe Dry Dog Food should be analyzed and a determination as to if this can contribute to DCM in dogs. I figured my story could be beneficial in terms of research and preventing anything like what we went through from happening to another unsuspecting person interested in introducing a grain-free diet to their dog. (b)(6) is still alive today but he is not recovered, and his DCM is being checked on 6-month intervals. His condition improved some but DCM is tricky so the cardiologist couldn't say for sure he is "recovering" or if he's "stable" or ultimately "declining". We just know he made it past the 3 month mark but the recovered DCM dogs usually go after about a year or so, per the vet. I can provide (b)(6) medical records if there is no opportunity to attach them to this report.	4	Years	Great Dane	Dog	130	Pound

My other dog, (b)(6), a 10 year old husky mix was having the same symptoms Both of their blood analyses tests showed very high ALT liver enzyme levels (225 and 190). I subsequently read an article in Whole Dog Journal about the dangers of excessive copper in dog and cat foods that was causing an alarming number of serious liver health issues and deaths n pets and that while the recommended level of copper was 7.3mg/kg there is no maximum limit required by the FDA, which is the only agency authorized to change regulations regarding the nutritional content of dog foods. The Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association (JAVNA) has also expressed serious concern about excessive amounts of copper in commercial dog foods. I also googled a number of sites reporting on this problem and the consensus is excess copper creates serious and potentially deadly problems for both dogs and cats and needs to be addressed and new standards enforced by the FDA immediately. Why would any manufacturer want to continue to put so much of a dangerous supplement in their foods?! I called all the manufacturers of the higher end "better" dog foods I have used (Blue Buffalo, Avoderm, Eagle Pak, Taste of the Wild, Annamet, Evangers, and NONE of them would tell me the mg/kg for copper sulfate. EON-484566	3/4/2022 12:24	Acana Pork & Squash dry dog food	Not a week into (b)(6) full transition to Acana's Pork & squash dry dog food, my mother and her husband and myself quickly began to notice (b)(6) deteriorating right in front of us. After roughly a week, he could no longer jump on our beds and obviously struggled to get on the couches. He had little to no energy, at times totally lethargic. His hair began shedding considerably, as well as as turning grey. He drank excessive amounts of water, and His feces became large and roughly the same size of each meal received, runny, and constantly varried in color and shade however more on a greener-shade . It was as if he could not digest the food; which was safe to assume since we could physically see majority of the kibble bits still undigested in his feces. Within two weeks he began to rejected his meals inconsistently, however noticably, "upchucking" it immediately after eating. He also suddenly became constipated, hardly able to relieve himself daily, and at this point he barely got up out of his bed. I would also have to physically pick him up if he wanted on the couch, which prior to this he would run and jump with ease. By the third week his eyes began fogging over with what seemed to be an extremely fast onset of caterax. He no longer attempted to climb any furniture and stopped getting up to greet anyone at the door or approach any visitors. I thought I was watching my dog pass away right before my eyes. Upon removing the food completely from his diet half-way threw the third week, a mere three days later all symptoms had began to reverse if not disappear all together. (except the clouding in his eyes) although the clouding has become less noticable, it is however still present. Because of covid, the soonest available vet appointment wasn't for another two weeks, for which I feared he wouldn't make it that long with how quick the onset of these symptoms apprehended Jack. Instead, I decided to change his diet without delay to which he has fully regained physical ability and temperament entirely.	8	Years	Karelian Bear Dog	Dog	47	Pound

EON-484343	3/1/2022 20:12	Nutro Natural Choice	Nutro Dog food is labeled on the front as 'Lamb and Brown Rice Recipe' and 'NO chicken by-product'. The ingredient list, however, indicates that the 2nd ingredient is 'chicken meal'. We are discussing UPC 7910512963. Now, maybe 'chicken meal' is not a 'chicken by-product' - I don't know. But as a consumer, I see 'NO chicken ...' and presume...well...no chicken. We had previously fed a Nutro 'chicken and rice' recipe, but our dog was having skin/allergic issues and (1) wanted to eliminate the chicken products and (2) stay in the Nutro family b/c it was eagerly consumed and highly rated. The inclusion of chicken meal in a product that - on the front - in bold text - says 'NO chicken by-product' (emphasis Nutro's) is deceptive at best and, potentially, dangerous from a chicken allergy point of view. This product needs relabeling immediately and Nutro/Mars PetCare needs to be sanctioned / fined for their deception.

He always had the best dog food, both canned and dry. I read ingredients very carefully. He enjoyed freeze dried liver treats and occasional bits of dog jerky. This past summer (2021), I had gotten him the Golden Rewards Chicken Jerky treats and he liked them - so much so that it seemed after a while he stopped eating his regular dog food. He would eat the jerky treats, though. Then he started acting weird - hiding under the bed, and then eating everything in sight that he could find. I didn't know what was wrong with him. He'd stand in the yard, looking confused. Then one day, I went to put his harness on for a drive and he screamed in pain. I took him to the vet. He was tested for everything and they thought maybe it was a UTI because there was nothing else coming up on the tests. Then I realized he was blind. It was confirmed and the vet asked if he had been poisoned. I said no. After negative tests for Cushing's etc., he had high blood pressure, kidney issues, and blindness. I read studies about the chicken jerky causing these issues. I realized (b)(6) had been affected as well.	9	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	20	Pound

Since she has changed food to Purina Pro Sensitive Salmon and Rice and began a demanding medication regimen including several medications for her heart, diuretics as well as taurine supplementation and so far has remained stable. I had heard of DCM and the concerns with grain free but the data being shared in FDA's website was last updated 2019 and makes DCM appear to be so extremely rare I did not think it would happen to my dog. Through networking and researching online DCM seems MUCH more common than past numbers have shown and it is crucial to publish updated data about DCM case numbers especially as awareness is increasing. I'm making this report to hopefully add to the accuracy of prevalence and I'm also pleading that the public needs to know more about the prevalence and concerns of Thai disease, even if there is not clear evidence of causation, accurate numbers of dogs facing this disease is key to help dog owners make decisions about the care of their pet. When I examined the treats themselves, I discovered they were covered in blue-gray colored mold spots each about 1/4 inch in diameter. I thought perhaps the bag was defective, or perhaps had a tear in it which caused these treats to spoil, but I found the bag to be entirely intact. Since these treats had been our dog's favorite treat up until this time, I bought a new bag at Walmart the next day. When I opened the new bag, it was the same thing all over again. EON-483888	2/22/2022 21:04	HALO Chicken & Salmon Recipe for Small Breed Dogs	On 20-Feb-2022, upon opening a can of Halo dog food (chicken & salmon recipe for small breed), a small blotch of mold was identified. It was black/green in color. A second can was opened from the same case, and it also had a small spec of mold. A similar incident occurred on 20-Nov-2021 but I did not realize it was mold until my dog became very ill about two hours later. His stomach cramped and he developed a loose, watery stool. I took him to the animal hospital, but they were booked for five hours so I brought him home. He recovered a few hours later. I tossed out that case of Halo. I noticed mold again on 20-Feb-2022. I did not feed him. Today, I called Chewey.com to report the incident. I asked the service department to notify Halo that their dog food contains mold and they should recall it. I will no longer purchase this brand.	7	Years	Terrier - Cairn	Dog	12	Pound

Dog first ate from this bag of food on Tuesday, 1/25/2022. 3 episodes in 1 week: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. On Wednesday morning, 1/26/2022, dog collapsed on floor during meal. He removed himself from the floor, regrouped in another area, and returned and finished his meal. I assumed he had slipped, and was otherwise fine. About 15 minutes later, I saw him wiggling/twitching his leg while laying down. I got him up and standing to investigate. He immediately collapsed on his right rear leg. Fell to the floor. I picked him back up. This continued for about 15 minutes. It was before 8am. I called his vet and left a message, then got him back on the bed, as I didn't know what else to do. He fell asleep. About 1/2 hour later, he got up and was fine, with no evidence of any further symptoms. Vet assistant called back later and advised me to video if the same thing happened again.</li> <li>2. Friday morning, 1/28/2022, immediately after breakfast, I took dog to walk on the beach (we live 13 blocks from the beach and walk there twice daily, usually). He was fine, until he played a little with another dog, then collapsed on his rear legs. This time, he didn't try to get up. He sat on the sand. I encouraged him to get up, and within about a minute he did, but his legs were wobbly. I immediately walked us back to the car. His symptoms only lasted for about a minute more. I took him to the emergency room, (b)(6). They checked him thoroughly and found nothing wrong, but advised I rest him, with no off-leash walks, for the next week or two. We didn't have any more beach walks for several days.</li> <li>3. Tuesday morning, 2/1/2022, again (3rd time) within about 15 minutes of eating breakfast containing kibble from the new bag, dog collapsed as he had the previous Wednesday (during his first episode). This time was very bad. He couldn't stand straight at all, wobbled, fell repeatedly. This lasted for about an hour and a half. I took several videos, which I still have. His head bobbed. He seemed very, very drunk, confused, and terrified. He got himself up several times and moved long enough to lurch into the next room, then collapsed again. I sat with him. After about 90 horrible minutes, the issue resolved itself. He already had a routine vet visit scheduled for that afternoon, so I kept the visit and had him examined again. No problem was found.</li> </ol> That was the last time I fed him that food. During this long episode, I thought, and realized that each of the three episodes had happened within 15 minutes of him eating this food. He had never had an episode before, and since I stopped feeding him food from this bag, he has never had an episode since. That Friday, 2/4/22, I took him to a neurologist, where he was again examined. No problem was found with him. He also had a T4 thyroid test; it came back completely normal. A friend (head of Dalmatian rescue) suggested there may be mold in the food. The food looks normal (I have kept all of it), but his symptoms match those I have seen described online. He saw 3 expert vets in 1 week; none found any problem with him. I think it is something in the food.	5	Years	Dalmatian	Dog	76	Pound

EON-483851	2/22/2022 14:32	Kirkland Signature Natures Domain Salmon and Sweet Potato Formula Food for Dogs	(b)(6) was sent to boarding with a new bag of food. Boarding facility reported (b)(6) was vomiting and having diarrhea the first day (Monday). Second day (Tuesday), (b)(6) refused food in the morning and continued having diarrhea through the day with severe lethargy. Refused food at dinner even when incentivize with additional meat and meat broth. Diarrhea continued through the night. Third day (Wednesday) he ate a little bit of food in the morning but did not eat a full meal. His lethargy was notably less in the morning. Didn't have diarrhea until later in the day. Late on the third day he resumed vomiting and was taken to an emergency vet. Emergency vet noted severe dehydration and pushed a bolus of saline solution. X-ray and ultrasound imaging was completed to look for GI issues and none were found. Anti-diarrhea meds were provided and he was sent home. (Note, he returned directly home from the vet and did not return to boarding facility.) We brought him to our regular vet in the morning on Thursday where they noted he was still severely dehydrated and pushed two more boluses of saline. Our vet also took ultrasound imaging as well as fecal samples to diagnose. No issues were found in the ultrasound or in the fecal analysis. No cause was identified by our vet. (b)(6) returned home that evening and slept through the night. His lethargy decreased through the day (day 5) and the diarrhea stopped by evening. He ate a little bit of food in the evening. Note, this food was NOT from the new bag but was the same formulation. He continued to improve through the next day and by day 8 was back to normal. Throughout this time, we fed him from older supplies of food and kept the new bag segregated even though we weren't sure if it was the cause. On 2/21/2022 I fed him a single cup of food from the new bag mixed with a cup of food from the old supplies. Approximately four hours later he began to have diarrhea that continued through the night, needing out every hour or so from 10 pm to 7 am. After 7 am he was left outside as temperatures had risen sufficiently to be safe. The suspect bag has been segregated. He does not have lethargy at this time but since it has been less than 24 hours since the single cup of food, the diarrhea is continuing.	8	Years	Siberian Husky	Dog	80	Pound

			(b)(6) has been on Kirkland Nature's Domain Salmon and Sweet Potato formulation since he was one year old. He was diagnosed as a puppy as being grain intolerant. He has a severe reaction to grains including, wheat, barley, rice, oats, and any other grains. He has severe vomiting, diarrhea, and swelling around the face and neck. He has been on a grain free diet since a puppy and has had severe reactions when fed grain-based foods. One notable incident occurred a couple of years ago when he was fed grain-based food by the vet after surgery. He began vomiting and had swelling around the face approximately three hours after eating. He was brought back to the vet where he was given anti-inflammatory medication and saline to hydrate him. We were able to determine that grain-based food was given to him as part of the normal post op process. As they had only given him a little bit of food the reaction was minor and cleared up overnight. Note, our second dog, a one year old Dutch Shepard female, has been fed the same food as (b)(6) She has no allergies or grain issues and did NOT have any adverse reaction to the food. She was fed from the same bag at boarding and was fed a single cup of food mixed with two cups of older food on 2/21/2022 with no issues noted.

EON-483623	2/20/2022 11:24	Acana Heritage Free Run Poultry Dog Food	Hello FDA/HHS staff: I purchased a bag of Acana Heritage Free Run Poultry Dog food at my local (b)(6) ) on 1/29/22. My dog has eaten this food for probably 5 years without a problem. I threw the bag away, so don't have the batch number. After eating the food, my dog started diarrhea every day, and would need to use the bathroom up to 5 times a day. On several occasions, she went on our rug, which had to be cleaned up. My husband stepped in one pile and ruined his nice shoes. After about 2 weeks, I had enough and took her to the vet as well as informed (b)(6). (b)(6) returned my money, and I brought the food back to them. At the vet, they tested her for giardia (I brought 4 days worth of poop in, but they could only test the most recent), and also had blood work done ($400). Negative giardia results (no worms) and she is in perfect health. Also, I bought other food after I returned the Acana (some other brand), and her poop is back to normal. I have the test results if you need them as well as a small bag of the bad food still. The vet said they could not test the food. I also returned back to (b)(6) and informed them, as well as passed along my dog's test results (transcribed text from my vet when she called me and left a message of the test results). (b)(6) said they would contact Acana. I can't figure out what else was bad except for the food. I don't want anyone else's dog to react negatively and hope you contact Acana and investigate. It's probably a bad batch, but I had to spend $400 and yucky situations of cleaning up diarrhea to deal with this issue, so it would be nice if Acana compensated me in some way for this. However, not likely. At the least, it would just be great if someone could investigate so no one else has to go through this ordeal. At this point, I don't know what else I can do. Thank you! Cheers, (b)(6)	11	Years	Shiba Inu	Dog	28	Pound

This was only a very small portion of his diet as I only fed him an eighth of a cup in the morning and the rest of the day he eats a different brand. On or about the fifth day of consuming the food, he vomited in the morning. For the next five days or so he vomited once or twice every single morning. This was out of the ordinary as he rarely vomits hairballs and when he was vomiting in this case there was no hair and the vomit was clear. On or about the fifth day of vomiting, his vomit contained specks of blood. I suspect his stomach lining was irritated by the constant vomiting causing it to bleed. I ceased continuing to feed him the Purina PP. The next day he did not vomit. On the second day without the food, he vomitted once. After that, he no longer vomited again. I suspect there is something in the food that built up in his system over several days that began to trigger the vomiting. Hence, why he didn't start vomiting until about 5 days after he started eating the food and the fact that the vomiting didn't immediately stop after the food was discontinued.	8	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	13	Pound

Within an hour I noticed that she was in the litter box more frequently, and was also pawing at the ground significantly more than normal. When I checked her litter box, I noticed that she had very loose, foul smelling stool, which caused concern, as her stool is usually very firm and does not smell very much. She started to hide under my bed during the evening, which is also unlike her. On February 11th, she seemed lethargic, still hiding under the bed. She would come out to occasionally eat her dry food, Blue Buffalo Indoor Health, and to drink some water. At the time I did not come to the conclusion that the wet food had made her ill, so I fed her more around noon. Again within a short time she had more very loose and bad smelling stool. She continued to hide under the bed, and because she is long haired, she had fecal matter in her fur that I had to clean. I then realized that the wet food may be the issue. On February 12th I did not give her any wet food, only dry. Up until noon she had eaten a small amount and had some water, and was still mostly hiding under my bed. When her feeder dropped her dry food around noon, she did not come running like she usually does, and when she did eventually come out, she didn't touch the food at all or drink anything. Around 4:30 PM she started having loose stool again, and at 8:45 PM she started to vomit, which to this point she had not done. She had more loose stool around 9 PM and vomited a second time at 9:34 PM. I needed to clean fecal matter from her fur numerous times throughout the evening. I decided to take her to a local 24 hour emergency vet in my area around 10:30 PM, as I was concerned that she was dehydrated and maybe was running a fever. I took her to (b)(6) where I spent a total of 4 hours while she was being treated. She was given x-rays under sedation, and anti nausea injection and fluids, and I was sent home with a probiotic to help with her stomach issues. Her diagnosis was gastroenteritis. As of today, February 13th, she is doing a little better. She is still recovering from the sedation, but has eaten some dry food and has not had any loose stool.	4	Years	Persian	Cat	10.62	Pound

EON-483022	2/13/2022 13:08	Nulo freestyle high-meat kibble salmon & peas recipe, Nulo freestyle high-meat kibble turkey & sweet potato recipe	Overnight my dog, (b)(6) went from being what appeared to be healthy, happy and active to no longer eating and having labored breathing. It was a Saturday evening and he was running around the yard chasing his ball and being his usual self. However, within 24 hours and thousands in vet bills later, I learned that my dog had DCM. They drained nearly a liter of fluid from his pericardium and almost lost him the process. The fluid was clear and they told me this was a good sign since it indicated that it was likely not cancer. However due to the amount of fluid and the fact that the fluid appeared to be building back up rather quickly, the prognosis was not good. They eventually stabilized him, but he was oxygen dependent at that point and they informed me there was no way he would survive the trip to the nearest cardiac specialists at Kansas State. Initially we were hopeful that we'd be able to put him on a treatment plan and enjoy a few more weeks or even months with him before saying our goodbyes, but his case was so severe that I was forced to say goodbye to my best friend later that day. After speaking with multiple vets and specialists about his case, we believe the swelling and fluid around his heart had been building up for some time. In the weeks prior I recall him coughing in the night, but I brushed this off as him simply hacking up something he had previously chewed on, which wasn't uncommon. His coughing was mild and not intense and it never occurred to me it could be the early signs of DCM and the pressure building from the fluid around his heart. The vets immediately asked what kind of food I was feeding him and they informed me that it was linked to his condition. I was shocked. I meticulously researched dog food companies and nutrition. I'm an active individual and exercised my dogs every day. I fed them what I thought was the best food available - high protein grain free formulas from dog food companies with little to no recalls and sourced the highest quality raw materials for their food. My dogs were fed Fromm and Nulo grain free beef, lamb, and salmon formulas almost exclusively for several years leading up to the event. They never missed their annual vet checkup and (b)(6) had his senior exam with full blood and urine analysis that prior Fall. I thought I was doing the very best to increase the chances that my dog could live a long and happy life - we played and exercised regularly to maintain a healthy weight and kept him mentally stimulated. He was well socialized and trained off leash. It's extremely frustrating to find out that the food I was feeding him could possibly be linked to his early and untimely death. His veterinarian was (b)(6) at (b)(6) in (b)(6). Please feel free to reach out for any additional details. I hope this information will help speed up your investigation into the linkage between grain free diets and DCM in dogs and that more people will have awareness of this issue to be able to make more informed decisions about their pet's health and diets.	8	Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	110	Pound

