

Limitations: The adverse event and product problem reports contained in this record are not necessarily causally related to (caused by) the reported product, nor do they mean the product was defective. Consumer complaints involving animal foods are received by FDA through voluntary reporting systems. Not all reports undergo follow up actions by FDA; however, each report received is important to FDA as part of our ongoing surveillance efforts related to pet food safety. Trends in reporting can provide an early warning of emerging safety issues of concern.

Other limitations:

- For any given report, there is no certainty that the reported pet food caused the adverse event. The adverse event(s) reported may be more related to an underlying disease, condition, or concomitantly administered medication.
- The report narratives are provided in the form in which we received them, the quality of the information provided about the adverse event/product problem is dependent on the quality of the information received from the veterinarian and/or pet owner.
- Adverse event report numbers should not be used to calculate incidence rates or measures of relative risk. It is not data from a controlled study, and there is no accurate way to know the true size of the population exposed to a product, nor the true population affected with an adverse event.
- Adverse event data should not be used to compare the safety of different products. Many factors can influence reporting, and products that are more widely distributed or sold in greater volume may have more reporting than those with limited distribution or sales. Products for which there has been recent publicity may experience more reporting for a period of time afterwards. Underreporting is also common with adverse event reporting systems.

Ten products were mentioned in the recall, including all diets for chinchillas, rabbits, hamsters/gerbils, mice/rats, and guinea pigs. The starter kits for hamsters, guinea pigs, rats, and rabbits were also recalled, and PetSmart employees were instructed to remove and destroy the packages of food each kit contained. Finally, store-use food for chinchillas, rabbits, hamsters/gerbils, mice/rats, and guinea pigs was to be destroyed and replaced with a different brand. A notice was attached to this report. The internal email indicated that it was a compliance issue, but did not specify further. Several customers and associates have[1] anonymously noted[2] an increased amount of bugs in their food, and some have speculated[3] that the bags were not sealing correctly. PetSmart has not informed the public about the recall according to their recall notice page[4] and no extra details have been given to either associates or pet parents. Pet parents have been finding out through word of mouth from associates or social media about the recall. It is my understanding that PetSmart has a regulatory obligation to report any voluntary recalls[5] to the FDA, but the recall is not posted on the FDA website[6]. I bought a new case of Hills Prescription original low fat (because he had his gallbladder removed along with liver cancer). For 3 days he had diarrhea where he peed when he pooped. His stools were very runny. He was panicked to go outside, too. He had eaten the food for exactly 3 days, a can a day. We dug the cans out of the trash and they each had the same batch code. We pulled the ones that matched that batch code (started with T132) and started feeding him ones that started with (T131). We changed nothing else. His diarrhea subsided after about a day and a half. Stools are normal again.   | 12 | Years | Terrier - Yorkshire  | Dog | 14 | Pound |
| EON-508680 | 11/29/2022 15:04 | Hills Science Diet Large Breed Adult 1-5 Chicken and Barley Recipe   | We purchased and opened a new bag of the food he has been on for 3 years. The kibble was smaller than normal but we figured maybe they just changed it up. Gave him a cup full for dinner, over night he threw it up. From then he did not eat and acted lethargic. Took him to the vet, he was dehydrated and very sick. They kept him for two days on iv meds. Got a little better and came home...at that point we did not suspect the food so he ate two pieces. Threw up again and from there got worse. Had to be admitted again and stayed for 3 more days on IV meds and had multiple tests done. He almost didn't make it but finally turned around. In total he went 11 days without eating, lost 10 pounds and may have long term liver damage. He would not touch or look at the food after he got back to normal eating. When I called Petco to ask if they were aware of any changes to the food they informed me that they have had 3 more similar calls about the same food. I also found reviews online that are similar to our case. We still have the bag and would like to have it tested to get to the bottom of this. Any assistance with that would be appreciated. Assumed maybe got turned upside down during shipping. Began feeding at lunch that day to three 13 week old puppies. On Sunday, 11/20/2022, all pups had diarrhea. On Monday 11/21/2022, one pup became extremely ill with vomiting, diarrhea, and lethargic, blood in stool and required emergency vet care. Diagnosed with bacterial infection. Mentioned to vet the food looked unusual. Feed boiled chicken and rice that night to all three and returned bag of food to retailer and was replaced with new one. Next day pup improved but another had allergic reaction to chicken. Took that pup to vet along with sample of food from bad bag. Vet said definitely something wrong with food. On the night of (b) (6) he was progressively more lethargic, losing a lot of weight, and began drinking a lot of water, like his thirst could not be quenched. I took him to the vet on (b) (6) and they did blood work and X-rays and found that his kidneys had stopped working and were beyond healing. (b) (6) was visibly dying in front of us and in a lot of pain. He began to convulse and I seemed to lose eyesight. (b) (6) did not go outside ever, indoor kitten only. | EON-508005 | 11/19/2022 14:12 | Wellness complete health kitten pate (given to kitten)Wellness pate (given to adult cat) | Our kitten (8 months old calico) and cat (3 years old tabby) were both given Wellness brand cat food. The kitten was given the Wellness Complete Health kitten pate, and the cat was given the regular Wellness pate. Both products had a plastic lining which was bleeding into the food. You could clearly see the white lining on the inside at the bottom of the can bleed into the food after taking the food out. This happened with multiple cans of both the kitten and adult cat food we gave each respective cat. They both would have dry heave reactions after eating this food, and in some cases, they vomitted. We tried other food for their next meal for a few days and they would be completely fine. When we went back to the Wellness brand, they would have the symptoms immediately again. We believe it has to do with the plastic getting into the food but regardless this is an issue that should be investigated.  | 3  | Years  | Domestic Shorthair | Cat | 15  | Pound |

I stopped his food and started cooking food until his stomach was better and then tried to reintroduced the food. He started getting sick again with upset stomach, diarrhea, and increased respirations. So we went to the vet who recommended giving him the cooked food for a week before and switch food. But I wasn't sure it was the food yet, so I slowly reintroduced over a week and once I got him up to 75% of the Blue Buffalo (day 4) he got even sicker this time with blood and diarrhea much more frequent this time. I switched him off that food to some senior chicken and brown rice I had and he has been fine since except the increased respirations at rest has continued. This food was ordered from blue buffalo's Amazon shop, which I have since seen many reviews from pet owners since Aug having the same issue.   | 12 | Years  | Other Canine/dog   | Dog | 55  | Pound |

| EON-507954 | 11/18/2022 16:32 | Purina Fancy Feast Gravy LoversPoultry & Beef Collection | A shipment of Fancy Feast Gravy Lovers was received from Chewy on Monday, November 7. The cats began eating this food the following day, November 8. They did not finish the food, which is unusual. One of the 3 cats vomited on Wednesday, November 9 and again on November 10. By November 10, all 3 cats were refusing to eat the food at all. I went out and bought a different brand from a different manufacturer that night, and 2 of my cats started eating again. (b) (6) r, the smallest of the 3 (Tabby - spayed female, 10.5 lbs, (b) (6) - neutered male, 8.5 lbs) at 7 lbs did not eat on Thursday or Friday, November 11 and was vomiting a clear foamy liquid. Since the other cats were eating again (a different brand) I brought (b) (6) to the vet on Saturday, November 12. She was given Elura and Cerenia and subcutaneous fluids. She ate a small amount of fish Saturday night. She didn't eat on Sunday even though I gave her Elura and Cerenia as prescribed and ate only a small amount on Monday, Nov 14. During this time she had been lethargic, grooming less than usual, was not sleeping in her usual places in the house and not being affectionate. She didn't eat on Tuesday and I brought her back to the vet where on exam, her vet thought she might have a bacterial infection. She was given a Baytril injection in office. About 12-15 hours after the Baytril injection, she began eating again and appears to have resumed her normal routine and behaviors. I put in a complaint to Purina but I was advised they will not perform a chemical analysis of the food. I still have the open boxes of wet food. Although we have fed the cats for over 10 years with this food with no issues, my cats are older now and I'm hesitant to keep feeding them this food. Purina says their recipes for the food have not changed, although it is not clear whether this could be an issue with either the sourcing of the ingredients or an issue in manufacturing. | 10.5 | Years | Domestic Shorthair         | Cat | 7  | Pound |
| EON-507927 | 11/18/2022 12:24 | Kirkland Signature 8 in 1 multi-benefitchews             | We have 2 dogs. (b) (6) is almost 8 years old, (b) (6) is almost 2 years old. They each have been getting these vitamin chews for about 6 months now. (b) (6) gets 3/day. (b) (6) 1/day. We were running low, so we bought a new bag on 11/11/22. Tues am (11/15/22) (b) (6) got one chew from the almost depleted pouch, and (b) (6) got the last one from the old pouch. Then I opened the new pouch and gave (b) (6) 2 from it. That was about 6:30-7am. (b) (6) was fine until about 2pm, when she started throwing up. She threw up repeatedly. She was shaking, drooling, and obviously in pain. We were lucky to get a vet appointment that afternoon (4:30pm). I normally wouldn't have gone to the vet so soon, but her symptoms were obviously very serious. She got a Cerenia shot and 500ml of fluids. Although the Cerenia kept her from vomiting the rest of the night, she never felt well. She couldn't lay down comfortably, she continued to pant, to look dazed, and to drool. I tried to take her to the ER at about 2:30am, but the wait was going to be 5 hours. We drove to another ER, but they took too long too, so we drove home to await the vet opening at 7am. We got her in by 7:45 and she got another shot of Cerenia, a shot of pain meds, some pain pills, Cerenia pills, and a liter of fluids. They did a blood panel and a pancreatic panel. Her pancreas levels were out of the normal range. At this point I was worried she was having an acute pancreatic attack. She has never had issues/symptoms, but we lost a dog to acute pancreatitis a couple of years ago, so I have trauma around that and am ever cautious. She was able to rest more on Wednesday after the vet, but she still refused any food or water. She remained dazed and uncomfortable through the day.  | 8    | Years | Schnauzer(unspecified) | Dog | 64 | Pound |

My wife walked and fed (b) (6) on Wednesday while I was at the vet with (b) (6). She, of course, gave her one vitamin chew with breakfast (per normal). At this point I had no idea the chews might be the source of the issue. Again, she had breakfast about 7am. By 6pm she began throwing up repeatedly. She also had loose stools. She threw up all night (maybe 6 times). She didn't have the extreme pain, dazed look, drooling, etc. that (b) (6) exhibited. I'm supposing because she is younger and only had one chew rather than the two (b) (6) had received the morning before. (b) (6) finally accepted some little bits of boiled chicken at 12:30 Thursday morning. Meanwhile, (b) (6) continued to throw up. Since I had the Cerenia pills from (b) (6) vet visit, I crushed one up and gave it to (b) (6) early Thursday morning. It seemed to help. So (b) (6) never went to the vet. Like I said, when (b) (6) got so sick out of nowhere, we imagined all sorts of things--she had something lodged, she'd ingested something noxious on our walks, she was having pancreatic attack. But when the second dog has nearly identical symptoms nearly 24 hours later, it becomes really suspicious. It wasn't until early this morning that I realized the only differing factor was the new bag of vitamin chews.  |     |       |             |     |    |       |

She had been hit by a car and was underweight, and ended up healthy and thriving. She has always been a picky eater but loved her peanut butter collagen chewbones. On the morning of (b) (6), she was a happy pup, had the biggest zoomies run since we had her. She accompanied me on an outing that afternoon and i went to Petsmart and got her some Beef Collachews same maker as the peanut butter ones. She ate one. The next morning, she was needy with me, not really wanting to do our usual 4 mile walk. She seemed extra picky and a bit down. Tuesday morning, (b) (6), she did not walk at all and I carried her the entire way, and she seemed "puny." Wednesday she went to the groomer and the groomer reported that she appeared to not recognize her and did not seem herself. She still seemed down and was not really eating. Later that day, she seemed to perk up a little, bark/played a bit with my husband and lept outside over our senior dog, (b) (6), even seemed to run a bit. She still really didn't eat. I made an appointment for Thursday morning, (b) (6) for the vet to check her out. The next morning, she was up early and drank water, not her usual schedule, and she climbed into the bed and laid next to me, which was not her usual either. We went to the vet that morning at 8am, and the vet indicated she had an upset stomach, so bloodwork and xrays were taken. Her ALT liver values were off the chart - 2300. The vet indicated she needed an ultrasound to rule out liver shunt and cancer and got her into the emergency vet with internal medicine specialty soon after, that same day. Ultrasound showed nothing remarkable, so a biopsy was scheduled, but she had to be hospitalized to receive plasma as her blood was not clotting. She was in significant acute liver failure. | 2   | Years | Havanese    | Dog | 10 | Pound |

|                            |                  |  | The plasma took and the biopsy was performed on (b) (6), completed by (b) (6). She was sent home that evening to recover, but was back in the hospital by 4:30 am on (b) (6), as she became neurologically inappropriate in the middle of the night, suspected that ammonia was not clearing her system, so they wanted to offer supportive treatment the next 24-48 hours. By 1:00 pm that day, she was declining, and by 3:00 pm I was back up there and she was in significant decline, told to take her to another vet to try to save her. She died in my arms on the way there, although CPR was administered upon our arrival, but to no avail. Liver biopsy came back the following week, the pathologist saw diffuse, severe hepatitis (inflammation) with significant necrosis (death of the liver cells) and megalocytosis, which is consistent with aflatoxicosis or from pyrrolizidine alkaloid toxicity, however, I have connections with a veterinary toxicologist and plant pathogens have been ruled out. I am strongly suspecting the beef collagen chew bones (Collachews from M Pet Group) which have rice flour and wheat flour, possibly the peanut butter collachews from the same company, as she consumed many of those over time, or strongly considering also an antler horn (Paw Love) that I had purchased on September 30th, 2022. I have a senior dog in my home that has been unaffected, as she does not eat chew bones since she has no teeth. I have contacted the manufacturers of both of these products. I have the products in question still in hand and am wondering about getting them tested for the possible aflatoxin. I do not want this to happen to any other animals. |    |        |          |     |    |       |

Had diarrhea the next morning. We went out of town to (b) (6) the next day. Had her to the emergency vet in (b) (6) by Monday for throwing up and diarrhea. Drove home overnight Monday/Tuesday after (b) (6) stabilized her. She had diarrhea in the car the entire drive home (6 hours). By the time I arrived with her at my vet she crashed. They performed CPR and revived her. 4 hours later she was dead. They sent stool sample to (b) (6) and it was positive for E.Coli.  | 2   | Years | Shepherd Dog - German | Dog | 72 | Pound |
| EON-507325 | 11/13/2022 20:04 | Etta Says Turkey Yumm SticksEtta Says Chicken Yumm SticksEtta Says Pork Yumm SticksEtta Says Beef Yumm Sticks | The issue is with the pet brand "Etta Says" and specifically with their dog treat "Yumm sticks". I've bought these treats by the dozens, monthly for years now without issue till 3 months ago when I noticed some sticks had a powdery white substance on them. At first I thought it was congealed fat but my dog got sick after eating it and I never gave him one with the white substance on it again. Thinking it was a fluke, I've bought more since, all with mold within the vacuum sealed packaging containing the treat. Recently the entire box, every stick had white mold on it. I buy these through the Etta Says store on Amazon, where the reviews are filled with people complaining about the mold on various listings for their Yumm Sticks product. So I contact Etta Says directly asking when the mold issue would be resolved. I received a response from a man claiming to be the owner by the name of Douglas Martin who said they didn't have a mold problem, and it was a 1 in 1000 chance of a failure of the vacuum seal which would cause the mold. I told him I would be willing to send samples to him and pictures but told me he didn't understand me and to stop torturing my dog. It should be noted, when I've opened these treats to examine them, the vacuum seal appeared normal, intact, as I've known them to be for years. To be clear, my dog only got sick once from these treats because then I knew what to look for on the treats before feeding them to him. I would be more than willing to offer you the same as I offered (b) (6), pictures or to send you any of the dozens of treats that I have with this powdery white substance. Please look into this, dogs are getting sick and the owner of the company has no interest in looking into this matter. |     |       |                       |     |    |       |

Neither of my dogs really wanted to eat the food, which was very unusual. One of my dogs became progressively ill after eating the food for a week. He developed severe diarrhea, vomiting, and complete loss of his appetite. We suspected the food. We threw out the bag and he eventually improved after seeing a vet/meds, etc. He is now fine. I happened to be on a dog website where I saw that other dog owners had experienced the same situation after feeding their dogs Kirkland dog food. I really hope you can check this out before any other dogs get sick. On Sep 19th 2022 I took her to our vet because she had diarrhea, vomiting, and lethargy. The vet gave her anti-naseau and anti-diarrhea medicine. She still was not acting right the following week and I took her back to the vet for blood work. Here electrolytes were all over the place and she had very high kidney values of BUN and creatinine. She was admitted to the Vet hospital for 4 days- given fluids and medication. The vet initially thought it was acute exposure to toxins, and asked me about grapes or raisins, we do not have these at our house. They tried meds for possible a-typical Addison's, blood work was done again about a week later. Her BUN and Creatinine were elevated again, and (b) (6) would not eat. I was given the ok from the vet to syringe feed her chicken baby food because she was still not eating. We saw a specialist on Tuesday, Nov 2 who evaluated (b) (6). He could not find a reason that her kidney was not working properly and mentioned that her case reminded him of cases he had seen 10 years ago where the dogs had eaten tainted chicken jerky from china. I mentioned she had eaten the Pet 'n Shape All-Natural Chicken Hide Twists Dog Treats, 16-oz bag, which I did not know but are made in china. I have not given her any of the treats since her initial illness onset, and do still have the bag. (b) (6) is currently under the care of a specialist. She is home and we are giving her 20ml of vanilla ensure to support her caloric intake as well as hydration, she is also eating small amounts of boiled chicken breast, and Instinct Toppers (given after illness not before). They were both born in October 2016. Mid-October, one of our Havanese dogs, (b) (6), began coughing a lot and having labored breathing. We took (b) (6) to the vet. The vet discovered he had fluid building up in his lungs and also identified a concern related to his heart. On 11/3/22, we took (b) (6) to have an echocardiogram at (b) (6). The hospital identified enlarged Right Atrial and Ventricles with moderate to significant regurgitation in the mitral and tricuspid valves consistent with Canine Dilated Cardiomyopathy. When I returned home, I conducted a google search to learn more about the condition and discovered a link between DCM and Zignature products in a report by the FDA in 2019. I wish I had known about this report. Our local pet store had been recommending Zignature to us and we have exclusively purchased Zignature for our dogs, thinking we were making a healthier and more premium choice for them. Nobody ever mentioned this report. Why isn't Zignature required to disclose this report on its products? Perhaps our dog wouldn't be in this situation if we had changed food brands 3 years ago (half his life ago) in 2019. With DCM we understand our dog has 6-24 months average life expectancy. Our family (2 adults, 3 children) are very heart broken for our poor (b) (6), who we love very much. We can't imagine that we will lose him so soon and feel our trust has been betrayed by Zignature. | EON-505882 | 10/29/2022 20:48 | Simparica Trio  | Simparica Trio is being administered through tablets by a broad weight range. For example, If the dog weighs anywhere between 44.1 to 88 pounds, it gets the same pill. This means that a 50 pound dog and an 87 pound dog will recieve the same dosing. The problem with this: the drug was not safety tested in this manner. For safety trials, the dogs were given specific doses for their specific weight (the recommended minimum dose). The more precise dosing was achieved through using a combination of tablets. For example a 66 pound dog would receive 2 tablets: 1 tablet from the weight range up to 44 pounds and 1 tablet from the weight range up to 22 pounds. This achieved the actual recommended minimum dose. The problem is veterinarians are NOT using combination tablets to achieve recommended minimum dose, so the 66 pound dog recieves a dose for an 88 pound dog by using only one tablet. This is dosing the dog differently than the safety studies. This drug already has high Adverse Reactions percentages based on the manufacturers own study in the Prescribing Information guide. I want to administer the drug in the safest manner and not administer unnecessary excessive dosing, for the entire life of my dog; but my veterinarian will not allow using combination tablets. I have called many other veterinarians and recieved the same response. I would assume this same principle applies to most of the heartworm, flea, and tick medications because they use similar broad weight ranges as well, but my experience has been solely with Simparica Trio. |   |       |                   |     |    |       |

| EON-505820 | 10/28/2022 19:24 | Pet n' Shape-Chik'n Hide Twists  | Patient presented to (b) (6) on 9/9/22 for an approximately 1.5-week history of progressive weight loss, anorexia, decreased fecal output, and lethargy. She had been managed with her primary veterinarian for 5 days before presentation and was diagnosed at that time with a GI ulcer, as she had melena and a strongly regenerative anemia. During her stay with her primary, (b) (6) was noted to have persistent decreased electrolytes, despite supplementation, as well as a fluctuating hypoglycemia. As such, she was referred to (b) (6) for further work-up and care. During her 13-day stay with (b) (6), no melena was seen, but (b) (6) electrolytes did remain low, despite high rates of supplementation with potassium, phosphorus, magnesium sulfate, and dextrose. She was also persistently acidotic on blood gas and her ionized calcium trended towards the low end of normal to true hypocalcemia. An insulin: glucose ratio was sent out to (b) (6) and returned normal, ruling out an insulinoma. Profound ileus was also noted, and so (b) (6) was placed on Metoclopramide and Azithromycin as well. An upper endoscopy was performed at the time an E-tube was placed and found no gross lesions within the stomach and duodenum. The biopsies collected from the stomach and small intestine showed mild lymphoplasmacytic infiltration but were overall unremarkable. Approximately halfway through her stay, (b) (6) owner informed us that she had fed (b) (6) and her housemate chicken jerky wrapped raw hide treats for the last 1.5 years, but that she had received a fresh shipment at the end of August, and that was when she had first noticed (b) (6) weight loss and decreased fecal output. With this information, a urine sample was collected and sent to (b) (6) to screen for Fanconi's, and the remainder was used to perform a urine fractional excretion test. | 3 Years | Maltese                          | Dog | 1.05 | Kilogram |
|            |                  |  | The fractional excretion showed severe loss of potassium, phosphorus, and sodium into her urine, and renal failure index of 6. At this time, (b) (6) was becoming progressively duller and her owners elected to stop treatment and she was humanely euthanized on (b) (6) Approximately 1 week after her death, the urine test from (b) (6) returned positive for Fanconi's. Upon speaking with the lab, they stated that (b) (6) case was likely the worst they had ever seen. As Maltese are not one of the breeds pre-disposed to development of congenital Fanconi's, and as her clinical signs started when the new batch of treats was given, we are submitting this report to facilitate investigation of the treats and to determine what might have caused the development of Fanconi's.   |         |                                  |     |      |          |

I was also noticing white flakes in the cats food. After taking a very close look at these white flakes, I saw those worms inside of it. I then looked throughout the bag and the bag was infested with these worms laying dormant in these white flakes. My already sick cat has now eaten bugs of which my other cat also ate out of her bowl. I had never purchased this product before but the front said tested in USA labs so I thought it was safe and our dog likes salmon. (I had no idea it was made in China, had I known so I would have never purchased it). The country of origin was in rather small print. I gave (b) (6) two small pieces of a treat that evening and within 12 hours he developed very loose stool, (Diarrhea) . (Wednesday evening). We then put him on a chicken breast and rice diet and he seemed to improve on Thursday. We left on Friday for (b) (6) to visit our son and (b) (6) seemed somewhat lethargic but bowel seemed to be improving. On Saturday evening the diarrhea returned and he seemed more lethargic. Early Monday morning, October 10 we took him to a vet in (b) (6) who we did not know as we live in (b) (6). He gave (b) (6) multiple antibiotics and ran blood work and gave him sub-cutaneous fluids. Within hours (b) (6) seemed to get much worse. We tried to reach the vet that evening but could not. The next morning (b) (6) had a major seizure and we rushed him back to the vet. The Vet said blood work showed massive kidney failure and that we would have to put him down. We were devastated. I spoke to our local vet when we returned and he said that he had never seen BUN and Creatinine numbers that high in a dog and said that could only be attributed to acute kidney failure, i.e. poisoning. I have placed at least 12 calls into the manufacturer, Westminster Pets, and most calls went unanswered. Finally yesterday (October 25) I got a call from the quality person after I tracked down the finance director at Westminster Pets by using LinkedIn. The QA person (who by the way has no training in quality or biology/chemistry based on her answers to me) said they do everything required at Westminster Pets and product is safe. They do not, she said, test for heavy metals. | 17 | Years | Lhasa Apso                | Dog | 11   | Pound |

Within the hour, she had thrown up at least twice and had diarrhea across the house including on the couches, kitchen floor, and dining room floor. She was put outside so she could finish it outside. | EON-504025 | 10/11/2022 13:16 | Fancy Feast Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection  | (b) (6) had shown no signs of illness prior to her becoming sick. One morning returned inside from a morning outside only to begin vomiting white, bubbly, foamy spittle with blood in it. Small piles. She did this on and off all day and tried to go into dark hidden spots within my house all day. I placed her in a bedroom so I would know where she was. She laid in an unusual position (on her stomach with her head to the side) most of the day with intermittent attempts to vomit only to produce this white, foamy spit. The next morning, I took her to my local vet's office. The next day, she was euthanized. The vet concluded she had a walnut sized tumor in her stomach. Two weeks later, I spoke with a neighbor whose cat had been euthanized due to similar symptoms (outside one morning, inside he began vomiting white, foamy, bubbly spit with some blood, lethargic, trouble vomiting but lots of dry heaving). Their vet was inconclusive overall as to cause of illness but did contact the poison hotline who felt rat poisoning was unlikely due to the large amount needed to be ingested in order to kill a cat of that size... We chatted about the events of the day our cats became sick and determined we both fed the cats Fancy Feast wet food. My neighbor's cat ate FF Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef Collection and (b) (6), my cat, ate FF Poultry & Beef Grilled Collection. We felt it was smart to make a report just in case it is food related. | 7   | Years | American Shorthair                             | Cat | 10 | Pound |

| EON-504022 | 10/11/2022 12:52 | Fancy Feast Gravy Lovers Poultry & Beef Collection | (b) (6) (orange tabby) showed no signs of illness up to Saturday, (b) (6). He was a 100% indoor cat up until 3 weeks ago when I started letting him outside with my two other cats to wander around the exterior of my house for an hour while I walked each morning. Saturday, I walked for an hour, returned and (b) (6) was waiting by the door. He was dry heaving, attempting to vomit. I put all three cats back inside the house. (b) (6) vomited two small puddles of bubbly, foamy spit with a bit of blood mixed in. He continued to try to hack something up all day in this manner, only to have spittle with bubbles...clear and white frothy bubbles. In between these moments, he seemed to try to make moisture in his mouth...he vomited like this probably four or five times (production of vomit). Jerked his head to the left and nearly placed it on the ground while attempting to vomit. He wasn't able to get water or food down and stopped trying by afternoon. I took him to the vet. They ran blood tests to test for rat poison ingestion and took an X-ray to see if he had swallowed something. Nothing showed up for either type of testing. Poison control was also called for access to a pet toxicologist. They felt at his size rat poison ingestion was unlikely. This same day, (b) (6) was euthanized due to his airway never allowing him to get enough oxygen. The Xray showed white filled lungs indicating he wasn't getting air. The vet said they could see his baronial tubes which wasn't supposed to be seen. His stomach also showed to be full of air. I returned home after euthanizing (b) (6) and spoke with my neighbor who lives a few streets over in my subdivision. Her cat (b) (6) a tortoiseshell tabby, died the week before from similar symptoms (vomiting white frothy bubbly vomit with small amount of blood, lethargy, had been outside that morning as well). We were sharing events since the symptoms were similar. | 4 | Years | American Shorthair | Cat | 10 | Pound |

We went there to purchase a bag of the same food (Sep 8th) to continue feeding it to the pup to transfer to the food we intend to keep her on. At 8 weeks old, we went to pick up our female puppy on Sep 11th along with a small bag (6 cups) of food from the breeder. When we got the pup home we began to feed her a mix of the breeders food and the bag of food we bought of the same brand and flavor. Our puppy began having diarrhea within 24 hours and it continued for over a week. We tried all kinds of different feeding tactics to include just our bag and just their bag. | EON-503782 | 10/7/2022 14:44 | Limited Ingredient DietRedford NaturalsGrain FreeLamb & Sweet Potato Recipe   | I received this puppy from a private owner (not a breeder) on Wednesday 9/21/22. He was 9 weeks old at the time. When I went to the house to pick out which puppy would be mine on 9/1/22, I stopped by Pets Supplies Plus (b) (6) near the pet owner's home to pick up a bag of the same puppy food that all the puppies had been eating and were used to. The food was "Redford Naturals" brand in the "Lamb and Sweet Potato Recipe". I started to feed the puppy this food when I brought him home on 9/21. By Sunday 9/25, the puppy began to behave a little off from baseline, just slightly more sleepy and less playful. The morning of Monday 9/26, he was more lethargic and his eyes looked a little glossy, but he ate food that morning and drank water, then went to lay down. By the afternoon of 9/26, the puppy became very lethargic and unable to keep any water down without vomiting. He was unable to eat and unable to walk more than a few steps. I immediately called to get him to the vet and in the process of transporting him there, I reached out to the girl I received the puppy from to update her on the situation. It was at this point I found out that this is the 3rd puppy from the litter to get sick and we were all using this exact same food from the exact same store. And this food is the store's own line, not a big supplier. The litter of puppies was 12 in total, 11 of them went to different homes. All of the puppies except mine went to their homes the weekend of Sept 9-Sept 11. I picked my puppy up 10-11 days later. The other 2 puppies got sick a little over a week before mine did. So the timeline also seems to line up with when the puppies were brought home and started on the new bag of food. When I brought my puppy to the vet on Mon 9/26, the vet staff was very concerned by the look and demeanor of my puppy and immediately suspected parvo virus due to the symptoms and level of sickness. He tested negative for parvo and negative for parasites. He was given an anti-emetic shot and iv fluids in office and I was sent home with oral antibiotics. I immediately switched dog foods and started the antibiotics when we arrived home. The puppy was significantly better within 24 hours and back to his baseline within 48 hours. | 10 | Weeks | Retriever - Golden | Dog | 9    | Pound |

| EON-503672 | 10/6/2022 13:16 | Authority Everyday Health Indoor Kitten Cat Wet Food - 5.5 Oz Pate With-Grain Chicken & Liver Entree | Yesterday I went to Petsmart in (b) (6) and bought a case of the Company Brand Authority of Kitten Chicken &amp; Liver Entree 5.5 oz cans. Best if used by date May 12, 2025; Lot number is, I believe (it is hard to read), 9KCLU1 1003. I didn't notice until I got home that several of the cans were bulging. When I open the package to get a closer look there were, in fact, 16 of the 24 cans bulging. I called the store to report that I would be bringing them back but I also decided to call the company number that was printed on the can as well. The person who took the call was only going to report a problem. Didn't ask what the food was, what size, or anything else. I insisted that she get more information. She then took the name of the food and was ready to disconnect when I informed her she had to have more information. If this was a problem they needed the best by date, lot number etc. She said ok and asked if there was anything else she could help me with, even though she still had not gotten any of the information from me. I asked to speak with a supervisor. After a few minutes another woman came on the line and I explained the situation. She said she was sorry that happened and asked what she could do to help. I told her she needed to get the information from the can so they could track the lot number because that many bulging cans in one case was a problem for that lot and that it was probably botulism that could kill cats &amp; kittens. She then said this was something she had never had to do before so I gave her the name of the product, the size cans, the UPC #, the expiration date and lot number. She said she would forward it to the next department. |    |       |         |     |     |       |
|            |                 |  | This concerns me because she was a "manager" and if she had no idea what to do in a situation like that it could potentially kill hundreds or thousands of animals. There has been a huge shortage of canned pet foods recently and the only thing I can take from this is that their quality control decided to allow the product out into the market just to fill shelves. This is a blatant disregard for the lives and welfare of the animals it could affect and this company needs to fix their reporting issues. I potentially see needless veterinary bills and pain and suffering for the animals as well as their owners. The veterinary costs associated with treatment for an animal sickened by tainted food products can run into thousands of dollars if the pet even survives. Many people simply can't afford these costs. Please check this product out to see if there are any other issues and please make this company fix their products as well as their reporting process.  |    |       |         |     |     |       |
| EON-503670 | 10/6/2022 13:00 | PUREVITA GRAIN FREE 96% REAL BEEF ENTREE CANNED CAT FOOD   | On 9/29/2022, I gave my pet 1/2 can (around 2.75 oz) of PUREVITA GRAIN FREE 96% REAL BEEF ENTREE CANNED CAT FOOD. Within 30 minutes of finishing her meal she proceeded to vomit it ALL up. She became lethargic and was clearly having a reaction as her eyes were watery and her face became slightly swollen; lasting around 24 hours. She has never had a reaction to new foods like this in the past. I accidentally fed her the same food on 10/5/2022. She did not vomit; however, she did become lethargic and her eyes became watery. Again, this lasted for around 24 hours. I contacted the company that I purchased the food through, Loyal Companion, on 10/6/2022 to discuss returning the product and to notify of my cats reaction. Though I will no longer purchase this product, I am concerned that others may be/will experience the same issue.  | 13 | Years | Unknown | Cat | 8.5 | Pound |

Not all of the food had been eaten (this is very rare, as my two kittens usually gobble it up - especially (b) (6)). (b) (6) not eating in afternoon or evening - very unusual. (b) (6) ate, just not as much. They ate a few treats in kitty condo. (b) (6) clearly not feeling well, lethargic, and not eating (usually rambunctious play and eating in evenings). Neither kittens were too keen on eating the cat food at lunch, at 4pm or in the evening ((b) (6) ate a little, (b) (6) none in the afternoon after lunch). Around 8pm I found vomit with a rubber piece in it in the basement (quite a bit of vomit - about 3-4 locations). More vomit found upstairs in our bedroom (not a lot). Approx. 8hrs between possibly eating the rubber and vomiting (12:05 - 8pm ish) (b) (6) ate some food during the afternoon and evening, and (b) (6) ate a little at 10:25pm, but I didn't want him to eat much since he had been so sick. I gave them some goats milk to stay hydrated ((b) (6) didn't drink much of it - (b) (6) drank most of it).  |    |       |                      |     |    |       |
|            |                 |  | Thurs, Sept 29I contacted the pet food manufacturer via email the first morning after (b) (6) was sick. I also sent photos of the rubber piece found in the vomit, and photos of the can it likely came from (sides and bottom of can). I also put the can and remainder of the contents in the freezer. My husband and I have searched our house for any remnants of rubber and racked our brains with what it could be (besides contaminants in the cat food), but each time we come back to it most likely came in the wet food. We do not have any other pets or children, and no visiting guests where the rubber could have come from. (b) (6) eats very fast and with large bites. He likely took a big bite of wet food and swallowed before realizing there was rubber in his mouth. He stopped eating part way through his meal (likely right after swallowing the rubber as that would have been painful). He was unwell and not eating the rest of the afternoon and evening and vomitted multiple times. Monday, Oct. 3Five days (and three hospital visits later) - (b) (6) had to have emergency gastrointestinal surgery as a smaller piece of rubber got stuck in his GI tract (duodenum). I asked the surgeon to please keep the piece of rubber so I can send it in (and he did). We want to make sure other pets do not ingest any rubber that may have contaminated other cans of food. This is a good company (from our knowledge and hours of research) and likely a mistake from the plant. |    |       |                      |     |    |       |

Recently, every time my dog eats the dry food, within minutes, he starts to snort and reverse sneeze, and then vomits the food up. He did this several times, so I switched him to a sensitive stomach wet food diet thinking he had a stomach bug or just didn't feel well. He has eaten the wet food for 2 days and not vomited it a single time. Tonight, I fed him the dry food previously mentioned, and he has not finished his bowl and he started to snort, reverse sneeze and vomited the food. Since he ate the other food for 2 days and was fine, I have to assume it is the dry food making my dog vomit. I would like to add that my dog does not eat very fast. He is not very food motivated, so he is able to free feed and takes his time when eating.   | 9 | Years | Pointing Dog - German Short-haired | Dog   | 68 | Pound |

| EON-503292 | 10/1/2022 19:36 | Nulo MedalSeries Small Breed Duck and Chickpea wet dog food | I have found several sharp bone pieces in several (and most likely all) of the Nulo MedalSeries Small Breed Duck and Chickpea wet dog food. I purchased the dog food at a Petsmart in (b) (6). I submitted a review with photos of the sharp bone pieces I have found for this item on PetSmart's website on Sept. 23 but Petsmart has not yet approved my review to be posted. I have also opened a ticket with PetSmart to ask when the review will be posted as I believe customers should be aware of the sharp bone pieces that are in this food. For some background, I had started giving one of my dogs this food about a month ago. In the beginning this seemed like a wonderful find, but then I had started to notice small hard pieces in the food, which originally I thought was the rice. But then I started to look closer (smashing the wet food in my fingers) and was disappointed to find that there were several sharp bone pieces in the food. It was not just a few cans, it was in all of them that I started to inspect very closely (about 5 cans). I've purchased over 40 cans in the last month, but was able to return the last 24 cans I just bought after discovering the bone pieces. I went to the Petsmart in (b) (6) (on Saturday 9/24) where I purchased these cans, and spoke with the manager and showed the bone pieces that I had found in one of the cans. The Manager informed me that she would speak with the Nulo rep and also return the cans I bought as not resalable.   |   |        |                    |     |          |
|                            |                 |   | I strongly believe there is something not right about finding these sharp bone pieces in this food, which is advertised to be free of meat by-products and also for small breed dogs. The pieces I found were sharp and hard, and I feel these pieces could cause damage while trying to make their way through the digestive system of a small breed dog, I have also contacted Nulo but do not believe the response is satisfactory. Nulo thanked me for bringing this to their attention, apologized for my experience, and advised me that their "food is designed to have a more finely ground texture, however a small amount of ground bone or soft cartilage is inherent because our product, unlike many others, contains a high level of animal-based protein sources, rather than plant based-protein sources. Generally, small pieces of bone found in cans are not harmful for pets and can be easily broken up and digested, especially when eaten with a full meal (as opposed to a pet chewing on an intact bone and swallowing much larger fragments by themselves)."... Nulo also did ask for the best by dates and production codes, which I did provide them a photo of, so that their Quality Assurance Team can review. Again, I strongly believe there is an issue with this product and it concerns me that Petsmart will not post my review to allow customers to know and then decide for themselves if they would still like to buy this product, and that also, this is still being sold. I believe this product is falsely advertised as being a premium product. |   |        |                    |     |          |

My foster kitties, One young adult cat and 5 kittens, were fed canned Fancy Feast kitten food for breakfast around 8am. Within about 2 hours of food consumption, all six kitties began having diarrhea. Diarrhea worsened throughout the day and they became lethargic. Two of the kittens vomited. All 6 kitties were prescribed metronidazole and Fortiflora for the diarrhea and cerenia for abdominal pain and nausea. Fecal was negative for GI parasites. They were prescribed a prescription GI diet while they recoverd from being sick. The two kittens that vomited received B vitamin injections. The kittens and young adult cat have eaten Fancy Feast kitten food many times prior to this incident, but this was a new box of Fancy Feast kitten food. The two veterinarians that I work with examined the kitties and felt that the severe GI upset was due to the food.  |   |        | Domestic Shorthair | Cat |          |

I had noticed something was flying around. Which should of been my 1st sign not to buy the dog food. When I arrived at home the one box was infested with hundreds of some type of insect and the 2nd time, which was yesterday, the box was infested with maggots. I called the Dollar tree store notified an employee about the situation. I was asked if I wanted to go back to the store to grab another box. Obviously my response was, "NO!!!" I advised the lady to check the food and about whatever was flying around. I had to search my whole house because I noticed the maggots were crawling up my kitchen walls. The one bag where the dog food was also had maggots in it. Needless to say that it was disgusting. I 1st noticed the maggots were crawling up the wall where I had placed the food in the food bowl. The 2nd wall was where I had placed the box of dog food. Thank you in advance forntsking time to review this matter. |     |       |                           |     |    |       |