Until the last time, she recovered slowly after yet another tough night and a day or more of not eating and drinking water. She was thoroughly checked out by a vet on Friday morning, including blood work. Everything was good and her strength and appetite returned to normal. The vet suspected she'd eaten something toxic but none of us could think of anything at home that could have possibly caused a reaction. We gave her dry food and water on the days when she was recovering, but when she seemed well we gave her the Iams wet food because she liked it and it would help rehydrate her. On Saturday morning when she was well again we gave her another packet, which she ate enthusiastically. Two hours later she started shutting down quickly. We comforted her but she was soon shaking and immobile, and over the course of three more hours she died. We had taken her with us to a hotel for our weekend trip not wanting to leave her with neighbours in a weakened state. The hotel room was a clean, contained space with no suspicious poison sources like house plants, so on. All theoretical poisonous sources in our home were excluded. While our cat was suffering on Saturday we pieced together the sequence of her downturns that followed feeding on the Iams cat food. She would recover on dry food but went downhill when the wet food was added. We, nor the vet, suspected her food as a source of poison. When it became abundantly obvious on Saturday, it was too late. A very sad ending to a happy life, and though we had nothing but good intentions we can't help but feel partially responsible.	5	Years	Unknown	Cat	20	Pound

Again didn't think much of it as dogs vomit all the time. But this continued for 4 days. We tried to think what changed and the only thing that was different was her food. So we started doing research and the formula actually changed on the new food! The first 2 ingredients where the same on both. But that's where the similarities stopped. They removed alot of ingredients, there where new ingredients, and other ingredients where in different locations on the list. Also the Kibble actually looks different side by side. MAN made copper that has been added through the agricultural industry, then to the dog food industry, who then in turn are required to add even MORE MAN made copper. This is a MAN made disease that is slowly killing loving pets. I got in touch with Nutro to find out the copper content of the formula (b)(6) was eating was at almost 15%!!! (b)(6) litter mates ( (b)(6) ), my 12-year-old personal dog (b)(6) and another unrelated 12-week-old puppy named (b)(6) had all had food from the concerning bag. We haven't given him canned food since last year on his birthday. Then he had regular food for 2 days. Approximately 30 hours following the food exposure, on 1/19/2022 he developed weakness in both hind legs. He seemed uncomfortable but not acutely in distress besides his difficulty walking. We brought him to the vet the next day. After we noted the lameness his appetite was significantly reduced. For that reason, I picked up a few more of the same brand and type of canned food to get him to eat. His symptoms progressed from his lameness (1/19) and later the vomiting (1/27 am), excessive salivation (1/27) and aspiration pneumonia(1/28). His veterinarian team had discussed a differential of myasthenia gravis or botulism. We discussed that he had not eaten anything raw and that the time frame did not seem to match botulism.  However, on later reflection we realised that approximately prior to his first symptoms we had given him Nature's Promise Lamb and Rice canned food and that we had continued to give a small amount everyday while he was unwell.  (b)(6) symptoms continued to progress and over the course of 2 weeks he went from an active healthy older dog to admitted with no ability to bear weight, severe aspiration pneumonia and inability to maintain his oxygen saturation. By Monday morning all my cats were sick, throwing up everything and showing signs of being lethargic, I figured out it was the food, dumped it and went out and got another brand, filled their bowls and none of them have gotten sick since. I feel like this is a bad batch that has something extremely toxic to cats, all of my cats were getting violently sick. Hoping that Noone else is going through what I went through. This product almost killed my cats and I'm convinced if I didn't figure it out sooner then I would have lost them.

As a result, a decision was made to stop serving this food until his stool was back on track. On June 9, 2021, we started serving a new batch of Hill's Z/D canned food. EON-482081	1/30/2022 10:28	Fancy Feast Medleys White Meat Chicken Primavera With Garden Veggie & Greens In a Classic Sauce	It is a fact that cats will starve themselves to death if their food is changed. The cat food shortage is putting all cat owners in danger of serious health problems with their pets. I can not find my cat food anywhere and I mean ANYWHERE!! I've called Purina. Purina deferred to the distributor and the distributor blames CO-vid and unable to get the ingredients to make the food. What is being done by the government to remedy this situation? The shelves in the stores are completely bare. Consumers aren't getting answers and the situation is getting worse and very serious for cat owners everywhere. I was offered coupons for food I can't get. Something needs to be done immediately. This is being under reported on the news. My pets are quickly losing weight. Cat owners are in a constant panic in the cat food isle. Why is there dog food yet there is no cat food???? This makes no sense and the government needs to step in and do something. The problem keeps getting passed on to the next person and I'm not getting any answers. I am specifically looking for Purina Fancy Feast Garden Medleys White Meat Chicken Primavera. Purina says they don't want to change the recipe. What is it in the cat food that Purina can't get yet they're able to make dog food? As a consumer, I want answers to this. I'm seeing the shortage all over the internet, YET, I'm not seeing anything being done in the Hierarchy at Purina. People can barely afford to feed themselves, now we're going to be forced into making our own cat food that our pets may or may not eat. If Purina can get the food on the shelves, perhaps they need to share their recipes with the public so our pets don't starve to death.

EON-482071	1/30/2022 1:04	Blue Wilderness Denali Dinner with Wild Salmon Venison and Halibut-Grain Free	This is in reference to finding a plastic shard piece in my cat's Blue Buffalo Wilderness Denali Dinner wet food can, this evening, Saturday, 1/29/22. My boyfriend found a piece of a small hard plastic shard inside the can that is very sharp, similar to a credit card thickness. I've usually found small bone shards in the past but thought it normal due to animal by-product. But since this is a sharp piece of plastic I'm worried if my cat may have ingested some the previous day Fri, 1/28/22. He only noticed the second day as we typically feed her half of the can one day and serve the rest the next day. Unfortunately, he had thrown out the rest of the food after noticing and only saved the can and plastic in question. He didn't know to save the remaining portion for further investigation. Needless to say, we still found the piece of plastic. I've notified Blue Buffalo of the incident/not interested in a refund as I'm now worried about their product but wanted to inform them in case others reported the same issue. I've also messaged my veterinarian via e-mail for guidance. So far, she appears fine and we haven't noticed anything like this with past foods. I'm hoping there were no other pieces in yesterday's portion but hard to tell without the rest of the food. We'll continue to monitor her and report anything to our vet should happen and continue checking her food in better detail. I've enclosed some pictures for reference.

A half hour after her 2nd meal, which was breakfast the next day on 1/21 at 5:20AM, she vomited all her breakfast. A couple hours later I offered her a handful of the food on the floor. She ate one or two kibbles then backed away. Our other dog, whose name is (b)(6) then ate the remainder of the food from the floor. When given lunch at 11AM she first backed away from the food but then ate a little of it. Shortly afterwards she vomited again. My Vet (b)(6) has the remaining cans from the bad batch case I purchased. Medical records show there was no underlying or present or preexisting illness that caused the diarrhea. The process of eliminating the Royal Canin feline Urinary SO wet food abated the diarrhea. I have had no such issues with the prior formulations or other cat food. I filed a claim with Royal Canin and they have dodged and denied responsibility for making my cats sick which was documented and confirmed by 2 licensed veterinarians from 2 different practices. These 2 US veterinarians stated and confirmed that your Feline Urinary SO wet canned food made my cats sick (food-induced diarrhea) and nothing else after numerous expensive tests, treatments and medications to treat the food-induced diarrhea. The tests and process of eliminating the feline urinary SO wet canned food from their diet was a clear and undeniable correlation. I shared all medical records with Royal Canin supporting no other diagnosis or cause but the food. Also, Royal Canin has been recalled at least 3 times in the past 15 years and I reported another instances of your Urinary SO for dogs causing diarrhea which was reported to me by a vet tech. It's clear Royal Canin's urinary SO wet food is making animals sick! I am filing this complaint with the FDA consumer complaint organization because Royal Canin should not be allowed to evade responsibility for making my cats sick and I should be reimbursed for the extensive out-of-pocket costs to treat my cats for this confirmed and documented food-induced diarrhea and for the harm caused to my cats.			American Shorthair	Cat

This time, however, I did not notice that there were white spots on the dog food until a week or so when it became increasingly noticeable. When I looked into the dog food further, I noticed not only did it had mold growing on it but also bugs were in the food. My dog has thrown up and is experiencing itching in her rump area. I tried to contact the manufacturer but I receive a recording advising that there are no representatives to take my call. I am really upset.	6	Years	Other Canine/dog	Dog	26	Pound
EON-481009	1/18/2022 21:04	Whimzees Natural Dental Chews Alligator	Dog was fed a Whimzees dental chew. Experienced abnormal vomiting and diarrhea of the chew pieces, with sharp shards present in the vomitus and feces. Light amounts of blood appeared to be present as well. She seems to be recovering and the issue seems to have resolved itself, but upon looking online at the Whimzees Facebook page, it seems like an abnormally high number of people are reporting similar experiences over the past month or so.  I am concerned that this is related to a change in formulation or other batch-related issue that warrants a recall or further investigation of the product. The product seemed to have splintered into dangerous sharp glass-like shards upon chewing.			Poodle - Miniature	Dog

Since we started the diet we have noticed a decline in (b)(6) health. We did not think it was from the food but just his old age. He began to urinate more in the house (he is house broken), he had muscle deterioration, his neck would sag be limp and crooked. He lost weight and had stop me standing and walking. He also began to fall over and have seizures. We had to take (b)(6) to the ER in 2 occasions and were told he may have a brain tumor. With that we began to spoil him with a change in dog food. Since the diet change we noticed he sprang back to his original health. He has no issues as stated above. We fear that the prescribed dog food made his health worse. EON-480929	1/17/2022 20:28	Tiki Cat Born Carnivore Low Carb Grain Free Dry Cat Food	Since late 2021, I have noticed bits of green rubber and plastic in Tiki Cat Born Carnivore Chicken & Egg Dry Food. My cat only has fangs due to genetic teeth issues, so her food is ground up fine for her to eat. I notified Tiki Pets about it November 1st 2021, notifying them that I thought it was part of her food until I found a piece that stretched like rubber. I was sent a replacement bag from Tiki Pets in mid November. After opening that bag, I saw more of the rubber in the food. I contacted Tiki Pets about it once again on December 21st 2021. The next day I heard back from customer service, confirming that they'll look further into it. I emailed again on January 6th 2022 because I didn't hear back. The next day, I was told that it was confirmed that rubber was found in the chicken meal, and that they've reinforced their standards + contacted the manufacturer and chicken meal supplier. They said to feel free to ask any questions. I sent an email back the same day this was received - January 7th, asking about whether customers will be publicly informed about these rubber pieces , if a recall will be done, and what will be done since my pet was exposed to these microplastics, since micro plastics can potentially leech cancer causing and immune system compromising chemicals such as PCBs, bisphenol A and phthalates? I haven't heard back as of January 17th. Usually they get back to me in one day or the following day. I followed up on the 13th and still haven't heard back. Extremely upset about how this is being handled. Since it was investigated and proven to exist in the chicken meal, which is in multiple dry products of theirs for both dogs and cats, I believe the public should be informed.

Her sister did as well. I submitted a report for her sister as well. (b)(6) vomiting lasted a few days and was controlled with Cerenia. The diarrhea lasted a little longer and her stool took a few weeks to completely firm up. I took her to the vet for the vomiting and diarrhea and bruising on her belly. This was the second time she had bruising on her belly and I believe it was not related to the vomiting and diarrhea. I saved the bag not sure what to do with it, but because we had two separate times in September when we thought we were going to have to admit our cats to a hospital, I had packed a storage bag with some of the food from the bag of food I am now reporting. While the bag of food was tucked away so it could not longer be used, the storage bag of food was used this past December. The same vomiting and diarrhea occurred. This time the food was taken away faster and Cerenia was used to control the vomiting. Bland food was used to control the diarrhea and vomiting. Two days later, she became frail, weak and couldn't even make it to the litter box almost always. I kept her separate from my other cats to rule out any other type of contagious sickness. EON-480233	1/7/2022 20:04	Wags Chicken & Brown Rice Recipe Dry Dog Food	I had five bags of this dog food delivered on 1/5/2021. None of the bags had any coding information- no best buy, no lot code. Nothing. I thought it must be a fluke. I called Amazon who owns the manufacturer and distributes the product. I was told the blank spot I saw on the bag was where the code date should be. It seemed to be no big deal to them. I'm in food safety so a big deal to me. I tried to call headquarters as I found the category manager on LinkedIn, but Amazon does not want you talking to people there at all. Then I looked at questions about the product, and another customer had posted no code/lot on bags in July as well so this is a recurrent problem evidently. I must say I had not checked my bags every time as was getting delivery each month so don't know how long this has been going on. A consumer would have no idea of age of foods and whether it was safe for the dog to consume. If there was an adverse event, regulatory would have no way to trace it as well. Plant needs to be visited. I have all 5 of the bags at my home. Amazon just told me I could toss it, and they would refund, but that doesn't take care of the issue. Something is going on with the plant as last month supposedly "nothing" was shipped as not available.

The packaging shows light brown kibbles. When I opened the bag, the kibbles were jet black/consistency looked like charcoal. The kibbles seemed to have some shiny coating on them. They had a strong odor to them.  I was suspicious, but I thought this could be just a different color than I'm used to in cat kibble. Then both of my cats started throwing up, after a fed them a little bit.  I contacted customer support knowing a lot of others complained about this food specifically. They sent me an automated message saying that rabbit meal is black, and, that the color of the kibble is right.			Domestic Shorthair	Cat

EON-479749	1/1/2022 16:32	Diamond Naturals	I have been ordering Diamond Naturals from Amazon for several months. I feed whole fresh foods for a.m. and Diamond Naturals in the p.m. No problems or issues of any kind. Then I opened a new bag several days ago. The kibble looked different. It smelled slightly different, but I got no notice that the kibble had changed ingredients, so I fed it as per usual. Within a few days I noticed that my dogs--who are normally active--were listless and lethargic. Three nights ago, one of them began vomiting up the Diamond Dog Food a couple hours after feeding. The other dog began having diarrhea and had to go out a lot more than usual. I didn't think too much of this, until it happened again the next night. That was enough for me! I stopped feeding the dogs this (supposed) dog food. I spoon fed them both white rice to settle their stomachs and then started feeding whole food both a.m. and p.m. They both seem better, but no where near the same level of energy/activity level as before. The last incident of vomiting was 48 hours ago, and it seems like all they want to do is sleep. After cleaning up buckets of vomitus and pudding-like poop, all I want to do is sleep, also! Really disgusting and scary! These are adored and adoring companion animals. One is in training as a Service Dog. The other is to be trained for Personal Protection. Very expensive dogs who (along with a third and fourth) will one day be bred for income. I called to try to find out exactly why Diamond Naturals had suddenly sent me a different kibble and what was in the kibble to make my dogs sick. I was on the phone with a customer rep and then a supervisor for at least an hour. They tried reading me off the ingredients on the bag! Whatever poisoned my dogs was definitely NOT an "ingredient" listed on the bag! They promised to remove the product from their catalogue. They promised to take down all that I had said and refer it to someone higher up the chain who would call me back in about 3 business days. The supervisor told me that Diamond Naturals is now an AMAZON BRAND!!! Amazon's new dog food brand, "Wag", is manufactured in the Diamond Naturals plant in California. Hmmm. Curiouser and Curiouser! So, they have Diamond bags and can now put whatever they want into that bag? I doubt I would ever buy "Wag". But, maybe, I got "Wag" anyway! Whatever it was, it was not the normal kibble, and it definitely made my dogs very ill--very fast. I still have no answer as to what was in that bag!	15	Months	Shepherd Dog - Belgian Malinois	Dog	55	Pound
			Looking back over Amazon's reviews of this product I note that the same thing has happened to a number of customers. They buy the product over a period of time and then suddenly a "shift" in the product's appearance and smell and the "new" product makes their dogs sick. I looks very like a "bait and switch" type of deal.

So dehydrated they can't walk, very lethargic, drinking but no appetite. Almost like they are drink. They lose weight very rapidly and coat loses it's shine. Once this shows you will need to get them into the emergency vet within 48 hours. It is presenting as kidney failure. Kidney numbers are off the chart so it presents as chronic kidney failure (which is fatal to cats eventually). After less than 3 days of eating the food she had an episode and had to be rushed to the emergency vet. She collapsed on our floor. Defecated herself. Was barely breathing. Thankfully we were there. This was minutes after she was bouncing off the walls. She had another accident in the car. But we got her here right away. She finally stood on her own as we got her here, but she definitely did not appear to be right or feeling good. They asked if she had ever had any seizure events and none with us. I asked her foster before us, too, and she said no. Not sure what it could be. We swept the house. She didn't appear to get into anything. It was really sudden. There was no garbage or visible trash or animal carcass in the yard she would have gotten into. The only recent change was adding the petplate fresh food topper to her dry kibble. We thawed it according to directions upon arrival in the refrigerator before feeding it to her. She had to be kept at the emergency vet overnight and is approaching a 24 hour stay. Nothing showed up on ultrasound for a blockage or injury. She had free floating fluid in abdomen. They took a sample and it was blood. So she bled into her abdomen somehow but no visible signs on the ultrasound to tell how. They said her signs, symptoms, blood work, bloody stool, gastritis, vomiting, diarrhea, neurological, etc, is usually consistent with eating garbage or something dead or rotten. But all of our garbage is closed. She cannot get into it. And as far as we know, she hasn't gotten into any dead animal carcass in the yard. They've given her an appetite stimulant to see if they can get her to eat a little and drink a little and keep it down. So they will continue to keep her under observation until that is stable. All of her vitals are stable and good now. Just need to get her eating and drinking. Her kidney values went back into a more normal range. Which is good. They will check again after they get her eating and drinking again.	2	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	52	Pound

Around that time I discovered that the food was different - seemed significantly oilier. Upon contacting the Royal Canin company I found that they had recently added two new ingredients to the above-described food. I could add more detail, but the upshot is that she is experiencing diarrhea and some distress, and I would like to know why the Royal Canin company made the change in the formula, and if they plan to continue with this formula. Seven years ago, when I adopted my small dog, she and I spent several months with her life in danger due to a (so far) undiagnosed health problem. Royal Canin was a life-saver, but now I am concerned that I may lose my little dog.  One other situation that I feel definitely should be investigated is the fact that one of the ingredients listed on the above mentioned can of food is carrageenan. This has been found to cause diarrhea - and even cancer - and has been banned in the European Union.

EON-477858	12/6/2021 12:40	Tiki Cat Velvet Mousse Kitten	My 16yo cat had GI lymphoma, but was doing well with treatment. She had recently began losing interest in many of her favorite foods (happens with chemo) which is why I purchased this kitten food at the advice of other cat owners who were going through similar. Vomiting was something that did happen with her disease, but not often and not the way she vomited after eating this food!!! I gave her a bit of this food on 11/17. Within one hour she was projectile-vomiting and looking absolutely miserable. She vomited 5-6 times in under an hour. Because she had started to lose interest in eating and because she did have cancer, I thought she was at the end of her life suddenly, and I made the decision to euthanize her that day. A decision I deeply, deeply regret. Had I thought for a second that this food had made her vomit, I would not have made the decision to euthanize her!!! I had an oncology appointment for 11/21/2021 and I would have made her comfortable until that appointment and I would have discussed further treatment options with the doctor. Because this food made her sick, I don't have my companion of over 16 years anymore. Less than 2 weeks later I got a new kitten and gave this new kitten this food after having her for 3 days, just because I had it on-hand and thought it was a good food at this point. My kitten had the same exact reaction, and also diarrhea! It took over 48 hours for my new kitten to go back to normal and eat again after getting sick from this food. My kitten was healthy with normal, solid stools prior to feeding this food. After 48 hours and giving her pedalyte for dehydration with a syringe, she is back to normal with normal stools again.	16	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	10	Pound

A few months ago, I received a new bag of dry food, 23.5# bag, poured it into the large container I keep in the kitchen and threw out the bag with that mornings garbage. That night when trying to give him his dinner, he refused to eat. Thought he was sick, but he was clearly hungry. At first he would take some but then spit it right out. I tried to hand feed him, he just sniffed it and walked away. I had some of his old food in his travel dog bag and that he ate! A friend of mine who rescues happened to have a bag of the specific food he eats that was donated to her facility, I quickly went and got it and my dog happily ate his dinner! I tried for days to try to see if he bite at it, but he would sniff and pushy hand away. Clearly he smelled something not good with it. (We believe he is part hound, he walks with his nose to the ground all the time!). I called the company and were happy to send me a new bag, but I want to know what is in this food that my dog wound not eat! Is there any way to get it tested! How expensive is it? Is it worth the trouble? I still have the container full of food. I have-not thrown it away yet. The company said it probably is just rancid, maybe sat on truck or something but I remember reading that the food was manufactured in the same month that I received it, September! Let me know what I should do? Thank you for your time! (b)(6)

I even sequenced the product and compared it to my own DNA and everyone in the lab and found it did not match anyone's. Sadly, my girl swallowed a 2-inch ribbed piece that was removed by the pup because the locking mechanism failed to do its job. This ribbed piece is the insert that gets covered with peanut butter. Sadly, just by squeezing the dental toy, my dog and any dog, can push up a portion that can be bit and swallowed just as my dog did.  The manufacturer's website says this product can cause choking and bowel obstruction if swallowed. As a result, off to the veterinarian we went to induce vomiting to remove the piece swallowed. $150 later, the item came up. There is no way to keep the ribbed insert from the dog's access. As a result, every dog who chews this dental bone will force the centerpiece out and be put at risk for either choking or bowel obstruction.  This toy is the worst and most dangerous product I have ever purchased. If you check their reviews online you will see that this dental bone is a danger to dogs for the same reason.

EON-476195	11/13/2021 12:32	Fromm Shredded Chicken in Gravy	My dog was in great health and just had annual health check in beginning of Oct. All bloodwork/urinalysis good. Only a history of pancreatitis. Since we owned him (for all 15 years) he never drank much water. From the beginning of Oct till end of the month he drank an excessive amount of water, had loss of appetite and weight decreased. It was determined by vet within the end of Oct. that he might suddenly be in renal failure according to tests done - urinalysis and bloodwork. On (b)(6) we had to have him euthanized. He had been eating Fromm canned dog food which is their Shredded Chicken. Just discovered that there is a recall on this food because of high vitamin D levels, resulting in renal failure. The "sell by" dates on our cans were for 05/24 and the recalled cans are 08/24. Is there a possibility that this issue goes even further back and Fromm didn't know - or is it possible that they could not have known?? When and how are problems like this discovered and how long does it take for these companies to issue recalls? I worry that my dog had been fed food that should have been taken off the shelves.	15	Years	Chinese Crested Dog – Hairless	Dog	11	Pound

EON-476147	11/12/2021 17:16	Pizzle	Hello, I work as a (b) (6) and I was given samples of Bull Pizzle from some of the workers at Best Buy bones and my dog had gotten sick from it. I didn't think that was the cause at first until I saw the workers drop cooked product into blood and water on the floor then tossed it back into a box without cleaning at all. The place has a god awful smell to it and days looks like they killed the product in shop with how much dirty blood they let get everywhere. While (b) (6) I overheard the management talking about their product being filled with bugs and they told the workers to leave them to the side and recook them, only for me to see the workers bring them back in. I know they also own dotty's and have been storing bad product in their warehouses. I'm only reporting this because I think it's absolutely disgusting and I don't want anybody else's animal getting product with salmonella like mine did and having them get sick or worse die. I've left anonymous reviews about them but they just keep getting deleted. I couldn't get a picture but their drain also smelled like something died and one of the workers said gross maggots then didn't proceed to clean it out. I'm very concerned about the treats coming from Best Buy Bones, I've warned everybody about not buying stuff from Best Buy Bones, Nature's own pet chews, and (b)(6) pet supplies because they're all shady and owned by the same people that whenever they have bad product they just move it between locations to hide stuff during inspections. I've been holding off on reporting this because I didn't want to lose my contract but I can't sit by when my little boy got sick and could've died

Not surr of id in the environment or the water thats the hole reason for trsting to find out	This dog was given to us bc he was not being taken care of. Nearly starved to death. Lived in a chain outside. This was fall of 2019. We took him in amd he began gaining weight and looking significantly better and quickly. Thiugh within a week and a half. Still gaining weight began to become more picky about eating. We took him and had his vaccines done, deworming and nuetered. That winter hed begin having random episodes of apnea while sleeping. He monitored his blood pressure, oxygen levels and the vets never have had any suggestions. His anal glands began getting impacted. The vets suggested allergy meds that disnt work but usually antibiotics he improved temporarily. He will not drink standing water out of a dog bowl. It has to be running water and our tap water makes the dogs cough so we keep ice and lots of bottled water that theyre given through a syringe in times where he desperately needs fluids. We also noticed a change in his eyes. Began wondering about his eyesight. Had thst checked and the vet said he was fine. He does seem to have a lot of congestion in his head. A humidifier helps sometimes. He just seems like his head hurts. Weve had abdominal xrays done on him too. Came back abnormal with still no suggestions from the vets. His bark has become a very high pitched almost scream. Hes had intermitted skin infections that resolved. Its just a bunch of symptoms we cannot find the common demoninator in the equation. He always feels better after a bath. Not in our tap water. My gf collects rain water for the dogs and he always has a waxy substance thays extremely difficult to remove from his coat. My gf used dawn dish soap on him and he began smelling like ammonia. He was hot to the touch. Some sort of chemical reaction occured. We immediately rinsed him with cold water and let him air dry. My gf uses charcoal when upset stomachs happen and rehydrayes them with bottled water or pedialyte. All 4 dogs were in perfect health and current on vaccines prior to consuming this product. We put them on boiled chicken and rice with pumpkin and yogurt to sooth their stomachs and to add probiotics back into their gut health and went back to the diamond naturals food slowly. When they were back on the diamond naturals they all began to vomit again. I have never had all 4 dogs puking several times a day until they were eating this product and that is severely alarming. Unfortunately for us, the issues weren't starting until the bag was mostly empty so it isn't able to be returned to the store we purchased it from which was the tractor supply in (b)(6), Washington. I am positive it was the food that was causing the vomiting. No new foods or treats were introduced to their diets aside from the diamond naturals stated above, they were not exposed to anything outside of their home environment due to respecting Covid social distancing rules, and they did not consume anything outside as they are monitored closely. We made a quick transition to another food due to being alarmed at the vomiting, and it immediately stopped after they stopped consuming the diamond naturals. Their food is no longer "Made in America". Even the cans have begun to become a yellow tin color. I suspect China but their labels indicate a global unknown source. (1) Why are they not required to identify the source of this food? (2) Guar killed our animals before in large numbers so why was it not prohibited for use in pet food? We took him to the emergency vet, where they noticed a heart murmur and irregular heartbeat. After 2 days at the emergency vet, he was diagnosed with Dilated Cardio Myopathy (DCM), in which the vet believes he developed due to a grain free diet. I know that DCM (Dilated Cardio Myopathy) could be genetic. However, my family adopted the entire litter of pups from the rescue we got them from. His brother and 2 sisters do not have this condition, they also are not eating a grain free diet. Also, (b)(6) has been going to the same vet since a pup, they never noticed an irregular heartbeat nor a murmur. We did not intentionally put him on a grain free diet. We wanted to give him the best kind of food possible, after looking around, we opted for Taste of the Wild, Salmon flavor. We did not realize this is a grain free dog food, we also did not know of the risks of a grain free diet. We also gave him a can of Nutrish food each night, which is grain free and has tapioca in it, again, no clue that tapioca could be harmful as well. We never heard of the BEG diet and had no clue that such a thing existed until now. I wish that there were warning labels on the food that states that eating a grain free diet for larger dogs could result in DCM. Because of the lack of labeling and warnings on grain free foods, my pet has to take medication twice a day and get his heart monitored quarterly. His life expectancy is also greatly shortened. Something must be done to warn pet owners of this!	9	Years	Shepherd (unspecified)	Dog	51	Pound

EON-473918	10/17/2021 21:04	The Farmer's Dog Rambo's Turkey Recipe	On October 12th I started feeding my dog, (b)(6) (German Shepard/Golden Retriever Mix) fresh food (Turkey) from Farmer's Dog (https://www.thefarmersdog.com/) after about a 2 week break from the food. I used the fresh food as a meal topper. (I will list his other foods at the end of this narrative.) I gave him approximately 1/4 of the bag (approximately 4 to 6 ounces) of food that arrived frozen and thawed in my refrigerator. (Note, my fridge is brand new and the temperatures are below 35 degrees.) I am a former, school trained chef with years of restaurant experience and handle my dog's food with the same food safety protocols that I would at a restaurant!). This was my second order from Farmer's dog. (b)(6) seemed to do well on his first batch so I opted to continue with the fresh food as a meal topper. This shipment arrive via FedEx on October 9th. the shipment arrived mostly frozen after a one day shipping delay. All of the packages of food were immediately placed into my freezer. I pulled a package of Turkey on October 11th and allowed it to thaw in the refrigerator overnight. I started feeding one quarter of the bag of thawed food on the morning of October (b)(6) for his breakfast. He got another quarter in the evening for dinner. The same pattern occurred on the (b)(6). On the morning of October (b)(6) I woke up to see that my dog had vomited his dinner sometime during the night. Based on how dried it was I would estimate that it had been at least two to three hours since he vomited. Shortly after I woke (b)(6) signaled that he urgently needed to go outside. Once we were outside he immediately defecated a runny diarrhea. At this point, he was not showing any signs of being sick beyond the vomiting and diarrhea. I decided to feed him a light breakfast of a little bit of his canned food with some freshly cooked rice to help the diarrhea. He ate his breakfast and then laid down in his side of a dual recliner ("his" chair). Approximately 2 or 3 hours later, he once again vomited and several episodes of diarrhea followed that. After he vomited in this instance he clearly exhibited signs of not feeling well. He was lethargic, his eyes were watery and he had an intense thirst. As the day wore on, he became more lethargic and I had to really convince him to go outside to urinate/defecate. During the evening I tried to feed him a very small amount of dinner and he immediately vomited that. By this time of day his vet's office is closed so I hoped he would be fine during the night and I could take him to the vet at 7am. Late in the evening, approximately 11pm	8 Years	Shepherd Dog - German	Dog	79	Pound

			(b)(6) became very thirsty again. I let him drink water and he drank a quite a bit. I figured he might be dehydrated and hoped his system would take in the and help him feel better. it couldn't have been more than 10 minutes after he drank the water that he vomited every bit of it. He constantly wanted water through the night so I tried to give him just a few sips at a time but each time he vomited the water up along with mucous almost immediately. He signaled the need to go outside several times during the night with the same resultant diarrhea. I live in a 3rd story apartment so we always have to go up and down 3 flights of stairs. Approximately 5:45am, (b)(6) was too weak to go back up the stairs and he went almost limp when I tried to lift him. He was awake and alert although very lethargic. (By this time neither of us had slept and I thought maybe he was just exhausted on top of not feeling well and was also dehydrated. I my concern for him was certainly raised at this time but since he was awake and responsive, and with the hope of seeing a vet in just over an hour, I was not at a panic level yet.) At this point I walked him back to the car and helped him climb in. i went to his vet's office to wait for them to open at 7am. When they opened, they said they could not see my dog due to a full schedule. I repeated this at another branch of his vet's office that opened at 8am and they too said they could not see him. I went to an immediate care vet that was supposed to open at 9am. They said they had room to see (b)(6) at 11am. I drove down the street to buy coffee at a drive-thru then went back to the vet's office to wait in the parking lot. During these few hours in the car he tried several times to lay down to sleep but he always sat up to lay his head on the window ledge to get fresh air from the partially opened window. When I pulled into the parking lot at approximately 10am, (b)(6) collapsed in the front seat of my car and became unresponsive. He appeared to be breathing well at this moment. Just a moment later he rolled over and started gasping for breath. I ran to the office of the vets office and they immediately came out but in the less than 30 seconds that I was gone, he stopped breathing and had no pulse. The vet performed CPR but he was pronounced dead approximately 10:20am. I did not think to ask for them to check him for toxins. (b)(6) was a highly trained service dog and we were extremely close and I was understandably devastated by his unexpected death. I left his remains with the vets office for private cremation and return of his ashes. It was only 24 hours from when I first saw signs of his illness to the time of his death. He has had minor episodes of diarrhea or diarrhea and

			vomiting that is typical of dogs several times during his life. In each case he recovered without medical intervention within 24 hours or less. if it is worth noting, the first time he vomited the vomitus appeared partially digested. During the following vomiting episodes, the vomitus appeared whole and intact. Rice grains were full and the formed chunks of his wet food were still whole. His diarrhea produced a thick, liquid stool that ranged from light brown to dark brown. The last stool at approximately 5:40am was very yellowish brown, thick with mucous and small grains that resembled the texture of the Farmer's Dog food. I preserved a sample of the stool, double bagged and in the freezer. Being a valuable service dog, (b)(6) was never outside, or anywhere else for that matter, unaccompanied. He was let off his leash once or twice a day to play in our yard but he was constantly supervised. He was trained to leave anything on the ground if I told him to. If I ever saw him dip his head on or off the leash I automatically told him to "leave it" and he always complied no matter what the substance was. I never saw him ingest anything outside. (b)(6) was afforded good health care and I always carefully monitored his health. His food was always safely handled, his food and water bowls were washed with soap and water at every meal and I was extremely careful with keeping anything (chemicals, medications, foods known to be harmful to dogs, etc) out of his reach. (b)(6) got regular exercise and he was constantly with me so I was keenly aware of his health and moods. Up until the morning of the (b)(6)th, he was as healthy, active and happy as ever. (b)(6) suffered from food allergies that manifested in itchy, irritated and flaky skin when he was 2 years old. Consequently I kept his diet very steady with the same foods up until the time I added Farmer's Dog foods to his diet. His typical diet consisted of 1/2 cup of FirstMate Grain Friendly Lamb &amp; Oats kibble and 1/2 can of Taste of the Wild Sierra Mountain Lamb in Gravy canned food. When feeding the Farmer's Dog as a meal topper, the kibble was reduced to less than 1/4 cup per meal. Farmer's Dog Turkey was packed on October 4th, reported as being shipped on October 5th, arrived October 11th. The label has the designation C5 and the lot number is 16C3079. I pulled the bag out of the garbage with food remains inside it, bagged it and put it in my freezer. The remaining bags of Turkey are still frozen with the same lot number and they will not be disposed of until cleared by your agency. The Taste of the Wild Sierra Mountain canned food has a lot number 59XM10 and marked "best by March 23, 24." Both cans that Rambo was fed from in the prior 48 hours are the same lot number and date. of I also preserved the last can that was opened of the Taste of the Wild canned food. It is also bagged and frozen. I can provide the lot number for the kibble if needed. I just need to get some help lifting the bag out of it's storage container.

He was about 1/2 thru a bag. He was fed breakfast as always and hours later threw up all his I digested dog food. I fed him a reduced amount that next morning and again he vomited food. He was acting lethargic, not playful. He continued to drink water, urinate and had bowel movements. I started the Chicken and rice diet. We did this for three days. During this time I pressed another bag of the same dog food because I thought maybe the previous bag was a "bad batch." I added part dog food back into his chicken and rice diet and he had no vomiting. He did not vomit while consuming only the chicken and rice. I opened the new bag and gave him that for breakfast , left my home for a few hours and my son came home to find he had once again vomited all the dog food. He activity was completely normal prior to ingesting the food from the new bag. My vet has been contacted regarding the symptoms and the food. As soon as I did so, I noticed the oyster shell in the food and dug it out just before they scarfed it down. I then sent a message with pictures to The Honest Kitchen and after several messages back and forth, they finally responded that they would replace the food when it comes back into stock. Their general lack of concern and the fact that they made me respond to several email about the product, when I provided the necessary information up front causes me to think that they were more concerned with putting me off, and perhaps get out of replacing the product, than the safety concern of their product itself.