Purina Beyond.                          | I purchased Purina's Line-caught Alaskan cod, salmon &amp; sweet potato recipe. The pictures on the label show cod, salmon, and sweet potato. My dog has a severe allergy to chicken. When he started to scratch himself until he bled, I didn't understand what had happened. I looked at the ingredients on the back of the can, and it read, "cod, chicken, fish broth, turkey, liver, salmon, sweet potato." The label is meant to mislead consumers into thinking that cod, salmon, and sweet potato are the main ingredients. It does not mention that chicken is the second ingredient. As a result, I have to take him to the vet to ensure the wounds don't get infected. Not only will this cost me money, but it has upset both my dog and me. It should be against the law for manufacturers to make false and misleading advertising to a trusting consumer.   | 4  | Years | Bichon Frise       | Dog | 18 | Pound |

I understand their response but also have concerns in general because I would imagine the majority of consumers run into similar issues where bags are disposed of due to placing food in containers and delayed onset of conditions leads to food packaging being disposed of. We have a follow up blood draw in two weeks to see the condition of the liver enzymes and have kept the food and stools for sampling purposes. Initial Message to Manufacturer: I am contacting you in regards to my dogs situation that occurred recently. On Monday the 12th (b) (6) ate a full bowl of the dog food shown in the Amazon purchase picture attached and referenced in the information section above. For the next 8 days (b) (6) did not eat but had energy and was seemingly fine visually. She would still take treats but refused to the kibble she had previously eaten. On the 9th and 10th day she began peeing more frequently and it got to the point where on 9/22 I felt it was necessary to get her into a vet for an emergency visit. Upon the visit there were x rays performed that showed large amounts of inflammation in her GI tract. A urine sample was taken and it came back showing signs of having an infection. Two days later we took her to our personal vet to have a follow up and make sure the ER vet did not miss anything. Blood samples were procured and the results showed multiple issues related to elevated liver enzymes. I am contacting you to ask if there are any similar issues that have been reported regarding this topic and if you have information to share or support you can provide in general. I am also contacting you to see if you are interested in obtaining a sample of this food for your own testing purposes as we will be sending out the food for laboratory testing. Happy to provide any other information necessary. We had transferred the bag to a food container and threw out the bag that night. Unfortunately, since the system onset was so drawn out we do not have the bag any longer. (b) (6) | 8  | Years | Siberian Husky     | Dog | 54 | Pound |

| EON-502490 | 9/27/2022 18:24 | Purina ALPO Variety Snaps® Little Bites Dog Treats With Beef Chicken Liver & Lamb  | In February of this year I bought a box of Purina Alpo Variety snaps for my dog. A little but after I started giving him those treats he was having a little bit of diarrhea but I didn't think it was directly associated with the treats. This was his first time eating treats from this brand. I started to worry once his diarrhea became bloody and would not go away after a few days. It got to a point where it was explosive bloody diarrhea and he needed to go every few minutes and I had to leave work and take him to the emergency vet. He also threw up off of medication and was close to death. The vet prescribed medications that helped after 2 days and it was pretty expensive for me. Around that time he had a few seizures (my belief was that it was because of his slipped disc to which he recovered from). His seizures would come every few years, they were very infrequent until about two years ago. He began to have seizures every other day. I had taken him to various vets and they told me he had epilepsy. During those times that he was having these frequent seizures, I had increased his snack intake (those same soft and chewy snacks) drastically. He was getting them three times a day, everyday. When I went on vacation in July for three weeks, my sister was watching him and she did not give him any of those snacks. During my time away, he did not have a single seizure. When I came back, I began to give him those snacks again and he began to have seizures again. I stopped giving him those snacks altogether and his seizures stopped. I looked at the ingredients in those snacks and it has propylene glycol (this is banned in cat food but not dog food). I did a lot of research on this ingredient and read so many stories about people who gave their dogs food/snacks with this ingredient and their dogs began to have seizures. When they stopped giving their dogs this ingredient, the seizures stopped. Propylene glycol is an ingredient in anti-freeze. I am confident to say that my dog's seizures were because of the propylene glycol in his snacks. The date that I put, was the first time I had actually wrote in my calendar that (b) (6) had a seizure. I did want to clarify that he did have seizures before that. | 11  | Years | Shih Tzu           | Dog | 14  | Pound |

Over the course of the next several days they began having bloody diarrhea, sometimes just straight blood, they were lethargic for a couple of days. I took the female beagle in urgent care late the following evening after initial episode but they were only admitting critical patients due to staffing shortage. I collected a fecal sample and had their vet run a parasite test which was negative. I have an appointment scheduled for them tomorrow afternoon, and even though they are feeling much better, I am still deeply concerned something was wrong with the filling in the bones. | EON-502287 | 9/25/2022 14:04 | Orijen duck and chicken entree in bone broth adult cat food  | Three months ago I purchased the Orijen canned chicken and duck cat food from Champion pet foods for my very finicky 9 yr old cat. She LOVED it and soon wouldn't eat anything else. We noticed that she was drinking a LOT of water on this diet, to the extent that she would go to the tap right after eating and ask for water. Prior to trying this food she rarely drank extra water. So, we started adding water to this already soupy food, but it didn't stop her water drinking. Thinking the food might be too high in sodium, we made a vet appointment and ran complete blood work and urine analysis. Shockingly, in three months of feeding this food (her labs had been done three months prior showing high normal kidney function (2.0) and all other systems normal) she is now showing signs of early kidney disease (2.5). We were advised by our vet to stop the Orijen food immediately. Immediately after eliminating the food, our cat stopped the excess water drinking (75% drop in excess water intake). We are now adjusting her diet and will redo her labs in 1 month in the hope that this food didn't do too much kidney damage. I was also unable to get a full nutritional analysis document from this company (I was told they don't have one yet - how can a product be brought to market without a nutritional analysis document??) and the few details I did get and passed to my vet didn't make sense to our vet when she compared them with other brands' nutritional data. Because this happened to our cat so fast and this kind of kidney damage is irreversible, I felt compelled to file a complaint.  | 9   | Years | Abyssinian cat     | Cat | 7.2 | Pound |

| EON-502000 | 9/21/2022 17:04 | Earthborn Holistic Venture Smoked Turkey and Butternut Squash | Opened new bag of food of the same exact food that I've been feeding prior. The kibble was a different shape and color than precious bag but that has been common with every bag for the past year. Fed dogs food from new bag in the evening and shortly after feeding dog became lethargic, nauseous, and started having bloody diarrhea for 24 hours. Gave Pepto Bismol and stopped feeding that bag of food immediately. Almost had to take dog to vet but was able to nurse back to health at home. Switched brands of food the next day and dog recovered and no issues now. The night dogs got sick they were not exposed to any other treats, food, environmental factors, etc. I was with them the entire time for those 24 hours and there was nothing else that could've caused the illness. | 7  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)  | Dog | 96  | Pound    |

That night she threw up a lot, but we attributed it to a long drive/travel (even though she's never had an issue with long car rides before). She continued to throw up over the next few days and we thought it was maybe travel or hotel chlorinated water related, buy her bottled water. 09/08 her food intake increased over her normal. 09/08 maid came into room while we were gone (wasn't supposed to), so unaware if throw up occurred. 09/09 her water and food intake dropped significantly, assumed related to return travel. 09/10-09/12 she stopped drinking entirely. Eating is minimal. No pooping. Throwing up foamy substance due to empty stomach. We're concerned something happened with the maid 09/13 blood tests, X-rays and IV at vet. Minimal improvements over next four days. One small poop. Drank very minimal only a few times. Eats minimally dry food on her own, refuses wet food provided from vet. Will eat wet treats, but struggles to finish even 1-1.5 per day. 09/17 all day IV at vet, discuss end of life options if continuation of no improvements over the next week. He continued to throw up all of the food in his stomach as well as bile because there was nothing left. His poop started like soft serve ice cream, and eventually got to the point where it was just water with blood in it. He was shaking profusely. We ended up taking him to the vet to get multiple shots and pills, and determined it was more than likely from these treats, as nothing else in his diet or routine changed and he wouldn't have gotten into anything. We were left with a couple hundred in medical bills and had to throw away furnishings in our home that were absolutely ruined due to his illness.  | 2.5 | Years | Shih Tzu            | Dog | 14.06 | Pound |
| EON-501771 | 9/19/2022 15:04 | Wellness   | I started a gradual 10 day transition to Wellness Gravies chicken entrée can food. On the 3rd day I noticed both of my cats using the litter box very frequently. The amount of bowel movements became more and more as the days passed and I added more food. When I looked at the ingredients I noticed FLAXSEED. Then one of my cats began over grooming herself so I took her to the vet. They took blood, did urine and stool test. Vet said FLAXSEED could cause "VOLUOUS POOP" Came back positive for Urinary tract infection probably from over cleaning herself from all the bowel movements. Went on antibiotic. Then had to have urine retested again. Bills came out to over $500. After stopping the food both cats went back to normal bowel movements. I reported to Chewys where I purchased it from and to the company Wellness. I was told by Chewys I would be able to get my vet bills paid. Then they said they could not do that and I needed to report it to Wellness. Wellness sent me an apology letter but that their vet was no able to make any correlation. They also sent me $100 of coupons which I attempted to use today at Petco and they were not accepted. Petco said when they scanned the coupons nothing was found. So Wellness not only did not pay for my vet bills but also sent me $100 worth of useless coupons that do not work. FLAXSEED does not belong in cat food. This is their regular diet. We have 15 indoor only cats that are spayed/neutered and up to date on vaccinations living together in the same home. They range in age from just under a year old to 16 years old. The only difference in their daily life is that 3 of them eat a prescription diet from Royal Canin and the other 12 eat Purina Naturals. We meal feed. They all eat a measured amount from their own bowl and are separated for meals so we know exactly who eats what. Tuesday 8-30-22 we woke up to several piles of blood tinged vomit. Only one cat did not eat breakfast that morning. By Wednesday 8-31-22 AM more cats were sick. inappetence, diarrhea, bloody vomit and lethargy. I took the two sickest cats into (b) (6). They had labwork with no significant findings. All sick cats were being treated symptomatically. By Wednesday evening it was obvious that the only three cats not sick were the three eating the Royal Canin diet. The Purina was stopped and Royal Canin Prescription GI diet was started. I contacted the manufacturer who said there had not been any recalls and that I could submit a sample of the food to them for quality control testing that would take three months. I agreed to send them the sample and provided them with the lot numbers (2084 1085 0944L05 Best by Sep 2023) and everything they requested but told them that was an unacceptable response as I had twelve actively sick cats. I told them that I was concerned about other cats being sick and it not being caught as a cats routine diet is not the first thing we think to be the problem when a cat comes into the hospital sick and that my situation was unique in being able to pin point the potential cause for illness. I consulted with my veterinarian as well as (b) (6) who referred me the (b) (6) for food testing. |  | Years | Domestic (unspecified) | Cat |  |  |

Illness and recovery for my kitties has varied for each one and has been up and down. Vomiting has stopped, still dealing with some inappetence and some diarrhea. | EON-501488 | 9/14/2022 18:44 | Earthborn Coastal Catch, AvoDerm Original Lamb Meal & Brown Rice Recipe Adult Dry Dog Food | Dog Food Copper Over-Supplementation Came Close to Killing My Otherwise Healthy Labrador Retriever Problem Summary Commercial dog food does not include copper levels as a part of the label. Copper storage disease is entirely preventable by limiting the copper levels in commercial dog food to zero or to a safe level for all dogs. (b) (6), my lovely Labrador retriever was born (b) (6) was a healthy happy puppy. Her breeder alerted us about copper storage disease being a concern for Labs in 2015. (b) (6) had been on Earthborn Coastal Catch dry dog food, recommended by her breeder once she was weaned and on solid food. As the breeder became aware of copper storage disease and the challenge of finding out how much copper was in commercial dog food, she did a great deal of research, as copper levels are not on dog food labels, and found the lowest copper-level commercial dog food, which at that time was Avoderm Original Lamb and Brown Rice, which I began feeding (b) (6) in June 2016. (b) (6) was 2.5 year at that time. (b) (6) was an active Lab and was fun to train using positive training methods. She gained her Canine Good Citizen Community/Urban Titles, Rally Level 2 Title and Senior Dock Diving title by age 7. She was still very vigorous, acting like a happy young dog at that age. In January 2021, (b) (6) vomited several times, which was very unusual for her. I called her regular vet, (b) (6) immediately and after tests, she noted that (b) (6) was at increased risk for pyometra and needed to be spayed. Knowing of copper storage disease concerns in Labs, she recommended going to the Veterinary Specialty Hospital now known as (b) (6) who could spay her and at that time perform a liver biopsy. (b) (6) surgery was 1/26/21. The liver biopsy results are 1880 liver quantification Grade 3 of 5.  | 8 | Years | Retriever - Labrador | Dog | 28 | Kilogram |
|            |                 |  | The Vet Specialty Hospital team was led by (b) (6), and Internal Medicine specialist who had treated many dogs for copper toxicosis. He brought in a Canine Nutritionist, and together developed a treatment plan. Key elements were as follows: ? (b) (6) came off Avoderm completely early in the week following the biopsy. A custom diet was developed by the Nutritionist. (b) (6) was fed this diet 3 times per day with specified number of grams per day of eggs, soybeans, couscous, carrots, green beans, spinach, pumpkin and canola oil was developed by a Nutritionist connected with the Internal Medicine practice that developed her treatment plan. I had to figure out how to prepare this in batches for a week, preparing it as a casserole, which took about 4-5 hours each week. Apples and blueberries were her only training treats. She has daily supplements including B-6, Folic acid, Vitamin E, BalanceIT-Cu and Welactin Canine Omega 3 liquid. ? She began D-penicillamine 10-15mg/kg 350mg on an empty stomach by mouth every 12 hours made by a compounding pharmacy called Stokes Pharmacy. ? She began SAME 20mg/kg known as Denamarin Tablets with one large dog tab and one medium dog tab daily. (b) (6) was being closely monitored on the D-Pen, and I was able to do so easily since this occurred during the COVID-19 pandemic, where I was able to work my fulltime job from my home office, where she would be with me during the day. She began vomiting again in late April 2021. On 5.20.21 she became very ill. She was vomiting with diarrhea and very unsteady on her feet. (b) (6) recommended that I take her straight to the (b) (6) where she was admitted. She almost died that weekend, kept alive with fluid IVs. It was determined that there were serious renal complications due to the D-penicillamine. The Medical record note states D-penicillamine – Please |   |       |                      |     |    |          |

She was on new medications, including prednisone, and telmisartan. I was told to use a product called Entyce to get her to eat and to use Cerenia for nausea, vomiting and decreased appetite. She also lost her ability to blink and needed Genteal Eye lubricant. We were told to add Royal Canin Hepatic canned dog food to her custom diet. Eventually her appetite came back. She was able to blink her eyes again after about 8-10 weeks. Now she gets 1 can per day spread over 3 meals and combined with the egg and couscous recipe. She has been under care of (b) (6), getting rechecks until August 2022; and she is returning to regular care with (b) (6) who ran urine P:C tests and will continue to monitor her every 6 months. Total costs of biopsy, Emergency Hospital stays, and (b) (6) totaled to $9,379.45. This does not include vitamins, dietary supplements, the cost of medications, and custom meals. I am fortunate that I had the resources to pay for this very expensive and totally preventable health problem, and I am aware of many not so fortunate. (b) (6) is doing well now, thanks to my breeder's awareness, my quick action, and good veterinary care from (b) (6). (b) (6) will continue to be monitored, given daily Denamarin and fed her specialty diet and supplements. She recently became a Certified Pet Therapy dog, as she loves to greet people, and we hope to work with school and college kids that are working to recover from their social isolation during these last two COVID years. |                            |                 |   | Labs are the most popular breed in America and while they may have a genetic predisposition for copper storage disease, their numbers mean that they were simply among the first breeds to be identified. Her Internal Medicine Vet has sadly reported that he continues to see an uptick in this diagnosis, as has been noted, beyond breeds that may be genetically predisposed. I have had other breeds and rescues and (b) (6) has taught me that I love having a Lab. This has been a very hard year for us, full of grief and anxiety over her shaky recovery from a disease that is entirely preventable. I want to be able to keep all pets from going through what my Lab and my family have been through. We are all in this together. I am pleading on behalf of dog lovers that the FDA take immediate corrective action to: require copper levels to be listed on the containers of commercial dog foods, and lower the copper concentration in commercial dog food to a safe level to mitigate this avoidable and potentially fatal illness.  |   |       |                       |     |    |       |

| EON-501381 | 9/13/2022 12:20 | Whole Hearted Grain Free Chicken and Pea  | We bought a new bag of whole Hearted grain free dog food on August 8th, we stored it in the house and started to feed the dogs Friday the 12th. Friday (b) (6) began to throw up and wasn't acting like herself. Was up pacing through the night. Restless all night, thought maybe she ate a bug and was having a reaction. Never thought it was the food because we buy this brand and have been using the exact one for at least 6 months without any issues. By Tuesday I made a vet appointment and Wednesday she was acting more normal. So thought nothing of it and canceled the appointment. Then our boxer started to throw up and wasn't keeping any of the food down, we watched him and thought maybe it's the new bag of kibble, by day two he was still throwing up and I had a vet appointment already scheduled for that next Friday for both my Boxer and the Chug. We stopped giving all the dogs the kibble and the next day my Chug stopped eating, he never threw up but had no appetite. We made boiled chicken and rice and fed them that the next few days because their stools were runny, dark and not normal. On Friday we took them to the vet for their check up and asked about the food and the vet said it's common due to the food staying in warehouses longer and not shipped on refrigerated trucks so they go bad. The Boston Terrier and the Boxer have no more symptoms the Chug is still off his food. The boxer lost 10 lbs. I contacted Petco but due to us throwing out the bag, they will not give us a refund even with a receipt. I am more concerned about other animals getting sick. | 7  | Years | Boxer (German Boxer)  | Dog | 60  | Pound |

| EON-501311 | 9/12/2022 13:04 | InnerPaw Dog Supplements Calming Chews With Hemp          | I purchased Inner Paw Calming Chews for my pet because we were going on a family vacation and he was going to be around another pet which makes him extra hyper. My pet's overall behavior was normal before giving him the Calming Chews was normal - he was spunky, active, alert, eating and drinking normal. We gave him 3 chews as directed for his weight and age around 9am on 9/9/22. After giving him the chews I took him outside where he ran around the yard as normal. Around noon we decided to take him to the State Park for a walk (5 minute drive from the home). Once arriving at the state park I took him out of the car where he proceeded to forcefully throw himself on the ground (the dirt and the pavement). He started retching but nothing was coming up and at one point he was retching and squatting as if he was going to poop. He was clearly agitated and kept pacing and then throwing himself on the ground whimpering. After about 15 minutes of the behavior we decided to load him back in the car and take him back to the house. When arriving to the house he was panting excessively, whimpering with every movement, kept getting up and laying down and rolling around on the ground. His gums and tongue were pale pink and he felt cold on his underbelly. This was not typical behavior for him. As we got him in the house while we tried to contact a local vet to see him, he was trying to hide in the closet and bathroom. We took him to an animal hospital over a hour away and when we arrived his heart rate was over 200 - extremely dangerous and continued retching. We contacted poison control to go over the Calming Treat ingredients, which they deemed safe for dogs. We tried to contact the number on the Calming Treat can and it was unavailable. The veterinarian seemed almost certain that this was a reaction to the Calming Treats but suggested a blood and urine test to determine what was in our pets system. | 4 | Years | Mountain Dog - Bernese | Dog | 58 | Pound |

The food smelled sour almost rotting, and their stool smelled the same way. The doctors said to report this to you and toss the new food into the garbage. The said they would take a sample of the food and get it tested, but think it is the food.   | 1  | Years | Setter - English                    | Dog | 60 | Pound |

She became very ill after she ate from a new bag we had just opened. Prior to us knowing she had been fed three times. The first time she started to react differently and did not want to complete her food. This is not her normal behavior. She always eats her complete meal. The second and third time we fed her were the same issues in which time she began to throw up followed by diarrhea. This became problematic to the point she was dry heaving and bleeding. We did take her to the Vet Hospital (due to time of night) and were able to start her on IV's and antibiotics. X-rays determined there was no blockage or mechanical issue however her intestines were dilated but no direct issue could be determined. Her blood work suggested there may be some sort of bacterial infection. We are informing you about this in case others have had issues with their dog food. We are supplying the info from her food to provide you the identity from the food she ate. Our may concern is to be informative and ensure other dogs do not have the same issue with this batch of dog food. If you need to contact us for further information please feel free to do so. I poured the bag in two sealed containers. About 3 weeks later, weevils started appearing in larvae and smaller bug stage. I carefully sifted the food to give food to my dog and killed weevils. When the dog food was getting low, I put the rest in oven to kill remaining weevils. Opened 2nd bag which was heavily infested with weevils. I had hoped it was only one bag. Nope, both bags were already infected. Simply Nourish needs to clean their factory free of weevils! It's bad to sell a product that is infected with grain-eating bugs.   |  |                           |     |  |  |

| EON-500646 | 9/3/2022 0:00  | Member's Mark Chicken Jersey Recipe   | Our Maltipoo, (b) (6), had been eating Chicken Jerky Treats from Member's Mark (Sam's Club). She is only 15 pounds and would eat 2-3 a day. Our Goldendoodle, (b) (6), would eat the same amount but he is 65 pounds. One day we noticed a large amount of urine on our floor. (b) (6) had an accident in the house which she never does. We also noticed she was drinking large amounts of water and not eating. The only thing she would eat were the treats. This went on for several days. We took her in to see the vet. They checked her sugar, urine, and complete blood work. Her Potassium was very low and a few other factors. The vet gave her an appetite enhancer, pain medicine and antibiotic. They believed she had a urinary or bladder infection. After a few more days, she was not improving. No eating except the dog treats, drinking lots of water and having many accidents and the urine was clear in color. We took her back to the vet and her potassium was lower. The vet sent us to a specialist who performed an ultrasound and more blood work. She was in ICU for 2 nights and receiving potassium, fluids, and other meds by IV. When she came home, we discontinued the dog treats, continued giving her the prescribed Potassium supplements and appetite enhancer. She finally began to eat and her water intake while still high, was lower than a few days before. She stopped having accidents in the house. 2 weeks later she had a follow-up with the specialist. Her potassium levels were coming up but still a little low. They provided me the results from the blood work and it specified she had Falcon Syndrome from the ingestion of Chicken Jerky Treats. The prolonged consumption of the treats created a toxicity in her system. She is improving but has to have continued follow-ups and possible long-term potassium supplements. We are praying she recovers completely. We have eliminated the product from our home. | 10 | Years | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 15  | Pound |

My Rednose pit bull has since become ill with bloody diarrhea and loose stools starting Sunday. The same as my American Bully did in July both needing vet attention. My dogs are inside dogs and haven't gotten into anything, but when taking them to the vet two of the three have been diagnosed with a bacterial infection in their intestines and stomach needing antibiotics to get better. Then I go this past Sunday and we purchase a different bag of the same brand the Victor Classic Hi Pro Plus lot #1000013056 best use by 7/26/23 and find moldy dogfood clumps inside. When finding this I think this brand needs to be looked into. Sadly I do not have the lot number on the Realtree bag but did go back to where I purchased it at Tractor Supply (b) (6) and the manager there is researching to find the lot number in the system and told me they have had a lot of this brand returned lately due to mold and strange smells to the food. They offered to replace the food but I can not take the chances of giving them food possibly filled with mold and bacteria. She greeted me happily and seemed to be acting fairly normal. We played for a minute and I took her outside where she ran to my mom in the backyard and rolled around in the grass. Zero signs of distress. She was fed right before we went out for dinner around 7:30 pm I believe. A cup of dry food and a packet of wet food. When we returned home around 9 pm she had pooped twice. Once on a pad and once on the floor as if she couldn't make it to the pad. She had also vomited on her dog bed right next to where we found her. She was very lethargic and would not get up or change positions even though she acted like she wanted to. She was responsive this whole time. After about an hour of monitoring her I assisted her to stand up and she stood before laying back down. Around 11 pm she finally stirred and got up for us to take her out to pee. When we returned to the house she drank lots of water and proceeded to vomit twice before drinking more water. She seemed more alert which made us think that she might have gotten a stomach bug or eaten something bad and she had gotten rid of most of it. She laid down near her water bowl, but we encouraged her back to her dog bed in the living room so that we could better monitor her. From this point she would change positions occasionally and not stay still. I stayed with her until about 1 am and went to bed. She was alone for about 30 minutes while my brother chatted with me. He then went to watch her for the rest of the night. He did ask me to come look at her when he returned to her because she was laying awkwardly on the floor with her rear feet on the bed, but that isn't unusual for her. | 11.5 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 60 | Pound |

We woke up our mother and the three of us decided to take her to the emergency vet. I called to make sure they were open and they encouraged me to bring her in after describing the symptoms. Having decided to take her to the emergency vet we all went to get clothed and when we returned moments later she was not responsive and I saw her take her final breaths. We contributed the incident solely to her health condition, and that may still be the case; however, the suddenness of her passing raised my suspicions. I found that mom had opened a new box of wet food and fed her the first packet taken from that box. My concern is that this wet food pouch may have been contaminated and led to the poisoning of our dog. I am reporting this in case you want to investigate or corollate with other reports. I truly hope this is not the case and no other animals are being harmed. She was fed a Pedigree Chicken Casserole Flavor packet. | EON-500338 | 8/29/2022 20:52 | Verus Feline - Tuna Paté Formula.Feline food for all breeds all life stages.Grain free.  | On August 28, 2022, we fed our two cats Verus Feline - Tuna Paté Formula (one can total, split into two bowls). The food was stored in a cool, dark cabinet before use. Can was opened and a small amount of water was added to the product before immediately serving. Cat 1 vomited just minutes after the food was initially consumed. Cat 2 vomited about 20-30 minutes after the food was initially consumed. This was our first time using this brand and product. The first two ingredients of the product are tuna and chicken liver. Neither cat has ever shown an allergy to either of these ingredients. Additionally, Cat 2 (3 years old) has never vomited outside of what are clearly hairballs, so this was already an unusual occurrence made even more so by both cats becoming ill at the same time. Each cat was sick very soon after eating the food and vomited only the food. Both cats recovered in ~1 hour and were able to drink and eat solid food without further clinical symptoms. | 7 | Years  | Domestic (unspecified)    | Cat | 10 | Pound |

I fed the first serving of Simple Goodness mixed with my dog's previous food to my dog on August 19th. He vomited that night. He ate this food mixed with his previous food for the next three days and vomited each day. I did not make the connection between his vomiting and the food until the third day. We believe this was the cause of both dogs getting very ill because on Sunday 8/21/22 my neighbor gave her dog another Bully Snap Stick she just received in the mail from the same vendor. He started to have diarrhea again. She and I both took our dogs to the vet. The vet gave us both the same treatment without knowing exactly the cause. My dog had to get an IV due to dehydration. Treatment was Purina EN dog food and (2) probiotics. It took about 3 days before their stools became more than a liquid. | EON-499856 | 8/23/2022 12:25 | Blue Delights For Small Breed Dogs Top Sirloin Flavor Pate | I, (b) (6), am writing about Blue Buffalo, regarding a dog food purchase that ended up killing my beloved pug, (b) (6). It happened on 07/28/2022. I came home that morning, and (b) (6) wasn't acting right; she was going in circles, bumping her head into the walls, and not paying attention when I called her name. She was acting "out of it". I thought she had a stroke, and it scared me. I called her Veterinarian - (b) (6) office, and they got me in. (b) (6) looked at her and tells me to put her on the floor. (b) (6) did the same thing: going in circles, bumped her head into things, and she just wasn't right. He asked me some questions, like was she outside? No, she's an inside dog. Did she eat chocolate or table scrapes? I said no, only her regular dog food, which was Blue Buffalo dog food. They keep (b) (6) overnight for observation. They gave her IV medication, antibiotics, shots, and they put her on oxygen. I was so upset because she's a baby, and she's my baby. I got her back. She was like my normal (b) (6) - happy and playful. I was just happy to see her well. That's all I wanted. Then on (b) (6) was good all morning. She had her food Blue Buffalo, then the afternoon hit, and she had diarrhea, vomiting, fever, and she was drinking a lot of water. She then started to become lethargic and had fast/slow breathing, so I called the Emergency Veterinarian. They said they would take her in. I rushed her in, and they did blood work, chest x-rays, gave her oxygen, and started IV. The Veterinarian told me that things looked really bad. He asked questions, like was she outside? No, she is an inside dog. Did she get into toxic chemicals or eat anything different? I said no, I always give her Blue Buffalo. I said she got her shipment in of her dog food from Chewy; it's Blue Buffalo Blue Delights Top Sirloin Flavor Pate. | 19 | Months | Pug              | Dog | 6  | Pound |
|                            |                 |  | She has always eaten this food, but this was a new shipment, and I have been feeding her this since she got sick the first time. I let him know this and he said it's a possibility it could be the food. Her blood work was off, and he said she has a bad infection. I just couldn't comprehend this information - that was my baby (b) (6). He then asked me, "Ma'am, are you understanding what I'm telling you? Your dog only has a 10-15% chance of making it through the night". I said okay because I was disbelief what was going on. The other Veterinarian came to me and said, "I know this is hard. Do you understand how ill your dog is?" I said yes and no. She said, "Ma'am, (b) (6) may not make it through the night". I just fell apart; she was only a baby. I asked if I could see her, and she said yes, so I went to see (b) (6). She was hooked up to oxygen and yet, she was gasping for air. I just seen her so helpless, and I asked myself - what could I do for her? I asked the Veterinarian, "Is she suffering from this?" She said yes, she is. I told her I don't want her to suffer, and she said another option for you is to put her to sleep; I just lost it again. I couldn't believe this was happening. I called my husband, daughter, son, so they could say their goodbyes, and they left afterwards. It was just me holding her and the Veterinarian came in, explained to me what she was giving her, and how she would react; then, (b) (6) was gone. I cried and cried, watching my beloved baby girl pass away. Here is my story. I'm giving you all the information you requested. | EON-499781 | 8/22/2022 15:56 | Steve's Real Food Beef Recipe for cats & dogs  | (b) (6) the pup vomited 6-8 times on Sun 8/21/22. He showed no interest in eating anything on 8/21/22. He is normally VERY excited to eat and had been eating the very same concoction of food over the prior week; this happened quite suddenly. The other 2 dogs, his uncle (b) (6) and mother (b) (6) (both aged 7 years) ate the same food normally on 8/21/22. My husband took (b) (6) to the Emergency Vet approx 85 miles away on 8/21, where he was diagnosed with gastrointestinal problems, perhaps food-related. The only other obvious symptom he had was lethargy - very obvious as he is normally VERY high energy whereas his behavior now is very subdued. He has not vomited since the vet visit, but he still has ZERO interest in eating ANYTHING. By Mon 8/22 the other two older dogs did also refused their morning meal, showing NO interest in eating, just as the pup had done the day before. (b) (6) has also vomited twice, and (b) (6) once. The two older dogs are also now lethargic. | 11 | Months | Shepherd Dog - Australian | Dog | 24   | Pound |

As dental bills are exceptional high I found this water additive that is supposed to alleviate dental disease. Oxyfresh Water Additive. The label specifies to use 32oz of water/1 capful of additive. I used a clean 32oz bottle to make a batch and started using it with my cats that come into the garage to eat. After about a month there was a severe break out of diarrhea that seemed to escalate. After about 3 days I stopped using the Oxyfresh and the diarrhea stopped after about a week. It is difficult to say how many were sick but there was a lot of diarrhea. All dates below are estimates; I made myself file this report because it was horrible and I owed it to other cat folks to follow-up. I also have 5 bottles (unopened) that I will save for awhile (just in case) and I save all my cat receipts so I should be able to look up specific purchase dates if you need them.  |    |        | Colorpoint Shorthair      | Cat |      |       |

| EON-499451 | 8/21/2022 14:04 | Orijen Tundra  | I have been feeding my dogs Orijen and Acana for years. I was feeding them Orijen 6 Fish. On August 14, 2022, I bought a bag of Orijen Tundra and started transitioning 4 of the 7 dogs at my house. Thursday, (b) (6), the first dog (who has cancer) started having diarrhea, even though she had been off of chemo for a week. I called the vet's office on Friday and the oncologist is out until Monday. Saturday morning, the next dog, (b) (6), a 12 1/2 yr old Chocolate Lab started getting diarrhea. Also on Saturday, my 3 yr old Foster named (b) (6) started getting diarrhea AND vomited in his bed. And on Saturday as well, my 14 year old dog named (b) (6) developed watery diarrhea. Worse diarrhea than the others. I have 3 other dogs in my home who have NOT been given Tundra and none of the three are sick. I have serious concerns that there is some sort of bacterial contamination in this bag and probably others as well that can make other dogs sick or even kill them. I don't want more dogs to get sick or die because I did nothing. I am pretty sure it's this bag of dog food as only my dogs that ate this food are sick. My dog, (b) (6), is the youngest of the four sick dogs. He's super healthy and has never been sick. The other three are older, and the diarrhea has been hard on them. I have searched all over this bag - even using a flashlight - and can find no lot number or expiration date. Also, I have 4 sick dogs but your form only allows me to report on one, so I picked the youngest - (b) (6). | 3   | Years | Retriever - Labrador      | Dog | 80 | Pound |

One morning we woke up to him meowing. He doesn't meow. When he wouldn't eat or play we knew something was wrong. We took him to the vet and his urethra was blocked and his bladder was full. They drained his bladder and then we took him to another pet hospital where he could monitored with a catheter and I.V. for several days. After discharge we had to make numerous trips to the vet each week to make sure that he wasn't getting blocked again. He is now on a special urinary diet which isn't cheap either. I contacted the food company and sent them everything from the vet. I sent them a sample of the food as they requested and they refused to give me the results from the lab. On further investigating this brand there are several pet owners who weren't as fortunate as we were and their pet passed. This product needs to be removed so that other pet owners don't lose their pets and the company needs to own up to their mistake. | EON-498668 | 8/14/2022 20:28 | Bayside Selects Ultimate ProPac Ultimate for Adult Dogs | Approximately two weeks ago while on a camping trip in (b) (6) started to reject his usual food of 6-8 years, Bayside Selects Pro Pac Ultimates Grain Free dog food. For the next few days he would take his treats (Milk Bones and Blue brand Health Bars) and some fresh vegetables (carrots and blueberries) but generally refused to eat his normal food. While outside on this trip, (b) (6) was on a leash and did not spend time outside unsupervised. (b) (6) slept and spent his leisure time in the camper. On Sunday, July 31st, approximately 1-2 days after returning from the trip, (b) (6) had a vomiting episode in the morning but took food later in the day. The next day, Monday, (b) (6) was taken to the vet due to bloody diarrhea. It was from this initial visit that he was diagnosed with pancreatitis and colitis. He left this vet appointment with the following medication: an appetite stimulant, antibiotic, probiotic, anti-vomiting, liver and pancreatic antioxidants. From here, he was fed a diet of boiled chicken, white rice, and cooked green beans at our vets advice. In the past when we have encountered gastrointestinal issues this is food he seemed to the most. After 2 days, (b) (6) would refuse this food, so we bought a half dozen cans of Hill's Prescription Diet i/d low fat dog food. He continued this cycle of vomiting, grazing food, and taking and refusing medicine for another two days. On 8/9, (b) (6) spent the morning vomiting. He was found one afternoon laying in bed surrounded by his own vomit because because he was too weak to move. He was taken to the vet and given medication intravenously. At this point, we were feeding him de-skinned apples and apple sauce, even crushing his medication into his apple sauce so he would take some of it. The following morning, 8/10, he was admitted to the vet once more after peeing what looked like blood and vomiting a substance white in color that, according to our mother, resembled egg whites (he was not fed any eggs during the past several weeks). From this second admittance he was diagnosed again with pancreatitis and colitis; additionally, he was diagnosed with hepatitis and IMHA, or immune mediated hemolytic anemia. From here, (b) (6) was under vet supervision for the next two days to allow time for the medicine used to treat IMHA to take effect. After (b) (6) his blood work showed a rapid and dangerous decline in his hematocrit levels, indicating that the treatment was not effective. On that day, (b) (6) after consultation with our vet, we elected to have our dog put euthanized, as to not let him suffer any longer. After getting back from the camping trip and dealing with symptoms for several days now, our mother noticed something wrong with the most recent bag of dog food she had bought, the food that (b) (6) had been eating from for 2-3 weeks now. When she lifted the bag off of the ground, there was a pool of oil on the ground. This oil would have had to seep through several thick layers of material for it to reach the outside of the bag. On 8/3, my mother returned this bag of food to the point of purchase, a Feeders Supply Store located at (b) (6). The clerk at the store issued a refund; later that night, our mother went back for the food thinking that we should really keep it in our possession for evidence due to the rapidly declining state of our dog. She picked the food up the next day. When she arrived, the clerk told her that they actually had to bag the food up in several garbage bags due to the foul odor it was emitting. Once back in our possession, the dog food was stored in several garbage bags, where it continued to emit a foul odor, leak oil, and grow a white colored substance. On 8/3, my mother began correspondence with the manufacturer of this food, Midwestern Pet Foods, via email. A employee named (b) (6) responded to her email and they began collected information from my mother, including information about the food, photos of the food, and vet bills. In one email dated 8/4, the representative even admitted that the food seemed "rancid" and "not feedable". This correspondence continued for several days. On Friday, 8/12 my mother received an email from (b) (6) stating the following: | 12 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 22 | Pound |

|  |  |  | "Thank you for your message. I am so sorry to hear your pup (b) (6) is not doing well. Yesterday. I sent a request to the plant on when I can expect the results from the quality assurance and microbiology testing. It is difficult when you are working with outside parties, their response time is out of your hands. Usually the turn around is 2 weeks. I am trying to push them to move faster. I sent them another email this morning and included your concern of the white substance and photos. I am sorry for the delay. I am sure (b) (6) is in good hands and hope that he improves quickly." As of the time of submitting this report, we have not heard any more from (b) (6) or Midwestern Pet Foods. Additionally, at the time of submission, we are waiting to hear back from our veterinarian about options for analysis of the food in question. According to our vet and online veterinary resources, pancreatitis is commonly brought on after ingestion of excessively fatty foods. Pancreatitis, when unchecked or severe, can cause inflammation and damage to other organs, as was seen in (b) (6). Furthermore, the autoimmune response, a latent, genetic component of our dog's genome that had never presented itself before, can be triggered by large amounts of inflammation. Like most inside dogs, our dog was occasionally the recipient of human foods (eggs, blueberries, un-buttered popcorn, and meat scraps such as chicken and ham), was known to occasionally scrap for whatever food he could find on the ground in the kitchen, and experienced, at most, infrequent bouts of indigestion, vomiting, and diarrhea. He had no history of pancreatitis, colitis, or hepatitis before this incident. |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|  |  |  | We are submitting this report because we believe this foul and rancid food is what led the untimely, and incredibly painful decline of our beloved dog, (b) (6). It is in our opinion that this rancid food is what started this deadly domino effect of organ inflammation and autoimmune response. We want to make sure that no other dog has to go through the pain that our dog endured during the last two weeks of his life. We are devastated, and the trust we had in this food that we have relied on to ensure our dog was in good health throughout the majority of his life has been violated. Thank you for your time.   |  |  |  |  |  |  |