Multiple cans were purchased and I don't know if they are all from the same Lot #'s.	After feeding my cat his morning breakfast (Canned Friskies 1/4 of can, probably even less than that), he immediately vomited. There was no hair ball, only liquid food. For the rest of the day he had 1/4 C dry food, and kept it down fine. Later that evening, I fed him his wet food for dinner. Again he vomited instantly. The next morning, I threw out the old can, and opened a new one. Again, after his breakfast and dinner of wet food, he vomited AGAIN. The next day (day 3) I opened another new can, and the same thing happened. I looked at the Lot#'s and they were all the same. I finally got another can of Friskies Pate, from a different Lot number, and for the last 2 days, he's been fine. I spoke to a friend who shops at the same store, and buys the same brand/type of wet cat food, and she said the same thing happened to her cats about a month ago. Which was around the time I bought my canned cat food. However, she didn't have any cans left to check the Lot #. She threw the unused cans away.	13	Years	Domestic Longhair	Cat	13	Pound

He began to show signs of appetite loss, weight loss, lethargy, depression, vomiting and diarrhea. At his annual exam it was noted that he was 56 pounds in May. His health seemed to continue to decline and was brought back to the vet in august where it was noted that he had lost more weight, down to 49 pounds. His labs were done, xrays and ultrasound. His liver enzymes were noted as abnormal and inflammation in his intestines was also noted. His liver enzymes have continued to trend upwards. He's been put on several meds to help stimulate his appetite and help with the diarrhea. On September 15 2021, i opened a can of the wet food and found a piece of blue plastic. I reported this to Purina and in turn received a replacement case of food. I've since ordered 4 more cases and have again (yesterday) found pieces of blue and white plastic in the food. My dog has a follow up vet appointment today for these ongoing health issues which I will be informing them of the plastic to see if this may be what is causes his illness. I am not sure if this is what is causing him to be sick but I would like to see a recall on this food immediately. I'm not sure what measures Purina has taken since my original report but I have not heard anything back on the incident.	9	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	49	Pound

I bought a new bag of Rachael Ray Nutrish Turkey, Brown Rice, and Venison dog food on Thursday evening. On Friday after her breakfast she was very lethargic and in the evening she began to vomit it all up. She threw up twice after eating the new food and at first we thought it was a stomach bug. On Saturday she refused to eat her food at all and she was tired and could barely get up. That night I got her a different brand of wet dog food (one we had never had before) to see if she could eat it easier because she hadn't kept down a meal in two days. She had no issues after eating the different food and the next morning I gave her another container of the wet food Sunday morning for breakfast. That night I thought she was feeling better so I gave her the Nutrish for dinner and on Monday we found out she had vomited again. Same result that night after feeding her the Nutrish. Today she wouldn't eat again, completely avoiding the bowl and just laying on the bed for hours. I bought the other food once I realized she wouldn't eat it and once again she was more than happy to try the new food while avoiding the Nutrish. This has never happened before and she has been tired, her stomach is gurgling loudly, and she hasn't eaten any of the original food since despite never having had this issue before.	9	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog

After opening them I noticed one of the treats had what looked like fuzz and a seed of some sort in the center. I then further inspected the center of the treat by gently taking a toothpick and dragging the 'seed' out only to learn it was not a seed but rather a maggot. The maggot appeared to be dead. I have since repackaged the treats to return to the store and fortunately as I had only opened the treats to take my dogs photos Sunday he fortunately did not consume them. I did give him another treat by this brand I purchased the same time as the sprinktacular, fortunately he did not like it and therefore did not consume it before I learned of the maggot.all treats have been packaged back up to return to the store today, 10/11.

EON-473371	10/11/2021 0:24	Fromm 4 star nutrition shredded beef in gravy entree  Fromm 4 star nutrition shredded chicken in gravy entree	My dog was eating a staple of Fromm dry food and wet. I had large bag of the dry food but ran out of the wet. I bought a selection for 12 cans of Fromm canned food, two cans of the Frombayla, and then ten cans split between the shredded chicken and shredded beef. My dog vomited four times - twice on two different days immediately after eating the chicken and the beef. One day, I fed her the combo dry food and wet. The next day, she vomited twice and didn't eat for 24 hours. I fed her something else, and she was fine. I fed her the other product, and the same thing happened again - vomited twice and didn't eat for 24 hours. Serendipitously, a friend notified me that Fromm had a voluntary recall on the food. I immediately returned the cans to the store and sent the alert to my vet, who insisted on seeing my dog asap for blood work She came back with mildly elevated kidney levels, and the vet wants to repeat the bloodwork. I called Fromm to let them know and to ask them to pay for the vet bill. They needed proof the expiry date on the can to prove it was same as the recall. I didn't have the rest of the cans but only one of the beef, which was from a different batch than on the recall. I argued with them that I believed they have more batches tainted as my dog was ill. They would not relent nor agree. I did not buy the cans in a case but rather picked up random cans of Fromm, so there's no telling what dates I fed my dog - whether they were from the official recall or not. Fromm refused to hear me or believe that my dog was ill from their product despite my willingness to offer to send the vet report and all of my receipts of what I bought as well as identifying the store I bought it all from. My dog was fine, having just had her 2 year wellness check up 2 months prior, ate their food and got very ill. Fromm knows they have some issues as they already had a voluntary recall. I believe that they have a far more widespread issue than they will accept. My dog got sick from their food!!!	2.5	Years	Other Canine/dog	Dog	76	Pound

When the Turkey and Giblets was finally restocked in our local store on 9/11/2021, I purchased one case (24 cans) of that flavor, as well as 10 cans of the Chicken Dinner and 6 cans of the Chicken and Whitefish flavors. The first time I fed him the Turkey and Giblets, he threw it up and became very nauseous. He refused to eat anything (tried many different brands as well as home cooked chicken) for several days and would only eat a bite or two after that for almost 2 weeks. My other cat had the same reaction and refused to eat anything for the same period. I am keeping these cats for a friend who runs an animal rescue and her 10 cats had the same reaction to this food - all of them threw up and stopped eating. She also heard from clients of hers in other states whose cats had the same reaction. Sprout is now on four prescription medications and three vitamins a day, and we will have to continue to take them to the vet for check ups on their condition. I immediately switched their dog food to Purina Pro Plan. While they are stable at this time, it is unknown if their conditions will improve. The cardiologists at (b)(6) were completely shocked about both of my dogs being affected by the same condition at such young ages, but once everything else was ruled out, it became obvious that feeding them Zignature Kangaroo formula directly caused my young, healthy dogs to develop dilated cardiomyopathy.	21	Months	Whippet	Dog	16.2	Kilogram

He was in the hospital for 24 hours then came home and was on a boiled chicken diet. Within 24 hours he was back into the emergency but I couldn't get him into the same vet so I had to take him to (b)(6). He is still on boiled chicken and has to take anti nausea meds so he can feel ok enough to eat. His stomach is still very angry. He's not out of the woods yet and I hope when his meds wear off he doesn't stop eating again. EON-473039	10/6/2021 11:16	Abound Chicken & Brown Rice Recipe	(b)(6) (a mixed breed) was extremely healthy before opening anew bag of kibble. When I gave it to him for the first time, he sort of balked which was unusual behavior of his 12 years. He began showing symptoms of hacking after consuming said kibble and shortly after that began panting almost incessantly. Since it was over the (b)(6) holiday, I couldn't take him into the veterinarian until (b)(6). The vet did X-rays and told me he was in trouble. He couldn't receive enough oxygen and he was concerned that he had a mass in his heart. We scheduled an ultrasound for the next day and they said there was no mass in his heart, but the were concerned about his heart valve and he had pneumonia. He was prescribed an ace inhibitor, lasix, and another heart medicine. He improved slightly but began panting incessantly quickly thereafter. I called the vet on (b)(6) and he said to give him another lasix and keep it cool in the house. I followed his direction but no improvement. I took him back in on the (b)(6) and he had another X-ray and was given fluids, a penicillin shot, and other antibiotic of which I can't remember the name. He was a little better when he arrived back home, but things escalated quickly and he passed away 4 hours after arriving home. I was not originally concerned about the kibble until (b)(6) my 130 pound bull mastiff balked at the same kibble after his death. This was extremely strange behavior from him, but I thought he was sad or depressed about (b)(6) So two days ago I decided to switch to open a new bag of kibble instead of feeding him the kibble in question, and he ate right up as normal and has continued to eat normally. I called the (b)(6) veterinary diagnostic lab to see if they could possibly run some tests on the kibble and they provided me with this link. I am concerned that the kibble exacerbated (b)(6) death.	12	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	52	Pound

It is a raw diet with no apparent adherence to many FDA guidelines and no concern for AAFCO guidelines, calorie statement, name and address of manufacturer, etc. They state the food is a "Complete Balanced Meal" but when asked regarding nutritional adequacy, their response was " The AAFCO is a private association that has guidelines for a nutrition in pet diet. They actually don't test your food. A lot of the big name corporate brands that have AAFCO are packed with fillers and preservatives. We have a guaranteed analysis done to all out blends. "  My patient's current diet consists of only this food which allegedly only contains " Chicken hearts, chicken liver, chicken gizzards, chicken leg quarters" There is no evidence of vitamin/mineral supplementation. I'm concerned there is inadequate nutrition based on this. I'm worried about other pets potentially being seriously harmed by this diet and was not sure what to do next.

Within 2 weeks my dog became very sick with foul diarrhea, lethargy, then vomited. She refused to eat and I took her to the emergency vet, then followed with her regular vet. They did barium swallow, biopsies of intestinal wall, found inflammation in bowel and stomach and concluded food irritation/allergy. She died within a week from refusing to eat, failure to thrive, she acquired megaesophagus and was in pain. I had to euthanize her. I never suspected it was her new food but my family searched and found that AFTER the original recall FDA inspected plants and found no support for action taken to prevent contamination and was warned. This was in May that I purchased the bag of food. June 28 the dog was deathly sick and not recovering. The food company Midwestern refuses to acknowledge the presenting symptoms of food-born illness. It was the only thing they had eaten that day. Hadn't had any regular dog food yet that morning. He ate some of it and left it. Then (b)(6) took it and finished the rest. I don't know the exact portion of the treat that each dog consumed. The last time she had eaten before that was her normal dog kibble the night before. Within 30 minutes of consumption, (b)(6) began violently and persistently vomiting. The first episode, she vomited all the chunks from the treat. She then continued to vomit every 10-15 minutes or so for the next few hours until she began just dry heaving multiple times in a row. When she would lay down to rest between episodes, her whole body was trembling. Vet said that indicated she was in pain. Took her in that day. Ran an X-ray. Couldn't find anything. Sent her home with anti-nausea meds. Continued vomiting at home and refusing all food and water. Acting weak and didn't want to move from her bed. Took her the next three days as she didn't improve. Received two rounds of subcutaneous fluids in attempt to hydrate her. In all, she received 3 or four more X-rays, and was admitted for a day while they put her on IV fluids and an antibiotic and administered a barium swallow to try to determine the cause of the continued pain and vomiting (blockage? Ulcer?). Vet determined that the severe and persistent vomiting caused gastric ulcers. Was put on multiple meds to coat the stomach, eliminate nausea, and encourage motility. Syringe fed her a pureed RX diet and water for several days before she slowly began eating and drinking again. She is still not back up 100% to her normal food intake but is eating enough to show progress two weeks later. She was already a skinny puppy prior to this, so this event has made her appear skeletal. Vet said the treat was stated to be for dogs at least 40 pounds. Prior to this incident and within the prior month, she had weighed 35 at the vet. Vet said there was no way that small of a difference in weight would have caused this severe of a reaction, plus, our other dog had eaten some of the treat before it got to her. Vet said Whimzees brand treats are not as digestible as they would lead you to believe. There are many, many reports online of dogs having similar severe reactions, which we discovered the first day when I was searching online to try to figure out what was wrong with my dog. I have contacted Petsmart, where we purchased the treat, to inform them of all this. I also contacted Whimzees (WellPet) to inform them of this, but they deny all responsibility. These treats should be recalled. During this time he developed pancreatitis. He made a full recovery from the pancreatitis and started eating and drinking as normal. Around September 7 he developed diarrhea again with a little bit of blood and was not eating or drinking regularly. We brought him into the vet for a check up because his sister (b)(6) had just been recently diagnosed with severe kidney failure. On September 10 the vet ran a blood test on (b)(6) and it indicated that he was also in kidney failure. However, since his sister had just passed away from this disease we started to look into what could have possibly caused both of them to get this condition at the very same time. We immediately stopped giving the water additive as we thought that could be the source of toxicity. This was on September 11, 2021. Since that date we have not administered any of the additive in his water and have been treating him daily with subcutaneous fluids. Within three days of daily treatments his condition has already started to improve and his kidney levels have gone down by 50%. He continues to receive treatment and went in for for a recheck of his bloodwork within one week. His levels continue to improve, but he is still not in complete normal range. The vet is optimistic that he will make a full recovery. I feel certain that both the pancreatitis and kidney failure were a result of the water additive. I have attached a few reviews from other customers experiencing similar sickness within their dogs. There are far more available online, but I didn't have the ability to attach all. I believe this product is toxic for dogs and should be pulled off the shelves immediately. EON-472797	10/3/2021 13:24	Arm & Hammer tartar control dental water additive for dogs	(b)(6) began taking Arm & Hammer tartar control additive in her water for approximately six weeks. Within one month of taking the additive in her water she became symptomatic. She had diarrhea, vomiting and was lethargic. At the time we did not know that the water additive was the source of her illness. We took her to the vet who thought she might have some sort of intestinal bacteria. This was on (b)(6). Over the course of that weekend her condition continued to decline and she became dehydrated. We took a trip back to the vet and they ran bloodwork resulting in her being in severe kidney failure. We begin subcutaneous fluids daily for four days to see if her condition would improve. She only continued to decline and began to refuse to eat or drink. By the (b)(6) day of this treatment the vet advised that her condition was irreversible and therefore we had to make the difficult decision to euthanize her as we did not want her to suffer. The entire time she was going through treatment we continued to give her the water with the tartar control additive. During the course of her treatment our second dog began to become ill with diarrhea. His blood panels were checked and he also was in kidney failure. He had a blood test two weeks prior with no indication of kidney disease. This caused us to look at what we may have done differently that could have resulted in kidney failure in both of our dogs simultaneously. The only thing that we knew had changed within those six weeks leading up to the events was giving this water additive in their daily routine. I am asking that you look into the contents of the solution as I feel there is something toxic that has unfortunately led us to this point. This product needs to be recalled and pulled off the shelf. Because they had skin and stomach issues with Chicken and other brands for dry dog food. Our dogs need a low protein dog food without chicken. They have had no problems until now. After spending over $200 Medication and Vet bills. It was determined that something changed in the Purina Pro Plan food. Our dogs only eat Purina Pro Plan food and carrots for treats. I contacted the store where I bought the food. They said that customers have been reporting that their dogs are getting rashes from this food and they are not carrying it anymore. They also, stated that this started 3 months ago. Here's the info from the dog food bag. It is 41 lb bag and bar code is 38100-18272. The Best by Feb. 2023 (12341085 1309L07). EON-472490	9/29/2021 4:24	Homeopathic Eye and Upper Respiratory ethanol 25%, Homeopathic Skin and itch ethanol 25%	I gave my dog the product from Only Natural Pet company called: Homeopathic: Eye and Upper Respiratory. It's a holistic product. This product shouldn't be allowed to be sold as it has 25% ethanol and no expiration date on the bottle. I did 2 sessions of the drops because it says to give about 5 to 10 drops, and doesn't bother to say how many drops per the weight of the dog which is already dangerous, but I didn't think anything of it because their products are supposed to be approved by a vet. My dog became sleepier than normal to the point where I was afraid that she was going to go into a lethargic state. She also lost some appetite after taking it. I thought it was just that bottle. I had a different product I also got from the same company which is also a holistic product and it was for skin and itch, also 25% ethanol, approved by a vet. Same thing, same reaction. I'm just thankful because I know some dogs take awhile to show symptoms while mine showed hers right away. Thank God I only had her on it for a couple of days. That should tell you something about these 2 products that it only took 2 days for her to react to it. Please do a check on these products. Nothing should be allowed to have ethanol in it and I hate myself for trusting this company's crap, saying their vet approved products. You all also need to get on them about putting expiration dates on their holistic products. There's no telling how long their stuff has been sitting in the warehouse!			Other Canine/dog	Dog

(This is a food I had bought in the past, and my cat had had seizures but so had not been able to pinpoint a cause.) I bought the 40 can pack from Chewy.com and started with the Chicken variety and there were no seizures. As soon as I switched to the seafood cans, he would start symptoms. Vomiting would happen very shortly after eating, and I always would think it was something else, but the vomitus was undigested cat food. He would have seizures and "fits" — shaking, stumbling, falling that would last a few seconds, but would be frequent. I then decided to see if the food really was the cause by alternating chicken vs. seafood cans. I tried the poultry variety and the seizures wouldn't occur. I'd switch to the seafood and the problem would start again. I told Chewy.com about this and they kindly issued a refund.	14	Years	Siberian	Cat	11	Pound

The dogs wouldn't eat any of them and they really eat everything. I tried camouflage/mix in it with wet food from other brands like Pedigree which they love, even beef bone or chicken broth unsuccessfully. They both just plainly refused to even get close to it which is an indicator of something terribly wrong with it. The dogs wouldn't eat any of them and they really eat everything. I tried camouflage/mix in them with wet food from other brands like Pedigree which they love, even beef bone or chicken broth unsuccessfully. They both just plainly refused to even get close to it which is an indicator of something terribly wrong with it. As I looked in the bags for information of the manufacturer and customer service contact information I couldn't find it anywhere so I proceeded to Google it just to find out that the product comes from China. I obviously contacted Walmart to return the product and tried to find out if the product comes in bulk and it's packed in US (should be printed on the bag) or if it comes already bagged but they wouldn't give me the information. I used to work in quality control inspections and legislation so I find it very odd that this product is sold by a major food seller and I question its origin and the seller's quality control standards reinforcement before selling it. Additionally, I also found that Amazon sells it with the front face of the bag and no additional information, routinely they display all bag sides, and the bags have a different look/design than the ones from Walmart.

EON-472301	9/27/2021 12:40	Purina Pro plan sport 27/17	(b)(6) 9/21/2012 (b)(6) (b)(6) is an active German Shorthair pointer born 07/07/2017. He has been on Pro Plan 30/20 for most of his adult life with no digestive issues. He has gradually been reduced from 6 cups of food a day to 2.5 to 3.0 cups and I made the decision to switch over to a little lower fat product in the same Pro plan line to increase the physical amount of food. On Sept. 16th I began a transition from Pro Plan Sport 30/20 Lot # 140109? 2055L27 ? (lot number hard to read) to Pro Plan Sport 27/17 lot # 12025001 233L11 (again hard to read). I mixed approximately 3 cups of the 27/17 sport into the 30/20 Sport by hand to begin the transition. I have never had any issues switching bags of the same feed with (b)(6) or had any digestive upsets even with treats or human food -which he does not often get. (b)(6) received a morning and evening feeding on Sept. 16 of the mixed feed as well as another feeding the morning of Sept. 17th. I was gone for approximately 3 hours mid-day to mid-afternoon on Sept. 17th. (b)(6) was in the house and he had vomited twice and urinated on the floor by the door. The vomit did not appear to have anything in it but digested and undigested food. His stomach was clearly upset and he was in distress. He vomited a few more times late afternoon/evening but at this point it was mainly saliva/ mucus. He was not fed any food Friday evening or Saturday. On Sept 18th it was obvious he was sick. He was dehydrated, lethargic, appeared to be in pain, tail tucked, and his stool was atypically very dark and tarry. When I got him up he drank copious amounts of water. My vet was called – they do not have an emergency service on site. The emergency service is over an hour away. I called the Pro plan line on Sept 18th at 9:00 am to see if they had any issue with the Pro Plan Sport formula 27/17. I was advised I simply transitioned him over too quickly – she recommended I should have gave him 10% of the new food for 7-10 days. After conferring with my vet I decided to give him more time as he seemed to improve toward evening. A chat was also initiated at Chewy with one of their	14	Years	Other Canine/dog	Dog	58	Pound

			vets. On Sept 19th he was still dehydrated and drinking copious amounts of water. I called the emergency service and described his symptoms and they felt it was not an emergency based on his symptoms but to contact my vet Monday morning and call them again if he got worse. He was interested in food so he was fed 3 heaping tablespoons of cooked rice and a tablespoon of a canned food to get him to eat the rice. He kept this down in the morning feeding and I repeated it in the evening increasing the rice to 4 heaping tablespoons. He was still uncomfortable and not at a normal activity level. I measured out food in my feeding cup to determine how much of the new food he had received as a percentage. Results attached in excel- 5 reps. On Sept 20th I called my vet's clinic. They did not have any available appointments and my regular vet does not work on Monday. (b)(6) attitude had improved- he was a little more active and not as dehydrated- however he still was drinking large amounts of water. He was fed 4-5 heaping tablespoons of rice and 2 tablespoons of the canned dog food morning and night and he kept this down. His stool was looser (not formed- but not diarrhea) and slightly orange colored. (b)(6) was brought to the clinic on Sept 21st. He presented with pain in his abdominal area. He was closer to his normal self but still off. Blood work showed high ALP-591, GGT-74 levels. The ALT could not even be measured – it was off the chart. (b)(6) had his annual exam on 07/21/21 and passed the exam and blood panel testing with (in my vet's words) flying colors. I am looking for answers on what could have caused these acute symptoms. The only thing that I changed was the food- prior to this he was a normal happy senior. In fact, a very healthy one – the only reason I requested the blood panel on 07/21/21 was because of his age. We are currently treating him for liver issues and he will have another blood panel test on Thursday to see if the liver enzymes have come down. The severity of the digestive upset coinciding with the feeding transition obviously had me concerned. I would be interested in any microbial and mycotoxin testing that was done on the lot and/or ingredients as part of your Quality control program and to make sure a formulation error was not missed.

Right after feeding them half a serving size, the dogs developed explosive diarrhea with loud gas. It looked like the dogs had ben prepped for a colonoscopy. Neither dog had EVER had these symptoms and nothing was new regarding their food. They don't receive treats and they do have toys as they're not puppies. They wrestle with each other and go on walks. Both dogs were in excellent heath as proven by vet records. I did not realize it was the Greenies. When one dog vomitted, after days of diahrea, I rushed her to the veterinarian. Xrays, bloodwork (twice), and fecal test (twice) did not reveal ANYTHING that the vets could figure out. The xrays revealed issues with the intestines but no obstructions. For three weeks, the vets did not know what was causing the issue but it was not bacterial because the they prescribed over 5 medications but nothing stopped the problems. It was strange that both dogs suddenly got sick after the greenies entered the situation. It dawned on me---stop the pill pockets. When I did, after 5 days, the explosive diahrea stopped. I did not realize that I was continuing to poison them with the pill pockets when I was giving them the prescribed medications. I kept the bag of Greenies and would like them tested. I insured ~$3500 in vet fees with all negative tests. Vets had no idea what was causing the issue but the 5 medications had no impact. I reported the problem to the United States business address for Forza10 by email. They responded with an apology for the inconvenience and an offer to send a replacement box of food. We accepted the offer because at the time, this was the only food the cat was eating. We planned to go through it with a fork in case we found more. Since, we have transitioned the cat to another food and stopped using this brand.  In the email exchange with them, we asked why this problem had not created a recall of the food. They did not answer. We looked deeper at Amazon reviews and found at least 6 instances of very similar looking plastic found in the same food from other purchasers dating back to early May 2021. I first purchased these moldy Bark Bright dental sticks for dogs from BarkBox.com on 3/2/2021. The lot and expiration was 091622 09/22. In March, My dog (b)(6) ate two chews. I gave her one a day, and she got sick on the second day after the second chew. She had one episode of vomiting, and she seemed a little off color that day only. She had no other issues after that. I opened the bag the same day that she got the first chew. They had the mold on them when I opened them, but I thought it was just part of the chew at first. I didn't know it was mold until I took it to my work and looked at it under the microscope after she got sick. I am a clinical microbiologist. Each box comes with two bags of chews and one tube of "toothpaste". Through the clear window of the other unopened package there was fuzzy white growth inside. I have photos of everything. I emailed the company and they issued me a refund. On 7/8/2021 I purchased this item again, but this time from amazon.com. I thought I would give them another chance because I think they do work. My first bag of chews was not affected and my dog did not get sick. I do not know what the lot number was from that bag. The second bag is unopened and again growing white mold. I bought these on Amazon because I didn't want to renew my membership with BarkBox. It is still sealed and I'd be happy to send it to you. The lot is the same: 091622 and expires 9/22. I let them know of my problem and that it has happened before. They issued me a refund. It seems they did not do anything after my dog got sick. It is very hard to report this to the manufacturer, because they either have [1] very short customer "service" hours and/or [2] they DO NOT publish on their contact page what the hours of phone operation is/are. So that is also a root of the problem, a company that makes it difficult to report problems. I have been purchasing this exact same item every month for the past two years. I am very familiar with what the color and smell should be. This particular bag of food does not have the same good color, instead it is "tan" and "bland" or lacking in color AND the smell is not as pleasant. It seems to be borderline usable, BUT the color is not appealing and the smell is not appealing. The cats sort of walk away from this food from this lot/bag. Very different experience from last month. Purchased at walmart. No adverse effects, other than waste of money, cats are not interested in the food from this particular lot/bag. I made the decision to switch him over to Spot &amp; Tango after reading about the food, the company, and the reviews I found online. I received food for all three of our dogs, but decided to transition (b)(6) first to be sure he would actually eat it since he is our only picky eater. The food arrived the morning of June 1st and (b)(6) gobbled up the Spot &amp; Tango quickly and left the other food in his bowl that morning. I slowly transitioned him over the next 10 days to eating the Spot and Tango kibble exclusively. This was the absolute best we had ever seen (b)(6) eat in his young life! On the morning of (b)(6), however, (b)(6) refused his food and instead vomited that morning. Within 10 minutes of vomiting, he began panting, pacing and drooling profusely. We took him to our vet early that morning where they did an xray to check for bloat. Because nothing showed up on the xray, our vet sent us across the street to the emergency vet to have an ultrasound to be very sure no bloat was present. No bloat was found, but (b)(6) was instead diagnosed only with gastroenteritis and made an inpatient for the rest of that day and the vet planned for him to go home the following morning. (b)(6) remained stable at the emergency vet with a good prognosis until around 1am (now (b)(6)). The vet did bloodwork and realized that (b)(6) had taken a turn for the worse and actually had pneumonia. We got the the clinic immediately and gave permission to do anything and everything to save our puppy. (b)(6) was just 15.5 months old. The vets on staff from 1am going forward worked hard to save his life, but by around 330 on the afternoon of (b)(6) body was exhausted and he died. We had (b)(6) necropsy done at (b)(6) and have spoken to a veterinarian who specializes in emergency care who reviewed the vet notes as well as the necropsy. He shared his concern that we may want to have (b)(6) food tested because (b)(6) deteriorated so quickly that it almost doesn't make sense. He was healthy, playful and a normal 15 month old puppy until the morning of (b)(6). I assumed it was bloat and let him rest. After 10 minutes or so, he became lethargic. He wouldn't move at all and felt cold to the touch. We went on to bed but kept him next to me. 3 hours later, I checked on him and he was having problems breathing. We loaded him up and carried him to the vet. They did immediate oxygen, xrays and blood work. He had all signs of a poisoning! He was dehydrated, bad liver enzymes, high white count and heartbeat was irregular. Within a month of mixing the newer food with the old food, (b)(6) dropped from 11 lbs to 9 lbs. at first I really thought the dog food was working. Then she began using outside more often. This is a dog that can hold her bladder all night. She was going multiple times a night, so I followed her. Her stools were jelly like consistency, and I began finding blood after a couple days. She was pacing the house and crying so I knew she was in pain. I took her to the emergency vet, where they said she was extremely dehydrated, and was in the early stages of something called HGE, which is an intestine problem. I switched her to chicken and rice diet to go "easier on her stomach", pain pills, probiotics, and she was better within two days of going off of authority. After a couple weeks, I figured she was ok to restart her normal authority food. In two weeks, she is showing all of the same signs again. EON-470201	9/3/2021 8:44	Cat Water	I have questions about the ingredient list in a new product called "Cat Water." This water is supposed to be good for a cat's urinary tract health. The manufacturer claims that this is because the water is low in minerals and is at a pH (pH = 6.2) that is optimal for the reduction of kidney stones in cats. The issue that I have is that the claimed pH = 6.2 is slightly acidic, and you will find the only listed ingredients on various websites selling the cat water as being ozone (this is used for disinfection, and will dissipate) and sodium hydroxide (a base). The addition of sodium hydroxide to water should raise the pH above 7.0, not lower it. On their website, the manufacturer claims that they obtain a pH between 6.2 and 6.4 with special processes and technology: "VETWATER achieves the perfectly balanced pH in CATWATER-Urinary Formula, specifically formulated to suit the needs of cats, using a unique process and technology." The only way that they could achieve a pH of 6.2 - 6.4 is by adding a weak acid or a buffer solution to the water. Adding base will only make the water more basic. From one of the "one-star" reviews on Amazon (D Johnson), the user claims that they believe that the water made their cats sick: "I started them on it on Thursday. By Friday, first one started vomiting and then Saturday the second and third followed and all continued vomiting and not eating their food until the water was removed. Had to take them all to the vet and $550 later, the vet believes it is the water that caused the issue. So not sure if it is the product in general or if the pack I got had been somehow contaminated. " (Reviewed in the United States July 7, 2021) Given the information in the one-star review above, I am reminded of the issues that some US consumers have seen with so-called alkaline water:  https://arstechnica.com/science/2021/03/complaints-mount-after-5-kids-suffer-liver-failure-linked-to-alkaline-water/  https://www.8newsnow.com/news/local-news/deposition-from-former-employee-of-real-water-raises-questions-company-currently-under-investigation/

			Perhaps the batch of cat water that sickened the cats of D Johnson was a case like that of the problematical "Real Water" above... The cat water listing on the Amazon website claims to have proven results from a clinical study from the University of Montreal -- School of Veterinary Medicine. I looked in Google Scholar for any publication about this, and I could not find it. Long-story-short: If the Cat Water is simply water with added NaOH, it could suffer from the same issues as the alkaline "Real Water" documented above. Without adequate quality control, the water could be shipped out with too much added base, giving rise to serious illness and death, like the Real Water cases. If the pH is really 6.2 - 6.4, something else has been added to the water, and it is not disclosed in the ingredients. I have a (b)(6) from (b)(6)

I called PetSmart to let them know, I left Purina a voicemail and NEVER heard back, I've yet to hear a word from them. PetSmart offered an even exchange, I told them I want a batch that was made as far away from the one I purchased as possible. I opened one can at the store but I couldn't tell. This was Wednesday night 08/25/21. I was leaving the next day to go out of town. I let the people (b)(6) was boarding with know that they need to watch out for mold in the food. I had dry food as well. I bought the chicken and rice & beef and rice variety pack, and also the duck variety pack. I was not able to check the duck variety pack. I opened another can of the chicken variety pack last night 09/01/21 to feed him and saw AGAIN there was more mold. I have taken photos and I kept the first can of the moldy food, I threw away the one from last night. His poop is a mushy/ liquidy yellow and I'm guessing it's from the bad food. He didn't eat at all last night, not even the dry food. I don't trust that the boarders checked the food they were feeding him. It's possible the duck wet food was fine but there's no guarantee. I definitely will never trust Purina again. I need to call PetSmart to let them know about the other pack that has mold.	3.7	Years	Pit Bull	Dog	50	Pound

We were very selective of which product to give them, based on the ingredients. Seemingly, Redford Naturals was good, based on what we read about the product online and noticed in the ingredients. We avoided legumes and lentils, changed the protein up to purposely prevent any food allergies, and ensured they had some grains (rice or oats). Since around the start of 2021, both of our dogs have had some issues that we did not believe were related until now, or connected to Redford Naturals. (b)(6) (our 5-year-old male dog) has had mucus-covered diarrhea off and on for about 7-8 months. He had a fecal test performed that included looking for parasites and giardia. The tests were negative, but he continued with spells of this strange mucus-covered diarrhea. (b)(6) our other 5-year-old dog, had different, worse problems. In January 2021, she became lethargic, gassy, and nauseous. She was treated with a variety of antibiotics and fluids. Immediately following that, she had blood in her stool, which could not be diagnosed, despite more tests. This cost hundreds of dollars in vet visits, medications, and tests. In March 2021, she had droplets of blood in her urine and was treated for that. In early June 2021, she was treated for diarrhea. In late June 2021, she developed pus-filled sacs around her anus. She was diagnosed with perianal fistula (an allergic/immune reaction) and is currently on expensive tacrolimus ointment and cyclosporine capsules. She was moved to an expensive prescription diet and, along with the medications, has been getting better, but we're still unsure what the future may hold, as it's a continuing issue. We decided to move (b)(6) off Redford Naturals in August since he continued to have issues with mucus and diarrhea. Immediately, he was better. His stools were formed and there was no more mucus. All of this makes me convinced that Redford Naturals has been harmful to BOTH of my dogs this past year, and I felt it should be reported so other dogs and their owners aren't similarly bothered and spend hundreds of dollars to correct what Redford Naturals did within the bodies of their dogs. There are so many more details, but that's an overview of the problems we've had since our dogs have eaten Redford Naturals in 2021. I feel like the food has been poisoning my dogs and causing adverse reactions that may continue to haunt at least one of my dogs for their rest of her life.	5 Years	Coonhound - Bluetick	Dog	50	Pound

On July 29, 2021, I opened a new bag of the food (purchased from either Chewey or Petco) and fed it to (b)(6) Almost without fail, each time he ate the dry food, he regurgitated it. He also had diarrhea. I stopped feeding him the food on August 14, 2021, when I noticed he developed what I can best describe as a tic, i.e., he kept thrusting his tongue out of the side of his mouth trying to wipe it clean. I transferred him to an entirely different brand of food, first a broth, as that is what I had in the house, and then to a dry Science Diet. By the next morning, the tic disappeared, and he has not regurgitated his food, nor has he had diarrhead. I sent Royal Canin an email on August 15th about the problem, and included information from the bag, so the Company could identify the source. Immediately after sending the email, I realized I had not included the information about the diarrhea and tic. I decided that, rather than send a series of emails, I would update the Company when it responded to my email. The Company has never responded to my email. EON-468978	8/23/2021 13:40	Redford Naturals Whole Grain Limited Ingredient Diet - Lamb & Oatmeal Recipe, Redford Naturals Whole Grain Limited Ingredient Diet - Beef & Oatmeal Recipe, Redford Naturals Whole Grain Limited Ingredient Diet - Duck & Oatmeal Recipe, Redford Naturals Whole Grain Limited Ingredient Diet - Chicken & Oatmeal Recipe	Over the past couple of years, our dogs have been eating different protein varieties of Redford Naturals Dog Food (chicken, turkey, duck, beef, lamb). We were very selective of which product to give them, based on the ingredients. Seemingly, Redford Naturals was good, based on what we read about the product online and noticed in the ingredients. We avoided legumes and lentils, changed the protein up to purposely prevent any food allergies, and ensured they had some grains (rice or oats). Since around the start of 2021, both of our dogs have had some issues that we did not believe were related until now, or connected to Redford Naturals. (b)(6) (our 5-year-old male dog) has had mucus-covered diarrhea off and on for about 7-8 months. He had a fecal test performed that included looking for parasites and giardia. The tests were negative, but he continued with spells of this strange mucus-covered diarrhea. (b)(6) our other 5-year-old dog, had different, worse problems. In January 2021, she became lethargic, gassy, and nauseous. She was treated with a variety of antibiotics and fluids. Immediately following that, she had blood in her stool, which could not be diagnosed, despite more tests. This cost hundreds of dollars in vet visits, medications, and tests. In March 2021, she had droplets of blood in her urine and was treated for that. In early June 2021, she was treated for diarrhea. In late June 2021, she developed pus-filled sacs around her anus. She was diagnosed with perianal fistula (an allergic/immune reaction) and is currently on expensive tacrolimus ointment and cyclosporine capsules. She was moved to an expensive prescription diet and, along with the medications, has been getting better, but we're still unsure what the future may hold, as it's a continuing issue. We decided to move (b)(6) off Redford Naturals in August since he continued to have issues with mucus and diarrhea. Immediately, he was better. His stools were formed and there was no more mucus. All of this makes me convinced that Redford Naturals has been harmful to BOTH of my dogs this past year, and I felt it should be reported so other dogs and their owners aren't similarly bothered and spend hundreds of dollars to correct what Redford Naturals did within the bodies of their dogs. There are so many more details, but that's an overview of the problems we've had since our dogs have eaten Redford Naturals in 2021. I feel like the food has been poisoning my dogs and causing adverse reactions that may continue to haunt at least one of my dogs for their rest of her life.	6	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	45	Pound

EON-468929	8/22/2021 20:04	Multifunction Renal support Advanced mobility support	Pet (b)(6) lost appetite to her current prescription kidney diets: Royal Canin renal support A dry/ D can food, and wasn't eating all her food (previously she has been provided with Purina NF dry food and Royal canin renal support/hydrolyzed dry food). I have ordered the Royal canin (RC) renal support/advanced mobility support (RS+M) and RC renal support F (RSF) dry food for her to tryout. On (b)(6) both diets were received and I arrived home at 8:12 pm (from door bell camera recording) and later started to prepare old (RC A) and new diets in the kitchen, each diet placed into individual bowl and presented to Pet. Pet smell these diets and ate all the RS+M diet (new diet) in the bowl but only picked up a little bit of the RC RS A (old diet) and RSF (new diet). That night, I went to bed after 11 pm and as usual, (b)(6) stay in the 3rd floor master bedroom and slept on the floor, beside our bed. Between midnight and 5:00 am, my wife woke up as she noticed (b)(6) was retching. She immediately took her to bathroom and (b)(6) vomited out hand full foamy fluid. Next morning (b)(6) I noticed (b)(6) defecated (from 7:39 am to 7:42 am) with soft stool and after I left for work, my wife noticed vomitus (with food kibbles) in the living room (2nd floor). Since those vomitus in the master bedroom mainly with foamy fluid, thus estimate the vomitus (food kibbles )in the living room was vomited out the night before (b)(6). On (b)(6) 2021, from morning to early afternoon my wife noticed (b)(6) vomited several times, frequent urination and we both worried her have pancreatitis for new renal diets she ate might contain high fat that she could not tolerate. Later that afternoon (b)(6) she vomit clear fluid, hematuria noted and was treated with cerenia and low fat diet; that night she no longer vomiting but only drink some water and ate little bit of food. From (b)(6), 2021, her condition getting worse with lethargy, neurological sign (over react when touching her head or when something approaching her; previously she occasionally with facial twitching but nothing worse like this noted before), not eating, bacteriuria noted and only drank some water and was treated with subcutaneous fluid therapy, cerenia, oral antibiotic and low fat diet. On (b)(6) (from morning to afternoon) (b)(6) was tested and treated at a general practice veterinary hospital with IV fluid/dextrose therapy. Her blood work results with abnormal high on all the kidney values with hyperkalemia/hyperphosphatemia and urine specific gravity was 1.010. On (b)(6) night, (b)(6) was transferred to another hospital for urgent/intensive care. She was hospitalized from (b)(6), 2021 and treated for severe azotemia, hyperkalemia (IV fluid therapy, feeding tube, dialysis and more). She was discharged on (b)(6) night and continue to treat with dialysis as outpatient (on (b)(6) (b)(6) On (b)(6) before her dialysis appointment (at 8:00 am) she developed into complication and was sent to urgent care. At urgent care; oxygen therapy, thoracentesis and CPR were performed but she passed away on (b)(6) before 9:00 am.	14	Years	Terrier - West Highland White	Dog	18.5	Pound

We break the pieces into smaller pieces, and when one wouldn't break we saw a hunk of sheared, sharp metal was embedded in it. I reached out to Chewy, then Merrick with photos. Merrick asked me to send it to them and sent a label, I sent it, and though they were gracious, they concluded that there was no way of knowing what the metal was.  I happened to be on a site (Dog Food Advisor) and saw that someone else had also found a piece of metal embedded in Merrick food, and on a deeper search found there were other instances of metal in bags of Merrick food. What I found could have done substantial damage to my dog's mouth and teeth, had we not tried to break a piece of kibble in two.