The store returned my money, but threw away the food I am told after being reimbursed. I recently tried buying my Purina Pro Plan Chicken Hairball dry food and it is now nowhere to be found. I called Purina and was told that it has been suspended since March or April. Chewey does not even have this food. Purina's answer to the problem is to buy the Turkey or Salmon flavor food and they don't know when Chicken will be available again. Today, I noticed that two cases (48 cans) of Chicken Fancy Feast Pate still in the wrapped cases also have swollen cans. I called Purina again and I am being told many stories about supply issues, but on the other hand also being told that Purina has never been recalled. I have figured out at this point that Purina has never been recalled probably due to keeping the pet parent happy by just returning their money. Their solution is to reimburse me and have me throw away the food that is probably infected with BOTULISM. I spent a long time on the phone asking if anybody is going to actually open the puffed out cans and figure out why the cans puffed out. I was more or less initially brushed off and told that it is probably just a small hole or other type of damage to the cans, but the cans all look good to me and almost 50% are affected. |    |       |                    |     |    |       |
|            |                 |   | I expressed to them that I was concerned about Botulism since the box holding the case looks good as well as the over wrap and the fact that this was my second purchase where the cans were swollen. I also mentioned to them that I found it funny that all of my problems seem to be with Purina Chicken products and they have no clue as to when they will be available again. I was additionally told by Purina that numerous dog foods are also suspended. When I mentioned contacting the FDA due to concerns about all of the puffed out cans, Purina offered to send me a label to ship the 48 cans back to them. My concern is that I really think at this point someone needs to really test what is in the cans and see why they are all puffed out. I do not want to ship the cans back to them to just have them thrown out. Please advise me as to how to proceed. I still have all the 48 cans if you would like to test this batch. On a separate note, did you know that the new dry cat food that they have for allergies is made with genetically modified eggs? That is what Purina told me on a another phone call.   |    |       |                    |     |    |       |

| EON-498408 | 8/10/2022 23:44 | Primal freeze dried nuggets chicken formula   | On July 1, 2022 I Purchased primal pet chicken freeze dried nuggets based on the ingrediants listed and an intolerance test we had performed by a third party. On the first day of feeding my dog had a loose projectile stool. We attributed this to diet change. On July 2, 2022, her stool was more solid than on July 3, 2022, my dog had 4 episodes of vomiting followed by multiple projectile liquid stools, then 3 bowel movements of gastric acid, and blood. She was listless and dehydrated by the time we got home. We immediately took her to the emergency vet where she received fluids, labs ,stool testing, urine test and several hours of critical care treatment. The vet was stated she may have eaten something bad and that she was having kidney issues as her urine was overly dilute. She was dehydrated but her urine was like water. The vet allowed us to go home and monitor her closely. We had a few more episodes of horrible stools and vomiting as well as clear urine. I found a recall for the beef version of this food and thought the Primal Pet Nuggets may be the issue. I stopped the food and researched the product. I reviewed the website and found that the freeze-dried nuggets food is actually raw meat. RAW is not stated on the package or any of their packages. It only states Freeze-dried. This is a problem considering her age and the risks of feeding raw food to any dog. Had the package stated RAW I would not have purchased it. We stopped feeding the Primal Pet and her symptoms resolved. I am concerned that this nearly fatal situation was caused by Primal Pet food. I would not have purchased and fed this to my puppy had the manufacturer started RAW on the package. | 4 Months | Bulldog - French       | Dog | 10 | Pound |

About 3 days later I noticed that (b) (6) was having trouble with her stools sticking to her, and difficulty in passing the stools. All of my cats then stopped drinking water completely. (b) (6), who was 15 years of age and in good health prior to this, stopped eating also. I stopped feeding the food to them. (b) (6) and (b) (6) seemed to return to their normal eating habits. However, (b) (6) kept getting worse. She refused her food to a greater degree as each day went by. I was able to get her to eat some Greenies dental treats for a couple of days, but then she refused them. I wound up isolating her into a crate cage and started force feeding her small amounts of canned food mixed with strained baby food meat a couple of times a day. In spite of this, she grew weaker each day, until one day she vomited what I had fed her for breakfast and died from the stress of this. A couple of days prior to this she was lying down on the carpet and passed a stool that looked old, which was followed by mucous. She then started passing small amounts of diarrhea, soiling herself uncontrollably and urinating uncontrollably. | 15 | Years | Domestic Mediumhair  | Cat | 8  | Pound |

I noticed the color was a lot different than previous bags of kibble, but still provided it to my 3 cats. (b) (6), my eldest cat, had a clean bill of health in January with no issues had the first reaction. I took him to the emergency vet on 8/3/22 where he was diagnosed with Pancreatitis and on 8/5/22 where he was having breathing difficulties. He is currently on a strict diet provided by the vet and recovering. On 8/6/22 I decided to continue with feeding my other 2 cats the kibble, as they were not on a restricted diet. (b) (6), my 11 year old tortoiseshell cat, had gastrointestinal distress, diarrhea, and vomiting. I was not sure if it was the kibble or perhaps what was causing them to be ill was a virus. Today, 8/7/22, I decided to give my 3rd cat (b) (6) the kibble as she dislikes eating wet food exclusively. Not more than 45 minutes after the kibble (b) (6) was crying and vomiting around the household in great distress. I believe this kibble has contaminated pieces in it that are making my cats ill. At this time I am monitoring all 3 of them, as (b) (6) and (b) (6) are improving, and (b) (6) is under watch to ensure she does not get worse. After about 20 minutes of excessive vomiting, she has stopped, but I am still on watch.   | 12 Years | Domestic Longhair    | Cat | 16 | Pound |

Vet (b) (6) did not tell me her lungs would fill with fluid at anytime. Just referred us to a cardiologist at (b) (6) but couldn't get in for 3 weeks due to cardiologist appointment availability. Our puppy was eating Kirkland nature's domain puppy grain free food at the recommendation of breeder and (b) (6) knew we were feeding her this too. Puppy was not feeling well three days before she died at was taken to (b) (6) and she said she was fine but she wasn't. Two days later She fainted took her to emergency vet they gave oxygen and cleared lungs and we drover her to another vet one hour away for better help and she died of heart failure within the hour. We paid $2,000 to have a necropsy and they said it was from her food Kirkland grain free food and she had a congenital left heart defect. The report said it could be from both things that she passed away which was so horrible to see her suffering. In the report the doctor didn't know what puppy was eating but I called her, (b) (6) who did necropsy and she said it's possible the food had something to do with it as they never did a taurine blood test and I spoke to emergency vet at (b) (6) who treated her and she said puppy was to critical to draw blood to test taurine level.Puppy never made it to her cardiologist appointment on (b) (6). Bag                         | I received my new bag of dog food on July 19th. The food was the exact same brand and type that we always feed our dogs, Purina ProPlan Beef and Rice. When opening the bag I noticed the food looked different than it usually does, the shape and size of the kibble was different but we just thought the manufacturer might have changed the molds used to shape the kibble. My dogs usually are very excited to eat a fresh bag of food, but I noticed that both of them took much longer to eat than they usually do. They pushed the food around a lot before finally eating. After a couple of days both dogs were having severe diarrhea and vomiting. This has been going on since we received the food. We realized today that the food is the only thing in their environment that has changed that could cause the illness. We took the food to our vet who compared it to a bag of the same food. | EON-497941 | 8/4/2022 12:00 | Purina Pro Plan Adult small breed Chicken Rice Formula               | We had been feeding our three dogs Purina Pro Plan small breed dog chicken and rice dog food for over two years, then Purina made changes to the formula of this brand of dog food. We opened the bag and fed our 3 dogs their 1st bowl of it and within an hour they all began to vomit and have diarrhea and became lethargic. Over the next few days their vomit and diarrhea became bloody and my dogs continued to deteriorate. We took them to the vet who tested them for all kinds of infections and sickness but could not find anything. The vet along with us suspected the new food since all 3 dogs became ill at the same time after eating their first bowl of this. My dogs have continued to deteriorate over the past 8 months so we had my oldest scoped which showed toxic damage to the entire GI tract and we suspect it is no different in the other 2 dogs. What was seen appears to be a chemical toxic poisoning from this food. We now know that there are numerous reports of this same problem with this food and we have contacted Purina, but they have done nothing to help any of us pet parents, except to offer some kind of possible financial support for the bills. All 3 of my dogs will likely not recover and we are now looking at possibly putting them down. This has been a nightmare with severe suffering on all of us and our dogs. There is something very wrong with this food and Purina has admitted that they know about it since receiving hundreds of reports of the exact same symptoms of dogs after eating the first bowl of this food but have refused a recall on it or to tell us what was in it that did this to our dogs.   | 5 | Years | Terrier - Yorkshire             | Dog | 10 | Pound |

It was mailed to my (b) (6) home on May 13, 2021 via USPS Tracking (b) (6) from Dr. Marty's Pets: 9361 Canoga Ave. Chatsworth, CA 91311, telephone (800) 670-1839, website www.drmartypets.com. I received it on approximately May 20, 2021, and I gave it to my 20-pound Cavalier King Charles Spaniel, (b) (6), a female in good health, age 8. Per the "feeding recommendation," I gave her one scoop per day for three weeks before I tried it myself. On June 20, 2021, the first day I tried Dr. Marty's ProPower Plus probiotic powder [LOT #44300 MFG DATE: 01/2021], I had a stomach ache. The second day I tried it (the next day), I had a stomach ache and I felt like someone had injected sulfuric acid underneath my kneecaps - an extremely unusual, intense pain. I immediately stopped giving it to (b) (6), but the damage was already done. (b) (6) started having approximately ten seizures per day and night for the next year, until she died one year later, on (b) (6). After I complained to the (b) (6), BBB.org removed all of the one-star reviews that said "Dr. Marty Killed Our Dogs." On December 21, 2021, Dr. Marty's ProPower Plus probiotic powder tested positive for toxic cobalt using a ChemSee Heavy Metals Test. I took pictures of the results, and I still have three unopened cans of Dr. Marty's poison supplement that can be used by testing labs and law enforcement to prove that Dr. Marty deliberately poisoned his product, that he sent it to me through the US Mail, and that he deliberately killed my dog. What is unusual about this case is that I tested the poisoned dog food on myself, so really I knew there was definitely something wrong with it because the intense pain under my kneecaps was so unusual. | 8 | Years | Spaniel - King Charles Cavalier | Dog | 22 | Pound |

Found out that there were liquid in her lung area. My vet thinks that she has a heart problem which she never had any problem before. The vet took liquid out and started diuretics. Unknowingly, i gave her blue buffalo after the treatment. Today is monday. And she started labored breathing again meaning that there's fluid filled again due to her heart problem. She was let outside the front door to use the bathroom. She was watched from the front door and immediately returned into the house after urinating. Two hours late she started to show symptoms that presented as weakness in her back legs. The symptoms progress rapidly and by noon she was acting intoxicated and was falling down and have trouble drinking water from her bowl. We took her to the emergency vet and she was seen at around 2:15 pm. The vet performed a tox screen and discover the presence of THC and amphetamines. She is under care of the vet through the weekend to monitor blood pressure and other vitals. She has been sedated and given charcoal. No one in our home has ever used drugs. Even though she was only outside for a short time this morning, we searched the yard, porch, driveway, house and even down the street to see if there was any evidence of drugs. It is not in (b) (6) nature to eat things that are not in her bowl or not presented to her. The only new variable today was the new bag of pill pockets. We would very much like to have the bag tested in a lab for drugs. Anyway I fed it to them, and the next day I go out to their pen, and I find 4 dead, 3 in bad shape/dying, and 2 somewhat in better shape the the 3 barely hanging on. I was devastated the only thing that has changed or been different is the dogfood period. 8 puppies are dead and 2 I'm not sure if they will make it either I'm beyond pissed about this I've heard the stories about killer dogfood but I never believed it would happen I'm a believer now. | 4  | Months | Shepherd (unspecified)    | Dog | 20  | Pound    |

Upon opening the box, we smelled something horrible, like something had died. We pulled the two packs of 24 out of the Amazon box. They were shrink-wrapped together, and there was liquid between the plastic and the box the cans were in. We took off the plastic and opened the box, and half of the cans were covered in black goo and there were flies and maggots inside. I'm not sure if one of the cans had gotten busted while being stored, or if something had been sealed inside and grew and broke the seal somehow. Either way, it was absolutely vile. It smelled like absolute death.  |     |        |                   |     |    |          |

I have fed this food since May10. I opened a new bag a week ago and noticed my dog became extremely itchy. She developed a hot spot on her head. She started chewing on her paws etc.. my dog <sup>(b) (6)</sup> gets kibble-no treats etc.. I could tell it was an allergic reaction and couldn't figure out why. On Saturday evening when I fed her I noticed a different type of kibble in her food.. it was round and a light brown. Her food is dark brown in the shape of a triangle. This was taken straight from the bag of kibble. I began looking through the bag and found several of these foreign kibbles in her food. So somehow the company must of mixed another type of food i with the one my dog is on.. I returned the bag to the store where I purchased it and explained what happened.my poor dog is still suffering from eating this food for a week. She is allergic to chicken so I imagine that could be what the other food is. | 10  | Months | Bulldog           | Dog | 21 | Kilogram |

He was on a special diet and our other cat (b) (6) is an overeater so we do not feed him treats or extra food. (b) (6) had started not liking other flavors of the Delectable Bisque, and only liked the Shrimp and Tuna one. For the last 2-3 months he's only like that one. About 2 weeks ago, (b) (6) randomly started having a strange issue with his mouth. He was acting as if he had something stuck in there and it progressively worsened into him full on acting like he was chewing a mouthful of kibble when he wasn't eating at all or when he was only eating the bisque. I had a vet THOROUGHLY check his mouth and throat and she found nothing wrong. Several days later he vomited clotted blood and I rushed him to a different vet who also could not figure out what was wrong, but thought it could be symptoms of his medication. We took him off those and there was no improvement. 4 days later, I put (b) (6) to sleep because he was miserable. Days after that, I finally gave (b) (6) the same food as a treat, and he IMMEDIATELY had the exact same mouth issues (b) (6) was having. He also became lethargic and had injuries to his mouth such as tongue sticking out, foaming, half his mouth hanging down, and mouth crooked. 24 hours later he is still lethargic and now has a swollen lip and a sore there. This CANNOT possibly be simply a coincidence!! I told other people with cats about this and SEVERAL of them said they give their cats the same thing and they've had mysterious illness as well!!! PLEASE PLEASE recall this and investigate ASAP!! I had my sweet (b) (6) for so so long and he was my baby, I will not be having children and he was all I've had for many years and to see him go like this, so suddenly and in pain and sickness, unable to eat when everything showed that his illnesses were holding up just fine, is devastating. After weighing it out, the bag proved to contain 4.5 lbs, not the 5 lbs I paid for, it was short by a half pound. I contacted the store & was given the option to return it for a refund, which I did. I was told that no one else has complained & they did not have a scale to determine the actual weight of the other bags in their inventory that they are selling despite the possibility of deceiving their customers. I emailed the manufacturer, included photos, & called their customer service a day later. I was told it could be a mistake that only affected this one bag out of a nationwide distribution, but the incident would be reported to management. I was then offered a voucher for a replacement bag which I declined. The next day I received a response to my email which stated that a 5 lb bag should weigh 5 lbs, that this incident would be reported to the company's quality control team, & my address was requested so they could send me a voucher for a replacement bag. I'm filing this report to the FDA since there's an equal chance that this is an isolated incident that affected only the one bag I bought or it's possibly an issue that has &/or is affecting multiple or all bags which are currently being sold. If consumers follow the recommended feeding chart on the bag & count nuggets, they would have no reason to actually weigh the contents & therefore would not be aware that they only received 4.5 lbs of food even though the package is labeled 5 lbs. |    |        |                       |     |    |       |

| EON-495980 | 7/13/2022 21:16 | Natural Balance Beef and Brown Rice Recipe  | We had been having a difficult time finding dog food that didn't contain chicken. Around June 25th we started the switch to Natural Balance LID Beef and Brown Rice. The dogs weren't excited to eat it from the beginning but I thought it was because we were changing food. They would both have about the same symptoms around the same time. Some feedings neither would eat. Then they would either puke or retch. On July 12th (b) (6) was yipping and clearly in pain. Didn't want to be picked up and was having difficulty walking. I took her to the Emergency Hospital. We continued to monitor (b) (6). I believe (b) (6) didn't get as bad because he is 25 lbs opposed to 6 lbs. July 12th we bought more of the same food to test the theory. (b) (6) ate some of the food and didn't get sick. He is improving today. We picked up (b) (6) from the Emergency Hospital July 13 at 7 am. She is doing better. | EON-495643 | 7/10/2022 19:48 | Sundays Food For Dogs   | I ordered the food, chicken flavor, on May 11th. I received it the following week. My Boston Terrier is an indoor dogs. A few weeks ago I noticed white spots forming on the chicken formula food. I do keep the food sealed and stored in a cool, dry and dark area. Going back to the subject of the white spots I originally thought the spots were an ingredient part of the food but kept noticing more of them as the days trickled by. Today I opened the box and storage bag and noticed a LOT more white spots and now believe it's mold! The food also smells rotten. I looked on the box about spoilage and it only says "for best flavor, finish in 8 weeks" there is nothing about spoilage. I actually started noticing the spots around week 4-5, after opening. My dog has had runny stools for the last week and today my dog barfed and is not eating. He is not active but usually is and when I tried to take him for a walk he wouldn't go and stood in the street and started drooling. I do believe him not feeling well may be caused from your moldy food. Mold can be toxic to dogs so I think it's extremely important for you to know this is happening. | 4  | Years  | Terrier - Boston   | Dog | 27 | Pound |

These seem either rancid or have gone bad and cats will not touch black chunks. This is not what previous Turkey pouches have looked like...lighter smell and very much lighter chunks!!! I am reporting this on websites and you can see a picture of what I am talking about on Amazon picture for this product date of review was June 6 2022.....I am a long time loyal buyer of Merrick products, but will NEVER purchase Turkey again....I will also be paying closer attention to the other pouches feeding my cats.....I have worked in Quality control for a health care company and this appears that you either have no Quality control or someone has ignored a poorly made batch or your shipping chain has failed to keep the quality of this product.....Hopefully you keep Quality control samples to inspect this...if you do not, I can send you a pouch for your review!!! I stopped feeding her for 12 hours and then started giving her rice and egg for a few days. Then I slowly brought her back to her regular feeding products, but diarrhea returned, so back on rice for two days, and then slowly bring her back to regular feeding by introducing only one thing every other day (including her medicine) to see how she reacted. I had tossed out her kibble, cleaned the container I keep it in, and replaced it with a new bag, then when I decided to try introducing milkbones back into her diet, I bought a new box at the market. I had previously bought a large box of milkbones at Sam's Club, which I kept, but instead used the new box. Nothing happened with her, and she was normal. Yesterday (7 JUL 22) I finally had expended the new box and decided to give her one from the original box I had bought at Sam's Club. I gave her one in the evening, and there was no unusual reaction. Then this afternoon (8 JUL 22), I gave her another one, and this time, within 20-30 minutes she became agitated and insisted on going outside. I followed her out at which time she threw up her breakfast, and presumably the milkbone. | 10 | Years | Shepherd Dog - Belgian Malinois | Dog | 60 | Pound |

July 6, 2022, our dog (b) (6) woke us up & we immediately observed her pawing at her nose at which point we noticed her muzzle was swollen, her eyes were almost swollen to the point of closure & she had approximately 6 small hives all over her head & a few on her rear leg. I am a Nurse, it was very apparent to me that she was having an allergic reaction. Our fear of anaphylaxis resulted in us immediately rushing her to the Emergency Veterinarian Hospital. It was there that it was confirmed that she in fact was having an allergic reaction, the veterinarian administered an injection of Benadryl & Prednisone & prescribed her Benadryl tablets. Upon returning home, my husband & I discussed the possible source of allergen being the treats since that was the newest food we had given her. I shared with my husband to not give her the treat & monitor for improvement. The hives & frequent scratching continued throughout July 6th into July 7th. By the evening of July 7th, with the continuation of administering Benadryl & stopping the treats, we saw improvement and she has since fully recovered. We are grateful that she didn't have a life threatening adverse reaction and that the outcome was positive. | 7 | Years | Mixed (Dog)                        | Dog | 52 | Pound |

If I had not noticed- my car could have been severely injured or even died from consuming this. I have several cans of food from this brand, which I will now no longer use. The specific flavor on this particular can was Tuna, Ocean Whitefish, & Pumpkin recipe in broth. I did inspect this bone to confirm that was indeed what I found. I also had my husband photograph the finding. I believe the lot number is: UV2080/PROD. 25/12/2021N. Best By Date: DEC 2024. ITEM 40001. P40001-02 The CPU#: 93804 40001 Net Wt = 3 oz. | EON-494881 | 6/28/2022 19:20 | Wag Chicken and Brown Rice Recipe   | Both dogs began vomiting and having diarrhea after eating our two most recent bags of dog food. They have had the same dog food in previous packaging with no problems. We would stop feeding them this food when the vomiting began and gave them chicken and rice until it would stop. We have done this on and off since May 1, 2022. (b) (6) went to the vet and had x rays to rule out an obstruction because his vomiting was the worst. He began frequently urinating all over the house, which he had never done before. We took him to the veterinarian this morning. Upon running tests, sugar was found in his urine, requiring further tests to confirm the initial diagnosis of Fanconi-like syndrome. The veterinarian asked if (b) (6) had eaten any chicken treats made in China. He had eaten the Ol' Roy Rawhide Free Twist Sticks sold by Walmart. We had no idea they were a product of China and could cause kidney problems. The veterinarian conducted further tests and contacted an internist who confirmed the diagnosis and cause - the chicken treats made in China.The FDA has been aware of problems with chicken treats made in China and I'm appalled that a warning has never been issued or the products recalled. There are reports of dogs with ongoing problems or even death caused by chicken treats made in China. Hopefully, we got treatment for (b) (6) before any permanent damage.(b) (6) is "family" (we are senior citizens) and we'll do whatever possible to get him the medical treatment needed. He's only 3 years old! Please investigate this product and any other chicken treats made in China to prevent kidney problems in dogs. We have incurred unforeseen expenses as a result of this product and as a result of the FDA's failure to warn and recall all chicken treat products made in China, but worse than that, (b) (6) has suffered. | 3  | Years | Terrier (unspecified) | Dog | 13 | Pound |

| EON-494289 | 6/22/2022 0:16  | Purina Pro Plan Focus Kitten Favorites Variety Pack Canned Cat Food   | I have received multiple cans from boxes of Purina Pro Plan Focus Kitten Favorites Variety Pack Canned Cat Food within the past few months that were severely swollen or dented, twice to the point that the cans had burst. I have purchased these from multiple stores (Amazon.com and Chewy.com), and have had this happen with cans from both places. Each time this has happened, the outside boxes have appeared undamaged. Additionally, this has happened when purchasing both the 24 pack (variety pack) and 12 pack (variety pack). I apologize, but the only one I had a picture of was: Purina Pro Plan Kitten Classic Chicken and Liver Entree, Exp. Feb 2024, Lot #: 20391162 (see pic attached). I am unsure if the other affected cans have been the same flavor, or if they were the other flavors included in the variety pack (classic salmon and ocean fish entree, ocean whitefish and tuna entree). My cats have not have any noticeable adverse effects so far from this food, but I have thrown out any cans that looked suspicious. Thank you for looking into this, and for keeping us and our pets safe!   |     |       |                    |     |    |       |

Yesterday I noticed that my dog (b) (6) vomit a small amount and eat grass. I made sure she drank water and had fresh water in her cage, and again before bed I gave her a treat. I noticed that she was eating grass again this morning, so I assumed her tummy was just upset again because other than her getting sick, she was moving around OK, wasn't lethargic, wasn't exemplifying any symptoms that would suggest something more serious and did eat and drink before I went to work. I put her in her cage with two additional treats (and 2 treats for my other dog) and fresh water. When my husband got home he noticed her unresponsive, surrounded by puke and poop, not breathing. I checked my others dog cage and she too had got sick. After her passing, I started to suspect the food and I remembered that my dog (b) (6) had got sick a few times after I began giving her the treats, but she gets upset stomachs sometimes and again was otherwise fine (eating and drinking normally), but now I'm worried that the treats might have been the cause of my dogs death. | 14 | Years | Maltese                             | Dog | 9  | Pound    |

| EON-492311 | 6/11/2022 18:40 | Tiki Cat Grill Sardine Cutlets in Lobster Consommé 6oz Can                   | On I believe May 25th, I gave my cat half of a 6oz can of one of the Ahi Tuna & Crab Surimi flavor from the Tiki Cat Grill 8 can boxes for her usual lunch routine. She's been eating this line in particular since she was a little kitten and has always loved it, so I found it very odd when she kept avoiding it and meowing very loudly. She eventually did take two bites, and then proceeded to throw them up. I was worried it was something wrong with her, but she ate a 2.5oz pouch of the Aloha line (no fish in this particular flavor, although what flavor it was I don't remember) the next day and was fine. She also had no issues with dry food. I gave her a half of a single 6oz can of the Ahi Tuna flavor (also from the Grill line) about 2 days later and she proceeded to do the same thing. I decided that there might be something wrong with the tuna flavors, and I didn't know where to look to report it so I was unable to then, so I decided to return the original box and instead try single cans of the non-tuna Grill flavors. Today, 06/02/2022, i opened a 6oz can of the Sardines in Lobster Consommé and put half into her dish as usual for lunch. After putting half into the bowl, I noticed entangled around the fish chunks and sauce a black line which I assumed was a loose vein or something along those lines. I pulled it out and discovered it was in fact, a knotted up black string. I believe it may be a broken off string from a fishing net. I took a picture and did not give it to her. We've never had issues with the Tiki Cat line in any way and we've been giving this line in particular for over a year and I'm very concerned about these issues. On top of that, it seems to be just the Grill line as 05/31/2022-06/01/2022 both I gave her half of a single 6oz can of Tuna and Mackerel flavor from the Luau line and she had no issues and ate it all quickly without issue. So it's not the fish or the tuna. I will not be buying any Tiki Cat flavors for a while |    |        |                        |     |    |       |

Local store did not have it in stock so I bought a bag of something else with no negative effects. Purchased to 30 lb bags from PetMeds online and introduced one cup of the dog food to each dog. Several hours later both were vomiting and had diarrhea. Thought it might have been something else so two days later gave them same dog food with similar results. Waited approximately two weeks and gave it to them again just to confirm my suspicions that it was bad dog food. | EON-540589 | 6/25/2023 15:12 | Native Pet Pumpkin   | We have been giving our dog Native Pet Pumpkin for her constipation for several months. For most of that time, it caused no problem at all. However, the last two batches we purchased caused her to become very severely ill. It seemed like they either were not shelf stable, as described on the packaging, or were seriously contaminated. We purchased a can in mid March from Chewy.com. There were no problems with it until we got to about halfway through the powder. Then, it suddenly caused our dog to have extremely severe diarrhea every hour for multiple days, making her very very sick. We tried various things to treat her and determine the cause of the diarrhea, which at first we did not suspect to be the pumpkin powder. We took her off food, eliminating parts of her diet and so on, and several times in a row as soon as we stopped giving her pumpkin powder her symptoms immediately resolved, and then when we tried to give it to her again the extremely severe diarrhea started again immediately. It was clearly caused by the pumpkin powder. Sorry for the graphic details but, the diarrhea was also bright orange and mucus-y, which is also consistent we found out later with others I know of who gave their dogs the same product around the same time. We threw out the can we bought at that time and gave her pureed pumpkin from a can instead, and she had no issues with that. She also regularly eats apples as well, the other ingredient in the powder, and does not have any negative reaction to them. Assuming that can had been somehow contaminated, we threw it out and purchased a new can of the same product. At first, she was fine, and so we assumed it was just the one can. However, at about the same point, around halfway through the can, our dog again became suddenly extremely sick soon after eating pumpkin powder. She has been vomiting continuously for the last two days, and has been completely unable to hold down any food. We will not try giving it to her again, obviously. As with the last incident, our dog's vomit was the same color as the pumpkin powder. We have no stopped the pumpkin powder, and while she has still been throwing up, it seems to be steadily improving. Our dog rarely has problems with diarrhea or vomiting, so this has been an unusual occurrence and is pretty clearly tied to the powder. |   |       |                    |     |   |       |

I believe they are trying to quiet people by quickly and quietly refunding anyone that complains. My dog has been fed American Journey Protein &amp; Grains Salmon, Brown Rice &amp; Vegetables Recipe Dry Dog Food since November 2021. On June 2, 2023, we received an email from Chewy.com that the look changed. It states "New Look, Same Recipe". The emailed claims "All that's changed is the packaging" My dog experienced extreme vomiting upon eating the food from the new package. Within a week, she had stopped eating the food completely and became incredibly lethargic. She would still take treats eagerly and continued to drink water. We gave her a new food and she ate it for about a week with no problems. We then tried to mix the new food with the American Journey and she was sick again within hours. Chewy refunded immediately when I contacted them. Visiting the site showed that others complained of the same symptoms with the new "packaging". I firmly believe that Chewy.com made a significant change to their American Journey dog food which is making dogs sick. They are trying to hide it by paying people (full refund - no questions asked) to keep quiet about their mistake. | 3 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 53 | Pound |

| EON-540566 | 6/24/2023 22:16 | Applaws pet food natural selection fish in broth | I don't remember all of it or the exact dates but it all started Wednesday or Thursday of the last week of March 2023 she was fine until 10:30 am she was meowing loudly in the computer room and her friend, (b) (6) was with her my grandma claimed they were playing rough but if (b) (6) was being to rough she would've wined and ran away. I left my room to check on her and already when I barely approached her she didn't try to run (she's a feral cat so running from us is normal), I crouched down petting her gently and laid her in my lap to look for bleeding or anything visibly wrong. I tried having her stand which she wouldn't even attempt to stand and would meow at me in pain (she normally meows quiet but these meows were definitely distress and pain) I brought her to my room and laid with her between my legs under my blanket (made sure she can breathe) for the next 2 days, she seemed more willing to attempt to stand the next day but was struggling and she would shove her head down into my sheets occasionally (a side effect of thiamine deficiency). The next morning I took her to the living room so she could lay on a soft big blanket and offered her food and water, she hurried under the couch for the next 3ish hours. I helped my grandma flip over the couch carefully to pull her out and put her in a cage with a towel on the bottom I took the cage to my room and within the next 5 minutes she started having seizures. I told my grandma and she told my mom to come home and take (b) (6) to the vet, as my mom was coming home she had more seizures with different time lengths. We got her to the vet and told them the different issues she's been having.. they advised us to take her to a neurologist which we couldn't afford they ran testing on her everything came back okay besides a few things. We were sent home with an iv bag and gabapentin which we gave her the next few days she was alive, we kept her in a metal cage with 3 soft blankets at the bottom advised from the vet to keep her away from (b) (6) I woke up every morning at 5 am due to her letting me know she was awake and needed the gabapentin so she can relax a bit. I gave her the medicine and IV no struggling from her occasional whines before we gently placed her into the cage making sure she had water and food. On April 1st 2023 I continued my morning I ke usual with giving her medication and IV but this time she seemed weak and had no energy to even lift her head I put her back inside so she could rest. That morning later I was baking a cake for my grandmas birthday, all morning (b) (6) has been running up and down the hall meowing trying to get my attention but I thought he just wanted to play. He sat at my door meowing which was odd for him to do unless I was in my room, I pulled the cake out and walked over reassuring him that (b) (6) was fine since I could tell he was missing her. I opened the door and saw (b) (6) laying down wheezing lifelessly, I ran to my moms room telling her (b) (6) needs oxygen (thinking she was struggling to breathe) my mom came to my room to put her in the carrier. As we opened the cage door to get her out her body was shutting down shaking. We got her out and put her inside and her body went limp. We rushed to (b) (6) animal hospital sobbing, we rushed inside trying to explain the situation and we told the desk lady that we think she's dead. They rushed over immediately taking her to the back to check and we were taken into the room where animals are put down before taken to a examination room. They had pronounced her dead. So I got the Pedigree for small dog as a variety treat to give her a little at breakfast. She uses a pee pad at night and I noticed a spot of blood on the pad. My cat ate some of it out of the dog's bowl and he got sick. My granddaughter came over with her dog (b) (6) and she gave him some of it. He became lethargic and we noticed his poop looked bloody. This was yesterday, June 23, 2023. I realized it must be the dog food! I took Lola to the vet and she is taking steroids and I changed her to distilled water and homemade dog food. | 6  | Years | Terrier - Jack Russell    | Dog | 16  | Pound |

| EON-539976 | 6/17/2023 0:40  | Taste of the Wild PREY TROUT RECIPE FOR DOGS A LIMITED INGREDIENT DIET   | Beginning date is an estimate. (b) (6) was rescued from a local shelter when he was about 7 months old. He was the best dog. We had trouble finding food that agreed with him at first and switched a few times before settling on Taste of the Wild Trout. He was fed that for about 4.25 years. Fast forward to age 5.5. (b) (6) had a cough for a week or two which we thought was allergies. We then took him to the local vet who diagnosed him with allergies or kennel cough. He was given an allergy shot and ant biotics for two weeks. His cough went away, but he was becoming increasingly lethargic and losing weight. At the follow up, the vet referred us to a specialty vet in (b) (6) They did a full work up on him and drained some fluid from his abdominal cavity. His heart was in bad shape. He had a follow up in a week with another cardiologist who diagnosed him with potential food related DCM (his breed is NOT prone to DCM) and heart failure. In the meantime, he had returned to preillness health on the outside - musculature, weight, breathing, cough, energy, personality, stamina, appetite, silliness, etc. He looked great. And then he was dead at half his life expectancy. He did not live long enough for his follow up with the cardiologist. I attribute his death to this food, so I guess you could call it natural. | 5.5 | Years  | Setter - English      | Dog | 61 | Pound    |

| EON-539766 | 6/14/2023 21:04 | Wellness Complete Health Adult Whitefish & Sweet Potato Recipe | Per a colleague's recommendation, I (I am a vet as well as (b) (6) owner) slowly transitioned (b) (6) from Royal Canin Aging Large Breed to Wellness White Fish and Sweet Potato. My colleague is certified in traditional chinese medicine and acupuncture and recommended switching her food to have a more cooling protein source. I gradually transitioned her diet over about 1 week. On the first day of being solely on the Wellness food, she vomited once. It contained her food and some bile. She continued to vomit once a day for about 4 days and became less and less interested in that food until she wouldn't eat it at all. Therefore, I switched her immediately back to her old Royal Canin diet which she happily ate but still continued to vomit once a day. With zofran and dividing her daily intake into 4 meals per day, she stopped vomiting but developed urinary incontinence (no prior history of this). She also was slightly lethargic and wanted to hide more. Due to the combination of symptoms (vomiting, lethargy, incontinence), I brought her in for blood work and a urinalysis and discovered all of her liver values were significantly elevated. She has not gotten into anything and the only recent changes were the adequan (started 3 weeks ago) and the new food (fully transitioned about 1 week ago). She is currently being treated for suspected hepatitis with the cause unknown. I mainly worry that the food was the culprit and want to report her case just to be safe. I plan to recheck her lab work in one week to monitor response to symptomatic treatment. | 9  | Years | Mixed (Dog)             | Dog | 48   | Pound |

Wellness Grain Free Pate - Chicken & Herring Dinner Smooth Loaf (3 oz). | I am not sure which lot number, as I was feeding my cat a mix of the Wellness Grain-Free Pate - Seafood Variety (3 oz) wet food. I noticed some dark gray flecks in the food that I do not recall seeing in the past. I did not think anything of it at the time. These may be a couple possibilities, but I am not 100% as I threw away the can from the initial incident: 5 Nov 25 - Chicken & Lobster variety lot# 7WCLC1 00:08 or 6 Nov 25 - Chicken & Herring variety lot# 7WCHC1 14:20. This happened overnight Friday (early Saturday morning). I woke up and noticed my cat missed his litter box and there was diarrhea with a blood smear in it on the carpeting. I fed more of the Wellness food on Saturday morning around 7:30 am and around midday and again just before 2:00 pm after drinking some water which was accompanied by two rounds of vomiting.  | 2  | Years | American Shorthair | Cat | 15 | Pound |

It was late when i got a bad in april i didnt have time to go to another store they be closed plus i am unemployed so i dont have the gas and alot other places more expensive. There was a one single bag of the meijers food, i got it. My cats usually eat their food really good I ke i can tell going through bag normal pace. This took them forever to get through, the other cats were eatting but (b) (6) wasnt eatting. I gave them wet and went to get a bag of purina, they ate that out of hte bag, i saw her eatting the day before i lost (b) (6) she stopped eatting the day (b) (6) died, she drink water, i tried everything regular food she come up to the feeder sniff it not eat, treats, chicken, lickables, she stick her tounge out but never eat, i thought she was grieving, she eat wet food but at night and probably half a can. I called the vet several times about what she was doing, when i bought him home made her appointment to tuesday, they closed the holiday and i couldnt take her in sooner as it was a emergency visit and i had nothing after losing salem. I started feeding her two full syringes of food 4 times a day. She never threw up and i made sure take my time when gave her asecond does i was trying to her though to her vet appointment. She started turning jaundice over the weekend. I took everything i could to my local game store and raised enough money for her visit and blood. They said she was anemic, needed a blood trandusion, 24 hour care, a week in the hospital, her kidney stuff was 30 times the normal and everything low because she wasnt eatting. I couldnt get a complete total but probably another 2k. I had to put her to sleep. | 13 | Years | American Shorthair | Cat | 14 | Pound |

| EON-539516 | 6/12/2023 14:44 | Earthborn Holistic Unrefined Smoked Bison   | I opened a new bag of Midwestern Pets' Unrefined Grains bison dog food last week. Within 24 hours, all three dogs were having diarrhea. I attributed it to the high levels of air pollutants from the Canadian fires (we were in the purple zone). By Saturday afternoon, the two younger dogs were acting sluggish. That night, something caught my eye when feeding them. My kitchen is quite dark and their bowls are dark, but I noticed the nuggets were two colors. On closer inspection, I discovered some of the nuggets were coated in fungus. I dumped some onto a white plate and examined it under bright lights, and approx. 50% of the nuggets were affected, throughout the bag. I stopped feeding immediately. I called the company this morning and did not hear back. The dogs are improving but still experiencing diarrhea. FWIW: I'm a biologist. This looks like fungal contamination. I store the food in an air-tight bag, then placed in a food-safe air-tight container. The bag has no punctures or damage and the expiration is 8/24.   | 7.5 | Years | Mixed (Dog)             | Dog | 25 | Pound |

She has always been very nice. Well this 4th time, apparently the meat was bad. I gave her a bunch of the jerky and by the time we got home she became very sick, vomited and for most of the day was really sick. She couldn't eat that night. The next day she was still ill, but no longer vomiting. This was the only thing out of her normal routine, but since we never had a problem, I waited 3 days, gave her some more...and it started all over again. The vomiting, and sick for 2 days. | EON-539496 | 6/12/2023 13:04 | Cadet Toro Bully Hide Chews   | Purchased a product from Costco on 6/7/23 that we believed was a Bully Stick. We gave each of our dogs a half of stick. That night both dogs began vomiting that lasted for two days. After the initial vomiting we looked at the package we determined the product wasn't a bully stick but was rawhide which dogs have a hard time processing. We then looked at the product reviews online and out of 270 reviews 40 of them are 1 star with other customers having issues with the product. After 2 days of vomiting, we ended up taking (b) (6) to the emergency veterinarian where she was admitted and given IV for dehydration and antibiotics plus Xray's to make sure she didn't have an intestinal blockage. I returned the product to Costco after the next day after the initial vomiting. The customer service representative stated this wasn't the first time he had witnessed this product being returned. I also called Corporate, and they stated my feedback would be submitted. (b) (6) is improving but still isn't 100 percent. I'm just trying to get this out there so another customer doesn't have to experience what we did. The Veteranian Bill was $2,000 dollars. | 8   | Years | Pit Bull                | Dog | 57 | Pound |