EON-468385	8/16/2021 18:28	Wellness CORE Grain-Free Lamb Recipe Dry Dog Food	Back in mid-March, (b)(6) came down with what we thought was kennel cough. He had a small recurring cough and seemingly no other major symptoms. We took him into the vet, where they put him on antibiotics and told us to check back in a week. A week later, his cough had worsened, he started skipping meals, and he was noticeably lethargic with heavy breathing. We took him back to the same vet, who gave us a different antibiotic, and sent us home again. The next night, (b)(6) was exhibiting troubling symptoms. His breathing had become increasingly labored, and he wasn't moving around like normal. We decided to take him to a 24 hour vet to see what was going on. It was a challenge to get him to move from his spot, but after some convincing we got him to go outside to load up into the car. He got up and ran outside like his normal self, but on his way back, started losing his balance and wobbling badly. We had seen enough and immediately rushed him to the emergency vet clinic. I checked (b)(6) in at (b)(6) at 9pm for x-rays and additional testing. At midnight I got a call from the doctor who told me that (b)(6) cough was due to fluid buildup in his lungs. He said he had heart disease, congestive heart failure, and likely had 3-12 months to live. Obviously no dog owner wants to get this news. The next morning, a different doctor called and said she potentially had some good news. After the diagnosis we got the night before, any positive news was welcomed. She explained that based on what we'd been feeding (b)(6) his condition could be diet-related, and could potentially be reversible. (b)(6) had been on a grain-free diet (Wellness CORE Grain-Free Lamb Recipe) for the past year and a half, as recommended by our vet. It turns out that dogs on "grain free, boutique, or exotic" diets were increasingly prone to heart conditions, primary Dilated Cardiomyopathy (DCM), which was one of (b)(6) specific diagnoses. She said that with a change in diet and a lot of medication, his condition was potentially reversible and there was a chance he could live a full life. Once (b)(6) could be taken off oxygen and was cleared for release from (b)(6), we took	3	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	50	Pound

			him directly to (b)(6) to see a cardiologist. We were lucky to get an appointment there, as it initially appeared that we'd have to wait weeks to get in. (b)(6) was able to make a special request for (b)(6) and got him seen right away. The cardiologist there ran more tests and confirmed the DCM, noting that it was severe and suspected to be diet-related. She also diagnosed him with congestive heart failure and a severely enlarged heart. We were sent home with 3 medications to be given every 12 hours and needed to supplement his diet with 2 amino acids. We followed the treatment plan and monitored (b)(6) closely for a week. His condition did not improve much, and we took him back for a checkup. The doctors said his body was handling the medication well and to stay the course, as it can take some time for the meds to work. A week later, (b)(6) health seemed to be declining again and we reached the point where we felt he needed another ER visit. We took him in and this time, they kept him 2 nights, ran additional tests, and diagnosed him with 2 arrhythmias, which would require additional medications to treat. The doctor said to try the new meds, but if these didn't seem to be working, the diagnosis would probably change for the worse. (b)(6) was now ordered to take 5 different medicines and 2 amino acids (18 pills a day), to be administered 5 times per day between 6:00am and 10:00pm. He needed food with some of the pills, so we had to spread out his feeding schedule to 3 times a day. We also had 2 additional pills to use as needed to help with his nausea and lack of appetite. We started this new regimen and a few days passed without much improvement. At this point we were not very optimistic. (b)(6) had lost a lot of weight, was not eating regularly, continued to have very labored breathing and was lethargic most of the time. His spine was protruding and his rib cages were clearly visible due to the enlarged heart and lack of nutrition. We had a hard time getting him to eat and tried a few different foods with no luck. We finally decided to experiment with non-dog food options and made him cooked chicken, fish, beef, and rice with yogurt. He was eating this but wasn't putting on much weight. We eventually found a dry food he would eat (Purina Pro Plan With Prescription Light Protein

			eventually found a dry food he would eat (Purina Pro Plan with Probiotics High Protein Shredded Blend Beef &amp; Rice Formula) and he began to bulk up and regain his energy. His breathing leveled off and his energy was getting better every day. He continued to improve and after a couple weeks, he was back to acting like his normal self. At our next checkup, the doctor said (b)(6) kidneys were handling all the medication well, and he looked good. We set up a 3 month checkup for June 30th. At our June 30th checkup, the doctor said he looked good and was still handling the medication well, but the x-rays showed his heart still appeared to be enlarged. She wants to wait another 3 months before doing an ultrasound to look further. We have a follow-up scheduled for Sept 30th. At this point, we are happy that (b)(6) has made these improvements. He is still taking 18 pills a day spread out over 5 "pillings". We are going to stay the course and hope that he can one day make a full recovery and get off the medication. We have to just take it day by day and hope for continued improvement. He is such an important part of our family that we'd do anything to keep him healthy.

Below is her story. (b)(6) was diagnosed with DCM on 5/5 and further confirmed with Cardiologist on 5/6. Her first symptom was a cough near the end of January. At the Vet, they thought maybe kennel cough but our two other dogs at home weren't coughing. We took her back to the Vet a couple more times still puzzled because her lungs were clear and the cough was intermittent. In April, our Vet suggested we can try Temaril P if her cough was allergy related. We started the Temaril P April 29th and a few days later went up to the mountains. On Friday night, we noticed her belly was bloated. Next day, we called a local vet and we were able to get appointment on Sunday morning where she was diagnosed with DCM. This local vet wasn't familiar with nutritional DCM but we were told it was bad and she might not make it much longer. (note: It was super unfortunate to have started the Steroid Temaril P. We learned it is definitely a medication you would NEVER give a dog with DCM but we didn't know at the time and she was only on it for about 4 or 5 days. In a way the combination of Temaril P and being in the mountains, may have accelerated her symptoms, so while unfortunate, we may have never found out until much later) Luckily, we were able to get a Cardiology appointment the next day on Monday. (b)(6) showed advanced DCM and CHF. Her heart was almost as big as her rib cage and her FS% (fractional shortening) was ONLY 9.3%.	7	Years	American Pit Bull Terrier	Dog	58	Pound

The following day, Wednesday, August 4, 2021, my dog (b)(6) refused breakfast and dinner. He has never done that the whole time we've had him. I bought a small bag of Purina One to see if he would eat it. He did. That night overnight he vomited violently in several places of the house and had diarrhea. Thursday morning, August 4, 2021 I took (b)(6) to (b)(6) because at first I thought he had an intestinal blockage. They x-rayed him and found no blockage. I started to feed (b)(6) cooked chicken and rice per discharge instructions. On Friday, August 5, 2021 my other dog, (b)(6) refused the Nature's Recipe Chicken and Rice dry dog food. EON-467512	8/6/2021 10:04	Felix as good as it looks Felix selects in gravy Felix Kitten Gourmet Natural Creations	Initially when they became fussy with the sheba I used to buy, I switched them to the gourmet which they absolutely loved. Great I thought, bit more expensive but that's ok as I like them to have the best I can get them. Very quickly I noticed that they all had upset tummies and were hardly able to make it to the litter tray. I decided that maybe it was a little too much too soon so I reverted to mixing it with their sheba. There was still no sign of improvement, especially in our older long haired cat and he got quite distressed as he was getting in a right little pickle with his back end fur getting messy. I called the vets and he was given antibiotics. Once he had completed the course of antibiotics he was still having an upset tummy so I decided to try the felix food, a few different varieties but they especially liked the selects. Our older cat seemed to improve but was no longer interested in wet food and to this day I cannot get him to eat wet food. Our other boy who had just turned 1 then went off his food for days and he became very lethargic and ended up severely dehydrated. We called the vets and they gave him IV fluids and said his temp was 40.5 way too high! there was no obvious reason and I still didn't associate the food but they said he may have had an allergic reaction to something. During this time our 4mth kitten had also started to have an upset tummy and we just put it down to the change of food, and he seemed ok in himself. Our other boy had to have 2 courses of antibiotics before he improved and he was also losing fur - we actually feared that we were going to lose him and the vets said we had been very lucky that we called them. He also went off wet food and we were told he had taken to going over into the neighbours to eat the dog food that they were putting out for the hedgehogs. Our Kitten (b)(6) by now had a permanent upset tummy and did not know he was even pooping, just wherever he went or laid down it would be spilling out, we had to have the carpets cleaned several times! We started to notice blood in his poop and we again called the vets. He was given probiotics and antibiotics and fluids to no avail and so the vets had to come back and do blood tests. The vets then called and said that they wanted to do advanced blood tests. At this point we decided enough was enough and we moved all 5 cats on to Whiskas delights and they absolutely devoured it! Unfortunately, our kitten has been so affected he now has a B12 deficiency and has to have supplements prescribed. He still has a very upset tummy!	7	Months	British cat	Cat	2.5	Kilogram
			The vets have now asked for more blood tests as they are concerned around his white cells and have suggested that he may have Lymphoma disease. I appreciate that this wouldn't be caused by the food but if he does have a serious illness then the felix food certainly hasn't helped! Now he is on Whiskas he can at least control his motions and make it to the litter tray in time. The vets are coming back in 3 weeks to take more bloods and they have said that if the tests are clear, then they will be able to say 100% as to whether he has experienced an allergic reaction to the food we were feeding him.

We quickly cleaned everything up and noticed that every time he took a drink of water he would immediately throw up mucus w/water. So he was not able to keep anything down. We took him to the emergency vet clinic and they did an X-ray to determine that he had a piece of the nylabone edible bone lodged at his esophagus. They scoped him 3 times to try to dislodge it and were unsuccessful and then they tried to take a balloon down and try to dislodge it that way? I figured he was just being picky, so fed him other fare. Yesterday, I opened a packet of Cesar Turkey Recipe wet food, and noticed that it had liquified and was rotten. I figured it was just a one-time thing, as I've used Cesar for years. The second packet seemed fine, but he refused to eat it. I then opened three more, and all were in different stages of decay, and two had maggots in it. They smelled horrible and were mostly liquified (this is not a liquid food; it's a soft morsel-type food). He has been eating food from the same batch for weeks. During this time, he refused to eat, and I had to feed him other products. Yesterday is the first time I noticed any rotten food.	17	Years	Chihuahua	Dog	8	Pound

EON-466995	7/31/2021 1:56	Blue Buffalo Wilderness with Chicken Adult Indoor 9.5 lbs	On the morning of July 27, 2021, I noticed our cat (b)(6) was coughing and gagging, and spitting up a small amount of clear fluid. It appeared to be similar to how cats appear when trying to cough up a hairball, and that's what I thought it was at first. She continued to do this very frequently throughout the morning. As I rough estimate, I'd say about 5-6 times an hour. This isn't normal behavior for her, but I thought maybe she had a larger hairball than usual. Just after 1:00 PM, I noticed she was having difficulty breathing and displaying open-mouth breathing. I immediately rushed her to our normal vet who took her in as an emergency walk-in. On the way to the vet, her breathing worsened and she lost consciousness briefly at least once. I shook her and she regained consciousness pretty quickly. I think this may have happened twice, but I was driving and wasn't able to observe the second occurrence as clearly. I believe the stress of being in the pet carrier and the car trip may have contributed to, or escalated, this episode. The doctor did a physical exam, blood pressure monitoring, and x-rays. Her breathing had stabilized and the doctor didn't find anything conclusive. A slight heart murmur was detected at a well-exam in January 2021 and was still present, so the doctor referred us to a cardiologist at an emergency veterinary center for an ultrasound of the heart. The emergency center did another physical exam, blood work, and ultrasound of the heart (to rule out heart failure). Nothing conclusive was found by this doctor either, so we took (b)(6) home and monitored her. When I fed the cats dinner that evening, she went to eat. I noticed that every time she tried to take a bite, she would gag and spit up clear fluid before she could even take the bite. It seemed that she wanted to eat, but was too nauseous. She eventually forced herself to eat, but threw up the food almost immediately afterward. The next morning, I noticed the other two cats started doing the same behavior. They threw up after breakfast and continued to gag and throw up clear fluid throughout the day. The cats are never outside and had not gotten into anything they shouldn't have. We have a 4-month-old kitten who eats a different food, specifically for kittens, and she has been normal. I can't think of anything else that could have caused these episodes, except the food. We have been feeding them this food almost exclusively, along with a hairball formula of the same brand occasionally. The hairball food had not been given to them recently though. The only thing different was that we had opened a new bag of food. I believe the bag may have been spoiled or contaminated, and hope you can have the batch/lot tested if possible. We have since changed their food and the episodes seem to have resolved (approximately within 2-3 days). Thank you.	9	Years	Domestic Shorthair	Cat	15	Pound

She wasn't improving and I started to feed her rice with her regular food (Purina One chicken and rice), or rice with chicken and no dog food at all. When she started eating tons of grass and vomiting, and then she started to have bloody stools; I withheld the treats altogether. I kept feeding her rice with her dog food and she has started to feel better and better. Her stools look nearly normal today. After two more days, he refused all food, wasn't using the litter box, and was not acting like his normal affectionate self. We took him to the vet to find out that he was having problem with his kidneys. One of his readings after the bloodwork for his kidneys was so high that it did not at first even register on their chart. The vet said it was 5 times higher than it should be. They said he had pancreatitis as well, and had a very high fever. He had to stay all day, receive fluids for dehydration, as well as multiple other medications. we brought him home for the weekend, and had to take him back on Monday due to him really not improving over the weekend. We again had to now spend another $500 on IV fluids, X-rays, more medications, etc, and found out that he is nw compacted with fecal matter and will need to have an enema while under sedation in the next day or so. It was also noted that his spleen is enlarged and they recommended today that we take him to a specialist so that they can perform an ultrasound of his spleen. He is now on antibiotics, sedatives, anti-nausea medication, and a strict wet food diet as a result of eating the Metabolic Weight Management Diet food. When I opened the package before the one described in this message, she slowed her eating and didn't eat every meal, which was highly unusual. She also had uncomfortable stomach sounds. One night, after a long bout of stomach discomfort, she became extraordinarily lethargic, her breathing slowed to a just-detectable level, and I thought I'd have to take her to the ER. She recovered, though, but wouldn't eat for a couple of days. I tossed the last bit of her food (there was only a meal or two left) and opened a new package. She vomited every meal I fed her from this package. I immediately switched her to some canned food (different brand) that she'd eaten last winter when Nature's Fresh was not available locally. I mixed it with rice and gave her a small bit. She didn't vomit. Three meals later, she has not vomited. EON-466493	7/25/2021 16:52	V-Dog Kind Kibble	Our dog had had trouble digesting many traditional meat-based, high protein dog foods as a puppy. After trying several food, we tried V Dog, a vegan food. She appeared to do very well on it and was on this food for several years before her death. She had developed a random "hacking" very infrequently about a year into starting V Dog. The vet was not concerned. 8 months before her death, she developed an interrmittent cough. Since she was so healthy otherwise and her lungs and heart sounded good on an exam, her vet was again unconcerned - maybe allergies. She remained on V Dog food. About a month before her death, we decided to add Taurine/omega 3 supplements as a precaution to support her health as she got older. 3 weeks before her death, her cough got worse. Her vet could not see her right away. 6 days before her death the coughing intensified. The vet took an x ray of the heart and chest and didn't see anything unusual and had her start antibiotics. 2 days before her death, she went in for an exam to follow up and the vet said she looked good and to continue the antibiotics. 1 day before her death, the coughing, which was getting better, got worse again, this time appearing to cause her pain, with almost a whistle sound. Her vet did not respond to the call about this. The following day, after repeated calls to the vet and an attempt at using a steroid/cough suppressant to help with her cough, she was not breathing well and her gums were pale. She went into an oxygen kennel immediately at the emergency vet. Oxygen and medications to clear fluid did not help. She died on the table as they got an x ray film. The film showed left congestive heart failure caused by DCM. Her breed is not genetically predisposed to DCM. Ultrasound at the moment of death confirmed the presence of fluid.	7	Years	Sheepdog - Iceland	Dog	20	Pound
EON-466487	7/25/2021 15:04	Applaws kitten chicken dry food	I have been giving my kitten the Applaws Chicken dry food. 2 days ago he started urinating blood. I took him to the vet immediately and initially they didnt pick up the problem, however upon more tests, he was diagnosed with a fatal bone marrow disease. Unfortunately he had to be put to sleep as it was too advanced to be saved. As i heard the food has been recalled, however no one has been punished for what happened. How did the food pass the quality test? It was compared to rat poison. Hundreds of people have lost their beloved cats and no one has been found guilty for what happened. Applaws are still operating and sending food out even though their food killed hundreds.	1	Years	Persian	Cat	3	Kilogram