Our Dog has eaten this brand and particular food since we got him at 5 weeks old with no adverse effects. 6/4/23: ate normal portion eagerly for dinner of previously purchased bag. 6/5/23. Fed him from new bag. He ate a little but started refusing to eat. Didn't finish his normal portion in the AM. I didn't offer him anything else and he eventually ate some more. Ate puppy treats and apples eagerly throughout the day. Same issue in the evening but refused to finish that portion. Started throwing up that evening. 6/6/23: same issues, refused to eat morning food completely, ate some of the evening portion, seemingly ate out of hunger. 6/7/23: refused to eat, face started swelling around nose and eyes. Took him to regular vet. No sign of injury, diagnosed as allergic reaction (assumed sting, bite, plant etc but unknown), gave Dexamethasone and Diphenhydramine shots in office and prescribed Prednisone tablets. swelling reduced within a couple hours, offered dinner, ate very little. threw up afterwards 6/8/23: Face swelling increased some but not as much as the initial incident, very lethargic, ate some in AM and PM. 6/9/23: Face swelling stable but increasingly lethargic. Called vet, Vet reduced prednisone dosage (told to skip the Friday evening dose and start with one a day instead of the three days of twice a day) he ate dinner and threw up twice within the hour of eating. 6/10/23: Face swelling increased. Did not offer food. Called Vet (8:30am) Vet called back 10:00am was told to take to ER. Took to ER Vet and was seen by 11:30. Facial swelling had decreased. Labs and Xrays were done. The labs confirmed allergic reaction but Vet MD stated it had to be a recurring exposure for the symptoms to keep recurring. They administered same shots, Dexamethasone and Diphenhydramine, and instructed to keep taking the prednisone. Facial swelling increased when we got home (he did not eat but he drank water from his bowl that sits in the same container of the food bowl) We cleaned all his bedding and areas in the house he has access to trying to find the source of the recurring exposure. This included cleaning his food station. For his pm feeding, I fed him from a new bag a food (as an experiment as that was the only other item that was "new" and recurring through the week) He ate eagerly and did not throw up. Facial swelling remained low that evening. 6/11/23: no incidents through the night, no facial swelling in the AM, ate AM feeding eagerly and completely. normal activity | 8 | Months | Retriever - Golden | Dog | 70 | Pound |

A bit perplexing and alarming at first but since my wife serves only half a can of food at a time it did not really pose any real danger or threat to our pet cat, (b) (6). Had my wife just dumped the entire contents of the can into the bowl without breaking it up then it may have poised a dangerous situation. The fact that the pin was closed and not open seemed most odd to me. It could not have accidentally fallen off an employee if it was closed so my initial thought is that it was placed in the can intentionally. I have photos of the contents and the can and I will be contacting the manufacturer about the foreign object found in the can as soon as I complete this report.   |    |       |                              |     |      |       |  |

It looked like bile so I assumed he had just gotten a bit too hungry overnight and immediately opened a can for him. He didn't eat it just lapped up the gravy around it. Got him outside and he had really bad diarrhea. Yellow and very watery. He refused to drink all day long and wouldn't eat anything except chicken. Once again, I'm an otr truck driver so I immediately called my vet who told me to discontinue his food for now and give him boiled chicken with sweet potato and green beans, and to put electrolytes into his water as well. And again truck driver. So I found a Walmart and got supplies and he's been taking them for three days. Today was the fourth. He is slowly getting better and better and back to his bouncy self no more vomiting but still has diarrhea. He sees the vet on Monday when we are home. I will also be giving the vet a bowl of food from those boxes so he can check them out. I am extremely worried that his food has been tampered with at the manufacturer and it is a thought that I can't push from my head. | 1.5 | Years | Dachshund - Miniature         | Dog | 8  | Pound |

| EON-538845 | 6/4/2023 21:08 | CanidaeAll Life StagesMulti-Protein Formulawith Chicken Lamb & Fish     | Recently (5/8/23) purchased Canidae dog food and the label had changed. Comparing ingredients of old label versus new label, discovered that ingredients and order they are used had changed. There was nothing on the label indicating a new formula. Unsure if the change in ingredients had an impact. But I began noticing that my dog didn't want to eat, despite the fact that he was hungry. Around 5/22/23, I started noticing a change in my dog. He was lethargic and I could barely get him to eat. But I persisted because he's a small dog and I didn't want him losing weight. He began infrequently throwing up small amounts of bile. I started paying more attention to his condition. Sometime during the week of 5/21/23, I began noticing small dark spots in the Canidae. I went so far as to put one of these spots between my fingers; it wasn't any different than the food around it. I even smelled it and I couldn't discern a foul odor. So I assumed that it was part of the formula change. A week later, around 5/29/23, things got worse. My dog was defecating several times during the day, which is not something he normally does. The episodes of throwing up bile became more frequent and on a daily basis. At this point, I determined that it had to be the Canidae, as nothing else in his diet had changed. Whatever ingredients had been added or omitted, it wasn't agreeing with my pup. On 5/31/23, I completely stopped giving him any Canidae. I became concerned that the dark spots in the food were possibly mold. I was so concerned that I phoned Canidae on 6/2/23 and expressed my worries. They took some information from me, asked me to photograph the contents of the can as well as the bottom with the Use by date and Lot codes. They told me they would send me an email to enable me to send them the photos. No email ever came. So I'm not convinced they're at all concerned. However, by discontinuing feeding my dog any Canidae, his health has improved and he's regained his appetite. My Vet has seen photos of the contents of the opened can and he tends to believe it's mold, although he has not seen the can contents in person. So, I decline to provide Vet information, as my dog has not been seen and currently seems to be recovering. My dog is elderly and he doesn't deserve to be fed sub par food. I thought Canidae was a quality brand. However, I will never again feed him this food. If anything adverse happens to my dog within the next week, I will seek medical attention for him. | 14.5 | Years | Terrier(unspecified)     | Dog | 18 | Pound |

| EON-538546 | 6/1/2023 1:24   | Kaytee Fiesta Guinea Pig Food   | Many Kaytee food products meant for guinea pigs are dangerous and unsafe. For example the Kaytee Fiesta guinea pig food contains an extreme amount of nuts and seeds. These two items should not be feed to guinea pigs and many owners have had to go to the vet for GI statis. These items such as seeds and nuts force the guinea pigs stomach digestion to slow down and worse even stop. When this happens they're in pain and unable to eat, drink, nor poop. Another kaytee product is called the timothy roll n toss which also contains seeds. One owner had to go to the vet after feeding the roll n toss. They took an x-ray and found white specks in their guinea pigs abdomen that were from the seeds and should not have been feed. Yet companies l ke kaytee market these harmful products toward many guinea pig owners. Yet we continue to see these products at pets stores. Companies like kaytee do not care about the well being of pets. If they did they would not sell products like these. While I am one individual I would not be surprised if many other vets have experienced guinea pigs coming in from eating products like these. Often times people do not care for small animals such as guinea pigs. Therefore I am writing a report to the FDA in hopes that something will change to prevent future harm on guinea pigs. |    |       |                        |     |    |       |  |

I spend a lot of money on Royal Canin pet food - their Feline Dental Diet dry cat food. The issue is this: I am trying to discern information about the compatibility of Royal Canin's dry Feline Dental Diet cat food with an automated feeder. If the cat food pellets remain. -as they currently are- too large - the automated feeder will likely break, and cat won't be FED reliably. What I would like to know is if Royal Canin can suggest a comparable formula if I can't continue using the current formula ... owing to the kibble's pellet size. Thanks in advance for your help. | EON-537535 | 5/22/2023 4:32  | Purina Pro Plan Focus Sensitive Skin and Stomach Adult Dog Food Salmon and Rice  | We have been purchasing Purina Pro for years for our huskies after our vet recommended. Our one dog has a sensitive stomach and in the past we have used the salmon flavor of the sensitive skin and stomach line. We went to repurchase and bought 2 bags to last us both during and between travels while our dogs are boarded at their dog trainers. Both of our dogs started having GI issues to include diarrhea which we first accounted as stress of us being away, which was abnormal for them but first explanation. After a diet of chicken breast, rice, and pumpkin and the diarrhea clearing up the kibble was reintroduced to the dogs. Once reintroduced our dogs started showing signs of blood in their stools. The only common denominator is the dog kibble. No other dogs near them are showing any signs of GI distress, and the likelihood they BOTH all of a sudden have an intolerance of salmon is low. After reading recent reviews (3 months to present) of this specific flavor/formula on both Chewy AND Purina's website, maybe people are having the same or similar issues present in their dogs. This is more than just dogs being picky with flavors, some people have reported vet visits, new diagnoses of GI problems like IBD in their dogs, and emergency fluids. How can only a formula change do so much damage consistently across the board to dogs? We are switching our dogs to a new line that hasn't been changed and isn't seeing this type of issue in dogs. | 6  | Years | Siberian Husky      | Dog | 55   | Pound    |

| EON-537212 | 5/18/2023 11:40 | Darwin's Natural Selections Cat food : turkey and chicken varieties | We were once frequent buyers of the Darwin's Natural Pet food for cats. Unfortunately, last year, we had a number of incidents where the cats both got sick. We spent upwards of $10k and that is not including travel to vets, food changes, prescriptions, etc... and the stress on top of the possible permanent damage that they suffered. It took as a while to figure out that it could be their food and when we did, I promptly contacted them. They contacted back to find out but then just ghosted me after I gave them the result that a zoonotic bacteria had been found in their systems and was the cause of their illness. They finally got better after months and me switching their food from Darwin's. We later found out there had been an FDA recall of their food which Darwin's fought hard against. This was not the first recall based upon my research. It hurts me that our pets went through this and the emotional turmoil and just financial and physical losses incurred. And Darwin's not taking accountability and with many animals possibly ill or even dead not having had the means that I did to get to the bottom of this is so unfortunate. I will be forwarding the same to the FDA but also want you to see this and hopefully, get a resolution for this.All animals exhibited: lameness, depression, diarrhea, inflammation of GI tract, immune responses, hospitalization, vomiting and in appearance amongst many other symptoms. two had to be hospitalized as it is their primary food. Luckily, I stir every can before I portion it out to my cats, and noticed the object. It's large enough it could have been a choking hazard, or if swallowed, could have caused an obstruction or perforation.  |    |        |                                     |     |    |       |

| EON-536907 | 5/15/2023 14:20 | Canidae All Life Stages Lamb Meal and Rice Dry Dog Food | On a routine annual exam on 4/29/22, the vet noticed a Grade 2 heart murmur when my pet was only 1 year old. On the next annual exam on 2/7/2023, the vet still noticed the Grade 2 heart murmur, so she recommended blood work (Cardiopet proBNP), which came back with elevated results. Thus, the vet recommended seeing a cardiologist. On 5/2/2023, the cardiologist performed a detailed physical exam and ECG, diagnosing my pet with mitral valve dysplasia. There isn't definitive evidence yet that my pet's dog food caused her heart condition, but I wanted to report it - given how abnormal it is for a Havanese to be diagnosed with a heart condition at such a young age, especially given no family history. My pet has eaten Canidae All Life Stages Lamb Meal and Rice dry dog food her entire life. The second ingredient in that dog food is peas, even though it is not a grain-free dog food. Given the other FDA reports, I am concerned that perhaps the dog food may have contributed to her heart condition.   | 2 | Years | Havanese | Dog | 13 | Pound |

I removed a 1/4 square piece of rubber from her mouth and throat. On closer inspection I could also see flecks of black material proliferated through the food, which I discarded. This can came from a 24pk of Poultry and Beef Collection, UPC 0005000081817 purchased at Kroger in (b) (6) probably in the last week of April. I discarded all other cans but retained the rubber and the can, which is marked with serial number 30639052L2A2231648. The next morning I observed the cat had vomited and had diarrhea twice. She was listless and hot to the touch. She was unable to feed her four kittens. This is a foster cat. I sought medical advice from the rescue and treated her with Albon for vomiting and diarrhea, gave subcutaneous fluids for dehydration and bottle fed the kittens. She continued to vomit and have diarrhea for 3 days. Prior to this event she was also given lams dry food without any adverse reaction. My own housepets also have been eating the lams dry the whole time with no ill effect. I reported the incident to Purina but they only took cursory information. I was sent a link to remit a photo, which I did, but that was the end of it and I have had no further information about any type of research they may be doing. | 1  | Years | American Shorthair   | Cat | 6 | Pound |

| EON-536639 | 5/13/2023 3:12 | Evanger's Heritage Classics for CatsChicken Lickin' Dinner For Cats | All of our three cats are indoor cats; cared for and fed at least two meals per day. My wife and I started feeding our cats Evanger's line of cat food. This brand entered our rotation three years ago. About a couple months ago, we were noticing one of our cats, (b) (6) a Russian Blue, started to lose weight quickly, coat was changing texture and becoming brittle, and he became more temperamental. Multiple times (b) (6) threw up after eating, was having unusual poops, and became aggressive to me, my wife and our other two cats. We thought it might have been an obstruction in his GI. He went from being 12-13 pounds to 7-8 pounds. We took him to the vet on multiple occasions. We had blood tests and x-rays/ultrasounds, but they came and ruled out illnesses diagnoses that involved his symptoms. One day my wife called me in a panic during work because (b) (6) threw up his breakfast and was feverish, lethargic, and panting. I asked her to give him 15 minutes before feeding him again. After she fed him a second breakfast he threw up again within 5 minutes, still lethargic and panting. She waited another hour before she fed him a different brand of cat food. (The other cats, in general, were okay because we had them on a mix of other foods.) From then on, I suspected it might be (b) (6) food. Later that week, I opened a can of "Evanger's Chicken Lickin' Dinner for cats" and found a full-sized maggot. This confirmed my suspicion. Evanger's was the culprit. The bottom of the can had the number "2122N22CL02BESTSEP2025". I have a few can in my pantry remaining, including another unopened one with the same number. (I will be happy to send them for your investigation/testing.) It's been a few weeks since we removed Evanger's from the food rotation and (b) (6) has been improving since. Although he weighs about 9 pounds now, (b) (6) is still far below his normal range of 12-13 pounds. | 7 | Years | Russian | Cat |     |       |

| EON-536625 | 5/12/2023 21:56 | Kirkland Signature Nature's Domain Turkey and Sweet Potato Formula     | Within a couple of days of incorporating the new bag of food, owners observed anorexia, lethargy, and increased water drinking and urination. First vet visit included blood work which showed a high total calcium level along with dehydration. Vet did not suspect kidney disease or cancer based upon initial blood work and age of pet. Dog received fluids, an anti-nausea injection, and an antacid injection. Blood was sent off to for an ionized calcium and PTH test. Meanwhile pet continued to show same symptoms and more blood was taken four days later. Results showed an even higher total calcium level and signs of kidney strain. Pet continued to receive subcutaneous fluids, a steroid injection, and a cortisol test to rule out Addison's disease. The cortisol test came back within normal range so Addison's is not suspected at this time. Ionized calcium and PTH test came back showing that the ionized calcium was elevated and the PTH was within the normal range so Hyperparathyroidism is not suspected at this time. We are now about three weeks out from the date of purchase of the new bag of food. New blood work shows total calcium levels have lowered to the high end of the normal range. Appetite has returned but is still experiencing slight dehydration, heightened water intake and urination with spouts of lethargy. Continuing with subcutaneous fluid visits in hopes that calcium levels will lower further into the normal range. Latest blood work showed a slight increase in ALT related to liver. Vitamin D toxicity from new food is considered as a possibility at this time due to all of these diagnostics. | 4 | Years | Mixed (Dog)      | Dog | 52  | Pound |  |

This year while at Petsmart I purchased the Lazy Dog Cookie Co Pup Pie (the first time ever) and read the ingredients and thought they would be good for my pets, however I found out that this was not the case at all. My baby girl (b) (6) began showing signs of sluggishness and pain the next day. On Thursday she was getting worse and not eating or drinking any food. By Friday 4/28/23 she was in excruciating pain and very lethargic. I had to take the day off work to take her to an emergency vet appointment). The vet determined that she was experienced some type of GI issues. I stayed home all weekend with my baby girl babying her and making sure she wasn't going to die, however come Monday morning she could not walk so I took her back to the vet where he still insisted that she had a GI issue and prescribed her additional medication. That evening, I saw a post on facebook that many dogs were very ill and dying after ingesting this same dog treat with the same lot number. I then returned to the vet again on Tuesday and at that time he decided to treat her for salmonella poisoning and added 2 more prescriptions for her. Today is 5/9/23 and she is finally showing signs of improvement, thank God. This has been stressful, depressing and emotional on my dog, myself and my family. I also noticed today that the company posted on facebook that they are now aware of this situation and have voluntarily removed the entire lot from the market. I was very scared that my dog was going to die and thankfully I continued to get care for her and the correct meds.  | 3 | Years    | Dachshund -Miniature | Dog | 18 | Pound |
| EON-536296 | 5/9/2023 14:52 | They two variety of each flavored dog food. Supreme (grain free) and Barley.  | I used to work for Big Dog Natural. They do not handle raw meat according to FDA's regulations. They never test their food for bacteria or anything other than AAFCO standards. When they transport raw meat, they do not keep it temperature controlled. When they thaw raw meat, they do not move it from the freezer to the refrigerator to let it warm up in acceptable standards. For example, they take boxes of salmon, beef, lamb, chicken, turkey, and tripe right out of the freezer and lay them on the floor of the warehouse to thaw for two days. Then when the food is processed and put back into the freezer, they often stack the meats on top of each other with cross contamination of all meats stated above. When I brought this issue up to Ben Inzelbuch he told me not to worry about it and to stop worrying about government agencies and regulations because they do not apply "here". People operating the forklift were never certified, and known to be under the influence of THC while operating the forklift. I tried to address this problem with him several times to which he disregarded me. I continued to bring up these issues, to which he proceeded to make my job impossible to accomplish and belittled me saying "what is the matter you can't keep up?" They also have two lines of food. Supreme, and Barely (grain) for each flavor mentioned. It should be noted that each and every product has grain in it because they add breadcrumbs to every single batch to keep the food together. On their website they state they their supreme version is grain free. This is a lie. If a dog can not handle the grain then this will certainly hurt them. I was specifically instructed by Ben Inze buch to not include breadcrumbs on the AAFCO food testing submissions when I listed the ingredients. I did not like this and objected. Since then he made work for me impossible leading me eventually to quit and then be fired when he lured me back in promising employment elsewhere. I want to be clear that this is not me being a disgruntled employee, this is a genuine concern for the dogs that eat this. I would receive a call 3/4 times a month about various dogs getting colitis to which all the complaints were disregarded. It claimed to have a very short list of all natural ingredients. Within two hours of ingestion, both dogs began showing signs of severe stomach upset. Both dogs were profusely vomiting and having uncontrollable diarrhea. The sickest dog began having bloody diarrhea, vomiting blood, shaking, unable to stand or walk. Upon investigating, I found the products ingredients listed online did not match the list of ingredients on the packaging. I also discovered dozens negative reviews about how sick the product made their animals. (b) (6) is better, but (b) (6) was hospitalized at the vet for days... she required iv fluids, antibiotics, and iv nausea meds just to survive. We also want to add that multiple other conditions were ruled out by our vet, including worms, coccidia, gardia, parvo, and GDV. Her diagnosis was dietary indiscretion, and she was completely healthy before this treat was given. We reached out to the company and they dismissed the situation, and said we must have let our dogs overindulge or get too excited. The requested proof of purchase, the lot code from the box, our vet records, and we supplied all information. However when we asked them to compensate for the vet bills, or at least give us their insurance information so we could file a claim, they stopped responding. They are trying to convince me that my situation is an isolated incident, but I've seen dozens of reviews, and gotten countless messages from people who have experienced the same thing. They have deleted all reviews of the Pup Pie on their website, and turned off commenting on their Facebook page and instagram pages. This product should be recalled and tested to see why it is making so many dogs sick! Some have even died. | 2  | Years  | Great Dane                | Dog | 105  | Pound |

| EON-535415 | 4/30/2023 23:04 | Friskies Tender & Crunchy Combo  | On 04/25/2023 we bought a small bag of Friskies Tender & Crunchy and brought it home to our cats. We then fed them like we normally do. There was a total of 5 cats who ate the product. On the 27th 4/5 started vomiting up the food about every 20-30 mins non-stop. It was after 5pm about this time and 4/4 started crying out and vomit blood, foam and have trouble walking or moving at all. By this time I was holding our smallest cat (b) (6) crying with him in my arms as the others just lay not moving a lot. We tried to offer water some drank others didn't an then they would vomit more and as it went on the blood got to be more an more and the sounds I will never forget. We lost Thor first and it was gut retching. We didn't go to sleep for 24-48hrs. Once (b) (6) passed (b) (6) started to get worse and then she died a very painful death in my lap she choked on her own blood an then meowed one last time an was gone. About 3 hours later (b) (6) was the last to go and she had seizures and vomiting till she went at 10pm. The 4th cat (b) (6) somehow recovered but she also threw up blood an foam. The food was the only thing different they had. There was nothing else it could have been as they were crated because they were still kittens so we had full control of their water, food, everything. There was nothing they could get into because we have an autistic child and we have to keep anything dangerous out of reach. They were all healthy and happy until that bag of food. We have kept the bag an what's left of the food Incase it is needed for anything. | 8  | Months | Domestic (unspecified)  | Cat | 6  | Pound |
| EON-535401 | 4/30/2023 18:00 | Blue Buffalo Tastefuls 12-Count Variety Pack   | I opened the can of cat food to put on a plate for my cats. When I turned the can over and dumped it out on the plate, I noticed it was in a donut shape--a circle with a hole in the middle. Then when I looked inside the can, there was a dead bug at the bottom aligned where the "hole" in the food was.  |    |        |                         |     |    |       |

We started treating her with antibiotics in hopes that would bring things back, but the levels continued to rise significantly over a two week period. We thought from blood testing that Leptospirosis could be the problem, treated for it and no improvement. It was determined a Biopsy was required, not pleasant nor rist free for a 10 year old dog. | EON-535101 | 4/27/2023 11:08 | Blue Buffalo Dental Bones All Natural Rawhid-Free Large Dental Dog Treats Jumbo Pack | I am my dog's primary veterinarian and owner. Started a new bag of Blue Buffalo dental chews over the weekend. Have used these daily for approximately 1 year with no issues. We started ordering them on autoship from Amazon and have noticed that the bones look different in each bag, sometimes darker or lighter, harder or softer, but weren't having problems until this bag. One dog (3 y mixed breed neutered male about 35 lb) has vomited the same night as receiving one of these bones, but otherwise seems unaffected. The other dog (5 y mixed breed spayed female about 55 b) has a history of food sensitivity and eats hydrolyzed food and is the reason we chose these treats. She was treated for a GI obstruction for the last two days, never eats anything she is not supposed to and is not an investigator or tendency to swallow non-food material. The obstruction was soft tissue density and had the shape of one of these dental chews, was in pieces, but resulted in pyloric obstruction which resolved with 48 hours fasting, though dog is not behaving entirely normal yet.Will not be feeding these bones anymore, but there may be a problem with this lot, or perhaps they changed formulation. Wanted to report in case other people were reporting the same thing. Lot # 20240414AH3 A 0744 Best by: 2024 Apr 14 |    |       | Other Canine/dog      | Dog |    |       |

Fed to puppy the same day it was purchased, and within 10-15 minutes of eating 1/3 cup, puppy seemed lethargic and started shaking for no apparent reason. About 15 minutes after that, she couldn't keep her eyes open and couldn't stand or sit up without falling over. Brought her immediately to emergency vet, where she had high fever, dilated pupils, tremors, low heart rate, and was on seizure watch. After running diagnostic tests, it was determined to be a toxin causing her symptoms, and from the sudden and acute onset soon after eating the new food, it's highly likely that the food was the cause of the poisoning.  | 6  | Months | Terrier (unspecified) | Dog | 10   | Pound    |

Nature's Evolutionary Diet with Chicken and LifeSource Bits Adult Small Breed                           | I switched my dog from Fromms Chicken dry food to the Blue Wilderness Chicken dry food meant for small dogs. It's being discontinued, according to Chewy, which is odd. I bought this pink bag of 11 b dry food through Amazon. Since then, my dog has been having diarrhea nonstop. It's lasted 4 days, where he urgently rushes to the door to be taken outside. He got up 4-6 times a night for the first 3 nights. He had diarrhea. Then, I gave him a bland diet and the stool began to firm. I slowly added Blue Buffalo back into his diet, making sure that's the only sustenance he was consuming aside from water. I continued monitoring, his diarrhea has worsened to the point that he is straining and there's blood in his stool. This began again. 3 days. For about a week, he had very frequent stools and they're all soft and/or wet, with blood. Before, my dog pooped normally. Now, again after trying a bland diet, he improved a bit. But again, he got diarrhea once I slowly transitioned him back to Blue buffalos high protein dry dog food (in the pink bag). Now, my dog has straining and diarrhea and blood again. I'm taking him to the vet. I can confirm that this is the only change that correlated to his onset of symptoms. I'm switching back to Fromms and I'm highly disappointed and concerned. Other dogs, based on reviews I saw on Amazon and Chewy for this product, have stated similar experiences. I reported this to Amazon, and now I hope this report helps to look into the causes of this. | 3.5 | Years | Pinscher - Miniature | Dog    | 14 | Pound    |

We purchased it from (b) (6) in (b) (6). The first bag we purchased was approximately a month and a half ago. (b) (6) loved it and had no problems with the first bag. After she started the second bag she got very ill. (4/17) She wasn't given any other treats with the exception of fresh carrot pieces we had always given her. (b) (6) got very sick rapidly. Vomiting, diarrhea that was bloody and had lots of mucous, apparently she was in lots of pain and distress. We tried to get her into the emergency vet but they weren't taking patients. We held her through the night. We began giving her pumpkin. We left a message with her local vet but didn't hear back the next day. We continued watching her closely. We didn't sleep through the night on the 18th. As soon as the vet's office opened on the 19th we arrived at the office (7:30 am). They took her but weren't able to see her until around 1:00 pm. (b) (6) gave her medicine for vomiting and diarrhea. This cat was kind of the wild type and was not very friendly. She would hide most of the time when someone entered her space. She is the only cat in a separate room. She ate the whole can. I went in room to feed her on April 17, 2023 and she came out and started eating the same can of food. On April 18,2023 I got home late that night so, she just had science diet dry food that night. But, I noticed her tail was wet. I thought it maybe was submerged in the bowl of water. It was a very fluffy tail and it was soaking wet. On April 19, 2023 when I got back home late from work I went to feed her. She was lethargic, blood everywhere on the floor, she was panting, and could barely move. I picked her up to examine her and within 10 minutes of me holding her she passed away. I am thinking it was Salmonella poisoning. I am a State of (b) (6) Food and Drug Inspector whom is also commissioned with FDA. So, I have had lots of training on diseases. I also have another Cat named (b) (6) who stays in another room who got sick. She only ate a small amount of the same food. She started with diarrhea with a bloody stool, feverish, but, bounced right back. I assume because she only ate basically one bite of this food. She prefers the dry food over moist. I know this Meow Mix moist food killed my cat and made my other one sick i plan on sending this food off for testing if you guys aren't going to. | 6   | Years | Maine Coon         | Cat | 8.6  | Pound |

| EON-533954 | 4/18/2023 20:24 | V-Dog Kind Kibble Vegan Dog Food  | Both dogs (male beagle and female beagle mix) were given V-Dog for six years, starting in 2015. In 2021, the male dog who was 13 presented with congestive heart failure symptoms that presented a month before he was euthanized in July 2021. A physical exam weeks before death did not detect a murmur. The weeks before he passed he was more lethargic and coughed, which we now know due to pulmonary edema. On the night of his passing, he could not stop coughing and imaging showed a severely enlarged heart and extensive water in his lungs. The female dog who was ten, showed some signs of lethargy but I initially thought it was due to the death of the other dog. In October of 2021 she began coughing and passing out. Although she too had been seen by a vet weeks before the onset of her coughing, we took her to the ER where we discovered she also had an enlarged heart and pulmonary edema. She was treated and then taken to a cardiologist who diagnosed her with possible diet-related cardiomyopathy based on her symptoms, breed and diet. She was given several medications and we were told to switch to a grain inclusive diet, which we did. Subsequent echocardiograms showed some improvement on certain areas of her enlargement, but she never fully recovered and on December 2022 her edema returned. Her medications were increased but ultimately she declined beyond saving and was euthanized in April of 2023. I have additional details concerning her medication, tests and progression I can share upon request. |    | Years | Beagle   | Dog |      |          |  |

Blood tests were done & her liver enzymes were wildly elevated- the vet put her on 2 liver medicines and 3 ant biotics and prednisone. A deeper specialist ultrasound was done within a week and it was discovered her liver had "changes" but recommended a liver biopsy to evaluate the problem further, a coagulation test was done and results awaited to further see if there were any coagulation issues as a full liver biopsy was recommended. The liver biopsy has now been done and her liver is showing copper accumulation of a level 3 out of 5. This is very concerning to have happened to such a young dog- the manufacturers should be made to put the copper content on their packaging- I had to call Purina to find out the copper content after my dog was taken ill - they told me it was 18.5mg/kg. The recommended is 7mg/kg!!! I have spent over $6000 so far and my dog is still undergoing tests. She is still on medications and we don't know the long term prognosis- its a day by day thing.  | 3  | Years | Spaniel - Cocker English   | Dog | 22   | Pound    |  |

He had follow ups at our regular vet, but he wasn't able to eat. In total, he had x-rays, blood work, urinalysis, ultrasound and finally a feeding tube was inserted. Ultimately, he had to be euthanized. This happened over the course of 6 weeks. All the vets were really trying to save (b) (6) especially because he had been such a healthy cat up to this point. She was disoriented and unsteady on her feet for about an hour afterwards. We rushed to an emergency vet, who ran blood work and urine and found only a slight elevation in one of her liver enzymes. Her neurological exam was normal. Once we got home, she had another seizure at about 7am that lasted for 2 minutes. She again was confused afterwards and was running into objects while she stumbled around my apartment. This lasted for another hour. She has had no seizures since then. (b) (6) on galliprant and gabapentin. Symptoms continued to get worse. Got 2nd opinion from another vet. Told same thing, TPLO surgery due to her severe hobbling in person and shown on video. Hyper & restless, thirst, increased urination, crying in pain. Surgery scheduled for 3/30/23. While we were waiting for surgery date (b) (6) pain had moved from right rear leg to left rear leg. Saw recall for Purina dog food Vitamin D toxicity, but was told i by purina that it was only Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets EL Elemental dry dog and did not involve the purina limited ingredient sensitive skin salmon and rice brand I had. Decided to take both dogs off this food on March 18th. Within two weeks, both my dogs started improving. Within three weeks the Senior Dog 2Sox stopped drooling, stopped pacing, stopped acting hyper., stop guzzling water and starting gaining weight. Took (b) (6) off all of the pain meds and nerve medication. It took almost a month for (b) (6) to stop limping. (b) (6) started acting like herself again. Getting up on her own, barking, wanting play time, active, walking with no limp, sleeping through the night, stopped guzzling water and urinating all the time, swelling around rear fat pads decreased. (b) (6) is now running - video taken and shown to ortho vet and postponed surgery to see if she kept improving. Surgery cancelled due to (b) (6) having zero symptoms. | EON-530354 | 4/13/2023 12:12 | Rachael Ray Nutrish  | We had a very unfortunate incident happen with our 5yo female GSD named (b) (6) a few days ago. She is an indoor dog, weighs around 100 bs and has no previous health issues. She's eaten Racheal Ray dog food for a few years but we'd just opened a new bag and she ate her first bowl Monday morning then went outside to play for a bit, came back in, fell asleep. After a few hours we noticed she was still sleeping and we could not get her to wake up! Her eyes were rolled back in her head, gums were pink, respirations were slow and HR was around 80. We tried every thing we could think of to try to make her regain consciousness and after about 45 mins she took a big breath then had a seizure but fell unconscious again. We finally got her loaded up to get her to the vet and she had a few more seizures in the mean time. The vet gave her steroids &amp; fluids and kept saying it appeared that she had OD'ed on something and asked if she could have gotten into meds, drugs or edibles. We just don't have anything like that at our house and we live out in the country on 7acres where she is always in our sight so she never goes on other peoples land or to neighbors houses. The vet kept insisting she ate something that made act this way / made this happen and we agreed to a drug test. He kept her over night and continued fluids, steroids and antibiotics to flush her system. When he got the drug test the only thing it positive for was barbiturates. Again, the vet asked us if anyone in our house takes seizure meds, Xanax, ect and we do not nor does she have access to any meds!! He then asked if us or any neighbors recently had any big animals euthanized like horses or dogs that she could have gone over and chewed on because the drug the used to euthanize animals is a barbiturate. The answer is NO, she never leaves our sight! Our minds keep going back to the fact we had just opened a band new bag of dog food and she ate one bowl of it before this happened. We still have the packaging and entire bag of food saved. We will never feed her that brand again!! We would like to have it tested please. She is pretty much back to her old self after taking it easy for a few days but that was very traumatic!! We thought we gonna lose her. The other very scary thing we can't stop thinking about is we have a 10month old that sometimes sneaks pieces of dog food... :( The "what ifs"really get ya. I am making a report with the FDA and contacting the manufacturer as well. Thank you for your help. Recently, my beloved dog consumed a bone that was labeled safe to eat and was purchased from Walmart. However, to my dismay, the bone or "easily chewable" caused significant harm to my dog, and I strongly believe it poses a serious threat to other pets as well. I have reached out to both Walmart Corporation and the manufacturer of the product, but despite my best efforts, no action has been taken to address the issue. Currently, my dog is still in the hospital recovering from the effects of consuming this bone. I have documented evidence of the bone, including samples, receipts, timeline, video footage, and even a written statement from my dog's veterinarian. Despite my efforts to contact Walmart Corporation and the manufacturer, I have not received any response, and no action has been taken to recall the product. The fact that it has not been recalled is a serious concern to me, especially given that the bone is labeled as safe for dogs to consume, despite being completely toxic. The bone has even been shown to be undetectable on X-rays, which is particularly concerning for pet owners who may believe that the product is safe based on its labeling. I have also sought legal counsel as my next step since no action has been taken, and I feel like I am running out of options. I strongly believe that the public has a right to know about the potential danger of this bone, and I urge you to investigate this matter further and bring it to the attention of | 1 | Years | Pug              | Dog | 20   | Pound |

After xrays, etc. it was determined no blockage but there was inflammation in his intestines. Fast forward, I realized later it had to be from canned dog food THAT HAD CHICKEN BONES in it that I gave my dog a portion of before I discovered the main bone. My vet agreed that could have been the problem. Yes, cooked chicken bones. Per the co, Organix by Castor &amp; Pollux / Merrick, they ARE SUPPOSED to be in there...slow cooked. I filed a complaint and wanted them to reimburse me for my entire $460+ vet bill I incurred. After 3 months of back and forth and runarounds (yes I've saved all emails..I insisted all in writing), the company just told me they would NOT reimburse me for my costs because no response was received by my vet, however they offered a $150 "donation" towards my dog's vet costs. I was upset my vet hadn't responded to them in a few wks and sent him and the owner of the vet hospital an email yesterday expressing my immense disappointment in not supporting me (I've been taking my pets to them since the 1990s)...This morning my vet called saying he indeed called the dog food company back but could not reach their "claims" person and evidently left a message to call back, which they never did. I believe my vet said he tried a couple times. So did the dog food company lie? FYI the company rep (Alise Smith) originally told me a CLAIMS rep would be contacting me and my vet regarding the situation. I found that they did NOT turn it over to any insurance company for a claim, but instead turned it over to a "vet" (Jeremy Tarlow) who's company -- Drs.4Pets -- consults and develops dog products for companies like and including Castor &amp; Pollux | 3 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 15 | Pound |

|  |  |  | companies like and including Castor &amp; Pollux. From their website: "Drs4Pets is a collective of veterinary professionals with diverse backgrounds-- clinical vets, corporate vets, consultants and authors-- and a shared interest in animal health and pet nutrition. Working together to develop feature articles that are easy to understand for the non-medical pet parent, we provide relevant and timely information for everyone interested in learning more about pet care and health. We also consult with pet health companies and pet food companies to provide guidance for new formulas and customer support. I feel this is a conflict of interest, since this person could have had a hand in approving this dangerous chicken bone product and might be "on the line" for it now. My vet sent me a copy of their questions which was ridiculous. It's also upsetting this was not turned over to a proper claims adjuster. I feel that dog food company shouldn't be allowed to sell such a product! https://youtu.be/el83GSKwQM4 I posted a video for you to see what I'm talking about. You should also know my furbaby is my service dog for my severe PTSD. When I brought him to the vet, afraid he had some obstruction, I had to wait over 2 hrs in the heat while they brought him inside ALONE...I had to wait outside. The stress, anxiety and process sent me "over the edge." Not to mention my dog who has barely left my sight since I adopted him 2 yrs ago. He endured intense pain because of ingesting the product, stress, anxiety from going to the vet and having to be examined, prodded, poked and exposed to radiation (took xrays which showed inflammation in his intestine)... and more! He wasn't "himself" for at least a couple weeks. He was traumatized by the visit to the vet. It affected my work, peace of mind too.... My mission here is to get what I consider a dangerous product off the market I accepted the "donation" because I was exhausted from the delays and runarounds, |  |  |  |  |  |  |

They stated that the main reason for not reimbursing the full amount is because my vet didn't respond. BUT HE DID...THAT'S THE LAST STRAW! I've done an internet search on the "safety" of giving dogs cooked chicken bones and have not found one to support feeding dogs cooked chicken bones! They all say DON'T! My vet said NO CHICKEN BONES! Other vets I called I was told the same thing. I bought the dog food online (PETSMART) and did not see the back of the can to read it contains bones. The description is also confusing leaving a person to think that it's cooked with them, but not included in the product. There's only a portion of the back of the can showing online. The full back of the can of their description of "slow cooked..."was not fully visible. I purchased the dog food via Pet Smart website. This was the link, but it shows a different food now: https://www.petsmart.com/dog/food/canned-food/castor-and-pollux-organix-butcher-and-bushel-grain-free-adult-dog-food-922.html (THIS LINK DOES NOT SHOW THE PRODUCT ANYMORE) This is a Link to where it's selling at Whole Foods: https://www.wholefoodsmarket.com/product/castor-pollux-organix-butcher-bushel-chicken-wing-thigh-dog-food-127-oz-b07dw1xd75 I did not look at the photo showing the contents when I purchased the product. I don't even remember such a photo when I purchased the product. I just looked at the cover of the can and scanned the ingredients list, WHICH HAS NO MENTION OF BONES. When I looked at it just now, their pic of the contents looks like 2 pieces of only meat and you cannot read their entire description on the back re slow cooked bones. |   |       |                    |     |    |       |

I took her to the vet and she had multiple seizures and vet suggested that we put her to sleep because the seizures was so bad. Then about a week later I gave some food to my shop cat and she immediately threw up 2 days. Next day some of the cats threw up overnight. I was not sure if it was one cat or several cats. It continued the 9th. I saw a 2 year old healthy cat throw up. I have never seen her throw up before. I was still thinking it may just be incidental. Over the past 2 days I have seen 12 of the cats throw up, A LOT. So far this morning I have cleaned up over 35 times. My cats are various ages There are 2 cats who are in cages and did not have access AT ALL to this food. Those cats are NOT sick. I have a friend who fed this to her three cats last week. They all threw up a lot. She took all 3 to the vet and they were not sure one would make it. She changed the food. They are fine now. I just removed this food, but I did keep it.  | 2  | Years | American Shorthair            | Cat | 10 | Pound |

Within less than a week, and has made two other cats deathly ill. These Two, were luckily able to be saved. It also made 4 others of our cats vomit, after ingesting this food. They did not eat as much of it as the others. Last Saturday afternoon my father in law bought krogers "Pet Pride indoor cat" from (b) (6), to feed his fur babies. We usually get friskies seafood sensations, however they were out that day, so he grabbed the next biggest bag which was the "Pet pride". We noticed that even though the kitties are hungry after laying the food out, they seemed like they didn't want to eat it, but nevertheless were hungry and ate it anyways. Fast forward a few days and the cats have been eating the food for a couple days now, I notice bloody stool in the litter box, and alot of it but didn't see who went potty to pin point it. Tuesday afternoon my mother in law cannot find her orange cat (b) (6) and we look for him inside, and outside everywhere we could think of. We thought he had just gotten out somehow. He did not.. he was not even showing signs of being sick but we found out later on, he had went under the couch went into organ failure and passed right there without our knowledge. Tuesday afternoon I notice (b) (6) the siamese sleeping, acting lethargic, eyes were dilated and he began to have bloody stool as well. We make sure he is giving water throughout the day from a baby syringe, and a Lil bit of activated charcoal just in case, to obsorb anything bad he could've gotten into but we had absaloutley no idea what was making him sick. Wednesday morning comes around and I notice a other cat named (b) (6) lethargic, eyes dilated, meowing a lot, and unable to jump up on the counter, this is when I found his back end had poop on it, as he did not feel good enough to clean himself. We syringe feed water to (b) (6) as well, and that same night, we give them both canned pumpkin in the hopes to heal their bellies and help their stool. Shockingly doing this multiple times helped both (b) (6) and (b) (6) get better and even made the blood in the stool go away. I'm not | 6 | Years | AmericanShorthair | Cat | 13 | Pound |

|  |  |  | sure how, but It did. Fast forward to Thursday, my mother in law calls my name and I can hear something is wrong in her voice, she then tells me she just moved the couch and found (b) (6) deceased. And is an absolute mess, because we don't know what's wrong with everyone, and (b) (6) never even showed signs of being ill. He literally just went under the couch and died of organ failure. I then gather myself and try to console my mother in law. I clean and box up his body and called a few people. In the end (b) (6) took his body for us as we do not have a car to drop him off at the animal foundation. At this point me and my mother in law are both panicking trying to find any chemicals or anything that they could've gotten into. We find nothing. And then all of the sudden I see the "PET PRIDE" food on the table and then something in my head just clicked. They didn't start getting sick until AFTER we started feeding them from the "Pet pride" bag and then just a few days later, we now have one deceased cat, multiple sick cats, or cats that are vomiting from the food after eating. It HAS to be the food!! So we panicked, went and got every single piece that was left of it. And then, switched it out with friskies, it was the only change in their diet and day to day lives. Unfortunately it didn't stop there..Friday the beautiful Grey and white boy pictured below, started to get ill, lethargic, and his eyes were dilated. This cat was specifically kept in a separate room by himself, away from the others, because he fought the other cats so there's no way he could've come in contact with any of them, and gotten sick. I then remember he had a ton of the "Pet pride" food in his room when I had switched it out, and he had probably eaten a lot of it. More than the other cats did. We try to help him as well. It's now Saturday morning and I went in his room to check on him, when I found him he was hiding at the bottom of his cat tower, his eyes were extremely dilated, and was profusely drooling, I take him out of the room and bring him to my mother in law where she makes a safe space for him in the laundry room. She cleans him up and tried to syringe him water as much as she can without making him vomit, multiple times throughout the day. We also try the pumpkin, he continues to throw it up. At this point We are now trying to find a vet to take us with no money, and are so scared he's going to pass. But everyone wants at least a few 100 to take him in for the treatment he might need. And we are low income and on disability. My mother in law doesn't know what to do, as she does not have the money, but is terrified of losing him, just a few hours later, on Saturday night. (b) (6) passed and crossed the rainbow Bridge, and mother in law just absolutely lost it, she's had him for the past almost 7 years, and has had him since he just a tiny kitten. We were able to save (b) (6) and (b) (6) but groom didn't make it and we didn't even have a chance to help (b) (6) as he didn't even show us he was sick. My mother in law is absolutely distraught over the loss of her two fur babies, (b) (6) and (b) (6) And does not want this to happen to anybody else or their fur babies! Please help us get justice for these babies!! All we did was try to feed our cats and in doing so they somehow got poisoned from the food, went into organ failure, and died. We have called Kroger and the number on the back of the bag and now have a case number as well. We are waiting for their call back to see how we can proceed from here, because the pain and suffering this has caused has been absolutely too much for my mother in law to bare, and she is blaming herself for buying this food. Please so we can get justice for (b) (6) and (b) (6) And get this contaminated "Pet Pride" off the shelves. |   |       |                      |     |  |

The breeder did not report this when she had her and she did not have the runny stools in February when she returned the first time. We are on the second bag of this same food. Little did I know as I stood feeding my three year old German Shepherd treats from Carolina Pet, a company from whom I've purchased treats for the last three years that I would find myself at our vet with my little girl fighting for her life. The treats unbeknownst to me were contaminated with what appears to be an elastic material. A material that would find itself into her digestive system and in turn create an obstruction requiring surgery to correct reflected as a shadow on her x ray. I've have spent the last part of the better of a month an a half nursing her back to health. This has taken both an emotional and financial toll from not only the medical bills, but also the medication required. I am in possession of the contaminated treat which Carolina Pet refused to analyze and completely disregarded my concerns. Rather they simply put me off on their insurance company without advising whether they had identified imperfections in their processing. They simply treated the circumstance as a basic case of liability without any due care for other potentially impacted animals. | EON-528175 | 4/2/2023 18:52 | Fancy Feast Fish & Shrimp Feast FlakedFancy Feast Gourmet Naturals Beef Recipe Pate      | I have been a Purina customer for decades (I am almost 44 years old now.) The Fancy Feast Fish and Shrimp Feast Flaked used to be a favorite of my cats (and was wonderful to hide their medications in) but the last time I ordered it from Chewy it was brown and old looking, there were whole pieces of fish skin in the food, and too many bones to pick out so I had to dispose of it. Some of the pieces of fish were sharp and hard as plastic. I thought perhaps it was a confined case so I had my uncle purchase a can from a local grocery store, Food Lion, and the food was in similar poor and dangerous condition. I purchased the Fancy Feast Gourmet Naturals Beef Recipe in Pate as I thought it was a healthier choice for my cats, but when I got to the bottom of the can, I saw pieces of the can had come off and were floating in the food. The bottom of the can looked like it had been scratched off or it was a used can rather than a brand new product. There was a white paint like coating inside the can and it looked like silver was poking through underneath the white paint. Unfortunately, my cats had already eaten some of the food before I discovered this. I am extremely worried about their health now and I hope they do not have any health issues from this. I thought it was just the one can that was like this or perhaps my spoon may have scraped the can, so I opened more cans from the case and I dumped the contents out without using a spoon and all of the cans were the same. I washed the can out with water so I could send a clearer picture of the state of the can to Chewy and Purina, and when I did, I wiped the can dry with a paper towel. When wiping the can with a paper towel, the substance wiped off onto the paper towel, and had the appearance of black mold spores. I sent Chewy an email to let them know about the cases of food I purchased. |  |  | I don't know an email to let them know about the cases of food I purchased. They apologized and refunded my card for both cases of food. I also contacted Purina by a form they had on their website and I sent them the UPC and lot number for the can. (I have been unable to locate the paper I wrote this on, but I will let you know if I find it later. I disposed of the can as I didn't want to keep it not knowing what this substance was. Purina has the UPC and lot number information though because I had to include this in their contact form.) Purina called me on Friday, almost a week later, and a representative named Kayvon (unsure of spelling, but this is how he pronounced it) apologized and said he would send me the cost of the food and a coupon. I accepted the cost of the food so I could purchase new food for my cats but I told him I didn't want to use Fancy Feast again after this. He said he understood and the offer was there if I changed my mind. I mentioned the can and was trying to find out what it is made of so in the event that my cats have problems, I can relay this information to my vet, I had read the interior of the cans was propylene online, but when I mentioned this, the representative neither confirmed nor denied this. I also asked if this residue was something from the canning process, but again there was no information provided, just that it would be looked into. I have had issues with Purina in the past - their Purina One Tender Selects with Chicken dry food made my cats vomit constantly (my vet thought it was too much soy in the product which cats cannot digest) and they were evasive when I asked them about the source of one of their products, Purina Cat Chow Sensitive, and if it was made in China because this also made my cats vomit. I never received a satisfactory answer about this, so I stopped buying it and switched to Hill's Science Diet for dry food, but my cats needed to eat more wet food per my vet's recommendation for urinary issues so I thought I would give Purina one last chance since it was a brand that was within my price range and basically just about the only brand you can find in great abundance locally. I searched online to see if anyone else had had a similar experience with either of |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

|                            |                |   | I searched online to see if anyone else had had a similar experience with either of these Fancy Feast foods and I found some extremely concerning reviews online regarding Fancy Feast and Friskies on Amazon and a website (https://www.consumeraffairs.com/pets/fancy-feast.html#scroll_to_reviews=true) making cats very sick and some even dying after consuming these foods. If it was just a few cases I read about I would think it was just a coincidence, or if it was older or sickly cats involved that it may have been another health issue that caused their problems, but these were many cats of all ages, some were very young, all with similar symptoms and specific diagnoses, and many with similar deaths. One of the saddest I read about was a cat who was only a year and a half old whose only crime was eating Purina's cat food and paying for it with his life. This has upset me greatly. With all of these cases surely this should be looked into and I can't believe this has been going on for so long. It looks like after the first hundred or so reports that Purina would've straightened this out if there is a problem, but it appears cats have been continuing to get sick and die. Some people buy these foods and their animals have no effects, others get extremely ill and die. It's like playing Russian Roulette with your loved ones' lives and I am not willing to do that. It is very inconvenient having to find another food after all these years, but I will do whatever it takes to keep my loved ones from experiencing what others' loved ones have experienced and when you try to find out what they may have ingested Purina is no help at all. I do not plan on ordering any of their products again. For the health of their consumers the ingredients and cans should be in better shape than this. A thoroughly disgusted and disappointed,(b) (6) |     |        |                           |     |    |       |  |

| EON-528058 | 4/1/2023 0:56   | BLUE BUFFALO PORK & CHICKEN SAUSAGE RECIPE TOP CHEWS | Hello, I recently purchased blue Buffalo treats from Costco. Upon breaking a treat to give to my dog, I found a long piece of plastic. This was very concerning because I had been giving my 7 year old dog these treats for a few weeks. I've reported the issue to the manufacturer on the contact us page on their website but felt I should report further.  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
| EON-528049 | 3/31/2023 18:56 | Grandma Lucys 3 Bears Chicken Recipe                 | on 3/24/2023 my little Boston terrier was acting very strange and wasn't eating all her food. then she got very tired and I rushed her to my local vet. she had ripped open her bed and I thought she had eaten it. the local vet did X-rays and saw that she had something inn her stomach and also her small intestine. I was told that she need emergency surgery and had to take her to a ER. WE left right from that vet to the ER. The ER took her right in and saw the same thing in there X-rays and ultra sounds. At that time they prepared her and they told me to leave due to the time the operation may take. That was at @ 8:30pm. At 1:17 am I got a call telling me that the surgery went well and they removed some bedding and that her stomach was full of "Bird Seed". I dint have a bird and also don't feed the birds outside. I ripped my house apart and found nothing. I then took a look at her dog food and I found a lot of seeds in her food. I look at the ingredients and there it was flax seeds. I called the ER and also sent them pics and she told he that's what they were. Her little stomach was full of them and when she cut her open they them got into her chest cavity which caused more issues for the ER doctor and my dog. I emailed the company(3/26) that made the food and them someone called me back on 3/27. She apologized for everything and said that she has never heard of anything I ke this before. She asked for pic of the dog food, bag and my dog. She also told me that she would refund my money for the dog food I bought and I explained to her that in not confutable with that and please hold off. I send them off and heard nothing back. I called her back (3/30) and she first asked how I got her number and I explained to her that it was on my cell. She told me that this is her personal cell number and she doesn't know how I got it. She told me that they were going to do nothing because I told her that I was going to get legal help on this.. I never said that all I said is that I will call NYS and also who ever watches over dog food manufacturers. She told me that she would go back and talk to her manager and call me back. During both calls she remained me that they are a family owned business and the family all works there. I have no idea what that matters because my dog almost died. I have 3 or 4 bags of that food not opened here and also the bag that is open her. what I did is take what I would feed my dogs and I separated out everything and found that my 14lb dog was getting 14+grams of flax seeds twice a day. I feel that their food is harmful and may kill dogs or have already. I talked to my local vet to get my other dog checked out and see if she has seeds stuck and she is fine. He told me that the food is part of the issue and I should first ta k to the company that made it then contact you and NYS. (b) (6) is recovering and is at home with me ands has a check up on 4/4 with the vet. The cost of the surgery was $6000.00 but because of her age and she being part of the family I felt I had to do something. We also have other bills that will be coming in for this issue. Exact name of the product and product description (as stated on the product label)Grandma Lucys 3 Bears Dog Food With A Purpose Chicken Recipe Type of container (e.g. box, bag, can, pouch, etc.)Bag Product intended to be refrigerated, frozen, or stored at room temperatureRoom Temp |  |  |  |  |  |  |

I tried to feed her some boiled chicken after two days and she threw it up immediately. She threw up a second time. About 1 week after opening the most recent bag, he became lethargic. On Wednesday (3/8/2023), (b) (6) did not eat his dinner bowl of food and he had to be coaxed outside of the garage in order to pee before bed. The following day, he did not move to eat or drink or go outside the entire day so he was taken to the vet around 4:30pm. They suspected a GI issue so prescribed antibiotics and some special food. He had to be force fed the meds and one tablespoon of food. By the following day, he was peeing broken down blood and could barely stand when forced. The vet now suspected poisoning but we could not figure out what he could have gotten into as he is chained up in our yard or in our garage at all times. They treated him for poisoning and gave IV fluids, etc. By Saturday evening, he had to be put down due to severe drop in red blood cells and liver failure. About a week after we lost (b) (6) we gave the leftover bag of food to our brother-in-law to feed their dog (b) (6). Only a day and a half later, (b) (6) became lethargic and her eyes seemed to be droopy and she would not stand up. They immediately suspected the food because of the suddenness and stopped feeding it to her. | EON-527259 | 3/23/2023 15:04 | Rachel Ray Nutrish   | (b) (6) had a tumor growth from her colon that eventually pushed out of her rectum. She saw the vet because of this. During testing they did X-rays and ultrasounds and found her heart to be enlarged by twice its normal size. Any kind of surgery for the tumor would have put her at risk during surgery and would only have been palliative in nature anyway so she was only topically treated to prevent infection and orally treated to reduce any pain and to reduce swelling on her heart. Three weeks after she was diagnosed her heart gave out and she passed. She had been on Rachel Ray Nutrish diet for many years.  | 14 | Years | Terrier - Jack Russell    | Dog | 14 | Pound |

One bag was opened and a dark spot was noticed in the bag. Appears to be a foreign object (hard, rubber-like material) partially embedded within a pill pocket. It was removed and photographed. Manufacturer was notified, they took down origin info and lot #. They said they would send a package to collect the defective bag and object.This was found before any pill pockets were used from the bag. If the pet treat item had a different use which didn't require direct handling and inspection of pet owner, it was rigid and large enough to obstruct the airway of our small dogs. | EON-527185 | 3/22/2023 19:28 | Mazuri Mini Bird Diet  | I have found bugs, both dead and alive, in three bags of Mazuri Small Bird Diet. All of the bags have the same best by date and lot number. I have contacted both Amazon (where I bought the bags) and Mazuri's (the manufacturer) customer services. Amazon said they were going to take action to remove the bags from that lot number from their inventory. Mazuri has shown no interest or concern in the matter whatsoever when I contacted their customer service via email and a phone call. When I emailed Mazuri, I was told that the feed was expired and that I shouldn't feed it to my birds. Since the best by date stated on the label is 23 June 2024, this is not true. When I followed up with another email pointing this out and adding a picture of the best by date and lot number as printed on one of the affected bags, I was ignored. I hoped to get Mazuri to take the problem seriously by calling them, since it is likely that all bags of the same lot number are affected, but during the phone call they still seemed very unconcerned about the fact that there were bugs in multiple bags of the same lot number. They said that I should not feed my birds feed that has bugs in it and that the product should be ordered from their website and not elsewhere. When I received the bags from Amazon, the bags were completely sealed and there was no evidence of any holes or tears, which leads me to believe these bags got contaminated with the bugs or their eggs in the facility where it was produced, and not in an Amazon warehouse.  |    |       |               |     |      |          |  |

It was approx. 6:00pm. In about 5 spots throughout home. Vomit consisted of dry cat food pieces and liquid. On Mar. 20, 2023 she was fed exact same but in am. Possibly Vomited again multiple locations approx. 25 mins after feeding. Same again for evening feeding that day, as well as Mar. 21, 2023 am feeding. Since we have 2 cats, one being diabetic, can't really tell what vomit went to what cat, I did witness my other cat, (b) (6) vomit on March 19, March 20, and March 21. I did not "Witness" (b) (6) vomit after eating, until March 21, evening feeding approx. 20 mins after eating. However, As much vomit areas in the home, I feel that it just wasn't one cat, plus the area which (b) (6) uses frequently for napping and hangin out, was some areas of vomit. As well as the size of the vomit piles, as (b) (6) is a smaller cat, there were small piles of vomit as well as larger piles of vomit, leading me to believe both cats had vomited. I did witness (b) (6) vomit on March 21, 2023 after eating in the evening. I did not seek medical attention for (b) (6) as I did not realize that this vomiting may have been caused from their food. As well as (b) (6) does not have any medical issues, only (b) (6) has diabetes. I automatically assumed that the vomiting was due to her diabetes. Now i see after running all tests on my other cat, (b) (6) and noticing (b) (6) vomit as well right after feeding, that this is food related. The timing of these events coinciding with their feeding. I switched foods on 3/22/2023 in morning feeding, and stored away product in question. No vomiting from either cats. | 9  | Years | Sberian       | Cat | 4.49 | Kilogram |  |

I went home the next day where my roommates silver lab was and fed them both again to immediately have the dogs sick with 5 minutes of eating it. My GSP has thrown the food up 5 times overall and the silver lab twice. Both dogs have been fed the same pro plan their entire lives and we alternated food bags we had to see if it was a food issue. We have two 33 lb bags of the identical foods purchased at different stores with only one bag causing immediate issues. The food is not expired and the bag wasn't tapered with and remains intact. Once I figured out it was the one bag of food causing the issue I called the Orscheln's in Crete, Ne the food was purchased from on the 18th to let them know of the issue but the manager blew me off and said the food wasn't expired and should be good. I've since bought another bag of the identical food and fed both dogs with no issues. | EON-526773 | 3/17/2023 20:44 | Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets Hydrolyzed (HA) vegetarian formula | Dog has been on Purina Proplan HY prescription food for a few years. Mid February, dog developed anorexia, lethargic, increased urination and increased water intake, vomiting and constipation. Upon taking him to my veterinarian, it was discovered he had severe hypercalcemia. He was referred to a surgeon, and a Parathyroidectomy was performed. He was released from hospital 2 days later, and 2 days after coming home, he was severely lethargic, and still had hypercalcemia of 2.5 calcium level (which is a result of vitamin d toxicity). He spent another 2 days in the hospital on IV fluids. Purina Pro Plan issued a recall in the beginning of February for the EL type of prescription food. Last week they expanded the recall to more lot numbers. While my dog is on the HA version, which both are for food sensitivities, what are the chances that there was cross contamination, or the tainted food was put into the wrong bag. The dog is now home and slowly improving. While his calcium level is still high, it is trending down slowly where he will be monitored each week with blood work. This is too coincidental and my veterinarian and I both believe there is a possibility this food made him sick. I still have the bag of food and was curious if it could be tested.  | 10 | Years | Coonhound - Treeing Walker | Dog | 77 | Pound |  |

Both pets were transitioned to a prescription diet for supportive care. The diet was Purina Pro Plan Veterinary Diets Cat NF Early Care Canned NF 5.5oz Can. Both cats seemed to be reluctant to eat the food well and lost some weight throughout the fall. Recheck labs were performed in early February to monitor kidney values and response to diet change. Both cats had become hypercalcemic despite being normal in September. The more severe was (b) (6) with a value of 15.2 which is a severe elevation. (b) (6) value was 11.8. I discussed this with internal medicine and they felt that it was very suspicious for both pets to go from normal calcium to elevated calcium (especially the severe degree for (b) (6) in such a short time and simultaneously. They were suspicious of a food toxicity with vitamin D. I reached out to Purina who said it was not possible and did not investigate further. Owner switched the diet to Royal canin renal support and noted both cats started feeling better and re-gaining weight. Within 1 month of the diet change, (b) (6) value was back to normal. We did not retest (b) (6) as she had a much more mild elevation and was also feeling much better so owner declined retesting. Owner does still have the cans of food he was feeding if needed for testing. | 15 | Years  | Domestic Shorthair   | Cat | 7  | Pound |

I atreptmed to switch them to Appalachian Valley smallbreed flavor, but the smallest amount mixed with the High Prairie turned their poo yellow. I stopped the Appalachian Valley, and used the of my bag of High Prairie with no issues, no gastro problems, all was well. When I got a new bag of High Prairie, both dogs got very sick and began vomiting yellow froth shortly after eating the new bag of High Prairie. I called Diamond Petfoods for Taste of the Wild brand, and Taylor informed they had changed ingredients in Dec 2022. There is ZERO warning, no alert, no indication whatsoever that this brand has changed ingredients on the bag at all.Arent they supposed to warn consumers with a "new formula" or "new ingredients" label when they change recipe ingredients? They are misleading consumers by not labeling the change and more dogs will be sick as a result because they have changed the third most prevalent ingredient of potato flour to pea flour and a few other ingredients were switched as well. How do they get away with this? Website after website touts this to be a good food, and safe, but this is false marketing. Isnt this against some laws?Dont consumers have any rights to know what manufacturers are putting into products? Why is this company allowed to buy internet space to bury the complaints, hazards, and dangers of feeding animals their dangerous and misleading foods? Consumers should be warned and all these bags of $60 dogfood should be recalled for hiding new ingredients and removing other ingredients without any warning to the consumer. I think they must be breaking some labeling laws and the food needs to be tested for any other potentially dangerous ingredients as I have found other consumers reporting online too. This manufacturer should be audited, fined, and forced to make the consumer whole from using their products that were not labeled as to a change in ingredients. You cant know the ingredients changed if you throw away the old bag for the new bag, and this manufacturer is making millions banking on consumers not figuring out there was a change in the ingredients because they cannot compare to an old bag that was thrown away before comparing ingredients to the new bag. Unacceptable behavior from Diamond Pet Foods. Havent they killed and made enough pets sick yet? And they refuse to be held accountable, instead using dirty tactics to trick consumers at the expense of our dogs' health. Please put a stop to this manufacturer and recall all their foods until it is sorted out and tested. | 2  | Years | Terrier - Rat      | Dog | 20  | Pound |

I purchase them November 1st 2021 and I noticed that he was vomiting and had explosive diarrhea. After he had had a couple of them over the few weeks I had to take him to the vet clinic November 16th 2021. They did a X-ray to see what was going on in the digestive tract where they noticed there was metal particles through his intestinal tract. I did contact Sam's club which they did refund the amount of the dog snacks due to there being a recall on this particular lot number that contained metal fragments. I told them that my pet ended up in the vet clinic severely ill and I now have a vet bill that has never been refunded by the main company that makes the treats for Sam's club. The company is out of Germany which they make the product for Sam's club members but their main company name is fresco. I have sent them an email along with the vet invoice and I also have a letter from the veterinarian with the concern. I have tried calling the company which the message they have is in German. I have had no contact with anyone to rectify this issue. My dog was severely ill for over a week do to metal fragments. If he did not get better he was going to have to go back to make sure that there had not been any metal that was embedded in his intestinal tract, which would cause them to possibly have to remove part of that if it had died. I did not throw away the snacks I have kept them this whole time. I do have the lot number which matches the product.  | 2   | Years  | Mixed (Dog)                     | Dog | 94   | Pound |

I was looking at brands on Amazon and determining what brands had good ingredients for a good price. I saw the Amazon Grain Free Wag brand for puppies. I didn't bother reading the reviews as when I clicked on the reviews it said 66% were 5 stars and the overall rating was a 4 1/2 star so I ordered 3 bags to bundle and save. The first day I arrived and I fed it to my dog he starting having diarrhea and I mean like 6+ times a day and he never pooped that much let alone had diarrhea like that. We've been feeding it to him for 15 days and every single day is the same of diarrhea and recently he started vomiting and we've tried to cut down the amount that we were feeding him and he hasn't been pooping or having diarrhea as much but still does. Even with cutting down his food he has been still vomiting. After awhile of feeding it to him I decided to go on Amazon and start reading the reviews and found out that even though it had a 66% 5 star rating there were tons and tons of people talking about how the food made their dog sick with diarrhea, vomiting, and some even vomiting or pooping blood. They spoke about how the moment they stopped their dog eating that food they were fine and ta ked about how their dog was perfectly fine before having that food. I believe they're lying about their ingredients or have had some of their batches of food contaminated with something which is why so many people are having their pets get sick just like mine | 4   | Months | Shepherd Dog - Belgian Malinois | Dog | 32   | Pound |

After approximately 1 year on the food, he developed a cough. His cough worsened so we had X-rays performed and found his heart was enlarged. His vet referred him to a cardiologist who performed additional testing and confirmed dilated cardiomyopathy. He was given 6-12 months and the cardiologist recommended we switch his food as it could be the cause. He's on 8 pills per day. After 2 years on the meds, he had a repeat echo which showed part of his heart had healed, confirming the cause was his food and not genetics. The scaring from his heart injuries has now caused arrhythmias and he is undergoing additional treatment. Between his vet bills and meds, we are thousands of dollars into treating him on top of the trauma this has caused him. | EON-526105 | 3/9/2023 16:08 | Blue Buffalo Blue Life Protection Formula Adult Chicken and Brown Rice Recipe Dry Dog food | Purchased Blue Buffalo Blue Life Protection Adult chicken and Brown rice 30lb bag online from Petco on 2/6/23. This was a new brand of food that we transitioned our dog onto. The bag was opened sometime mid February. The food had a slightly stronger odor than our previous brand but we thought it was how it should smell. Im a new dog owner so I naively thought it was a smell dogs would like. I noticed a week after opening the bag that some pieces had a lighter color. I scratched at them and nothing came off so thought like it just had three different types of morsels. The food very slowly started to smell stronger a couple days ago and one morning I opened the bag and it was like rotting garbage. I realized that morning that the discolored morsels had grown fuzzy mold. I called Petco and they sent me a replacement 15lb bag. This was on 3/7/23. This new bag has a very strong sour smell to it and I knew not to give it to our dog. Luckily our dog is ok. Honestly she loved eating bag number one which is scary. I could have kept giving it her and killed her. To us the food was supposed to smell this way and it so gradually worsened that we really didn't notice until it hit a tipping point. I don't have the Lot number for the first bag as its been thrown out. | EON-525875 | 3/8/2023 16:56 | All Products Rush Direct Sells | Rush Direct Inc. located at 890 N Wood Dale Rd, Wood Dale, IL 60191 is not adhering to food safety practices, FSVP, truth in labeling, and consistently miss-labels their products. I have personally witnessed the owner Charles Ferreira direct the warehouse staff to relabel expired products with new code dates. I have also witnessed Charles and Alci direct the warehouse to falsify the country of origin. Several Halloween Products were shipped to Walmart with the product labeled as coming from Mexico when a significant portion of the product actually came from Brazil and was expired. There are over 60 pallets of product located in the warehouse that has long code dated that the owner Charles is attempting to sell to customers. Some of this product has been infested with bugs on more than one occasion, then fumigated. In January, PetSmart came to do an audit. Prior to the audit, Rush direct removed 5 trailers worth of product so that PetSmart wouldn't see that that they were attempting to sell expired products. Rush failed the PetSmart audit within the first ten minutes of the audit due to infestation and other issues. The packaging equipment used to pack the bones and various body parts for consumption by dogs have never been cleaned. This poses a serious salmonella risk to the consumer. Alci, Charles, Vera, and Enrique do not care at all about food safety and put the workers health along with the animals health at risk. Rush Direct hired a new QA Manager in the fall of 2022. She quit when she discovered how bad things at Rush Direct really are. Since her departure they put Alci in charge of food safety when she has no experience and doesn't understand how to effectively execute food safety programs. Rush often only tells customer that they have a single warehouse located at 890 N Wood Dale Avenue. In fact, Rush Direct has three warehouse at the below addresses: 1050 Arthur Ave, Elk Grove, IL 60007 2100 Lively Blvd, E k Grove, IL 60007 890 N. Wood Dale Rd. Wood Dale, IL 60191. During previous audits, Rush has hidden the 2100 and 1050 addresses from the auditors. This is due to the fact that no food safety programs are in place at either of these two facilities. Please visit all three of these facilities before another dog or cat gets severely ill as a result of the owners decisions. Rush Direct should be shut down to prevent further issues. In full transparency I was fired from Rush Direct about 2 months ago. I've continued to see products I know are expired and have food safety risks on sale at several retailers. I wish to remain anonymous to prevent getting sued and or harassed by Charles Ferreira. |  |  |                    |     |  |  |

| EON-525829 | 3/8/2023 10:24 | Zignature food for dogs complete and balance diet for a puppy to adult dogs crafted in the USA with globally sourced ingredients. Trout and salmon formula limited ingredient formula | My English bulldog has many allergy issues. He is now almost 7 years old and has been eating the signature, trout and salmon, formula, dry food for most of his life. I decided to make treats out of the trout and salmon formula in the can. I have been doing this for approximately two years, and have been buying the canned food by the case to save money this past year, I noticed a change in the consistency of the canned food, but did not give it much thought. My English bulldog started showing signs of allergy issues, making sure to only feed him this food to control the issues. However, they became worse. He had a terrible infection in his ears and sinuses, I have spent over $600 in the last two months on his health and then I decided to illuminate the canned food to see if that was the issue and it was. He is on the road to recovery and I am happy for that but very concerned what caused this issue. I also have two other dogs one is a puppy that I would also give the wet food to she at times refused to eat it and I wondered why I'm assuming it bothered her stomach and I did notice issues with their number two when they went potty, it did not look right and had a slimy consistency at times. This is frustrating as a consumer when you try to buy the higher and food and changes are made for whatever reason by this company and my dog being the one to suffer and also myself dealing with this was very heartbreaking. I love my dog so much and to see him getting sick was really scary, thank you for your time. Sincerely, (b) (6). |    |       |                           |     |     |       |  |

About a year ago his coughing got so bad he was struggling to breath and coughed up fluid several times a day. We took him to the vet where they did an x-ray and confirmed he had an enlarged heart and was going into CHF. Symptoms he's had since the diagnosis: Coughing, Trouble Breathing, Shortness of Breath, Fluid Build-up in the Lungs, Coughing up Blood, Loss of Appetite, Loss of Mobility, Etc... Since then weve had to put him on several diffrent medications to improve his quality of life, but at this point he is coming to the end of what treatment can do for him. I don't want anyone else to go throuh this and am taking all of our dogs off of the products you listed. Lethargic, quiet. Then we saw blood in her stool. We took her to the vet and had her x-rayed. She had a mass in stomach. They did a colonoscopy and tried to break it up, with not much luck. They were recommending cutting into her to get it out. At this time she would not eat. For a few days we thought she would die. Finally she got it out of her system. This is many days of pooping blood and watching her closely. I posted a bad rating on Amazon where I bought it. This was shortly before our night time feeding routine. I looked down at the food dishes and noticed lots of white pieces in their food remnants from the day time feeding. I had not noticed the pieces when I did the day time feeding because they blended in better with the color of the food. By night time the food had turned a darker color and dried out leaving an alarming contrast between the food and the foreign objects. I closely inspected things including a fresh can of the same food. All cans have extremely hard, sharp pieces of what looks like bone in excessive amounts. This past week both of our cats have gotten sick, vomiting and refusing to eat. They have both been to the vet, examined and given anti-nausea medication. When offered a freshly opened can of food, they sniff and turn away. One cat eventually did eat some Dave's canned food while on the anti-nausea medication, but vomited again within 30 minutes. Less than an hour later, the same cat ate a different brand of food and did not vomit. Both cats have now been eating a different brand of food without any vomiting. I think it is possible this batch of food is making them sick.The food is chicken formula in a 12.5 ounce can. The best by date for both cans that I have information on is June 13, 25. She went through a normal transition period. The day I opened the new bag of dry food kibble she started experience extreme and uncontrollable diarrhea. I fasted her for 24 hours and started her on probiotics and Anti-diarrheal. Within 3-4 days she was back to normal solid poop on a plain white rice and boiled chicken diet. We started to incorporate the dry kibble back into the rice and chicken and wean her back on it and the issues started again just as severe as before. Within 24 hours of removing that bag of food from her diet and giving her a different brand (she's been completely fine with this brand for 6 months just didn't trust it anymore) she is back to solid and controllable poop. I reached out to the Jinx company on their website and they asked me to send them a picture of the Lot code and best buy date which is when it was drawn to my attention that they failed to put either on the bag. So I was either sent a contaminated back or an expired one that has been making my dog extremely ill.     | 9 | Months | Other Canine/dog | Dog | 41 | Pound |

Upon checking the ingredients listed on OI Roy (cuts in gravy) the new York strip and the Ribeye flavor both contain onion powder and garlic powder. Which both have been said to be toxic to dogs in any form. A few also eat either dry from Hills rX Dry Biome and Weruva Can. All age 1 eat Natural Balance canned. I never feed Natural Balance dry. After receiving a new shipment of Natural Balance, all cats that ate it, had diarrhea. The diarrhea is yellow to tan, can be soft or runny. The Natural Balance has a new brown label. It looks and smells different. The ingredients changed, but the can says "original" Ultra Chicken & Liver Pate Formula. The print on the label is so tiny, that I had to go online to look up the ingredients. Also, it is black ink on brown paper. The cats have never had diarrhea. They all have seen a vet for exams, blood tests, vaccines etc between July and October of 2021. I have the records too. This is a vet I've known for 15 years. The cats also eat Weruva Chicken frickazee or Paw Licking Chicken, but a cat that never eats Natural Balance did not get sick. Only cats that ate Natural balance have diarrhea. The cat that eats Hills or Weruva has perfect stool. I am an ex RVT from California. Based on my experience as a pet owner of 20+ years, I know it is the Natural Balance that caused diarrhea. Over the next 8 hours the dog passed multiple stools containing high levels of mucus and a small amount of blood. After 8 hours, symptoms continued, however the stool continued high amounts of bright red clotted blood, similar in consistency to strawberry jam. Additionally, the dog started vomiting. No obvious signs of lethargy were present. As it was not immediately identified that the root cause had been the food, as the dog had previously eaten this brand of food, the dog continued to be fed the remainder of the can, with increasing severity of diarrhea. The dog was temporarily moved to limited diet to treat the diarrhea. Upon recovering (approximately 1 day after being taken off the food), all GI symptoms were gone. The dog was again fed the same food from the same shipment and GI symptoms consistent to the first occurrence were observed. Dog is not knowingly allergic to any proteins or ingredients in the food, and has no issues in the past with this brand. Dog does not typically suffer any GI upset on a regular or recurring basis that would indicate this as routine. Dry food and supplements were not changed, and have not been changed since. Within days of eating the new food we noticed (b) (6) had stopped eating. This was around the same time he had been proudly catching mice so I associated the new symptoms to possibly something from the mice. (b) (6) was a very healthy and active kitty prior to this. I took (b) (6) to the vet who did blood work. It showed he was having liver issues plus a lot of other stuff going on and I started following the vet's advice with stuff received from the vet. I did my best to keep him alive for the next several months but he died in severe pain in mid November 2022. We finally decided to get a new cat recently. We cleaned out all his old toys, threw away the litter box, etc. since the vet could never confirm what was wrong with him. The only thing we kept was the food since it was a brand new 18-20 pound bag and we assumed the mice had made him sick. We adopted a new cat from the local shelter. They sent her to the vet, had her checked out, got her shots, de-wormed her, etc. before she came home with us. Within only 3 days of having the food she started showing the exact same symptoms. After a lot of research I'm afraid there could be mycotoxins in the food. I still have almost all of the food and I'm willing to send it in for testing but I can't afford to have it tested. I don't however have the bag it came in. Due to mice, we put all pet foods into containers to protect it. DATE PROBLEM STARTED: this date is estimated since it was happened slowly at first during last Aug. | 9  | Years  | Domestic Longhair  | Cat | 20 | Pound |