EON-466448	7/24/2021 16:32	Purina Beneful Incredibites just for small dogs	(b)(6) has eaten Purina Beneful Incredibites 3oz can, 1 can twice a day with a tablespoon (1 tbsp) of Hill Science Diet Sensitive Skin and Stomach Small Breed Bites dry food (not because of her stomach, our other dog has allergies, so it's the dry food he eats), for the past two maybe three years. It's convenient because it allows us to have a different flavor, with an exceptionally picky pup- and she has always done well with it in terms of digestion. Occasionally we will switch to the other Purina Beneful wet food in the 10oz (I believe that's the amount) tubs, just to keep her from getting too bored with flavors- she really is picky. Typically we purchase one 12 count and two 30 count packs per month, from either Amazon, Target, Chewy, or PetSmart. On July 11, 2021 we purchased a 12 count pack from Target (the usual salmon, beef, chicken). When we gave her the first can from that pack that night, she had diarrhea and an episode of vomiting the next morning (7/12/21). Initially I thought maybe she got into something in the backyard, and didn't think twice about it and gave her her usual meal. That night for dinner she had her normal meal, as we normally would do if she did ingest something in the backyard that gave her an upset tummy for the day (assuming the stool didn't look alarming). Within a few hours she again had diarrhea, this time several times back to back, and 100% liquid. The next morning (7/13/21) we cut back and gave her half a can, without dry food. When we got home that afternoon she had thrown up again and had expelled her bowels all over the carpet. I knew she wasn't okay. I decided to give her white rice with a tiny bit of dry food for dinner. She was perfectly fine. I gave her the same thing the next morning (7/14/21) and evening for dinner, and both times she had no GI reactions. So the following morning (7/15/21-36 hours after the last episode) I resumed her normal diet 3oz can, 1 tbsp of dry food- barely three hours later she had another episode of diarrhea. That's when I realized it was her wet food that was causing it- it wouldn't have been the dry food because our other dog was having no issues, and she was perfectly fine when she was getting dry food with rice. I called her vet who recommended I call the place where I purchased the food (Target), the manufacturer (Purina/Nestle), and report it (FDA). I'm reporting it first, I will call Purina/Nestle after I finish this, Target is my last step. She has been getting dry food with white rice for the past eight full days (and this morning with absolutely no issue), she had a total of five cans over four days broken up into five meals (three breakfasts, two dinners). There are seven remaining cans that I am keeping in case I need to relay any numbers off of them. This has never happened with her before (or our other dog and the dry food), I'm very concerned about other dogs consuming food from the same batch and becoming ill- or having already done so. Please contact me for any further information if needed.	11	Years	Greyhound - Italian	Dog	13	Pound

EON-466381	7/23/2021 14:24	Eukanuba Adult Large Breed Chicken Flavor Dry Dog Food	I recently received a new bag of Eukanuba Large Breed dog food (chicken flavor). I've been feeding my dog this food since she was a puppy and she has always loved it. After opening this bag and feeding her, she seemed a bit "off." More lethargic than normal, barely touching her food (which is VERY unusual for her - I even tried adding peanut butter and she wouldn't touch it...), and her poops have been either extremely soft or she's been having diarrhea. My friends dog got into a little bit of her food the other night and the next day was also experiencing diarrhea. We think it may be a bad batch of dog food. After 2.5 days of this happening, I decided to stop feeding her food from that bag. She seems to be doing better and getting her appetite back.	1	Years	Retriever - Labrador	Dog	62	Pound

(b)(6) Part of my order contained 2 of the canned dog food, SIMPLY NOURISH SOURCE ADULT PORK &amp; BEEF. This was my dog, (b)(6) favorite flavors. I had ordered this for her lots of times with no issues. However, something must have been wrong with this batch. ON JUNE 11TH,2021. I mixed this food with the same dry kibble she always has. About a tablespoon worth of canned food for the kibble. So one can can last about 5 days. The next day I noticed my dog had diarrhea, and VERY LOUD stomach noises, but was otherwise fine. After the third day of diarrhea I thought that it might be the food. I stopped giving her the food, and gave her something else. The diarrhea continued until I could take her to the vet on JUNE 15th. The vet figured it was a bacterial infection and prescribed antibiotics. She couldn't tell me if it was definitely the food or something my dog might have picked up somewhere else. So to not take any chances, I threw the rest of the food away. And my dog got better. JULY 20TH, 2021 She still had one can left that I held off on giving her. Since I didn't know for sure if it was the food or not, I gave my dog a small spoon of this can with her kibble. Diarrhea again with the same loud noises coming from her stomach. She has no appetite and I'm afraid I'm going to have to take her to the vet again. She's had no change in habits or other foods. This specific can of dog food is the Only thing in common. I've looked at some reviews for this specific flavor and and a few other people have complained about the same thing.

I phoned Amazon three times to discuss the issue with them and each time was told something along the lines of "Oh my God! We had no idea! We will pull the product immediately." But weeks later it's still up and still has the Amazon's Choice endorsement. Amazon is clearly aware of the problem and yet takes no action. I have saved a sample of the counterfeit vitamins. Senior Chicken and Brown Rice recipe	I have an older dog and decided to try a senior type of dog food for her and would maybe add certain nutritions that younger dog food don't provide. I decided to go with The Blue Buffalo Brand with the Senior type. Anytime I change her food, she avoids for a couple of hours and then devours it. In this case, she did the same but literally 3-4 hours later, everyone in my house saw visible signs of distress and my dog. She's older so she lays down a lot but whenever everyone in the house come together in one room, she never fails to be right there. Anytime we are about to walk out the door or go in the backyard, she bets us to the door. When the whole family is slowly going to sleep in their rooms, she will follow behind us until we are all in our rooms and then she will lay down in her bed and stay there until the morning. Well, not after that dog food. Once we all saw the distress in our dog, we started intensely watching her. She laid down that entire day. Not once did she try to follow us or play with us. Even when we came back home, she wasn't excited and wagging her tail. I knew then that it was a problem with the food. Literally hours before we gave her that food, she was perfectly fine. That night, we noticed she was licking her lips profusely, as humans do when they are about to vomit. 5 hours later, my brother was woken up by scratching at his room door and found my dog vomiting all over the house. He let her outside, and all she did was eat grass and we have had my dog for 14 years and never had she eaten grass the way she did that night/early morning. We immediately cleaned everything, including her bowls, threw the food in the garbage and went to get her regular Rachael Ray Nutrish dog food. After 3 days of wet dog food in order to clean out her system, my baby was perfectly fine and back to herself, thank God. After speaking with fellow dog owners, including my aunt, I was informed that Blue Buffalo was her dog's everyday food and for a while, her dog seemed pretty depressed but with the lack of children around for play, she thought that couldn't be the case. Sadly, my aunts dog passed away shortly after noticing very big red flags, including depression, stomach irritation and frequent grass eating that she said after eating Blue Buffalo Dry Dog Food.	14	Years	Collie (unspecified)	Dog	60	Pound

I moved from the (b)(6) the end of March 2021. Since I could not find the dog food I fed them in (b)(6), I had to find a new dog food. In (b)(6), I fed them Nutrena River Run Hi-Pro (27/15, the blue bag) or the red bag Valu-Pak. I started feeding my dog SportMix, mostly SportMix Premium Hi-Energy. In this time, I bought a bag or two of mini chunks too. Until 2-3 weeks ago, my dogs wolfed down their food as they did with the Nutrena River Run. However, in early June, I noticed that (b)(6) (b)(6) (b)(6) (b)(6) (b)(6) and (b)(6) weren't very interested in the food when I gave them their daily dinner. The others weren't all that excited either but to a lesser extent. Several of those I just named also didn't finish their meals. (b)(6) then (b)(6) did this the most. She often would eat a bite or two and then leave it. I also noticed in this time that (b)(6) started pooping in her plastic crate when I was gone during the day. This is not normal for any of my dogs. (b)(6) was the first one to get diarrhea. Then (b)(6) started having uncontrollable diarrhea both day and night. I bought my last bag of SportMix (black bag) on 16 June 2021 at TSC, (b)(6). I opened it and fed it to my dogs on Friday, 18 June. When I saw that several more of my 21 dogs had diarrhea Saturday morning, I bought a bag of Purina Dog Chow (chicken based, thus the color of puddles of diarrhea in one of the pics). For those who hadn't shown any symptoms, I fed them half SportMix and half Purina Dog Chow for Saturday and Sunday. By Tuesday, 2 of those dogs had diarrhea, one had swollen eyes, and one vomited. The last feeding of SportMix was on Sunday, 20 June 2021. For the lot numbers, I have pics of some of the SportMix dog food bags including the last 2, and one cat food bag. My cats were affected too. I have a list of all my animals and their status of symptoms. I have pics of the puddles of diarrhea and bloody diarrhea. I sent the above 2 paragraphs (as well as more text), the list and the pics to Midwestern Pet Food via an email. I was contacted by their veterinarian (b)(6). EON-464406	6/27/2021 17:04	Fancy Feast (all kinds) 3 ounce cans	Purina Fancy Feast label says there is "3 oz." net weight of food in the can. I have been weighing cans for weeks and have never found one with 3 ounces of food in it. It is always 2.58, 2.66, 2.67, etc., but NEVER 3.0 ounces. It is always 1/2 to 1/4 ounce off. The empty cans weigh .32 ounces, so the total package should weigh about 3.3 ounces, but the total package weighs 3.04, 3.02, etc., so you KNOW that there is NOT 3 ounces of food in the can. This is hurting me, as the consumer, because I pay for 3 ounces of food per can. It is hurting my pets because they are not receiving the full amount stated on the can. BUT it is sure benefiting Nestle Purina Petcare, which profits off of the shortage per can!!!

EON-464362	6/26/2021 17:24	9 Lives Indoor Complete	We have been feeding our cat Abbey "9 Lives Indoor Complete" dry cat for for many years. We buy the 20 lbs bags. I bought two new bags from Walmart on March 29th 2021 and began using the first one on June 13th. Starting the next day Abbey was throwing up all over the house. This cat never vomits and has never been sick in her life. She is only animal in the house and has never been outdoors. Thinking it was just a stomach upset we decided to wait a few days and see if it stopped but it only got worse. I emptied both her bowls back into the bag in question and saw there was a totally different lot # on the 2nd bag I had bought in March and immediately began using that. The vomiting stopped immediately. I saved the almost-full bag in question. The UPC is '0 79100 52446 4', the lot# ends with '...0644'. The lot # and best-by date is half printed so the beginning of the lot # is unreadable. Best by date is July 2022. The bag appeared normal and sealed when I purchased it. Abbey does not eat any other foods or treats, she doesn't like them, and drinks nothing but clean fresh water. I contacted the manufacturer (J.M. Smucker Co) and they did ask for information and said they would relay the complaint to their quality dept, but didn't seem interested in pursuing what happened, or testing this food. So that was a bit of a disappointment. I have photos of the bag, the cat, the vomit and all the email correspondence I've had with the manufacturer thus far. In light of what happened to our pets in early 2007 from poisoned ingredients, I am taking this very seriously and implore your attention and assistance. EON-464315	6/25/2021 18:44	Abound Superfood Blend Salmon egg & pumpkin recipe	This past weekend my fiancé and I were out of the normal kibble we give to our dogs (Gentle Giants). It was out of stock everywhere other than ordering from Chewy which takes a couple of days. We soon figured out there is a national shortage on a lot of dog foods right now. Friday night (June 18) we got a “filler” food to tide them over until the morning. Specifically Abound superfood blend with salmon, egg, and pumpkin. We just gave them each a half cup mixed with what we had left of their regular diet of this and called it a day. Saturday night my dog (b)(6) had major projectile watery and dark diarrhea followed by vomiting up to 6 times throughout the night to early Sunday morning. In a panic, I took him to the Animal ER. He was foaming at the mouth. They did several tests for viruses and obstruction, he ended up with an imbalance in his flora determined from the food per the vet who diagnosed him, he gave him an injection for nausea, prescribed him a bland diet/antibiotics. He felt pretty lethargic until Monday June 21 where he finally perked up but is still a little upset with his tummy, he will be okay luckily. Tuesday night June 22 our other dog (b)(6) began throwing up about 3:45am. He wouldn't stop, the first time he threw up it was food (we have been giving them boiled chicken and rice per vet recommendations until they're healed). After at least 10 more times, he was vomiting blood and dry heaving. So, here we go to the ER again. That vet was amazing and told us the same thing, a different vet this time, it helped that they had some similarities to compare with what happened to (b)(6). Long story short this food that I just grabbed for a quick solution for my dogs caused all of this and after reading about it I learned that it has been recalled before due to causing death and renal failure in dogs. The branding looks amazing right?? I'm going to find out how to report this because this isn't normal AT ALL. I have contacted the manufacturer, Kroger distribution consumer affairs etc. (b)(6) is the senior claims agent at Kroger in (b)(6) whom I was escalated to in order to relay this serious matter. I wanted them to be aware of this dog food because I thought both of my dogs were going to die. I told her we cleaned up 6 piles of blood that our dog had thrown up and told her that I wanted to report to help others from causing this for the dog's sake. I told her about the research I had done on the manufacture (sun mills) and the recalls that have happened within the last 3 years starting in 2018 (which I found in the fda website) I also mentioned that	2 Years	Dogo Argentino	Dog	65	Pound

			I have read several online reviews from multiple sites of people complaining about their dogs vomiting and having tummy issues from this exact brand, even their cat food that this brand makes. She proceeded to tell me that she doesn't see that it is a problem because I am the only person who has complained about this and she "can't just blame it on the food based on online reviews" she clearly didn't take my concern for public health/negligence for pet food seriously. She began to argue with me and said that there was nothing she could do if I didn't have the dog food any longer. She also laughed at me as if I was being overly reactive to the situation. I reassured her that I wasn't asking for money or a refund or anything like that, I just wanted them to be aware of what one of the many dog food options that they sell is obviously a problem and I wanted to help others know about this so there can be an investigation done or at least try to look into this trend that has proven to increase the last 3 years. I feel like she will not report this and she said because there aren't any other reports other than mine, that there is nothing she can do for me. I hope this is seen by someone who also thinks that this could be dangerous going forward and I would hate for others to have to go through what we did this last week with our dogs just to finally put an end to this brand and get it off the shelf before it kills or harms more dogs.

EON-463786	6/19/2021 17:20	Blue Wilderness with Chicken	Hello FDA. My name is (b)(6) and I was a veterinary technician who worked in both emergency and general practice. My cat (b)(6) was a healthy 4 year old cat who was consuming Blue Wilderness for several years before I learned more about pet nutrition. I brought (b)(6) to work with me to receive vaccines and preventative care. I performed routine bloodwork and noticed her ALT values (liver enzymes) were nearly 3 times the amount it should be in a cat. In veterinary practice, this would deem (b)(6) to be in liver failure even though she was not showing any clinical signs. A bile acids test was sent to a lab (IDEXX) and it came back normal. I also had a veterinarian ultrasound her liver which showed no significant findings. She was also prescribed Denamarin for a month to see if that would help her liver values and after rechecking her bloodwork a month later, her values were still extremely high. I took it upon myself to change her cat food from Blue Wilderness to Hills and rechecked her bloodwork a few months later and her liver enzymes were completely back to normal. I feel confident that that pet food caused liver issues in my cat and am very concerned for the other pets who are on this type of diet.	5	Years	Domestic Longhair	Cat	10	Pound

Both cats started vomiting so I tried another formula by Orijen cat and kitten from a different store and the vomiting continued and also got worse. My youngest cat started loosing wait and was crying in pain before he through up. The 4 year old was constantly crying / attention seeking after eating so I could find her piles of throw up. I spoke with a friend who said both of her cats experienced the same thing. I looked online to see the reviews and so many say their cats are throwing up this awfully expensive food. I had dogs prior and they did well on it, but that was 10 years ago. I looked at the label and noticed they use ALOT of beans, lentils, and pea protein which is not biologically appropriate for cats.. it's cheap protein filler. The brand instinct just uses peas so my cats switched back no problem without the gradual shift. Instinct is also cheaper which made me think to try the more expensive Orijen because we want what's best for our pets. I was wrong to assume expensive equals better but at the same time Orijen products are not only worse but making pets sick. The manufacturer did not indicate the specific vitamins and minerals, live microorganisms, etc. that are in the product and how much of each ingredient is in the product. My pet hasnt had any bad reaction to the product yet because i have not used it. But i am afraid that there might be some ingredients that may cause harm to my pet in the long run if i use it because there aren't any exact ingredient disclosed to consumers. I have been feeding her "Blue" for years and many of their products are grain-free. I gave her these products unknowing that they could put her at risk. I basically chose the flavor that she favored and many of them were grain-free. Grain-free products should only be given if the animal has been proven to have allergies to grains, because grains are important in an animal's diet. Every dog product on the market that is grain-free needs to have a warning label on it stating that feeding a grain-free diet can lead to heart disease! This is a proven fact! EON-462691	6/5/2021 22:12	NATIVE PET YAK CHEWS 10 EXTRA LARGE CHEWS	I opened the container of Native Pet Yak Chews I recently purchased today, the seal was not broken, and the smell of mold was very strong. I pulled one out and it was covered in mold. I looked through the container and could see mold was all over the chews. I then sent an email to Native Pet and also Amazon where I always purchase them. I have purchased them many times, and previously (maybe 2 months ago) had received a container with a broken lid and punctured seal. I sent notifications at that time as well, but never heard back. I kept those chews because they did not seem to be bad and thought maybe the damage occurred in transport. This time is a serious issue.