This is our usual brand and neither of my two cats have ever had an issue until this batch. After eating food from this variety pack both cats experienced vomiting and diarrhea. One can of food is split between the two cats each evening. (b) (6) symptoms presented first and (b) (6) began 2 days later. Since their symptoms did not present at the same time, I didn't immediately attr bute it to the food. Canned food was withheld for a couple of days and their symptoms improved. Canned food was slowly reintroduced at half the normal portion and the cats seemed to have good days and bad days. Since this was a variety pack it appears some flavors may have issues and others may not. We did not keep a log of which flavor they were fed and when they were sick, but the last can served was Shreds with chicken in gravy and (b) (6) was sick the next morning. She claims she did this about 4 p.m. The next morning at about 7:30 a.m. my dog puked and dropped dead. I looked at the puke and observed two large pieces of the jerky. It seemed strange to me that the jerky did not dissolve in my dog's stomach I ke the dry dog food I fed my dog the evening before. It appears my dog could not digest the jerky, but it could digest the dry dog food. I suspect my dog went into shock and her heart could not handle the shock. His primary vet, (b) (6) had also been contacted on 6 February for a prescription of Cerenia (60 mg once daily) to address the inappetence, nausea and daily vomiting. He couldn't be seen by his Internal Medicine Specialist (IMS) at (b) (6) until 2/21/23, so I made the decision to bring him to the emergency room at (b) (6) on 2/8/23.(b) (6) was admitted to (b) (6) and hospitalized under the care of the Internal Medicine Service from 02/08/23 to 2/14/23 for vitamin D toxicosis secondary to ingestion of contaminated Purina EL that is currently being recalled for elevated levels of vitamin D. Both myself and his IMS (b) (6) did not become aware of the Purina EL recall for potentially toxic levels of Vitamin D until 2/9/23 (FDA announced it on 2/8/23). (b) (6) had been eating Purina EL since 11/14/22. It was confirmed that he had been eating out of at least one bag that matched the lot number and UPC code for the Purina EL recalled food. Following consultation with Pet Poison Hotline (Case #3517334), (b) (6) was treated with fluid diuresis (0.9% NaCl + 15 mEq/L @ 60 mL/kg/d) and one dose of zoledronate (0.25 mg/kg diluted in 100 mL NaCl) IV. He has responded well to treatment and his chemistry is being monitored weekly to ensure he continues to improve. It is impossible to know at this time, what long term health issues may develop with (b) (6) due to this issue. Nothing was ever found to be a problem, so Pepcid and dog food types were used. For a little over a year, I was using 4Health Sensitive Stomach. He did well on it. I recently came to find his coat was dry underneath and bit different in texture. I considered changing food again. Upon opening a new bag of food, I fed my boy in the morning. Later he looked like he didn't feel good. We went outside in the yard and he roamed around and I heard him puking. Soon after we went into the house. My daughter and husband arrived home from school pick up and we were in the kitchen when my husband noticed our dog was on all fours but crouched down, he coughed I ke he was chocking, then collapsed to the floor and died right before our eyes. We were of course hysterical and no amount of tears could bring him back. I was devastated, tried to recount the day. Called my vet, and she agreed it sounded like a heart attack. Later I was given information about DCM Dilated Cardiomyopathy from GRAIN FREE dog food. The brand I was feeding was as such and I have beaten myself up over feeding him that food. When is the FDA going to cease the mfg of such a food that is most certainly causing INSTANT DEATH of our pets? Do you test dog food? My beloved dog, my walking buddy, my companion who was just going to turn 10 in 4 days, died before my eyes and I couldn't save him. I'm appalled that this grain free diets continue to be marketed and fed to our pets with clear indication of the health problems that it potentially brings. Leave the nutritional science of our dogs to the experts, such as Science Diet whose products have been sent to the back of the store at Petsmart all because they now sell to Walmart. They line their shelves with an inundation of product that leaves many people confused as to what to feed their pet. It is madness. I would like to have this bag tested for possible poison. Maybe high Vit D? but I feel the grain free diet was his demise. The only symptom I see in my dog was a very dry undercoat, a but unruly as was previously. I was just getting ready to look for another dog food!!!! but he just DIED, on my floor of a heart attack. You are the department that is supposed to PROTECT consumers but you're not doing it!! We gave our two beagles the new bag of dog food after receiving it, and they both began vomiting and having diarrhea to the point of getting blood in their bile and poop. It, unfortunately, started close to the time the vet closed on Friday, Feb 10th, and we got them to our vet on Monday, Feb 13th. Their condition gradually worsened so we weren't as concerned until late Sunday and early Monday. We switched to rice and chicken late on Saturday, Feb 11th once we were able to make our own homemade food. Between late Sunday and early Monday, they would not eat or drink anything from the earlier poisoning. The vet on 2/10 did blood tests and fecal tests to look for bacteria and noted the weight loss. We began giving them the anti-diarrheal and probiotics that afternoon. The vet noticed the beginning of dehydration, so we gave them both some IV supplements. They gradually improved by the end of this week, but we, unfortunately, ran out of homemade food. So we gave them both another serving of the original dog food between late 2/17/22 and early 2/18/22 (1-2 servings). They both ate it (the Wholefoods serving) last evening. (b) (6) did eat it this morning, but (b) (6) sensed not to eat it this morning after having soft poop the morning of 2/18/22. We called the vet to refill the anti-diarrheal and notified them further of this issue and the problem with the dog food. We will discontinue using Wholefoods dog food, and we wanted to issue the notice &amp; complaint to the FDA/HHS. We will attempt to reach out to Chewys and Wholefoods as well. We still have the original, tainted dog food as well, which I will put back in the bag for now -- to see if anyone can or is willing to test it. | 5  | Years | Beagle               | Dog | 32 | Pound |

| EON-524420 | 2/18/2023 1:40  | Friskies Prime filetsSalmon and Beef in sauce       | On February 9th,2023 I opened a can of Purina Friskies cat food for my cats and there was a sharp piece of metal in the food, luckily I noticed before dishing out to my cats! I kept can and lid and sharp piece of metal after taking pictures .I contacted Purina and spoke to a woman named (b) (6) who was a supervisor and she apologized and asked if I saved can and top n metal piece and I told her yes and told her I had pictures, she asked for can upc number and expiration date and she asked me how much I paid for the product and I told her 28 dollars because it was from a variety pack, she had told me she'd overnight me a refund and a postage paid envelope to send them the can and sharp piece of metal I had found. So by the 11th I still hadn't received anything so I call Purina again and I spoke to a guy named Dennis whom also was a supervisor and he didn't know why (b) (6) hadn't sent it out, so he said he'd overnight it Monday and I told him it was a holiday that day so he said he'd get it out Tuesday and I'd receive it Wednesday or Thursday, I received it February 15th. After I talked to him I emailed about our conversation and that it was unacceptable and also told them that they aren't taking complaints seriously because I had complained before about thier paper thin cans back in October 2022, because I had purchased from Chewy and Amazon and all cans were damaged and all they would do than too was refund me. They have numerous complaints on Google, Chewy,Amazon and Facebook regarding thier cans allowing the product to become contaminated and making people's cats very sick and some have died! They've known of can issues but contine to cut corners and NOT take complaints seriously! After I spoke with (b) (6) on February 9th I emailed them my pictures as she had asked for. They say they care about people's fur babies, but yet continue to do nothing about complaints! |   |       |                          |     |    |       |

A little over 2 hours later she became restless, quickly followed by violently ill. She continued to throw up and empty her stomach. She also had violent diarrhea. I checked the rest of her food and found that some of the kibble (again, brand new bag) was discolored. There were pieces tinted red/pink, some that were entirely green, and others shades on between. When I found this I went through the bag closely and found more pieces of kibble that were discolored and or just very unll ke the rest of the kibble. I contacted the pet ER as I was unsure whether it's mold, some other additive, poison, or something else altogether. Pet ER had me monitor her for the night. My dog continued to be violently ill through the night and next morning.  | 3 | Years | Shepherd Dog- German | Dog | 78 | Pound |

| EON-524371 | 2/17/2023 15:56 | ROYAL CANINDIGEST SENSITIVETHIN SLICES IN GRAVYFELINE CARE NUTRITION           | I opened a can of Royal Canin brand wet cat food--type: Digest Sensitive. Upon opening the can, I immediately smelled an acid-like, sickening odor and the contents were a "chocolate" color liquid (I saw no food content whatsoever). There is no doubt that this can was either or both highly toxic due to contamination or possibly a biological hazard (possibly botulism or simoilar). This can of food is part of a case and I still have the remnants of the toxin triple bagged in plastic. I also have two remaining cans from the same case (Note: one of the cans was used and is now empty; the other is unopened. I still have another full case, which I believe to be has the same lot number as the toxic can. I have a photograph of the toxic can showing the chocolate colored liquid after opening. Note also that some of the contents of the can splashed on me and my kitchen counter and floor. Lysol spray would not remove the acrid odor and I switched to bleach to try to remove all of the liquid from my kitchen. I have used this Royal Canin product for a number of years and noticed the quality has degraded. The manufacturer has substantially increased the amount of water in each can and reduced the amount of solid cat food. That may be an improper labeling issue since the consumer is receiving less actual cat food and more water for the same labeled product. I will never forget this incident since it was beyond appalling--there is no question in my mind that this can was adulterated, toxic to pets/humans, and possibly a biological hazard (I ke botulism). I have a photo of the opened can showing the toxic liquid (as mentioned) and two cans from the same case lot (plus another unopened case). I also have the toxic can preserved in triple plastic for analysis if needed. |   |        |                          |     |     |          |

I used many cans from that case without a problem. I opened a week ago and saw it has some type of liquidy stuff, so I thought it might be gravy, but to be safe I gave her a quarter of the food farthest away from that spot. She would not go near it, and she is a voracious eater. I went to the store and reported it, but they just gave me my money back. Two days ago I opened another can from this case (btw, some of these cans were dented, but not to the point of food being exposed) and it has a smaller type kind of pus thing, so I did the same thing and only gave my cat 1/4 of can, she did eat some of it, but has behaving very weird since then (hiding and not coming to the bedroom at night, which she does every night) and eating very little of the small size can I gave her. She usually eats the 5.5 oz can and more if I let her. So I have set up a vet appointment, and reported it again to Petco store. They looked up and saw there were not any recalls. I am hoping she feels better.   | 10  | Years | Unknown  | Cat | 7  | Pound |  |

My dog vomits one morning and we thought nothing really of it maybe he had stress or something. But then he would not get up like his rear legs didn't want to work. Took him to ER and found his liver values high and gallbladder had a halo similar to an allergic reaction. For him on medication and took a week to fully recover. Heard about the prescription Purina recall and it's not the first time Purina has had an issue so I am concerned this is what cause my dog to have pains. We did go back to the food for a little while until this Purina recall and thought it was best to take him off.  | 2  | Years | Shepherd Dog - German     | Dog | 94 | Pound |

She was being fed Purina ProPlan Puppy kibble mixed with lams so I continued that diet but she had diarrhea for several days and she threw up once. So I started feeding her ground beef and rice to help settle her stomach. Just today I started mixing in the kibble again, and she threw up. Her foster mom contacted me that one of her litter mates had passed away, and the vet said that it appeared to be toxicity. The foster mom also said there is a recall on ProPlan, so I wanted to report this incident as well.   | 4  | Months | American Pit Bull Terrier | Dog | 21 | Pound |

Within a week of starting this bag he started to drink excessive amounts of water and urinating frequently. He had a few urinary accidents in the house as well which is unlike him. I brought him to work with me and we did a CBC/Chem and UA, these all came back unremarkable. The only thing that was odd was that his specific gravity of high urine was extremely high, which means very concentrated. This isn't normal since he was drinking large amounts of water, his urine specific gravity should have been low, not concentrated. We put him on 7 days of ant biotics, did not change anything. I purchased a new bag of food after feeding this bag for about a month, when he started eating the new bag he went back to drinking normal amounts of water and did not have to urinate as much. | 1  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 55 | Pound |

| EON-523499 | 2/8/2023 9:28  | Nightcrawlers  | My name is (b) (6) and I had a garter snake who was completely healthy and less than a year old. She passed away over the weekend because I fed her worms that I bought from my local Petco on Thursday, not knowing the worms were spoiled. On Saturday, January 28th, I bought an 18 count of Night Crawlers from the Petco at (b) (6), (b) (6). A day later I opened them and saw that they were all dead and molding. I took them back on January 30th and exchanged them at the same store. On (b) (6), Wednesday night, I fed three of the worms to my garter snake, the worms were not obviously spoiled but I days later realized the date on the container was from November. Thursday morning I saw that she had regurgitated the worms and she was very lethargic and less responsive than normal. I brought the worms back to Petco and told them what happened and the cashiers did not seem to care and told me they could give me another exchange. I went over to the fridge where the worms and other live food are kept and I pulled out 3 containers of worms, I opened them all and two of them were all dead and extremely moldy, and the date on the containers said they were from early November, 2022. I grabbed the only one left which was from January 11th and made the exchange for the last time. The next morning, my snake was extremely lethargic, dehydrated, and was not eating. I made an emergency appointment at the vet early on Friday (b) (6). The doctor informed me that if the worms were spoiled that it most likely would kill my snake. On Saturday morning I saw that my snake was not moving hardly at all. I held her and she passed away in my arms minutes later. I am still grieving the loss of my sweet girl and need to do what I can to make sure this does not happen to anyone else. |   |       |                           | Snake | 32 | Gram  |

It means that they are just saying "their products are organic." Some of us asked the business if they are going to get authorization by such organizations, but they are not going to do it. The business says that their essential oils and other materials are manufactured by themselves in Hawaii. Thus, people think that their essential oils are made from Hawaii and some of them sell the products as made-in-hawaii products in Japan. However, in fact, the business buys those essential oils from a manufacturer somewhere out of Hawaii, and fills the materials in bottles or bags at the business owner's home in Hawaii. Because the business sends the materials from Hawaii and says that materials are from Hawaii or paradise and/or tropical resort, people misunderstand that those materials are made in Hawaii. And the prices are extremely high.   |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|                                   |                       |   | Especially regarding the 5 blend oils, ALOHA bottles, sold by the business, the business clearly says that they extract the oils from the plants at home in Hawaii. However, they don't. They have never done it. They just buy the essential oils from a manufacturer out of Hawaii, make blend oils with the essential oils and sell them to customers. The labelings of those essential oils prepared by the business don't mention enough information. Especially the ALOHA bottles mentioned above, don't show any contents and we are not sure what is included in each bottle. We asked the business about the detailed information for each material, however, they never answered. Incidentally, the Hawaii business pretends as if their own materials are safe and legal through their social media by complaining about other businesses. For example, the Hawaii business advised people to take a look at the labelings of the essential oils and other products very carefully since many other businesses have failed to follow the regulations or law. But actually the labelings of the Hawaii business's products have lacked enough information which they mentioned on their social media. We are also concerned about the flower essences manufactured by the Hawaii business. They make all flower essences by using plants at home in Hawaii, sell them to people in the U.S. and Japan. The Hawaii business directs the customers to take the essences internally and externally. However, in the same as their prepared essential oils/blend oils, the labelings of the flower essences lack much information. |  |  |  |  |  |  |

|  |  |  | The Hawaii business explains that they use 'alcohol' (Hawaiian Vodka) to preserve the flower essences, however, the labeling of the flower essences doesn't say anything about the alcohol. (it just says 'sugar cane' and 'mineral water'.) We also asked the Hawaii business what is included in each flower essence, but they never answered. Moreover, there is a lot of misidentification of the plants made by the Hawaii business. The owner of the Hawaii business says she graduated from the UH (University of Hawaii) and her major is herbal medicine (La'au Lapa'au) on her profile. However, according to the UH office, it was cleared that she never goes to the school. In short, she has made false statements about her educational background. And she is teaching herbal medicine/ Hawaiian healing through her own classes by using her false educational background, and selling herbs to people. That is why most of her knowledge and information about the plants/herbs and other materials are incorrect and sometimes risky. For example, she introduces several alien plants as native Hawaiian plants. She uses poisonous plants without enough knowledge and information. She includes poisonous sap of the plants and incorrect plants in the flower essences. Because she removes flowers from the essences before selling them to the customers, we totally don't know what plants she is using in each flower essence. It is possible that some of their flower essences don't include anything, just water and vodka. Under this situation, the Hawaii business has started to offer 'classes' named Dog Therapy using essential oils and herbs. They teach how to use essential oils and herbs to cure diseases and injuries of the dogs. And they sell essential oils and herbs in order to feed the dogs internally and externally. Of course, the labelings of each product don't mention enough information. The labelings just say the name of the plants and amount. (We never know the scientific names and other information such as the origin of the herbs. Even if they are on the labelings, the scientific names may be incorrect due to the Hawaii business owner's lack of knowledge, as mentioned |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|--|

|  |  |  | be incorrect due to the Hawaii business owner's lack of knowledge as mentioned above.) Some dried herbs are powders and the Hawaii business directs dog owners to feed them along with other pet food. The dried herbs prepared by the Hawaii business include native Hawaiian plants even though the owner of the business doesn't have enough knowledge. (She is not a herbalist nor a professional aromatherapist. She has a certified aromatherapy certificate but many people point out her knowledge and risk of her teaching.) Soursop leaves are included in one of the products in order to be used by humans and dogs too. The Hawaii business sends ti leaves and ferns from Hawaii to Japan. But those leaves are not completely dried because the business dries the leaves by themselves at home. The Hawaii business has never obtained any inspection nor permission to import the raw leaves from Hawaii to Japan. The Hawaii business sends all products from Hawaii to Japan (and inside the U.S.) as "gifts", not as the commercial products. The Hawaii business also sells the fragrant tree sticks, Palo Santo, to the customers in the U.S. and Japan. But they never got permission to import them from the origin of the trees. Rather, we don't know where the Hawaii business purchases the fragrant tree sticks. We asked them where Palo Santo came from, but they never answered and just said their products are all 'organic'. White sage is also sold in the same way as above. Lastly, the Hawaii business sells salts called 'Hawaiian sea salt'. However, as mentioned above, the labeling only says the name 'Hawaiian sea salt', therefore, we are not sure if the salt is from Hawaii. According to the regulation and law, when we sell (export) the sea salt, we have to follow the specific rules, and when we sell the 'made-in-hawaii' products, we need to follow specific guidelines and get the authentication. But the Hawaii business never goes through the process, and they just sell the packages showing 'Hawaiian sea salt', therefore, many people believe the 'Hawaiian sea salt' is from Hawaii and pay money for that. |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|  |  |  | What we are explaining in this complaint can be proven through the social media and the website of the Hawaii business. Some posts made by the Hawaii business were deleted purposely after we have pointed them out to them, however, plenty of evidence still remains. Though their social media and website are shown in Japanese, we would like to request you to take a look at them very carefully. We can provide you with the evidence since we have saved the screenshots of their posts. We would like you to take this situation very seriously and investigate the issues very carefully.  |  |  |  |  |  |  |

Urination issues. I rushed her emergency twice and she almost died. She had a high level of rod bacterial in her intestinal track. She dropped weight very quickly as did my other cat before she died. I had stopped feeding (b) (6) the PD for about two weeks and she seemed better. I reintroduced the PD back into her diet and she became very ill again and almost died. I stopped the product and after discussing the with our veterinarian found out that there are several chemical ingredients that could cause severe dehydration and even organ failure especially in small or elderly dogs. After 2-3 days of not eating she finally began to feel gradually better. I had to hand feed her and give her other liquids so she would drink. All in all I think it's not worth losing my dog. So I'll continue to brush her teeth manually. Please stay away from this evil company and don't buy their products." •"I used this stuff and while it initially worked, I had to change my review because my dogs had to be taken to the vet because of this stuff. Both of my dogs had a clean bill of health before I started using this stuff. I only got it because they had dog breath and I was told by a friend that this worked. I don't feed them store bought food so it's not a dog food issue that caused the problems my dogs are now suffering from just since they started this product. They eat a very specific diet but they had terrible breath. This worked in the beginning. My dog Beans began having serious dental problems since I started using this product in his water. He may lose some of his teeth. He had a clean bill of health JUST BEFORE STARTING THIS. He now has blood in his urine and is being treated for a bladder issues. Since this is used in the water, it gets ingested and lands in the bladder on its way out. I'm praying there is not more damage already caused by this product! This product is poison. Our dogs cannot verbally tell us this stuff is making them sick. We can only SEE the issues after the damage is caused. Don't buy this product if you love your pets. This will make them very sick or could kill them." •"I followed the instructions and my poor boy became very sick and started having partial seizures, stopped eating and drinking. He is only 2 years old and has always been healthy and active. When I took him to the vet, they ran tests and found he had crystals in his urine. I do not recommend this product at all! After a week of being off of the dental formula, and getting that crap out of my babies system he is back to normal." •"After using this product for a few weeks my dog became lethargic and limping. He also lost his appetite and had mucus in his stool. After going to the vet checking blood, urine and doing X-rays to see what was wrong - nothing showed up. It finally dawned on me the only thing different was the Dental Formula I added to his water. It has only been 4 days since we stopped using this product and my dog is slowly getting better. His appetite has picked up and his energy a little better each day. To think that this additive was making my dog sick --- heart broken since I thought I was helping him. Every dog may be different - I am just grateful that I figured it out before it got worse. My opinion: it is not worth the risk. Update: 10 months later - still not 100% healthy." |  |  |  |  |  |
|  |  |  | •"I have 2 dogs, different breeds, about the same weight. They are older (&gt;10 yrs) and both have gum disease. I decided to try this product as teeth cleaning is expensive. I put it in their water and within 8 hr. one of the dogs had a seizure. She had NEVER had 1 before. It was bad! This was late at night. The next morning she had another one, it was worse. We immediately took her to the vet. She checked Kati out and drew lab work. She stated that many times in a dog over seven, seizures were caused by a brain tumor. We took her home and she had 4 more seizures that day, each increasing in intensity. Sometime after the 5th one, it hit me! These seizures did not start until I put the Dental Formula in their water. I didn't think that's what it was, but decided to quit giving it to them anyway. She HAS NOT had another seizure. That was 10 days ago. The vet was skeptical that the Dental Formula is what caused them, BUT... So just a heads up, that is just too much of a coincidence for me. Had I known I would have saved $350. And not gone through a horrible day worrying about Kati." •"After 2 doses my dog became lethargic, breathing changed to deep gulping. Stomach appears very bloated. The bottle did not last long so the cost in my opinion did not justify the means. The puppy threw up every day within 10 minutes of drinking and lost an adult palm sized patch of top coat from his scruff. Originally, we did not associate the hair loss or vomiting with Pet Lab until the bottle was gone and his vomiting stopped and the hair began growing back. None of the dogs had better breathe. While the chihuahuas are older, it did help some with plague and not having to brush their teeth was nice. However, realizing afterwards that is have been giving them something full of a carcinogen made me feel like an awful dog parent. We rescued them to give them a better life and this product is not part of that." •"I never write reviews. Don't use this product. After about 3 months of use my dog started to have bladder issues. She is passing blood through her uretha. She also has had seizures( she has epilepsy so not sure if it's related) Don't risk it!!!!" •"I should have done my homework before buying - put it in my dog's water and then spent the rest of the evening taking him outside - horr ble reaction - diarrhea and vomiting. I re-read the bottle and saw the warning on the bottle to keep away from children and domestic animals!!! Then I looked up the ingredients one by one ..... one of the ingredients (Stabilized Chlorine Dioxide) is FDA approved as a disinfectant or surface sanitizer!!! Two of them (Tetrasodium EDTA and Methyl Paraben) are on the list of the 5 top chemicals to avoid - from an independent testing lab - Paraben is a carcinogen and EDTA is made from formaldehyde and sodium cyanide. I'm very disappointed that this product would be marketed for pets - not to mention my own lack of research before purchasing and how I put my dog thru this. DON'T USE THIS PRODUCT"  |  |  |  |  |  |  |
|  |  |  | •"I would not recommend this product as it made my dog sick, listless, she couldn't jump up on the couch like normal I assume from abdominal pain. Very scary, I gave her one dose. Hoping this behavior will pass and she will be back to her self soon!!! She screams when we touch her abdomen?? I am very mad at myself for not reading more reviews and causing her this pain!" •"Although this product has good reviews I did not notice the bad ones unfortunately. after giving this to my dog he started shivering and acting uncomfortable and weird. I then realized after reading other reviews that other people were saying the same thing. It does seem to work for other people but I don't think the ingredients is healthy. I'm not sure if it depends on the dog but I would not recommend this for my pet. I am throwing it out." •"I used about 4 servings over 5 days. My dog was throwing up and super lethargic. I realized it was a possibility after I read the directions on the bottle but never imagined it would be so bad. I measured carefully and the dosage was correct. $30 plus dollars is a lot of money to waste to make my dog sick. Obviously it didn't work. They should offer a smaller sample size if it can make an animal that sick in a few days. Would actually be afraid to give the rest to a friend." •"Please don't buy this product! Our chihuahua is dying from CHF and heart failure after using!!! used a total for 2 bottles adding a little less than the recommended amount- 3/4 tsp instead of 1 tsp per cup of water. I was concerned about some of the ingredients possibly being harmful and our 15 year old Chihuahua. After using this product our 65# pit bull had no issues. But our 15 year old chihuahua became withdrawn and stopped eating and drinking water. Blood work, stool samples, meds to help with vomiting and the diarrhea cost me 1800 in vet bills. BUYER BEWARE!"</li> <li>"I stupidly purchased this product without doing sufficient research. Its active ingredient, Chlorine Dioxide, is mainly used as an industrial disinfectant. It may (or may not) clean a dog's teeth, but that doesn't mean it is safe to use. Adding chlorine bleach to your dog's water might make his teeth a bit whiter, but that doesn't mean you should do it. It also has a noticeable odor. After using it for about a week, my dog began vomiting. I discontinued use immediately. My vet advised that chlorinated products like this can disturb the natural bacteria in a dog's digestive tract, leading to vomiting. Remember, unlike products for humans, there is no FDA that regulates pet products that make health claims. At the very least, ask your vet BEFORE you use."</li> </ul> |  |  |  |  |  |

Did not know the damage this was causing to my dog until one day she stopped eating and became very ill. Pancreatitis the vet said, after finding my 11.5 yo Dobie dehydrated and wobbly on her feet. $2000 dollars later, after 2 days of vet treatment ( IV fluids/a battery of tests/ all day stay at doctor etc), she did not get better and progressively became unable to get up, stand or walk independently. She grew more withdrawn and lethargic. We drove two hours in a panic to get her the soonest MRI appointment available (thank you West LA VCA). We knew there had to be more going on than pancreatitis as it seemed that neurological complications were kicking in rapidly. I am so mad at myself for not reading the label more carefully, nor the many reviews that out this product as not only useless, but TOXIC. I failed to do my usual research, trusting that this product would indeed help my dog. NO!!! It did not. My dog became so unwell. I cannot bear to think that it is my fault that she is no longer alive. . .That a product, seemingly harmless, affected my dog's pancreas, nervous system and heart. She was a healthy senior dog...Recently had her check up, and this poison, marketed so innocuously made her sick to death.</li> </ul> Literally. PLEASE read the label carefully. Also, dosage of 1 tsp per 8 oz of water makes no sense without taking into account the size/weight of your dog. Something is not right with this kind of dosing. The directions on the bottle say daily 1 tsp and yet when I received emails questioning dose, the company said that for "efficacy" to add 1 tsp oer 8 oz, 2 tsp per 16 oz, etc, to fill her water bowl. There are many adverse reactions that have come to light and it is no coincidence when others have had similar experiences. I am sick about it, and now can only warn others. Please find a different, more natural product that isn't about feeding your dogs chemicals. There is NO other explanation for the quick deterioration of my once vibrant and healthy fur baby. The seal was unbroken when I opened the bottle and first started using it. The bottle remained in our home and I was the only individual utilizing this product for our two small breed dogs. We are not aware of any negative effects as of this writing (1/31/2023j. I used this new bottle daily for the previous 4-5 days, each time pouring the suggested amount into their drinking water. Once i noticed the metallic flecks we immediately stopped using the product and notified the manufacturer through their online portal.   |     |       |                                 |     |      |       |

| EON-522765 | 1/30/2023 14:08 | Royal Canin Selected Protein PD Sauce in loaf   | She died on (b) (6). She had been on a special diet because of her digestive issues. It was the Royal Canin PD dry and wet food food. It is the wet food that I believe did this. She had been on the same food for a very long time, but for several months at the end of 2021 the wet food wasn't available. I called Royal Canin and they said that they had to find a different source for the food because they couldn't get it where they had been. So I gave (b) (6) and my other cat a store bought brand and they were ok. In January of 2022 when the Royal Canin became available again, I begin feeding them that food again. (b) (6) started having health issues. She was already thin, but began losing more weight and I took her to the vet every month for 4 months trying to figure out what happened. On (b) (6) she began going down hill. Because of the pandemic my vet was closed. I did everything I could to support her through the weekend, but by the time Monday came around she was in terrible condition. She got very stressed at the vet and I didn't want that to be her last memory, so she died at home in my arms at 8:30 in the morning on the (b) (6) She was an older cat and I thought it was just her time to go. When my second cat almost died shortly after, I realized something else was going on. I feel that the wet food is the issue. My second cat had diarrhea and when I rushed her to emergency they found an overgrowth of rod bacteria. She had dropped weight suddenly, had urine problems and looked really bad. She almost died. It killed my cat. | 17 | Years | Domestic Shorthair    | Cat | 8  | Pound    |

No problems until last bag which she was on for approximately 2 weeks (give or take). She Developed what vet originally thought was a UTI that worsened. Fannie was peeing all over the house (huge amounts), drinking enormous amounts of water, needed to go out to pee ever 40 mins and waking up multiple times at night needing water and to go to the bathroom. Her Blood was run and her calcium score was alarmingly high-score of 14-vet immediately told me to stop using the food. She is still not 100% better but symptoms have improved-she is still a lot more tired than normal. I was basically told that this was most likely lymphoma or renal kidney failure. Chest x ray and ultra sound of kidneys ruled out lymphoma and kidney disease. Her blood was run again 2 days later and sent to the University of Michigan for further testing. Her calcium score was still elevated but not as high as the blood test 2 days before.. We just got her vitamin D test back today-the original test was so high that the University of Michigan called my vet and said "you need to make sure the owner takes the dog off whatever food they have been consuming immediately" and they retested the blood. 2nd test came back with a score of 1,110 for vitamin D. My vet said the high range for vitamin D is 423 and my dog was almost 3 times that!!!! My vet said "unless she got into poison the only other source would be the dog food. And I'm pretty sure if she got into poison she would not be with us at this point." What do I need to do to test this food-this batch needs to be taken off the shelves immediately and I hope you haven't killed any other dogs in the meantime. My vet said he was thankful I brought her in when I did -he has never seen levels this high and a few more days on that food would have killed her. As you can imagine the past 2 weeks have been exhausting and emotionally heartbreaking. The thought that this food could have killed my dog is unimaginable. I need someone to call me so I can figure out next steps. The University of Michigan is aware of this situation and said the food needs to be tested with the FDA. Purina is liable for all of this-after all this is the food that almost killed my dog. I hope this doesn't cause permanent damage and future health problems for my dog. He has also vomited a bile type substance three times. His stools went from being firm nuggets to just slime. Instead of watching him not eat at all I figured it was better to give him treats. Now I know the treats are the problem as I found excessive mold growing in a bag of jerky treats that are supposed to be good until December 2023. I had not noticed it sooner because these are kept in a ziplock bag in my dim pantry closet and I had no clue to look until these treats were the only thing he had eaten. I went to see if maybe they were expired, but no, they're not...just horrible fuzzy mold growing on them. Last night was when I noticed the mold and I've been up with (b) (6) all night because he's just been so sick. This problem has increased rapidly in a short time and I kept thinking he was just tired due to weather change and was not eating because he preferred to sleep & adjust to the changes in season. We use it to compliment his dry food. I have notified both Purina as well as chewy in the past of poor quality canning seals on the 5.5 oz. Aluminum cans at least 2 times in the last year. Chewy thankfully refunded the damaged cans as well as the poorly sealed cans and we expect chewy to do that again. However, in this last shipment we received 2 cases of the exact same product and 16 cans of the product were so poorly sealed I could feel the rim of the seal top with my fingernail as well as super tiny food particles.. 2 of the cans also leaked inside the case bottom which could have brought about mold issues in our storage area. I have notified chewy we will NO longer be ordering this product. We are highly concerned that if their basic canning inspections are that bad that an entire layer (12 cans) of poorly sealed cans were on the bottom, the other case the poorly sealed ones (4) were mixed on both top and bottom. I am truly concerned for cats (not just ours) that eat this product will be injured by various microorganisms that come from bad canning practices (such as botulism). We are paying nearly $48 a case for 24 cans of food!! We customers and our cats deserve better. And I would like the FDA to inspect their canning practices safety as well as educate them on the terrible and painful things that can happen when poorly sealed product is sent to customers. The only reason I knew not to feed those cans to our cat was because I learned a lot in n the trucking industry as a driver and a loader. Not all of their customers have the same education I do. Thank you for time, (b) (6)   |   |       |             |     |    |       |
| EON-522330 | 1/26/2023 11:53 | 24 bs CANIDAE Pure Puppy Real Salmon & Oatmeal Recipe Product # DD0211G24001          | Product in question - Canidae, Pure Puppy Real Salmon &amp; Oatmeal Recipe, Dry food (b) (6) a healthy 2Y shepherd mix with no prior health conditions, was recovering well from an elective OHE about 3 days prior. On (b) (6) the pet was BAR until about 12:00PM, where she yelped and collapsed suddenly; pet was not breathing or responsive. Owner immediately brought pet to ER and was determined DOA. Advanced resuscitation efforts were performed by the emergency veterinary staff but were unsuccessful. Owner elected necropsy. Necropsy was performed on (b) (6), and reported necrotizing colitis, and noted apical necrosis of the large intestine mucosa that was covered by significant bacteria; the cause of death is unlikely due to recent OHE per necropsy findings. Prior to incident, the pet was in excellent health and had normal pre-operative labs. The pet had aspirated during her surgery, however, and the contents was noted to be extremely foul-smelling, orange, and large in quantity, despite the pet being fasted for 12 hours prior to the procedure and given Cerenia intra-op. The necropsy report does not indicate aspiration pneumonia as a cause of death. The pet was consistently fed the same diet (Canidae) prior to the incident. Owner reports that the pet had not had any other food or treats outside of their regular diet, and the pet is not a known culprit of dietary indiscretion or foreign bodies. The pet was also not having diarrhea prior to their death. We are concerned that the pet's diet (Canidae) may have caused foodborne illness and thus contributed to the sudden fatal event for (b) (6) The owner has kept the bag of food that the pet was being fed from. The owner has 1 other dog in the household (Male/Intact, 8 months old) that was being fed the same food from the same bag, up until he developed diarrhea (he is now being fed a Rx bland diet). | 2 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 50 | Pound |

| EON-522321 | 1/26/2023 11:53 | Top of the Rockies Hay Cubes  | On the evening of December 6th 2022 my horse was found down in his pen. We tried to get him up on his feet. He was trying to stand and was unable to do so. He was displaying neurologic symptoms such as leg tremors and rolled eye movements in between trying to stand and laying down. He was not thrashing or biting at abdomen as is seen with colic. We were unable to hear any stomach sounds and he was unable to get up after an hour of trying. Due to the veterinarian shortages in our area we were unable to get a vet to my location. Due to his age, the cold conditions, his inability to get up, the inability to load him in a trailer, and lack of veterinarian assistance we were forced to euthanize the gelding. If not euthanized he would have froze to death that evening. After his death it was brought to my attention that there was a possible feed contaminant in the Top of the Rockies Hay cubes that I at the time was exclusively feeding both of my horses. They were not fed any other feed, and I at the time purchased cubes from the company weekly.   | 23  | Years |                                    | Other Mammals |    |       |  |

The next night, Saturday, (b) (6) my fish had fallen ill. It could not swim properly due to what I believe was its swim bladder failing. It could not control where it swam or maneuver itself in the water. On Sunday, (b) (6), (b) (6) eyes were cloudy and the protective slime coat on its body was coming off in strands. The fins were deteriorating and its abdomen was bloated. Eventually, (b) (6) couldn't move anymore and lay at the bottom of the tank for hours until its gills couldn't work. The fish died that same night. I have owned and properly cared for this fish for almost seven years and have never had any issues with food poisoning. These algae tablets were the only change in my controlled tank environment, and it was no coincidence that my healthy fish of seven years died within two days of eating it. Not only did this fish die, but five other of my healthy fish died after eating the algae drops, one of which I've had for seven years as well, and three that I have had for over eight months. | 7   | Years |                                    | Fish          |    |       |  |

An emergency room vet visit revealed no blockages in his gastrointestinal tract and his blood levels were normal. The vet added an over-the-counter probiotic. We switched him to a bland diet of rice and beef for 2 weeks until the blood stopped appearing in his stool. upon weening (b) (6) back onto the purina dog food the bloody stools and lethargy appeared again, and we put him back on a bland diet for 2 weeks. We took (b) (6) into the vet again and they gave him a probiotic and an antibiotic for 10 days. this relieved the bloody stools again. again upon weening (b) (6) back onto the purina dog food, his stools exhibited a mucous coating, and he was lethargic again. After 2 days of the purina dog food and mucous in the stool merlin started to refuse the food but eat other food items, specifically refusing the purina dry food only. On 16 Jan 2023 We switched to a new food (redford naturals dry dog food). I took her back to the Vet and had more xrays done and fluids injected. Shards were found lodged in her intestines. I was told to bring her back for a third day to ensure that the shards had passed, or have surgery. Thankfully, they passed. Not a good choice for my dog.
 The bone was too big for my 14 lb. dog so I sawed it in half which was not an easy task. The dog liked it but the bone broke off in large splinters so I had to keep an eye on her so she wouldn't choke. This bone is baked &/or cooked & since purchasing it I learned that uncooked bones are not subject to splintering.

A Truly Horrible Product

I bought this product thinking my dog would get use out of it and use it every day. However once it got there my dog got it (He is a 1 year old Rat terrier) he played with it. In about five minutes the dog bone was destroyed and was to sharp at the end for him to use so I threw it away.

Too Brittle

These bones were too brittle. They brake into small, sharp pieces that a dog could swallow.

Bones Splintered

These rib bones splintered badly - my dogs are dedicated chewers - and I didn't give them the last two. They enjoyed them, but I won't be ordering them again. Maybe these bones would be good for dogs who don't chew aggressively.

Disappointed

I really didn't like them, they were thin and too easy to chew a part. not for true chewers

My dogs splintered these in a matter of minutes! I thought these would be similar to the slow roasted marrow bones, which are virtually indestructible - no such luck!

Too Brittle

I found these to be to brittle. My dog was able to easily brake them apart and swallow sharp pieces. I wont buy them again.

My big dogs destroyed these in a matter of minutes

Maybe these bones are better for smaller dogs. My large dogs broke them apart quickly and the bones broke into sharp splintered pieces. I won't give them to them again.

Would not buy again

The bones were very dry and splintery. A couple of them literally fell into pieces as I unwrapped them.

The bone split creating a large splinter. I was afraid my dog might choke.

Kroger review

Splintered and took from dogs

This bone was very hard and broke off in sharp pieces so took all four to the trash.definitely not worth the money at any price.

Bone treat turns deadly for Valley dog; FDA issues warnings

FDA issues warning that some dog bone treats could be deadly

A Valley woman says her dog died from intestinal issues about two weeks after eating a pork bone treat she bought at the store. She wants to share her story with other dog owners as the FDA comes out with its warning about the dangers of dog bone treats.

She had a sweet and loving face. American bulldog, Lilly, was known as the "protector."

"I've never been close to a dog like I was her, at all," said Christine DeBusk. "So it was really hard."

Over the summer, DeBusk gave Lilly a treat. It was a pork bone she bought at the store for $3. But about a week later, she knew something wasn't right.

"They did X-rays and found it was lodged in her," said DeBusk. "They broke up most of it, but there was a piece they were a little concerned about. They said as long as she's not showing any other symptoms the antibiotics should help."

Lilly's family thought they were in the clear. Another week passed before the unimaginable.

"I looked at her, and all of a sudden, I noticed she wasn't breathing," said DeBusk "I was shaking her. The kids came out and they were crying."

Christine hugged Lilly until it was over, trying to send her dog a message.

"Just that I loved her and I was sorry," said DeBusk. "I didn't mean to kill her."