We thaw the frozen broth and use a small amount on their food as incentive. Went fine until this last container of the broth. One vomited once but the other did not but both developed severe diarrhea and appears that at least one has groin pain when going. When we checked the product container other than a slightly off odor nothing else unusual. We have the container and also another one since we purchased two at the same time. This bone caused my healthy dog to become so ill he almost died. Dog development a compacted colon, infection, and tears in the GI tract. He was hospitalized for 7 days at a cost of $4,800. This bone splintered easily which ultimately tore up my poor dog's insides. He literally almost died, and if we had not had the financial means to hospitalize him he would have to have been put down. He is a young dog that loves bones without issue, but now thanks to Butcher's Bone my dog will never eat another bone again and could very well require lifelong medication for the damage caused. The last couple of cases of 24 cans I received have a very foul, distinctive and offensive odor. I had COVID-19 earlier this year and initially assumed the horrific odor was a lasting side effect of the virus since I did lose sense of smell and taste while positively infected. Typically I discard any food that smells or looks abnormal, however, since I work long hours and don't have time to visit the store often to shop for cat food, I have been feeding the food to my pets. They have been consuming the food and have not yet shown any signs of illness. After opening the cans of food, the awful smell lingers in my home for some time. The smell makes me nauseous. It is very distinct but not easily described. I have also smelled the same odor in dog feces at the small non-profit animal shelter where I work. Two of those dogs are puppies who have been previously diagnosed with bacterial overgrowth. The fact the smell from the cans is exactly like the odor of the feces is worrisome. I have even noticed that my own feces has begun to smell of the food. Clearly, I am not consuming the cat food myself, but I do handle the cans and the plates from which my cats eat the food. The shelter where I work does not use Friskies for any of the animals there. I reported the problem to Purina online to their consumer email address. They responded within hours stating my situation was unique and that they would send me a coupon to replace the food with other products. I have also contacted Chewy.com to stop the automatic shipping of these foods and to advise them of the problem. We are still waiting on the salmonella test results, but the vet confirmed that this was bacterial infection from what she had ingested in the kibble. I'm horrified that this happened to my sweet furry little shih-tzu -- she does not have food allergies or issues and has not had problems in the past. When I went to remove the containers from the bottom rows, I saw that the lid was not on tightly on one of the containers and there was a lot more gunk on that container. When I went to pick it up, the lid came off and then I observed that there were little white worms crawling all over that container between the foil seal and the plastic lid. At that point I threw all the containers in the box and carried it outside. I took a picture and video of the worms on the container inside the box and also a picture of the label on the outside of the box. I then put the box and all the containers in a garbage bag, sprayed inside the bag with bug spray and threw it in the garbage. Tonight when opening a can of dog food I had barely started to lift the pulltab when the canned exploded and the entire lid shot off. There were no visible dents or issues with the cans which clearly seems to me would indicate some kind of bacterial build up possibly botulism in the food. I tried to report the issue to Amazon but received nothing but automated responses. I went to the Amazon page for the product and was shocked to see how many people have been writing reviews for two years indicating issues with the canning process for this food. People have been reporting bulging lids, exploding tops, foul smelling food, diarrhea and sickness and their dogs after eating going back to June 2019 on this product and they've done nothing to fix their production issues. Clearly they have a problem with their canning that is allowing contaminated food to be sent to customers and despite dozens of reviews from people on their product page indicating issues they have done nothing to fix the problem. This is the link to the webpage that shows the dozens of one star reviews indicating issues in accounting process and foul food -  https://smile.amazon.com/Wag-Food-Chicken-Vegetable-Recipe/product-reviews/B07HJTW65Y/ref=cm_cr_getr_d_paging_btm_next_3?ie=UTF8&amp;reviewerType=all_reviews&amp;filterByStar=one_star&amp;pageNumber=3
EON-462262	5/31/2021 20:04	Earthborn Holistic Ocean Fusion	I opened the new bag of Earthborn Ocean Fusion around March 25th. On March 29th (b)(6) vomited his breakfast. On March 30th he again vomited his breakfast. That afternoon I learned of the recall on Earthborn and other pet foods made by Midwestern Pet Foods at their Monmouth IL facility. I checked our bag of food, but the date did not match that included in the recall. But due to his vomiting, I checked with my vet to see if Salmonella could be a cause--they didn't think so--and called the Midwestern recall support number, left a message. (b)(6) vomited again the evening of March 30th and the morning of the 31st, so I put him on chicken and rice for a couple days. Since the bag wasn't part of the recall, I put that completely out of my mind. Once back on the Earthborn for 2-3 days the vomiting began again...and for the next 6 weeks he had vomiting and/or diarrhea or just refused to eat about every 5-6 days. However, I didn't recognize the pattern until that 6 weeks had passed, mainly because for 3 of those weeks I was taking my youngest cat to the vet hospital to try to figure out why she was sick (separate report). Also during that 6 weeks, when attempting to get (b)(6) to eat during his refusal periods, I would throw a handful of the food into the air around all 3 of my dogs--that sense of competition has gotten him to eat in the past when he wanted treats or something else instead of food. After doing that at 2 mealtimes, both my other dogs had vomiting episodes...from 8 hours up to 12 hours after the 2nd time. Unfortunately, again, I didn't notice the pattern and look into it. By the time I realized the pattern of illness with all 4 pets--and those being the only ones who had eaten that food (out of 6 pets)--they were all healthy again. Well, (b)(6) was on day 3 of chicken and rice. So it wasn't worth it to pay the $600 to test for salmonella. If only I'd recognized the issue sooner and gotten one of them tested. My main concern is that the batch of food a bad code of Jul/14/22 M1 should have been part of the recall so other pets and pet parents don't have to go through this or worse.	7	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	72	Pound

EON-462261	5/31/2021 20:04	Earthborn Holistic Ocean Fusion	April 15th, (b)(6) walked away from her dinner bowl without eating anything. I hadn't noticed if she'd eaten breakfast. She didn't eat again on Friday morning (16th) and spent the day lying on my bed, which is not like her. She's normally wherever the action is--or near where I am. Still not eating on the morning of the 17th. I contacted the vet's office and scheduled to take her in that afternoon to be checked out. (b)(6) did bloodwork and xrays and didn't find anything conclusive. I did not mention the dog food recall for Salmonella as I had completely forgotten about it by then. They gave her fluids and anti-nausea medicine and sent her home with 4 doses of the anti-nausea meds and suggested trying various types of food to get her to eat--tuna, baby food, canned food, chicken, etc. After the subq fluids and anti-nausea injection, she felt well enough to eat some food that evening at home. However, the next day she wouldn't touch any food and again spent the entire day lying on my bed looking miserable. I tried a couple options on Monday (4/19) to see if she would eat, but she would only taste and then walk away. That evening the vet's office provided an appetite stimulant (ear salve) and again suggested baby food, tuna, etc. We spent the week trying a variety of canned cat foods, baby foods, tuna, various cat treats, chicken...everything they had suggested and more. She would eat a very small amount one day and then nothing the following day, and she'd never eat the same thing more than the first time. On April 23rd I took her back to the vet hoping for a diagnosis and a feeding tube. She had a fever and they recommended an ultrasound in addition to an ng tube, but the vet who was certified for US wasn't in that night. They gave her fluids and I brought her back home for the evening. I returned her to the vet in the morning (4/24) where she had an ultrasound and the ng tube was placed. I have been feeding my dog Rachael Ray Nutrish Dry Dog Food: Real Chicken and Veggies recipe for 2 years and he has been in great health. I recently bought a new bag of this same brand and flavor at the store. The only immediately clear difference was that the packaging has a new redesign. I fed the normal amount to my dog at his normal time, and within 1-2 hours he was vomiting and having diarrhea. I didn't give him any more dog food after this. I instead fed him a bland diet of boiled chicken and rice for the next few days as recommended by a veterinarian. During this time, he didn't vomit any more, but he continued to have diarrhea which began to have blood in it. He began to have accidents in the house which were increasingly bloody, so I took him to the vet and they found an increased amount of a type of bacteria in his GI tract. They prescribed him medication and he is getting better now. They vet staff and I believe (b)(6) became sick from the dog food. I discovered that new Rachael Ray Nutrish Chicken and Veggies uses a slightly different recipe than the original, but (b)(6) hasn't had issues with food sensitivity in the past, and the vet said that wouldn't be enough to cause days of bloody diarrhea anyway. EON-461059	5/17/2021 18:04	OI' Roy	My dog ate half of the can of canned dog food, left a little which I was going to refrigerate for later but noticed a large white object on one of the chunks. I took the several chunks and placed on the counter. When I returned, the parasites/worms were crawling away from the chunks. I took pictures. I then put the chunks into a clear plastic container with a top on it. Several days later, the worms were crawling all around in the container and it looked like the chunks came together as if they are alive. Using a zoom, I noticed there are other things like tiny black "bugs" with pinchers, and one thing looked like a sperm with a double tail on it.

EON-461021	5/17/2021 15:24	Canidae PURE Real Salmon &amp; Sweet Potato Recipe Dry Dog Food, Canidae Under the Sun Grain Free Large Breed Chicken Recipe Dry Dog Food, Canidae PURE Senior with Real Chicken Sweet Potato &amp; Garbanzo Bean Dry Dog Food, Canidae PURE Duck &amp; Sweet Potato Recipe Dry Dog Food	Back in late 2016, the dogs were being fed Canidae PURE real dog dry dog food. The bags purchased were between 21 pounds and 24 pounds. They were being stored in a dry, area, with no heat in it. The dogs were fed this meal 2 times daily. They had been fed the same dog food for over one year, after switching from another brand. Yet, around September 2017, the dogs begin getting sick off the food. They were vomiting, walking kind of dizzy like. And not wanting to move much. They hardly ate any more. My dad had done some medical and veterinary stuff while he was in the military a long time ago. So he attended to the dogs. They seemed to get a little better. However, about a month later while we were out of town. Somebody come and stole both dogs--the black mixed male AND the black mixed female. They were part Labrador and part bull dog. I was very upset about the matter. The reason I am writing is because companies think people keep receipts and stuff. I've been robbed and even had to change my driver's license number. I have also been hacked where even my own personal medical information was stolen, erased, deleted, and mixed up with other people stuff. YES, all that happened. So, I really don't have lots of receipts laying around. In order for the company to refund me back some of the money I lost over this matter. On very high priced dog food, I should say. I am placing the information here. These items were purchased around time frame shown: Canidae PURE Real Salmon &amp; Sweet Potato Recipe Dry Dog Food price: $64.99 item ID: 00064-EA size: 24 lbs quantity purchased: 7 Purchased 1 time every two months over 2 years from October 2016 to October 2017 October 2016; December 2016; February 2017; April 2017; June 2017; August 2017; October 2017 Total spent if going by a 10% tax rate is $64.99 x 7 bags purchased = $454. 93 plus 10% sales tax TOTAL = $500 because the sales taxes adds an additional $45.49 Canidae Under the Sun Grain Free Large Breed Chicken Recipe Dry Dog Food	5	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	50	Pound

Or it was mixed with just a little water  sometimes. Nothing that should've made them sick. They got stolen around the end of  October 2017. Even before August 2016, the dog foods had been purchased (really since  August 2015). However, for the sake of this report, I am going by August 2016 because mid-  July 2016 is when the company counts as providing a small refund. This means a total of 26 bags of various Canidae dog food (as listed on their settlement  website also) was purchased. And I spent in two years over $1,670 on just the kinds named  above. So, if they supposed to refund a mere $5 for every $50 spent (but only up to $125).  Then that's $1,670 divided by $50 = 33. So, then 33 x5 = $165. That's what they should pay  back, if going by five dollars for every fifty dollars spent. HOWEVER, THEY CAPPING THE  AMOUNT TO $125 TOTAL. So, I should receive that much back. Products were purchased at Allivet.com. I am only submitting my name and information to  have this report on file and as proof. Since I know the items been recalled, I don't think the  company has to be contacted. Again, not only was the items highly priced. But the two dogs  got sick off eating the items. They were sick about 10 days or so. Then started to get better.  Then when we were gone out of town to run a few errands on day in late October 2017; they  got stolen from the front yard where they were tied up at their dog houses.

EON-460713	5/14/2021 1:56	Heartland Farms Ship N' Shore cat food	My cat vomited 3 times in a week and he bacame lethargic so I took him to the Joplin animal shelter not knowing they did not have a veterinarian on staff. It was Good Friday late afternoon. The receptionist gave me a printed off list of veterinarians in the area and showed me the names of two that in her experience were good veterinarians and not as expensive as many others. One was quite a distance from (b)(6) so I chose to take him to the other one which was just a few miles north of (b)(6) I called her to get directions and she said she was about to close but she said she would wait till I got there so she could examine him. In her opinion she said she believed why he bacame ill was because the dry cat food I fed him that he loved was an inferior cat food due to the fact that it did not have sufficient protein for a cat diet and that he appeared to be having difficulty urinating due to crystals that form in the kidneys and he was having blood in his urine. She checked his rectal temperature and said he was running a little fever. She gave me some liquid antibacterial medecine to give him twice daily and had a food that she stocks on her shelves that is a food high in protein. I had to give him the oral medication and food with a small syringe. I gave him the medecine, food and water to drink after getting him home after leaving the vet office. The next day which was the Saturday before Easter Sunday he seemed no worse and possibly a little better. I gave him some more of the canned food and baby food as well as a dose of the medicine and water with the syringe. His urine looked better without as much blood in it as it had been. I had to go out to do a couple of errands and when I got home he was laying by the litter pan in the bathroom and was limp and I forced him to drink some wateer and eat some of the food, which I was able to get in him. tly did not have much appetite but I gave him some of the canned food and also some baby food that she said I should try to get some food in him. That afternoon I had to go run some errands and he seemed to be no worse and maybe even a bit better feeling, but when I got home he was laying by the cat litter box and was very limp. I did the best to get more medicine and food in him but he did not improve. Late Saturday evening he was in a very bad way and I held him and tried to make him feel comfortable but he passed a couple of hours later. I had in the past had cats and fed them similar food (Meow Mix) and never had any problems with them. Several days later I got to thinking that there may have been another cause of his condition and death. I had remembered that there were reports of pet food several months earlier but I was unaware that the food I was feeding my cat was manufactured by a mill under the name of Heartland Farms but the food that had been reported bad was dog food, but I thought his condition got bad so quickly that there may have been another cause.. The vet had asked what food I fed him and apparently she was either not aware that company had some bad food that was recalled or didn't think it pertinent to my cats condition.	1.25	Years	American Shorthair	Cat	12	Pound

The past few times we've purchased it, our dogs have started to refuse the food. We tried different flavors, such as Salmon and Beef, and each time, they have barely touched it (which is VERY unusual, especially for our lab). We have not done anything different in the way we are feeding our dogs, either. Our lab will even push the food away and cover it up with a blanket, refusing to eat. We are concerned there may be an issue with the food, and wanted to report this in case there have been other reports. EON-460211	5/7/2021 22:24	Great Choice Indoor Immunity Support drycat food	I purchased a bag of cat food, and, upon opening the bag to serve my cats, I found insect webbing all throughout the interior of the bag along with insect eggs and what looked like insect chrysalises. The outside of the bag was completely clean and free from tears prior to opening. I had purchased this bag of cat food at a Petsmart in (b)(6) (b)(6), and it was after purchasing several bags of the same brand of cat food from the Petsmart in (b)(6) (b)(6) and being very displeased. The bags from the (b)(6) location would be covered with h shedding, eggs, and larva (worms), to the point where I would need to go to the pet cleanup station in the store to thoroughly clean and sanitize the bags before leaving the store, which was both disgusting and unacceptable. I had brought it to the attention of management for over a year now, but that issue still has not been fixed. I hoped I would have better luck purchasing cat food from a different location, but I think what I discovered was even worse. This has the potential of getting an animal very sick, especially those with weakened immune systems.

The 7th cat had not ingested food from the new bag and was the only one that did not become ill. Symptoms included vomiting every few hours for all cats affected. Initial vomit included food, then gradually became white and foamy, and in one case pinky and foamy due to esophageal irritation. Suspected food was removed, and symptoms decreased over 24 hours. Over the course of 24 hours the cats vomited well over 30 times. We suspect it was the food that caused the illness because all other environmental factors have been ruled out, our dog did not become ill and shares space with the cats. EON-460001	5/5/2021 16:08	Fromm Four-Star Hasen Duckenpfeffer® Dog Food	I purchased a 12lb bag of Fromm's Hasen Duckenpfeffer dry food on Mar 23, 2021 from retailer (b)(6) (b)(6) I have an emailed copy of the receipt. The bag was well-sealed. I first started opened the bag on Mar 28. There was no apparent mold, odor, or anything unusual in appearance to the kibbles. I gave my dog 1/2 cup of the Hasen Duckenpfeffer from the bag and mixed with a 1/2 cup of his other food (same Fromm brand, different formula. I continued this for the next few days, twice a day until the other dry food was gone. I noticed his stools were exceptionally dry and hard and that he was eating grass, a habit he doesn't do unless he feels bad. I did not at the time attribute either issue to the Hasen Duckenpfeffer, as he has had this dry food many times before without any adverse problems. Once all the previous dry food was gone, I washed out the plastic storage bin, and emptied the bag of the Hasen Duckenpfeffer into the container. My mistake was throwing out the bag. On or about Apr 1, I gave him a full cup of the Hasen Duckenpfeffer in the evening. About 4 hours later, he vomited his entire meal with bile. I still did not consider the dog food as the problem as I had used the brand for over 4 years. To settle his stomach, I placed him on a bland diet (rice, chicken, chicken bone broth) for 6 days. He never lost his appetite and seemed to be doing better. So I restarted the Hasen Duckenpfeffer on Apr 7, giving him 1 cup in the morning. Again he vomited his entire meal within 4 hours. So again I placed him on the bland diet for 6 days. He recovered well in that time. Unfortunately, on Apr 13 I offered him a small amount of the dry food, which he vomited in a few hours. I placed him back on the bland diet. Now the safety of the food seemed most likely. I contacted the retailer online, asking if any customer had notified them of problems with this particular Fromm product. By Apr 14	11	Years	Mixed (Dog)	Dog	59	Pound
			Natural Pawz responded stating that they had no other complaints. I didn't have the bag but the retailer accepted what product I had and provided me with a refund. On Apr 19, I purchased a bag of Merrick Chicken and Sweet Potato, and my dog has not had a problem with this dry food. I contacted Fromm online the weekend of Apr 17/18 and they replied by Apr 20. Basically, they stated without the bag's Best By Date, timestamp, and BIN number their Quality Assurance could not investigate. They offered a voucher for another bag, but I did not accept the offer.

Local veterinarian ordered replacement bag from distributor on or about April 14, 2021 and I picked up bag on Thursday April 29, 2021. Bag Saturday morning, May 1, 2021 and attempted to feed both dogs. Both dogs sniffed at food and walked away. Dogs are fed twice a day, 8am and 5pm, so food left out. At 5pm, food was still untouched so it away and feed fresh food from bag. Again, both dogs sniffed at food and walked away. Added boiled white rice and dogs refused to eat. Problem continued through Sunday. Purchased and boiled chicken breast Sunday afternoon and placed in bowls. Dogs ate this without any issues. Contacted Hills Monday May 3, 2021 and reported issue and sent photo comparing color of current food with new food. Advised Hills rep that new food much darker than current food and 16 year old son reported new food smelled "odd" (his term for spoiled). Advised by Hills to return product to vet for full refund.