It was a traumatic experience that other pet owners have faced.

|                            |                 |   | After 15 dogs died, the FDA just released a warning, telling pet owners to stay away from the bone treats sold in stores. "They splinter, they break off, they get lodged into the body systems," said Sandra Moore, director of the veterinarian assisting program at Carrington College. Moore says the pieces of bone can get stuck around the curves of the intestines. "Those blockages are going to be what causes the most damage," said Moore. "And sometimes, irreversible, leading to death." After Lilly's death, DeBusk shared her story on Facebook. Her post received more than 55,000 shares. "She's going to save thousands of lives and that's huge for us," said DeBusk. And the family got a new dog. They rescued a deaf dog named Mindy, who was scheduled to be put down. "She's definitely brought joy back," said DeBusk. "And we say Lilly helped, because she looks a lot like her in a lot of the pictures." The DeBusk family has been reaching out to many different corporations, hoping to get dog bone treats pulled from the store shelves. Smokehouse Pet Products, Inc. has released a statement via their general counsel regarding the DeBusks' incident: We are general counsel for Smokehouse Pet Products, Inc. On behalf of Smokehouse, its principals and staff and our office, we acknowledge and understand that the loss of a pet is a traumatic experience, and we extend our sympathy to your caller for such loss. Our client has been pleased that over the last decades there have been very few incidents of harm to pets from our client's bone products. As is commonly known, and as provided in our client's labels, there are notices that pets should be supervised when being given a bone product. Should a bone product splinter or fragment, it should be immediately removed and discarded. Attached hereto for your ready reference is a copy of packaging containing a notification and recommendation for such supervision. Our client concurs with your caller that a message should be communicated to pet owners. Hopefully, your caller's desire to alert dog owners of the foregoing will result in avoiding harm or injury to their pets. Thank you for the opportunity of replying to your caller's message and protecting against possible future injuries. Very truly yours,(b) (6) Copyright 2017 Scripps Media, Inc. Within a week of feeding to my small herd of chinchillas, large patches of fur began to fall out on several. Two animals itched until they were had sores. The babies became severely infected. I took to (b) (6), a local veterinarian, who tested and observed 3 chinchillas. A mother, (b) (6)-2 yrs, and 2 kits, (b) (6) and (b) (6) He tested for fungal, bacterial, and parasitic infections and found that they had a lice infection. I have no other animals in my home. This parasite is present in livestock and not carried by humans. My chinchillas could not have been introduced to this in any other way (bedding is fleece- laundered here; they are eating Mazuri chinchilla feed). (b) (6) has prescr bed the chins a medicine similar to Frontline and an ant biotic for the skin infections. DuMor Hay is sold loose in a blue cardboard. I would suspect that if the three hays- the botanical was most likely harboring the parasite. It had particles of soil and loose flowers. Of infected animals- 1 has died, one is deteriorating (kits) and others to be stable. They're separated from rest of the herd.   | 6  | Weeks  |             | Other Rodents | 172  | Gram  |

I took the bag home, emptied it into a plastic container, and then threw away the bag and receipt. We have been feeding treats from the bag since that time, and last night I reached into the container and grabbed a handful of treats. When I looked at them, I discovered that one of the treats was not a horse treat, it was a dog bone treat. It appeared similar in color to the horse treats, but was very clearly shaped like a dog bone.   |    |        |             |               |      |       |
| EON-512465 | 1/15/2023 16:24 | First Mate dry dog food 11.4kg (25 b) bags                                  | Have discovered puncture holes in the inner corner folds of the 11kg (25lb) bags of First Mate brand dry dog food. These holes are hidden from view from the consumer. As science dictates, air introduced to a food product or organic material will oxidize and degrade creating the environment for bacteria, mold and pathogens. I feel this procedure is putting any pet at risk of mold, bacteria and other health risks and can make a pet sick, damaging vital organs or worse. There is no label to inform the consumer of this practise to allow the consumer to make an informed decision if they feel they wish to purchase or feed this pet food to their pet. These holes are present from the moment the bags are filled and its freshness and questionable quality degrades from this point on, not when the pet owner or consumer first opens the bag. I find this practise of puncture holes in the manufacturer's bags and not making this practise known to the consumer deceptive and feel this practise needs to be noted on packaging or to cease altogether. Until the manufacturer changes and improves its packaging methods and shows its commitment to food quality and exceeding the expectations of the pet owner community, I have ceased using this brand for which my dogs health has improved since. |    |        |             |               |      |       |

Didn't think it was related to food so kept feeding him the food. For about a week, he got really lethargic and would constantly lick lips, salivate and occasionally cough or gag. When I put things together and thought it could be the food, I timed when the lip licking would start and it was exactly 2 hours after feeding. When I stopped the food, the symptoms stopped. About 30 minutes after feeding one piece of jerky to my dogs, my 3 year old dog had a major reaction on his face: severe swelling around his eyes and mouth. Soon later he broke out in hives on his face, neck, shoulders, chest. We assumed it was just an allergic reaction until about 6 hours later (in the middle of the night) one of our other dogs , 2 years old and healthy, started throwing up. This convinces us the treats are tainted in some way. Our dogs have no underlying health conditions, have never experienced an allergic reaction before and the dog that threw up, does not have digestive issues or easily throws up (it would be an extremely rare event). This is 100% linked to this bag of treats. There was absolutely nothing else the dogs were exposed to or could have eaten. No other treats or chews or snacks were given. We were with them the whole time indoors and when they went outside to pee, the ground here in <sup>(b) (6)</sup> is covered with a foot and a half of fresh snow from the day so nothing on the ground is even exposed they could have ingested. The product info off the bag is: Canidae sustain Dusk recipe jerky treats. I had to subject my dog to a liver biopsy and he is now on very expensive D-Penicillamine and a low-copper prescription dog food. The diagnosis and treatment has been and will continue to be very expensive and subjects my dog to surgeries, blood tests, etc. and me to the emotional stress of caring for him. I am very fortunate that I am able to afford this diagnosis and treatment as I know many pet owners are not able to which will lead to the death of their beloved pet. | EON-510244 | 12/16/2022 14:12 | Waggin' Train Chicken Jerky Tenders   | My dog (b) (6) began regurgitating all his food and stopped eating. He became lethargic and irritable. The only thing we did differently was give him the Waggin Train chicken jerky treats. Our other dog, (b) (6) also experienced problems. He had terrible diarrhea. He is only 1, so perhaps he could heal better than (b) (6) being an older dog. We took (b) (6) to the vet and his ALT liver enzyme was elevated (800, normal is around 80-120) and that is why he was feeling sick. The vet suggested that he may have gotten into human medication or something toxic. However, he is not the type of dog to get into things. We deduced that it was the treats and after looking into it more, we found articles on these same treats being recalled several times over the past decade due to trace amounts of antibiotic residue being found in the treats. Many dogs died or became ill after consuming these treats. (b) (6) is on antibiotics and nausea medicine now and has begun eating without throwing it back up, thankfully. The vet also gave him fluids in hopes to flush out the toxins. We are hoping he will make a full recovery, but he is still lethargic and not wanting to take his medicine. | 5  | Years | Mixed (Dog)            | Dog | 75 | Pound |
| EON-510222 | 12/16/2022 12:28 | Ol'roy variety pack bacon cheeseburger and country stew 12 cans (teal colored) Wet dog food     | My son opened one can and it burst all over him followed by a very foul rotten meat stench. The can was thrown away but still can be retrieved . After that he opened a different can and it seemed fine however dog was getting diarrhea again. The next day he opened another can from the same flat of cans and it smelled foul. So we stopped using all the cans in the flat. Both dogs have been to the vet prior week for issues related to the olroy wet dog food with vomiting and diarrhea however we did not have the food tested or labs done on our dogs. They were treated with antibiotics and given fluids. I'm guessing that the whole 12 pack (teal) colored line is tainted because that's what they have been eating the last few weeks when they were sick.  | 15 | Years | Pit Bull               | Dog | 64 | Pound |

| EON-510059 | 12/14/2022 18:04 | Mi k Bone maro snacks   | We fed (b) (6) a treat at approximately midnight on 12/8, when he was observed to be acting normally and well and put him to bed in a secure dog-safe room. (b) (6) was found unresponsive and vomiting at 0700 on 12/9. After taking him to the emergency vet, (b) (6) was diagnosed with possible seizures and was hypothermic, continued to be unresponsive, and we were advised he should be euthanized. We requested a second opinion from our regular vet who recognized possible signs of zinc poisoning and identified metal was present in (b) (6) stomach through an x-ray. Following the surgical removal of the metal object, it was identified as a spent, mushroomed zinc-based bullet. (b) (6) continues to receive fluids and care at the vet's office and we do not yet know if he will recover. Per the vet, the onset of zinc poisoning in canines is very rapid and (b) (6) likely consumed the bullet within hours of finding him unresponsive. Because the treat was the only thing he consumed within the likely poisoning window, we believe the bullet fragment may have been inside the treat we fed (b) (6) at bedtime.   | 10 | Years | Corgi - Welsh Pembroke | Dog |    |       |

| EON-509857 | 12/12/2022 13:08 | Simply Nourish Deboned Chicken and Brown Rice   | Who do i speak to about a bag of simply nourish dry food for seniors that i purchased for my 2 older dogs. I was very displeased about the last couple of bags of dog food i purchased. I noticed some type of bugs in the bag of dog food. Didn't alarm me completely the first time i encountered this issue because i figured it was just a one-time deal. Then it happened again ok cool, no issues. I just purchased again a close to 60$ bag of food again. Same thing again, bug here and there. Today, (12/12/22) really ended my relationship with this company because i poured more dog food in my dogs bowl this morning and saw worms borrowing in and out of holes in the dry food. SO today i was horrified. I really take good care of my fur baby tummies with feeding. For the most part i cook their food and add some dry food to the mixture. I am returning the bag of food to Pet Smart for a refund. They were willing to give me a new bag but i think this is a bigger issue seeing that i got the bags of food from two different Pet Smarts in two different states with the same outcome. I wanted to inform you of this in case there is an issue in the factory the food is packaged that you may or may not be aware of. I find this highly unacceptable. Our pets are a huge part of our family, i dont think i want to spend money in vet bills and poorly handled food. The next day later, when we opened it, our dogs refused to eat it. They wanted our 3rd dog's food (the Royal Canin large dog food). We thought they were just being picky, so we waited to see if they'd eat any of it. Eventually, they both are a few bits and have had recurring diarrhea. One of the two dogs has become very sick. A rice and chicken diet has been needed for them. We've disposed of the problem bag. However, we don't know if it's safe to buy a new bag, or continue the bland food diet. My dog has had bloody diarrhea every day up to 6 times per day since eating treats from this advent calendar, starting on 12/2/22. It's completely liquid and now almost entirely blood. My dog is whining and in pain, and the diarrhea is severe and frequent. I saw that other users have reported similar adverse reactions to this particular product when I googled "trader joes dog advent calendar sick." My dog has been very healthy otherwise. He has consistently received correct doses of Iverhart Max and flea/tick prevention since he was a puppy. He goes to the vet for regular checkups one to two times per year. He eats cooked salmon and sweet potatoes regularly and is fine. I am trying to have a stool sample completed ASAP. The box says that the treats are made of smoked salmon "raised without antibiotics, from the cold waters of northern Scotland" (not fully cooked salmon). The supplements looked &amp; smelled wrong. They normally would look like the color of a fruit roll-up (brown) and would smell like Flintstones Vitamins (kind of fruity) to us, but these ones looked much darker red/brown, dryer &amp; sticky and would trigger a strong gag reflex (not fruity)... just foul/rotten smelling. I contacted customer service right away, who then acted swiftly to remedy the situation by sending us new batches; however, it took them 3 batches (6 bottles total as batches are always sent in 2's) to finally get us a good batch. 2 of the batches were also rotten. Customer Service Rep was then able to determine that the 3 bad batches (6 bottles total) were all from the same lot. She stated that she notified their warehouse manager and notated my file, and advised to just throw the bad batches away... which I did. Yesterday (12/08/2022) we received our new batch after incident, which I opened both today to inspect and they are all rotten again. In addition to the rotten looking/smelling supplements, I also discovered that the counts are also inconsistent. |                            |                 |  | In the past, I kept having issues properly calculating the correct timing between new shipments based on having 2 bottles (30 in each bottle) where we would give 2 daily (so should be 1 months' worth). After the 3rd time of having only 1 chew left over in a bottle, I finally dumped out the new bottle and counted. My last batch (good) had only 28 in one and this new batch (bad) has 31 in one bottle and 34 in the other. Our Vet, who prescribed these supplements, is closed today (12/09/2022). I plan to notify them on Monday (12/12/2022), when they are open again, of our continuous issues and strong concern for reliability of product's quality/safety with this company. With this being the 4th time that we have received rotten supplements and discovering the multiple inconsistent counts, we felt this now warrants bringing concerns to a higher authority. Our dog has not had any bad reactions with the supplements, but we also have never given her any from the bad batches. | EON-509385 | 12/6/2022 17:24 | Blue Wilderness Duck & Chicken Grill   | A 12.5 oz. can of Blue Wilderness "Duck &amp; Chicken Grill" dog food was purchased at the Menards supply store in (b) (6) this past October. I have a small 6 lb. dog that can typically eat about 1/3 of the can per serving, of not less in a typical day. Upon scooping out the last couple ounces of food for the final serving from this can, I was alarmed to notice two (2) small curved pieces of sharp plastic that appear to have been some sort of r bbed plastic "collar" broken into 2 segments. Each piece is about 9mm tall X 11mm wide by 3mm deep, forming a squared-off oval when joined together. What deep concerns me is this foreign object was discovered after 2 servings were already administered to my dog in the past 2 previous days, and now there is the potential that he could have already ingested any other contaminants that already were in the can. As a retired lifelong career nurse I can testify that any foreign object in the anatomy, whether it be human or animal, can lead to permanent intestinal scarring, blood flow blockage, tissue necrosis, and a host of other terrible fate to it's victims. This is not acceptable in our food manufacturing nor should there be any concerns about my family's safety when it comes to food manufacturing, at least in the modern United States. Blue Wilderness DUCK AND CHICKEN GRILL 14.5 OZUPC Code: 8 40243 10486 4BEST BY: 2024 DEC 222024 1222(5?) 19:47 62WD2H |   |         |                           |     |    |       |

| EON-509035  | 12/1/2022 20:32 | Earth Animal Plant based No Hide dog chew | After purchasing the product i noted that the interior of the chew roll appeared discolored. I unrolled the chew roll. I found it was made of multiple pieces, some odd shaped, and the interior most piece was a dusty grey color as opposed to the balance of the chew roll material which was white. I questioned if this represented mold. I also noted an odor, that to me, smelled like rawhide. Knowing that apparently the FDA was not able to rule out that other varieties of Earth Animal No Hide chews contain rawhide, FDA sample 1020257 Chicken No Hide "Results are inconclusive as to whether product contains rawhide or not" and the assessment from FDA's Dr Rotstein "The statement that this is a "no- hide" product may not be accurate", I investigated further. I found that after applying iodine to the chew roll material, independent of the flavor coating, I saw no expected color change to indicate the presence of starch. I found this odd since the chews is purportedly a plant-based chew made primarily from rice flour, oats and other starch containing ingredients. I did note a distinct color change indicating the presence of starch when I applied iodine to the flavor coating. The chew weight was 31 grams on my kitchen scale. The coating weight read "0" grams. The coating is apparently a very small portion of the overall weight of the product. The results were perplexing. The first two ingredients of the chew are brown rice flour and oats yet it appears that these may only be present in the flavor coating, a very minor portion of the chew and not in the bulk of the chew. I next examined the chew roll material both macroscopically and with digital microscopy. I found that the chew roll material is an intertangled mass of fibers. and appears indistinguishable to me from multiple rawhide chews that I have examined in this manner. Note:I co-authored the published manuscript "Microscopic examination of dog chews: correlation of histological findings to product labeling". These finding are very concerning. The amino acid profile of dermis, which is what the bulk of this product appears to be is inappropriate and potentially harmful for pets with certain medical conditions such as a history of calcium oxalate stone formation or renal insufficiency. Additionally, based on the discoloration I'm concerned the product may contain mold or underwent putrefaction of some type. |    |       |                    |     |     |       |  |

We immediately took the dog to the veterinarian, (b) (6), who thought it may be a parotiditis issue. She took X-rays and found some extra bone growth on the bone. She prescribed him an ibuprofen type of anti-inflammatory which also helped with pain. (Novox 100 mg). After a week the condition did not get better so we took him back to the vet and again they took x-rays showing a larger growth on the bone. We saw a different vet that day and she said to stay on the Novox. Last week on Friday 1/26/2024 we took him back to (b) (6) because his limp was getting worse. After more x-rays the bone was bowed out a bit in the upper femur. (b) (6) was really concerned and took him off the Novox. She put him instead on Clindamycin 300 mg twice a day and Prednisone 20 mg (1/2 half tablet daily) and Gabapentin 400 mg 2-3 times daily for pain. Today 1/29/2024 he is gradually getting better but still favoring the right leg. No other changes to his diet were made. The next day (1/23), my cat threw up twice (clear, foamy vomit), refused to eat both breakfast and dinner, and refused treats, which is a very abnormal behavior for him. He also exhibited lethargy (which is also very unusual for him) which continued to the following day (1/24). He was brought to the emergency vet ((b) (6)) 6pm 1/24. Blood tests found extremely high liver enzymes (ALT of 1600, AST 550, bilirubin 1.9); x-rays and ultrasounds pointed to no obstruction. His clinical signs and labwork, especially the sudden onset and acute symptoms, are potentially indicative of a poisoning, which a veterinarian suggested may be a result of contaminated food. He is currently hospitalized and his repeated labwork continues to point to an exposure to a form of toxin/poison.  | 2  | Years  | Domestic Shorthair  | Cat | 10  | Pound |

| EON-561033 | 1/27/2024 17:04 | Nutro wholesome essentials complete daily nutrition adult cat salmon and brown rice recipe   | I purchased a bag of nutro wholesome essential adult natural dry cat food salmon and brown rice on January 6th 2024 from eBay. I fed this bag of cat food to six of my indoor cats four of my outdoor cats and one dog all of which over the last week have been throwing up multiple times a day yellowish greenish liquid or brown liquid or white foam. My animals have absolutely no health issues, never have. Before nutrol fed them lams cat food which I stopped because there was what I believe pieces of plastic in the cat food. So I go and buy the nutro cat food thinking it's better not knowing it came from the same exact company. I highly believe the bag of cat food I have is contaminated and I would like it to be tested. I brought this attention to not only eBay but to the manufacturer as well and asked to have it tested. Not sure if they will do this or not which is why I'm reaching out to you. My animals are extremely sick they have no energy they cannot eat and I do not have the money to take 10 pets to the vet. So I have to start with one and go from there and even that will be a struggle as I live on SSI disability. I am extremely upset with this company for producing two bags eins and nutro that harmed my animals. This cat food is not cheap and his cat food is supposed to be healthy and all natural ingredients for them. They did give me an option to get my money back or a coupon. I went with getting my money back and I'm currently waiting to see if that happens. I have contacted them a second time explaining to them I am very upset and I want something further done. Not sure if I will get a call or email back. But I feel this should be brought to your attention and I strongly believe this bag of cat food was contaminated. While I was giving my report to the manufacturer we found out the bag of cat food expires and less than one month, so I'm not sure if that has anything to do with it. The bag was not destroyed when I got it I keep it in a container in the bag itself with a lid in my kitchen. Nothing on my end could have contaminated the food. I keep very good care of my pets and their food their food dishes their water their water dishes and I make sure everything is always clean. Like I said this is very upsetting to watch this many animals be this sick at once. Please help me. |          | Domestic Mediumhair       | Cat |    |       |

After feeding this to my cat a few days later my cat is not eating or drinking water, she's vomiting has diarrhea and is overall not well. We took her to the vet 2 times in the past 72 hours and it was said that her liver enzymes were elevated and her xrays came back abnormal. A lot of her symptoms align with possible salmonella infection. She could have been susceptible to this bacteria due to being on antibiotics a month before for a small infection at the site of her incision from her spay. She had been eating the same cat food for over 6 months now with no issue. But now that this new bag was opened she's sick. Nothing in her environment has changed. No new pets no sickness no new anything. Her environment has been exactly the same the only thing different is the appearance of this food. We have ruled out any other environmental factors. | EON-561011 | 1/27/2024 15:32 | Purina Dog Chow  | I have two seven month old doberman puppies, they have been eating Purina their whole life until this past week (01-20-2024) My male dog had been throwing up all that morning and not wanting to eat his food. Which was odd because he loves food and is always is up for a meal. Later that day my female had started having watery poops, then came the throwing up. My female pup had kind of distancing herself from her food for the past couple weeks, like not eating as much as she used to and not eating her full meals when it was put down for her. That night my female had thrown up all night keeping us all awake trying to care for her. Couple days went by of both the pups being sick and not wanting to eat..anything they would turn their heads away. We ended up taking the female to the vet because she was in the worse condition. Nothing came back positive, we were given some medicine. (01-24-2024) Now (01-26-2024) My female dog has not gotten better and still has not eaten food, she is still throwing up and now with less watery poops. She is still very weak. We have tried everything for the poor girl but nothing has seemed to help. I have bought so many bags of their dog food and spent so much money on vet visits and supplies but nothing is helping her. I know its the dog food that started this. Both dogs want nothing to do with the dog food they have eaten their whole life. |     |       |   |     |    |       |

The older one has been on it for 4 years. The younger 1.5 year old has been on it since he was a puppy. Got a new bag on January 18th, we opened it on either the 21st or 22nd. Tuesday the 23rd they both had runny diarrhea. The younger ones stomach was gurgling and had bad gas. Those two symptoms carried over into the 24th. Took him to the vet on the 24th as they said bringing one dog in would be fine and got him on some medication. His symptoms are still continuing on Friday January 26th. He is going back to the vet to have some more test ran as his diarrhea is yellow. Nothing had changed as far as diet goes or gone anywhere. Just opened a new bag of Purina.   | 2  | Years  | Spaniel - Cocker American   | Dog | 26 | Pound |

Fish & Sweet Potato Recipe | The food I've been purchasing at Petco--Justfoodfordogs fresh frozen fish & potato 72 oz packages-- some of the packages have been leaking when they defrost in the refrigerator. This indicates a bad seal since there are no outward tears in the packaging - a decent amount of juice is just seeping out of the bag as it thaws. This means that possible contamination could be happening before the food is frozen. I've spoken to a rep from Justfoodfordogs and they're now aware of the issue and have told me not to feed my dog any package that leaks. I've purchased from several locations of Petco in (b) (6) - (b) (6). | EON-560910 | 1/26/2024 10:20 | Rabbit Blend  | Purchased Rabbit Blend from (b) (6) at their retail store located at (b) (6). There was hair, skin, large bones in the product. I took the product back to the store and (b) (6), the owner of the store, said this is normal and good for German Shepherds. He said he breeds GSDs and he feeds them this all the time, and he sells the product online to people in all 50 states. I fed my dog the Rabbit Blend that night and my dog became very sick vomiting and Diarrhea for the next 48 hours. Also it seems like the hair in the product is clogging up my dogs digestive tract, but (b) (6) also said the hair in the product is great for GSDs. My dog lost 7-8 pounds over the next week and I had to take him to the vet multiple times. (b) (6) said it was not their food that caused the issue and I can't prove it was the food that caused the dog to get sick, but my dog got sick immediately after I fed him the food. Also, when I was at the store I saw Amish children clubbing rabbits with hammers and tossing the whole animal into grinders in back of the building. When you read the reviews online and look at (b) (6) website it looks like a legitimate company with AFFCO statements on all of the products, but it seem like its just a bunch of Amish guys tossing whole animals into grinders and then selling the raw product at the retail store or online. | 6   | Years | Shepherd Dog - German | Dog | 75 | Pound |

| EON-560904 | 1/26/2024 10:20 | Purina Pro Plan Adult Shredded Blend Beef & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food | I have always fed my dogs the same Purina pro plan and never had never any issues. This past weekend, both of my dogs started vomiting and diarrhea everywhere. Lots of straining, some blood in stool, stool, very mucousy. Both dogs were pretty lethargic. At first, I thought they caught a stomach bug so I fed them a bland diet of chicken and rice for a few days. After the second day, their poops solidified, they stop puking, and they seemed in much better spirits so the next morning I fed them the normal food (Purina pro) again. Later that day, the same things, both of them had diarrhea in the house, and one of them vomited. So I went out and bought a bag of a different brand of dog food for the past few days they have been fine. The problems only started a few days after I opened a new bag of Purina pro. I can only come to the conclusion that it must be the food, especially after they started to get better after changing it and got sick again when fed Purina.   | 8   | Years | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 40 | Pound |

| EON-560902 | 1/26/2024 10:20 | Purina One Chicken and Rice Formula  | My small dog is approximately 3 years of age. She weighed 13lbs and was extremely active and playful. About 3 weeks ago, she randomly stopped eating her food unless she was starving. She started obsessively eating organic materials. Im talking I had to remove all of my indoor plants, (All non toxic for pets). She was eating dirt to the point she would vomit mud. She was eating wood/sticks to the point where she was chewing on the back deck of my house. She would eat the other dogs stool, leaves, I caught her one time licking metal bars of exercise equipment. On the 23rd of January, I came home from work and my home looked like a murder scene. There was vomit and very very bloody diarrhea from the front to the back of my home. She was lethargic. Any water she drank within 5 minutes it was thrown up again. I took her down to a local vet around 3pm. They kept her overnight and she is still there with them as I type this. I am hoping she is well enough to come home today but we will see around 1pm. They immediately started her on an IV for dehydration, antibiotics and some other injectable medication I didn't catch the name of. At 4pm yesterday, the 24th, when I checked in on her she was still refusing food voluntarily and was still passing loose stools, although the blood seems to have subsided.I randomly came across a facebook page ( https://www.facebook.com/JudyMorganDVM ) with a post that intrigued me. My pets food was on the list and her ailments matched exactly to what others have been reporting. I have only fed my girls Purina One for at least the last 3 years and have never had a problem with any of my pets. |    |       | Terrier - West Highland White   | Dog | 9  | Pound |

Did not have any symptoms of anything else and seemed fine otherwise. opened a new case of Purina canned food on 1/1/2024 since he would not eat all of his other food that i fed them. starting 1/2/24 we noticed he was doing a weird breathing thing then would breath normal. it was random over next couple days and he was also not eating well but drinking so on 1/4/24 we took to vet to get checked out. they assumed after exam he must have hurt his back probably just pain since that could cause his not wanting to eat and heavy breathing. took him back to vet on 1/6/24 because refusing all food told them not pain he is going up and down stairs etc no problem but now lethargic also and seems like stomach hurts seems nauseous. labs and xrays done nothing to concerning according to vet sent home with rest and appetite stimulant and pepcid ac to help with appetite. At home he started having what looked like seizures or mini strokes. returned to vet on same day (b) (6) showed them video clip of some of the episodes he had 4 within an hour. vet said likely to continue and he was suffering so we made decision to euthanize not knowing that this could be GI illness instead. two days after euthanizing him i learned of recall of (members mark brand beef and rice and chicken and rice) and saw many posts of illness and seizures on Facebook by other owners that were feeding puring foods.. and he also ate purina.. he had just started with canned true instinct tender cuts in gravy purchased 12/31/2024 and started to eat it 01/01/2024(served with kibble in am)prior to that can he ate pedigree can since sept 2023 and had been refusing to eat all his purina moist and meaty burger packets purchased 12/4/2023( served in evening with kibble). my 2nd dog died also was euthanized (b) (6) . and my third is still sick not doing well at all has to keep going back to vet labs they dont know what is causing this. if he doesnt improve he will also need to be euthanized. please help me , im begging you to find out what is in the food. | 15 | Years | Poodle - Toy         | Dog | 10 | Pound |

A few days later, our 2-year-old, (b) (6) started vomiting and having loose stools. After reading other reports and reviews of this food (maybe it is a bad batch), we no longer feel safe using it. That is sad because we love Purina Brand and it is affordable to us. We also feed two cats, Purnia Cat Chow.   | 4  | Years | Poodle - Standard    | Dog | 65 | Pound |

Abdominal radiographs were performed and it was noted that there was some delayed gastric emptying. Biochemical screen noted elevated Amyl/Lip as well as an elevated Spec cPL (pancreatitis). Renal values were slightly elevated but holding steady from prior lab tests and UPC was in borderline range. Dog was treated with cerenia and ondansetron and recovered from this incident. A nutritional consult was done with Dr. McKenna at Purina and it was suggested to have dog moved over to Purina HA vegetarian diet as lower fat and low purine content to help control urate crystals. Dog started developing some loose stool on 11/1/2023 and was started on Tylan soluble which seemed to help the condition. Dog became sick again with vomiting and not wanting to eat and was seen on 12/5/2023. Owner had gone off the prescription diet and was feeding boiled chicken and white rice at this time. Repeated abdominal radiographs were performed as delayed gastric emptying was noted again. Repeated biochemical screening noted a slight increase in CRE (1.6 vs prior value of 1.2), Spec cPL was normal. Hypertension was noted at the time of the exam (owner had taken dog off telmisartan prior to time of exam due to the vomiting). Hypertension returned to normal once telmisartan was started back up. A Texas A&M panel was also run and dog was diagnosed with B-12 deficiency. Dog again was treated with ondansetron. Also added in Cobalaquin B-12 oral supplement and OTC omeprazole. Dog was started back up on the Purina HA diet again. 12/11/2023 dog broke with diarrhea again and at that time a diarrhea PCR and fecal was sent to outside lab. Owner again started feeding dog boiled chicken and white rice/potatoes. Fecal float was negative for parasites. Dog got sick again while waiting for diarrhea PCR. PCR came back as salmonella positive. 12/19/2023 dog started doing more poorly. The renal values did get slightly worse (SDMA went from 12 to 25, CRE went from 1.6 to 3.0, dog was azotemic and not on prior BW). Dog was hospitalized on IV fluids and antibiotic therapy (ampicillin in house and clavamox to go home). Fecal culture confirmed salmonella was susceptible to clavamox and that was continued for 2 weeks total therapy. Renal values after therapy when rechecked on 12/20/2023 CRE was down to 1.9 and SDMA down to 17 and dog was feeling good. | EON-560747 | 1/25/2024 8:36 | Purina Cat Chow Indoor Hairball + Healthy Weight   | I have three cats. They eat two wet food meals per day and one dry food meal everyday. They are on different wet foods, but they all eat the same dry food. On 01/07/2024 we purchased a new dry food, Purina Indoor Cat Chow with Chicken. They only get 15-20 grams of dry food per day. Our two males get 20 grams of dry food at lunchtime and our female cat gets 15 grams of dry food at lunchtime. Because it is a small amount I think it took a few weeks to see adverse symptoms. But on Sunday our female was vomiting everywhere and our males started getting very bad diarrhea, it even looked like there was a little rectal bleeding for the two that had diarrhea. We called our vet today and she thinks it is probably food poisoning, and the only thing that they have all eaten was the Purina Indoor Cat Chow with Chicken. One of my cats is 9 and has never had diarrhea before, and the other I have had for 2 years (think he is about 5 years old), and he has never had diarrhea in that time. I am very confident that it is the Purina because it is the only food they have all eaten, and there has been some improvement since I have stopped feeding them that food. Additionally, it is not just food sensitivities, because they have eaten Purina before in the past with no adverse reactions to it. I have kept the food in its original packaging and would like to have it tested. |     |        | Domestic Shorthair                 | Cat |    |       |

I took her to the vet. They took x rays and did blood work. They said her intestines and stomach were inflamed. They gave her an IV and other medicine. It continued for a few days, I was giving her rice and chicken and she got better. I put her back on Royal Canine and Merrick and the diarrhea and vomiting returned. I switched her to Orijen and now she doesn't want to eat and developed a bad rash on her stomach.   | 6   | Years  | Other Canine/dog                   | Dog | 75 | Pound |
| EON-560740 | 1/25/2024 8:28 | Hill's Prescription Diet Multi-Benefit W/D Vegetables & Chicken Stew   | I opened cans of the Vegetables & Chicken Stew Flavor Hill's Prescription Diet W/D formula and immediately noticed a thick, black, slimy substance on the bottom of the can lids. I opened 4 cans of the case of 12 & it was in all cans. It's very thick and greasy. My husband & I think it is machine grease. There is no way I could feed this to my dog. It's disgusting & scary. I took photos and called the Hill's company. The representative immediately recognized the problem & tried to explain this is normal. No Way! I have been using this dog food for months, and this was something new & disgusting. I sent all the photos, including the lot number, UPC, expiration dates, etc. The next day their quality control dept. sent me an email explaining the black substance is a normal reaction between iron & sulphur. If they are so aware of this issue, why haven't they corrected the problem? I am very worried that this black substance is harmful & will hurt dogs that eat it. I am requesting the FDA test the substance to find out what it is & if it's harmful. I have seen online that other people have been upset by this foreign substance. I did not feed any of that case of food to my dog. I still have 8 more cans of that case & would be happy to send it to you for analysis, as well as the photos I took.   |     |        |                                    |     |    |       |

| EON-560739 | 1/25/2024 8:28 | Purina ProPlan Complete Essentials Beef and Rice  | My girl was fed and ate nothing but Purina Pro Plan. In August I went to buy more food and they were out of the Sensitive Stomach Salmon and Rice so I bought Turkey and Oatmeal, she ate may a quarter of the bag and had loose poop, vomited bile and refused to eat anymore. So I stopped and found a bag of the Salmon which was her favorite. She started to eat again but was experiencing the loose poop again and refused to eat, even if fed by hand, she turned away or spit it out. Still had no idea it was the food. Bought the Essential Beef and Rice, thought success! Nope after a week of eating this the same thing so I took her to the vet, (b) (6) was just not her happy self. The Vet took blood to run some tests and prescribed her with some med and Purina EN food. It was a fight to get her to take the meds, and only ate 2 bowls of the food, absolutely hated it. Vet called with results, very high liver enzymes and suggested a bland diet to see if she would at least eat. Now were are into November with all this still going on. (b) (6) stopped eating even the human ground turkey. She was just so sad and lethargic, back to vet as I noticed a very distended stomach. Our vet took one look at her and her eyes and said she is in liver failure. Off to the Emergency Veterinary Hospital. They ran all kinds of tests and confirmed the enzymes were still very high and they kept her to run further testing and put her on meds and an IV. We agreed to a liver biopsy and the results were not what we were hoping for. She had severe liver damage brought on by copper accumulation. After being there a week and having fluid taken out of her stomach twice we were advised that she was not going to get better, there was not a portion of her liver to save. We made the decision to put our girl to rest. This is just awful that this food could make her sick and take her from us. | 33 | Months | Retriever - Labrador  | Dog | 53 | Pound |

Several cans, all Turkey pate, were bulging or puffy instead of concave like they should be. I am concerned that these cans may have botulism. I returned them to the (b) (6) store (Kroger) on 1/24/2024 when I discovered the problem. They are located at (b) (6). I told them my concern & also to get a replacement box. I opened the new box at the store in front of the manager and found another bulging puffy can of Turkey pate in that box. If I am right cats across the country may be in danger of dying or severe illness. Some people may not realize that something is wrong with these cans. I contacted the manufacturer and I was given the upc code from an individual can of the turkey product. I am not sure if this is correct (5000042984) for those in the box but it is the same can as those sold individually. The grocery store manager told me that they probably already had thrown out the boxes containing the bad cans. The remaining boxes on the shelf had a upc code of 05000057547 with a tiny 3. These boxes should have been pulled and checked but it does not appear that the store is doing that. The turkey product also is in other boxes containing a variety of different flavors, so I don't know if they are also a problem as well as cans sold individually. I have been using this product for years so I am very familiar with the product and how it normally looks.   |    |        |                       |     |    |       |

| EON-560729 | 1/25/2024 8:20  | 4health potato and salmon  | All three of my dogs have been on 4health dog food since I have had them. I normally have no issues, but around middle of December all three of my dogs became sick. All three of them were throwing up all sorts of colors and having massive diarrhea. Four weeks I eliminated possible objects like certain treats and outside events as well as toys. The only thing that staying consistent is the food. It wasn't until about three weeks later that I finally threw away the bag of dog food only to buy a different bag and once since then have they had any sort of incident. Whatever was in my bag of dog food was making all three of my dogs sick and with the same symptoms the only symptom that one of them got that the other two didn't was scabs and rashes. Since getting rid of that bag of dog food, everything has cleared. I would like to know what will be done about that. She is an extremely healthy, very active dog with no health issues at all. I purchased a new bag of her dog food at my local grocery store and began feeding that bag on 1/21/24. She had pretty extreme diarrhea Sunday night. Monday, her condition worsened and included vomiting, panting, restlessness, tail chewing, dehydration, and she even hid under furniture. I took her to our local emergency vet at 12 am on 1/23/24 where they discovered (in addition to her projectile diarrhea) a very low potassium level, extreme dehydration, and signs of acute stress. He seized for what seemed like 5 minutes. He control of his bladder and was vomiting. He came out of that seizure and seemed to be ok for about a half hour and then started seizing again. We took him to an emergency vet an hour away where they gave him kepra and kept him. He spiked a fever the next dav so they did a chest x-ray and realized he aspirated during the seizures. They started antibiotics. On (b) (6) his fever was over 106 and they told us he was extremely ill and they didn't think he was going to get better so we made the hard decision to stop his suffering and put him to sleep. For a couple weeks prior to the seizure he had not been wanting to eat his food. This was totally abnormal for him. We would tell him to "eat his food" and he eventually would. (b) (6) receives a blood test his panels stated a high level of glucose. Dr wanted him back morning the next day to take more panels and begin a plan to administer insulin. (b) (6) began throwing up at about 7pm, NON-STOP!!! He continued throwing up until 6:45am (b) (6) I grabbed him to help him and noticed his eyes were glazed over and he had his final breath and died at 7:13AM, in my arms! I purchased a small bag from the vet's office and he was fine with the change in food. I purchased a large bag online from Purina on 10/6 but mixed it with Science Diet. I don't know the exact date he started eating the large bag. On 10/27 he started vomiting daily and had diarrhea. I didn't connect it to his change in food because we had already changed it with the small bag. The vomiting stopped. I ordered another bag from Purina on 11/10. My dog, who has no history of seizures starting having facial focal seizures then a grand mal on 11/27. We put him on medication to stop the seizures but decided not to have an MRI. He had another grand mal seizure on 12/4 then had a facial seizures for over three hours on 12/23. He slowly declined where we had to put him down on (b) (6). I don't know for sure if all of this is connected to the food but the timeline matches up closely enough that I thought it was important to share this information. I froze a few cups of food in case it needs to be tested.   |     |       |                       |     |    |       |

She has been on this food for about six months with no issues. However the most recent bag that was purchased on January 3, 2024 (not opened until January 18) caused her extreme digestive distress, including bloody diarrhea. There has been no change in her diet. After switching to a different brand of food for dogs with sensitive stomachs and having to put her back on medication, she is feeling better. By January 15, 2024 the dog was vomiting and had diarrhea. He did not want to eat or drink, so we took him to a veterinarian, where he was diagnosed with renal failure at 1.5 years old. With an ultrasound they found he had no stones. He was dying but why? I then switched him to Taste of the Wild (which he had been eating prior to opening the Blue Wilderness Bag. Some relief. I then cut all dog food and he is eating boiled turkey, white rice, and broccoli just in case there are undetected stones. He is immediately improving. | EON-560481 | 1/23/2024 10:40 | Purina One Lamb & Rice   | We have fed our dogs the same food for quite awhile now with no issues. On Dec. 12th, I ordered a bag of Purina One Lamb & Rice from Chewy. On Jan 7th, we opened the new bag of food and fed all three of our dogs that evening. By Monday morning (Jan 8th), (b) (6) (the smallest) already had diarrhea. I didn't know it was the food, so they were fed again with it Monday morning and Monday evening. Monday night, (b) (6) vomited.Tuesday (Jan 9th), I feed them with it again in the morning (still not knowing if (b) (6) symptoms were from anxiety or what). Tuesday afternoon, (b) (6) vomits. Then, when (b) (6) and (b) (6) poop, it's soft serve and orange like (b) (6) explosive diarrhea. This is when I realize it's not just an (b) (6) thing and call the vet. I tell them I opened a new bag of food that Sunday and believe it could be that and they tell me to put them all on a bland diet.They didn't have an opening to see (b) (6) until that Friday, so from Monday-Friday, she was waking me up at all hours of the night to go out to diarrhea and having to go multiple times during the day. I take her to the vet that Friday (Jan 12th) and they do an x-ray and blood work on her. The x-ray shows no obstructions and blood work comes back normal. The conclusion is that my suspicions are correct; the dog food made our dogs sick. They send me home with medicine for her.That Saturday, even after being on the bland diet already for four days, (b) (6) poops transform into diarrhea sprays, to the point of having accidents in the house. The vet doesn't have an appointment until Thursday and Friday (Jan 18th & 19th), so I snag both for (b) (6) and (b) (6). In the meantime, I take a stool sample in to have tested; no parasites. I take both dogs in and at the end of the week; (b) (6) still had explosive orange poop and (b) (6) still had soft serve orange poop (despite it being 12 days after being fed bad food and 10 days of still being on the bland diet). They send me home with the same care plan as (b) (6)Now here we are, two weeks later, still on a bland diet and medicine until everyone's poop finally return to normal. I figured it was a bad bag or just a fluke so I had tossed it out. I buy in bulk so I have 7 unopened bags and believe the issue is with the Vietnam facility. However; I also do have a Cambodia bag that is unopened. We purchased another bag to see if the issue was actually the batch. No corn wheat or soy. | As stated above, the vet recommended at that appointment (June 24, 2023) that we switch to a different dog food and one that was recommended was this dog food (Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin &amp; Stomach Salmon, adult, small breed formula). So on July 6th when we received the new food from Chewy.com, we gradually made the switch slowly over a couple of weeks and then she was fully on this new food. In less than a month after we switched to this food (b) (6) started to have stomach issues. Below are dates that I have text messages from my son and myself regarding (b) (6) and what was going on. (My 23 year old son, (b) (6) has had (b) (6) sleep with him for most of her life, so he is very aware when something isn't right with her. The messages are from him to me, unless they say from me.) I also have dates for when and why I took her to be seen. 8-5-23(b) (6) been struggling with her breakfast. Today she didn't finish it and she's acting uncomfortable. Urinalysis showed she had a UTI and they gave her antibiotics to take for that, and some Canine I/D Turkey Loaf Cans. Also put her on regimen of 5 mg of Famotidine and 5 mg of Omeprazole. He had a little debris in her ear and wants her ear cleaned out with OTC ear wash twice this week and then monthly. Other results were normal. They wanted to see her back in 14 days to recheck. I slowly tried to get (b) (6) onto the canned food, mixing it in a little at a time with the rice, pumpkin diet. She no longer really wanted the rice bland food or canned food at a certain point, slowly began to stop eating stuff, unless she would go a long time without food than would eat. Drank less water, but I would add water to the food. 1-8-24 - I took her back to (b) (6) for a recheck of her urine, and follow-up appt. She said she still had a slight infection in her urine, so they put her on another 7 days of antibiotics, and switched the food to Royal Canine GI Low Fat Canned food. They wanted to do another UTI recheck and we scheduled an appointment for 1-19-24. She liked the new food at first, but then was less and less interested in it. Drank very little and it was apparent that she just wasn't wanting to eat much. The vet office called to check on her and I told them she wasn't really wanting to eat much. The vet sent a text message with a recipe to try to get her to eat, cream of wheat, egg, low-fat cottage cheese, a little oil and sugar. She wanted it at first and then didn't want much of it. | EON-560341 | 1/22/2024 7:32  | RCBHN German Shep Puppy 30#  | We rescued a litter of 4 German shepherds at 4 weeks of age. Purchased first bag of Royal Canin puppy kibble at Petco while transitioning from milk. No issues. I work for two veterinary hospitals and order from Royal Canin directly, 30 lb bag of GS Puppy food arrived, I opened it Sunday, January 14, 2024, at dinner time. We adopted two pups 2 weeks ago, the others have been adopted. Within 20 minutes of feeding, both pups had extreme explosive vomiting, lethargy. I immediately went to the bag of food and could smell a difference in the kibble. Three hours later, vomiting still occurred. Fortunately with my background I monitored closely and kept them hydrated. I have not fed it since, still waiting on a reply from Royal Canin but they're swamped with complaints. We've had over 500 foster dogs the last 23 years and I have always supported, stood by their product and recommend it to all of our adopters. But something is definitely wrong. A client opened a new bag of Royal Canin adult kibble, her dog would not eat it, she contributed it to her dog just having a dental with several extractions. As in the rescue world, we have a long term foster with a stomach of steel, never had any GI issues. I mixed 1/4 cup in with his 1 3/4 cup RC weight management kibble just once and he had explosive bloody diarrhea and vomiting, that was on December 15th. I dumped the kibble in the woods for wildlife (oops) I wasn't aware of any issues at the time. | 10 | Weeks  | Shepherd Dog - German              | Dog | 20  | Pound |

| EON-560334 | 1/22/2024 2:52 | A Taste of the Wild (Rocky Mountain) Feline Recipe dry food (Production Code best by Sep 2024. 3248 T CR0901 SCN 16:51 337) | (b) (6) has been eating A Taste of the Wild (Rocky Mountain) Feline Recipe (dry) kibble for many years. It is her only food source. She does not eat any other food and she has never has human food. She was a very healthy indoor cat with normal organ levels, zero health issues ever. She has no contact with other animals at all. With my newest bag of Taste of the Wild (Rocky Mountain) she began vomiting occasionally. For the first couple weeks it did not seem worrisome as it was not frequent. I realized it was not hairballs, but I was still keeping an eye on her because she is not a cat who vomits. At 4pm on Tuesday January 16th 2024 she vomited up a large volume of food (Taste of the Wild kibble) that she had just consumed. The vomiting became acute and over the next 12 hours she vomited 4-5 more times. She was listless, obviously in stomach pain and very uncomfortable. She was definitely sick and not behaving in her normal way. I called the vet (b) (6) at 8am Wednesday January 17, 2024 and was able to bring her in for a 10:45am appointment. (b) (6) did a medical exam, ran blood tests, gave her fluids, and some anti-vomit and antibiotic injections. He determined she was suffering from gastronomic distress and inflammation. He sent me home with a week supply of anti-vomit pills and a week supply of antibiotic. The blood results from 1/17/2024 determined that all of (b) (6) organ levels were normal, but her white blood cell counts were very high because of the inflammation. (b) (6) stopped eating food and when she would drink water her would vomit it up, multiple times per day. She has been very listless up to this point and is obviously in stomach distress. Today is 1/21/2024 and she is still suffering from these symptoms right now. In researching her issues and the food that she had been eating, I found MANY current complaints about the exact same issues from other pet owners about gastrointestinal issues with this current lot of A Taste of the Wild and other brands which were sourced from the same ingredients. I do not want this to happen to other pets and it is important to me that this is investigated. I still have the bag of A Taste of the Wild and will keep it in case it needs to be tested. | 11 | Years | American Shorthair         | Cat | 12.5 | Pound |

(b) (6) became ill, listless, and would not eat starting on 12th, continued to be sick with vomiting and diarrhea on 13th. Once he started to eat again on 13th he was given soft human food, not Pro Plan and improved to near full recovery by the 15th. On Jan 15th and the morning of 16th he was given Pro Plan again, and morning of 16th he became ill again and had a seizure. Taken to veterinarian and and given blood test and X-ray. Results were fairly normal, and the vet did not determine a cause for why illness or seizure occurred. Recommended a neurological work up. On the evening of 16th (b) (6) became more ill with another seizure and inability to walk. We again discontinued Purina Pro on the 16th. (b) (6) slowly improved over the next couple days with no more seizures. By the 19th he appeared fully recovered and has had no symptoms for the last several days. While we do not know if Purina Pro was related to his illness, (b) (6) became ill within a two days after we started mixing Pro Plan into his food, he recovered when it was stopped and then became ill again when Pro Plan was resumed. His symptoms are the same as cases we found reported on the Internet where dogs have become ill after eating Pro Plan. Therefore we decided to report this case as potentially related to Purina Pro Plan.   | 5  | Years | Pug                        | Dog | 15   | Pound |

And out of the blue he started throwing up and having diarrhea. We went to the vet, who ran tests which came back to nothing. Additionally, he was lethargic, drinking excessive amounts of water, etc. So we were instructed to go on a bland diet and once it resolves to slowly introduce food. We did that, and once we started introducing food the diarrhea came back. So we went back, more and more tests were done, and they decided we'd try a prescription diet, from another brand and that seems to have helped. Took her in to the vet as I was concerned about this. They told me they found bacteria in her poop and contributed that to something she may have ate. They prescribed me a bland wet food to feed her, anti diarrhea gel, and some pills. We gave her the medicine and she began getting better, then we incorporated the purina back into the wet food portions so she wouldn't have such an abrupt start. She was fine for another two weeks until it all started happening again. But this time she began vomiting, and the diarrhea is green in color. She has vomited up both bile and stomach contents, but since putting her back on the prescription wet food, she seems to be able to digest what she's eaten, albeit still bad because of the diarrhea. My other cat has been exhibiting some symptoms as well but she doesn't eat Purina Pro Plan. He started throwing up during the night and day. We removed the food completely and switched him to human chicken/rice/vegetables. He continued to throw up after a few days and we took him to the vet. His exam, bloodwork and xrays were all clear so we could not figure out why he would not stop throwing up. He finally stopped throwing up while on the diet of chicken/rice/veg about a week later. We added back in a small amount of dog food and he started throwing up again, but just the dog food. This happened for 2 days and we took the dog food back out, and he stopped throwing up. I think that there is something wrong with this food, it appears that others have had this similar concern on social media. He is on a different brand dry dog food and is not throwing up. I have been feeding my do Purina pro plan puppy sinsative stomach large bread dry dog food for 4mths. With their food she has never had an issue. Dec 18th I opened a new bag of the food and the next day she was constipated not eating. Then she started vomiting after the 2nd day dinner. She has bad travel anxiety that affects her eating so we assumed it was because of our car ride so we continued to leave her food for her but she did not eat it. By day 4 she had pooped out a small piece of her rubber toy indicating that she had consumed some. We thought after that it would be better but it actually got worse. She was eating normal again however every single time she ate she was throwing it back up within a few hours. This lasted for about 5 days. That's last 2 days of which she had not eaten more than about half of her serving only one time a day. At this point, I talked with my sister who is a vet tech and she suggested we gave my dog plain boiled chicken and rice. So i did i took her purina food away and only gave her the rice and chicken. It is important to note that she always has and always will eat from a slow feeder so it is not her eating too fast that causes the vomiting. That first bowl of rice and chicken and every day after that she was very eager to eat it. The first day of rice and chicken she did not throw up anymore but still was constipated. Day 3 of rice she was back to complete normal stool and eating schedule/amounts. During her dinner on day 4 I put her prurina food bag by the door as I was about to throw it all away, I grabbed my shoes and came back to the room but by then she had eaten about one cup of it. A few hours later in the middle of the night she threw everything up you could see the purina food along with a the rice in it and she had diarrhea again. The next morning after she ate the purina food and threw up I gave her a small amount of rice and chicken again and she immediately threw it up as if it was never even touched it looks completely in tact. So obviously her stomach was upset so I did. I give her more food. Throughout the day her stomach as making loud noises and she still had diarrhea. By dinner that day she ate her rice and chicken normally and did not poop at all. |            |                |  | purina pieces she was completely normal again meaning appetite and stool. By that point I started to consider it being the dog food. So I started researching on google. I found that other people were saying specifically the purina pro plan large bread sensitive stomach was making their dogs do the same things as mine. I decided to reach out to purina directly and file a complaint. Not only did purina completely ignore everything else I said and just said they were sorry to hear about my "dogs loose stool" but they also said that their food in completely safe to get my pets. They also said they will be mailing me coupons for my next purchase (as if I would still even want to buy from them). They more importantly completely disregarded how sick my dog got and SHE WAS TOTALLY FINE ON CHICKEN AND RICE BUT ATE A SMALL AMOUT OF THEIR FOOD AND GOT SICK AGAIN BUT HAS BEEN ENTIRELY HEALTHY AFTER THAT. It has been a total of 18 days on chicken and rice and she has only had issues that one day after eating a small amount of their food. I know without a doubt that their food made my fur baby sick. There is no questioning that and for those thinking it is just her stomach, remember she was better, ate a small amount of their food and got sick again and after that was completely healthy again. I have not dared to give her a new bag of their food until I hear they have done something about this. That is very unfortunate for my dog because we had such a long process of trying foods that she could eat and not get extremely gassy from being that she does have a sensitive stomach. Other that this instance her purina food never bother her and was out favorite go to. I hope they recap this and figure it out soon because she loved their food and really do not want to have to change it up on her and cause her stomach problems if I do not absolutely have to. She is currently still eating rice and chicken some carrots too.  |           |                           |     |    |       |

| EON-560312 | 1/22/2024 2:20  | Purina Pro Plan Complete Essentials shredded blend Beef & Rice formula.  | We fed our 2 dogs Purina Pro Plan Complete Essentials Shredded Blend Beef & Rice dry dog food. In November 2023, our 11 month old English Mastiff, (b) (6) had a seizure out of no where. One week later, he had another seizure and we rushed him to the vet. They ran bloodwork tests on him. The bloodwork panel was clear - no issues. He was also tested for Valley Fever and Tick disease since we live in Arizona. He was negative for both. A week later, November 19, he had another seizure, this time while at Petsmart. His seizures (4) were all grand mal. We rushed him back to the emergency vet as it was a Sunday and they put him on Keppra (seizure med) and kept him over night. We picked him up on noon Monday Nov. 20. He appeared to be ok. We took him to our home vet and they said to keep him on meds and watch him. On (b) (6), 2023 at 5:15am I noticed him moving around the bedroom and making noise. I got up and he was bumping into the Christmas tree, the sofa and the wall. He acted drunk. I let him outside and he took facing the house, with his head resting on the side of the house. I called his name and he looked around. I got him and guided him into the house and laid him down on his bed. I then realized something was wrong with his eyesight (he lost vision). A moment later, he started seizing, grand mol. My husband heard him thrashing around on the floor and came over to help. We felt him heating up so we applied cold wet towels on him as well as a fan on him. The seizure never let up. He was foaming at the mouth. We were unable to move 185 lbs that was thrashing around to my car so we had to wait until we could safely move him. We called the emergency vet and they told us to bring him in. We dragged him on the blanket he was laying on to the garage. I ran to a neighbor's house to ask him to help my husband lift (b) (6) into my car, still seizing. We took him approximately 5 miles to the emergency clinic and they took his temperature - 110 degrees. They could not break the temp. Due to having a grand mol seizure for 2+ hours and a temp of 110 degrees, this left him unresponsive and with brain damage. We had no choice but to euthanize our baby. We are broken. No prior health issues. This happened when I switched him to the Purina Pro Plan Food. Our 12 year old golden retriever got super dry skin and was scratching himself until he was bleeding. | 11 Months | Mastiff                   | Dog | 185 | Pound |

This continued off and on, and he was seen by our vet on 1/15/24. An X-ray was done to make sure there were no blockages, which proved there were not. Bloodwork was also done which showed no apparent reason for his symptoms. He was given IV fluids, B12, and anti-nausea medication. We've noticed that when we have given him cooked meat, but he has not gotten sick. As soon as we started giving him his dog food again, he began with extreme vomiting again.  | 4 Years   | Rottweiler                | Dog | 90  | Pound |

They managed to keep the food down, but vomited water and foam. I was worried enough that it might be the food that I immediately re-bagged the food and set it aside, switching them back to the other bag of Purina ONE. One of my cats (b) (6) recovered that afternoon. My other cat (b) (6) from the same litter) ended up with urinary problems days later that required a $7,500 surgery to correct. He is mostly recovered now, after a month. Neither of my cats had any health problems prior to this incident. The date that I fed them the food was between November 27 and December 1. I bought the food before Thanksgiving. I didn't know what to do with the food or where to report it until the MSNBC article was published yesterday. The newest dog, a 15 month old golden doodle, was the first to stop eating his food that he normally ate so fast that he had to be put outside until the other finished. When my 4 year old yellow lab stopped eating, I knew the food was the problem. I realized that all five dogs had begun to have very stinky gas, and not there's presence of diarrhea. They are also on the verge of lethargic. My vivacious lab doesn't even want to go outside, where she always wants to be. My elderly girl's belly is swollen. They all, instead of eating their food, walk around, sniffing all the bowl like they're hoping there's something different in there. I had not been looking for dog food issues, but now that I am, I'm seeing a lot of people are having similar or even worse problems. After receiving the last bag of dog food he ate it a few times and threw up multiple times after consuming. Our other dog had a similar issue but was not as bad as the Rotti. They were not interested in the food like something was wrong with it and since switching they've had no issues and haven't got sick at all. Took to Emergency vet and they asked what he ate since they ruled out a seizure when the seizure meds did not help him. Only thing he had ate was the purina pro plan dog food. This happened back in Sept 2023 and we could not figure out what would have caused the issue but when he continued to eat this food for the past couple months he continued to get sick. Removed the food over a week ago from today and we've had no issues with either dog.   | 3    | Years | Rottweiler   | Dog | 120 | Pound |

He did not produce a bowel movement for 8 days, and then he died. We know this fact based on our litter box camera footage. We took his dead body to his vet, and she looked over his dead body and did not see any signs of other illness and proposed that he most likely had an obstruction, such as constipation. Without doing a necropsy, this was the best explanation for his death. He did not have any prior symptoms or any diagnosed health issues, so constipation is the most likely explanation. My other cat who is alive who has also been eating this food dry has also been experiencing constipation and produces small pieces of dry, crumbly poop during every bowel movement. The bags of Stella & Chewy's freeze-dried foods explicitly say the foods can be left out to eat dry without rehydrating, but this is dangerous and causes constipation due to the high bone content and extreme lack of moisture in the food. I wish I would have known this prior to my cat's death, and Stella & Chewy's should not be allowed to advertise on the bags that this food can be fed dry without rehydrating.  | 5    | Years | Domestic Shorthair   | Cat | 11  | Pound |
| EON-560261 | 1/20/2024 21:28 | Purina One Lamb and Rice Formula  | (b) (6) wasn't eating well and was losing weight. He was drinking a lot of water, particularly in the mornings. He was more lethargic, and had minimal interest in eating. He also hadn't wanted any dog treats for a few weeks, so he was only eating his dog food one time per day. He vomited some bile, which was highly unusual, and had some diarrhea, so I took him to the vet to check his health on 12/13/23. His heart was fine, and the vet didn't feel any masses, but said his abdominal area was sensitive when he palpated it. He took blood to run a full panel of tests to determine the underlying problem. The next day we found out that some of the values were off the charts, and he was diagnosed with stage 3 kidney failure. We were shocked, as (b) (6) health was excellent previously. We started daily LFS fluids subcutaneously at home, Hills Kidney Care Food (which he barely ate), Entyce, Enalapril, Metronidazole, and Phos-Bind (which took 3 days to get). (b) (6) drank some water for a few days on his own, in addition to the fluids, but wasn't interested in food so ate very little. On Monday, 12/18, (b) (6) seemed stable, but on (b) (6), the decline was evident. He was not drinking on his own, not eating, laying quietly. On (b) (6) night, he slept by our bedside, and in the morning when we got up, he took his last breath by our bedside. | 6    | Years | Mixed (Dog)  | Dog | 44  | Pound |

On Sunday January 7th she went outside for a few hours as she does every day. When we went to let her back in she could barely walk or use her back legs. We had to carry her in and lay her in her bed. Her pupils were dilated and non-reactive to light, she was panting heavily, seemed disoriented, and was shaking badly. She would not eat or drink. We let her rest in her bed and her condition did not improve through the evening. We were worried she got into something while she was outside so we went and checked the enclosed run where our two dogs go, there was nothing there to indicate and hung out of the ordinary that could have caused this issue.We let her rest through the night and in the morning her condition had not improved. Our vet was able to get her in that morning so we took her to be evaluated. The vet did a thorough physical and x-rays. There was nothing on the x-ray that could cause her issues (no bowel obstructions, breaks in her spine, etc). The only thing that the vet said showed up in the x-ray was some fine gravelly looking substance in her intestine which was odd. There is no gravel in our yard where they stay only grass.The vet prescribed steroids thinking the issue may be some kind of clot in her spinal column blood flow. He got very sick with Diarrhea and vomiting after starting on a new bag of Purina Pro chicken and rice. We had to rush him to ER Vet when he started having bloody diarrhea on Sunday, January 14th. Our Bernedoodle doesn't eat the same type of food, but when the German got sick, the Bernedoodle (b) (6) got into his food while we were busy tending to the German. Just two days later, January 16th, we had to take our Bernedoodle to the vet and she was admitted for two days. Same symptoms as everyone else is saying, diarrhea, vomiting, lethargy, muscle weakness and bloody diarrhea. She almost didn't make it which is why she had to spend two days in the hospital. The vet couldn't find anything wrong and said it may be salmonella poisoning or maybe they got into something. Both of these dogs are inside dogs and are only taken outside on a leash. We see everything they do outside and they didn't get into anything new. The only common denominator is the dog food. | EON-560245 | 1/20/2024 21:24 | Puppy Chow Tender & Crunchy with Real Beef Dry Dog Food  | We picked up a bag of Purina Puppy Chow just before Christmas to assist (b) (6) with the feeding of puppies she had 2 weeks prior. We took some of her regular dog food of Pedigree and mixed it with Purina Puppy Chow. We picked up Purina as the store was out of Pedigree at the time. We have 4 dogs in the house and two of them were fed just pedigree that was used for the mix and they were fine with no issues. Since we were low on the main food we fed the mix to (b) (6) and then gave the rest to (b) (6). The mix was fed to (b) (6) on 12/25 The night of 12/26 she started to be lethargic, vomiting and had diahrea. We also found a pool of blood by her. Before we could get her to a Vet she had passed the morning of 12/27. Later that day (b) (6) started to show the same symptoms of lethargy, vomiting and diahrea. We tried to assist him at home but on 12/30 he got worse with blood in the stoole and we rushed him to the Vet. They ran tests but could not determin why he was that way. They sent him home with meds.   | 1  | Years  | Siberian Husky          | Dog | 40 | Pound |
| EON-560244 | 1/20/2024 21:24 | Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach TURkey and Oat Meal Formula   | I received this food on January 14th and gave it to the cat. He ate a large portion and seemed to like it. He ate some the following day. After that, I noticed he wasn't eating much, and was starting to act a little depressed/lethargic. The only things he was interested in were treats, and it was still difficult to get him to eat. He also stopped having bowel movements a few days ago, and I administered Miralax to help with that. I read a report about Purina Pro Plan foods being implicated in widespread animal illness, and I realized this was the brand/variety of food I had just switched him to. I took the food away today, and have gotten him to eat a little wet food. He is still lethargic and acting sick.   | 3  | Years  | American Shorthair      | Cat | 10 | Pound |

I am now wondering if the Purina dry food I was giving my kitty was tainted in some way as I read other pet owners also have had a concern about Purina food. My 7 year young, healthy, active, very playful kitty became very lethargic around Labor Day so I took her to the vet to see what was going on with her. She had a check up in February last year and was healthy. The vet told me she was anemic and put her on an antibiotic and steroids. She told me she did not know what was causing her illness however. I took her back in 2 weeks and she was given more medicine. She gradually got worse and after 2 1/2 months of trying to make her better, she only got worse and was deteriorating with every passing day. She had no quality of life left. My beautiful calico was put to sleep. She was never let outside so it just makes me wonder if it was the Purina Grain Free Chicken and Egg cat food. We also used Purina cat litter for her.  | 7  | Years  | Domestic (unspecified)  | Cat | 13 | Pound |

The order I received on October 28, 2023 was infested with larvae of Indian Mealy Moths. I wasn't aware of the problem until early December, 12/08/23, affter I had been feeding the food to my dog for a few weeks. I kept noticing these small moths in my pantry. Then when I opened the bag of dog food that I had stored in an interior closet, I saw that it was full of moths. I immediately threw out the food and promptly notified Purina by email. They didn't respond to the email, so I followed it up with certified letter sent thru USPS. Purina responded by sending multiple coupons and a reimbursement check dated 12/26/2023 in the amount of $52.51 the cost of the food. My dog did not show any signs of illness and I have since received another shipment of the same food that I check frequently. He started to have diarrhea and then stopped eating the food. He would back away from the bowl. Very odd for him because he will eat anything. Mom thinking he just didn't like the food, gave it to me to feed my dogs so it wouldn't go to waste. 1st day of feeding it to my shepherd mix, he started having violent diarrhea and vomiting. The only thing we could think was the food, so we stopped feeding the shepherd mix the purina. At the same time, we were feeding (b) (6) her pro plan en ex food, canned and kibble. She loved the food previously. She ate from the bag bought in December for about 2 days and she had some severe middle of the night emergency outdoor with diarrhea. Then she stopped eating it. We thought her tummy was just upset, but the other dogs that were eating a different brand were not sick. She will not eat the canned food purina pro en Rx food either. Backs away from the bowl. Put her on a different brand and she can't seem to get enough food...eats it all. I do believe something is going on. 3 dogs sick and stopped eating it, switched food and they are doing great. A few days after starting feeding from this same bag, the younger cat began vomiting bile and lost over half her weight in a few weeks. She began to refuse to eat and started having a low body temperature constantly. She was taken to the vet and was found to have a UTI but nothing that explained other symptoms. The following day the older cat had a seizure at home and began vocalizing. She appeared to recover but in two days was found on the floor at home with a very cold temp and vocalizing loudly. She was unable to walk. The older cat was taken to the vet and found to have kidney failure. She died that night. The younger cat was kept overnight at the vets and given fluids and placed on 14 days antibiotics and an appetite stimulant. The veterinarians believed the cats may have ingested a poison of some type due to rapid change in both pets with no other indications other than the UTI. The younger cat is still recovering after completing the medications and is starting to return to a normal eating pattern. I do not have the bag/container of the cat food as I place it into a hard container for storage, however I still have samples of the Cat Food. The animals are kept indoors always and I have no plants or other materials that could account for other accidental poisoning. Two dogs in the home on a different brand food have had no illness. The illness seemed to start shortly after the cats had started consuming this new bag of food. The cats had previously been eating this same brand with no ill effects for over six months. | EON-560121 | 1/19/2024 16:16 | Rachel Ray Nutrish super premium wet food for dogs                   | I never knew anything about Rachel Ray food until now...My yorkie became ill on Wednesday night, Jan 17th, 2024 after I fed him Rachel Ray wet food over the weekend. He was exhibiting signs of sickness such as lethargy, vomiting in the morning, and stumbling while walking as though he was having a seizure. Concerned, I took him to the 24/7 vet hospital. Although my dog has a heart murmur and has been taking medication for a few months, I don't believe that was the cause of his symptoms because he attempted to vomit without anything coming out and eventually fell down. I decided to stop giving him the food, and thankfully, he returned to his normal self. It is likely that there was an ingredient or something in the food that affected my dog's behavior. Due to this ordeal, I have decided to never purchase Rachel Ray food again. As I conducted research, I discovered that other pet owners have experienced similar symptoms in their dogs. I am aware that a heart murmur can cause someone to fall or faint, but he never had that problem before taking medication, nor did it happen while he was on the medication until after he ate Rachel Ray food. However, once I stopped giving him the food, he returned to his normal state again. I am aware that a heart murmur can cause someone to fall or faint, but he never had that problem before taking medication, nor did it happen while he was on the medication until after he ate Rachel Ray food. However, once he stopped eating that food, he returned to his normal state again. I called the Vet that night and drove an hour because we don't have a 24/7 hospital in my local area. They examined (b) (6) and said it was due to his heart murmur being that was one of the symptoms. The dr never asked what I fed him because at that time, i wasn't aware of Rachel Ray products until after I got home and did research. It was just strange for my dog to have these symptoms when he has never encountered these symptoms prior to knowing about he had heart murmur and while taking prescription meds. She immediately started reacting and within a week started ripping her hair out (we had assumed it was stress initially), until we finally had to take her to the vet and he said she was having a reaction and asked what food we were giving her. She has been taking a medication to stop the reaction since (that is now going on 6 months), and she has been fine. (noted in a separate report: We also gave it to our other cat: Scottish Fold/Maine Coon - who immediately started over grooming himself to the point there were knots in his fur to where we needed to shave him completely to rid of it. The moment we stopped giving him this wet food he stopped the behavior. That is both cats with both having the same reaction to this food.)  | 9 Years   | Bombay                | Cat | 5 Pound      |

It is the only food my picky female will eat. I never had any issues until after opening a new case from Chewy recently, she refused to eat. Finally, when she was hungry enough she ate the food and by the end of the day had diarrhea. Male cat also became lethargic and vomited for several days. I reported the issue to Chewy and purchased a different flavor or Fancy Feast, again it lead to intermittent diarrhea/vomiting.   | 12  | Years  | American Shorthair                  | Cat | 12 | Pound |

The next morning, after feeding her with the food at night, my dog had diarrhea. She is a Pomeranium, by the way. Her breed was not listed in the pull down. I returned the dog food I purchased to CVS and got my money back. I was surprised to read in the news that many dog owners are complaining of their dogs getting sick from Purina dog food products. It's pretty scary, as Purina is a popular brand. I hope the company is investigated.  | 4   | Years  | Unknown                             | Dog | 13 | Pound |

| EON-559915 | 1/18/2024 9:44  | Purina Pro Plan Complete Essentials Shredded Blend Chicken & Rice Formula with Probiotics Dry Dog Food | Started with symptoms of vomiting, frequent diarrhea (yellow, mucus, liquid) and lethargic on 1/9/2024. Her veterinarian thought she may have eaten something bad or potentially a parasite (e.g., giardia). Our other dog, same age and breed (8.5y.o. male golden retriever), started having similar diarrhea (yellow, mucus-ey, liquid). We started feeding them both plain boiled chicken and rice. They were put on probiotics and metronidazole by their veterinarian. Her poop was tested and she was negative for active worms or parasite infection. On 1/12/2024, their symptoms started improving (no more vomiting and less frequent diarrhea), so we started reintroducing the Purina Pro Plan back into their diets slowly. Within 12 hours of reintroducing the Purina food (1/13/2024), they both started vomiting and having frequent diarrhea again. We immediately took them both off the food and went back to the plain chicken, rice, and canned pumpkin under the advisement of their veterinarian and their symptoms improved within 12 hours (1/14/2024). Today (1/17/2024) is the first day they both have had semi-solid and brown bowel movements and have normal energy levels again. They are both still on a diet of plain cooked chicken, rice, and canned pumpkin. | 8.5 | Years  | Retriever - Golden  | Dog | 65  | Pound    |

I bought a new bag in December 2023 and she started urinating a ton. Got her antibiotics for a UTI and continued feeding this bag. a week later, had extreme diarrhea every 2 hours for 3 days. Stopped the food and put her on a bland diet from the first day of diarrhea. Brought her to the vet after the 3 days since she had not improved, they treated it as giardia although they didn't see any parasites in her sample, but recommended i give the dewormer just in case. 1 week later, still not improving. Back to vet, was prescribed metro. Poop finally started solidifying so i slowly transitioned her back onto a NEW bag of PPP, back to runny stools the next day. I have since put her on Farmina and she is good as new. Hoping Purina didn't cause underlying issues internally. | 6 Years    | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 41 Pound     |

| EON-559736 | 1/16/2024 18:32 | Purina Pro Plan with Probiotics Shredded Blend Chicken Rice Formula Small Breed Dry Dog Food 34 lbs.  | This is my second report. My first report was about the same product but the dog on that report (b) (6) died. After that dog passed, we got a new puppy a few weeks later. We got (b) (6) on December 23, 2023. It was Christmas so I wasn't able to make it to the store to get him new food. At this point, I didn't know the food was the problem. So I gave him the food I already had, Purina Pro Plan with Probiotics Shredded Blend Chicken Rice Formula Small Breed. Diarrhea started December 25, 2023. He started sleeping a lot and being really lethargic. December 27th, 2023 I decided to take him to the emergency vet because he started throwing up and was incredibly lethargic. Not typical crazy puppy behavior at all. Doc put him on fluids and then sent home numerous meds. They couldn't figure out what was wrong with him. So I brought him home and put him on a bland diet of boiled chicken and plain rice. He slowly started getting better. 2 days later I gave him watered down dog food (same exact one) and within 2-3 hours he went down hill fast and back to extremely sick. It then dawned on me that it is without a doubt, it is the dog food. I immediately stopped feeding it and within 24hrs he was going back to a normal puppy! I then went to the store and bought him Royal Canin and he has been completely fine on it! I cannot stress enough that it is 100% the food. I have a case open with Purina and have been sent on to their adjuster.  | 7 Weeks   | Retriever - Golden  | Dog | 12   | Pound |

The next day my daughter observed her eyes were yellow where they are normally white, and the inside of the ears were yellow. The ER vet diagnosed her with toxic hepatitis. She spent 2 nights in the animal hospital on medications and is still on liver support and anti-biotics. Once she came home she was perked up acting better. We fed her some of the same food and she became lethargic again, this is when we changed her food to Blue Buffalo and after a day or 2 she began acting better. | EON-559732 | 1/16/2024 18:32 | Purina One Lamb and Rice Purina One Chicken and Rice Senior   | I lost my husky at 9 years old the (b) (6). We have been feeding Purina One Lamb and rice for the last couple of years to our 3 dogs. November 2023 my husky stopped eating. We played the game thinking some of it was picky husky behavior and we had our niece living with us and he didn't care for her. Fast forward he was barely eating anything. Definitely no dog food at all and we were struggling daily to find something he would eat. He was lethargic but was still drinking and going outside fine. As it continued we finally realized something else was going on. His poop was orange one morning and I immediately called the vet. He had no fever and was treated for GI upset with antibiotics and anti-nausea medication. For 2 more weeks we played the game some more with anti-nausea medication and appetite stimulants. Still very improvement in his eating. He was having good and bad days depending on whether or not he ate and how much he ate that day. I noticed he seemed bloated. We eventually took him off the appetite stimulants and the weaned off the anti-nausea meds. Minimal improvement. He had started at night with some weird breathing as if he was short of breath but it wasn't constant. Christmas Day he was doing pretty well. (b) (6) he got up and when he went outside there was blood in his urine. We thought ok maybe a uti. Called the vet they had no openings but offered a drop off appt that day. So we took him in. I got a call from the vet that his gums were pale and he was very lethargic that morning. They did an ultrasound and said his abdomen was full of fluid/blood and he had likely already lost half his blood volume internally. The vet didn't recommend surgery as there was no guarantee and he was already in such bad shape and that we should get the family together and come say our goodbyes. I am still devastated. He had been healthy prior to this mess starting. | 9 Years   | Siberian Husky      | Dog | 87   | Pound |

On October 29, 2023 she started vomiting bile in the morning and has never stopped since. To this day she vomits bile in the morning multiple times a week. She's been to the vet countless times for all types of testing and nothing has been found wrong with her body (vitals checked, blood panel, GI panel, pancreatic panel, ultrasound, xrays). She's been prescribed multiple medications to try. The only thing consistent is that she's been on purina pro plan food the whole time. He ate it mixed with his food for 10 days and then started with diarrhea. He then started throwing up. He stopped eating. Extremely lethargic. He was not himself at all. A couple days of sickness and then he started having bloody diarrhea. Then bloody vomit. I took him to the emergency vet where they couldn't figure out what was wrong with him. They kept him over night in hopes that fluids would help. When they called with an update they said there is no progress. He then died over night at the hospital. Blood work looked normal except for a high white blood count. X-rays looked normal. We had no definitive explanation. We (including our children) were devastated. Fast forward to Christmas. We get a new puppy, a golden retriever. Since I got him at Christmas time, I didn't have time to get puppy dog food. So I fed him the same food I had gave to (b) (6) In 2 days the new puppy had diarrhea. Then vomiting started. He was incredibly lethargic so on day 3 I took him to the hospital. No answers as to what happened! Lots of fluids, bland diet for 2 days and he was back to being a puppy. So the vet suggested watered down small amount of dog food. I used the same ProPlan I had and within 2-3 hours he was right back to horribly sick. They have previously transitioned to new food with no issues. Initially the transition seemed to be going well and then suddenly had multiple episodes of diarrhea and vomit in a day, which led to extreme hemorrhaging, requiring overnight hospitalization at ER to stabilize. After bloodwork panels, examinations, and X-rays were completed to rule out any health issues, or obstructions, we were informed that the bloodwork came back normal by 2 different facilities (a regular vet initially in the day and later that evening, the ER). It was suggested it possibly be the food but could not be confirmed by the vets, as bloodwork came back normal, no other diet or lifestyle changes had been recently made, and they could not test the food themselves for any issues of course. The day I skipped the dog food and fed him table food instead he did not throw up at all and was still very energetic. Still not suspecting it to be the dog food I fed him it in the morning. A short time after that he started throwing up again, yellow foam surrounded by orange ish liquid and became almost lifeless. His eyes were sunken in and he did not go to the bathroom all day. I then noticed while he was itching his penis came out and had no pigment to it. It was like white /gray instead of red pink. I immediately stopped the Purina dog food & started nursing him back to health with broth, steamed chicken and rice. He's slowly returning to health and his skin is starting to clear up. I called Purina and asked them if there were any recalls they told me that there was a rumor and advised me to switch to Purina sensitive skin & stomach. And said they'd send me out a refund for $70.00. I did not have the information from the bag of food as I keep it in an air tight 40 lb bin. It was Purchased at Target. We are very consistent with his treats and food so nothing was out of the ordinary. In the beginning of December he started getting bloody stool and diarrhea, he had a lack of appetite for about a month! We spent over $500 at the vet trying to figure out what it was and they couldn't find anything wrong. We eventually changed foods to different brand and now he is fine. We are very concerned there was something harmful in the Purina food.   | 10   | Months | Greater Swiss Mountain Dog | Dog |     |       |

She was constantly having stomach issues, diarrhea and losing weight. She had one seizure that the vet as well as a specialist could not explain. Thousands of dollars spent in medical testing, ultrasound, bloodwork, medicine and overnight stay in the hospital only to have results come back negative. I immediately changed her food to a non-Purina product and she is 100% better.   | 11   | Years  | Terrier - Jack Russell     | Dog | 10  | Pound |

| EON-559593 | 1/16/2024 2:32 | Stella & Chewy's raw coated kibble  | He quit eating over a few days and then started violently throwing up-about 10x in 2 hours. After the initial food, it was mostly bile or a white liquid, but he was heaving so horribly. Took him to one vet who did an xray, gave him anti-nausea shot, iv (noted he had already lost over a pound). The anti nausea shot worked for about 24 hours and he started throwing up again. Got the run around at the first vet so took him to another vet who did a huge battery of tests from blood to stool, gave him an IV. Found nothing wrong in any of these tests. He was down almost 3 pounds by this point. Vet suggested a food allergy and gave me a prescription for an allergen free cat food. Unfortunately the first ingredient is corn which is highly allergenic in the USA so I switched to Stella and Chewy's duck away from the Stella & Chewy's chicken, thinking the chicken could be the culprit. He ate this ok for about a week and then started throwing it up. So I switched to Fromm's game bird flavor. A month later, I couldn't find the game bird Fromm's so he's now eating Fromm's chicken and gaining weight very well. So issue was not a food allergy. At a loss for what happened to him especially since these 2 vets found nothing wrong with a very healthy cat. 2 days ago I read that Stella & Chewy's food has been found to be having issues and making cats sick or killing them, so I'm certain this was his original issue. He has been eating Stella & Chewy's food for over 3 years, the raw coated kibble, chicken without issue and then all of a sudden gets sick. | 7    | Months | Maine Coon                 | Cat | 15  | Pound |

I wondered when I opened it, why any company would make kibble so small. I even looked and read the bag to make sure it was not puppy food. I should have listened to my inner voice. My dog was eating this food and choked to death. It got into her trachea and she choked to death in just minutes. We got as much food out of her throat as possible and rushed her to the emergency vet but it was too late. They said the food was too small and she had aspirated the food. My husband was standing next to her when it happened. She was perfectly fine and then in just seconds she was choking to death. These last two months, in November he had a seizure, and then in December, he had another seizure. The same bag of food, the same brand. I wasn't sure what was causing the seizures, I honestly thought it was separation anxiety and have been monitoring his condition. Since his last seizure, he's been a little off. With the last of his food, I gave some to an outside dog that we brought in because of the freeze. The dog ate the food for two nights, and on the second night had a massive seizure. I was alarmed to find the tenders covered in what appeared to be mold, despite the stamped 2025 expiration date on the package. Unfortunately, the stamped, "Best Buy" date was on the strip that is pulled to open the package, so I inadvertently threw it away.I have purchased Full Moon treats for years and my dogs really enjoy them. Recently, however, I have noticed differences in the level of product quality; some packages contain treats that do not look or smell fresh, while others are of excellent quality. Those differences are reflected in my pocketbook, depending on my dogs' reception of the treats. They refuse the contents of some packages but devour others. My observations over the years have led me to conclude that, presently, there are quality control issues at Full Moon. But I have never seen anything resembling the disturbing inadequacy of this purchase.I have not contacted the FDA or any other entity, but I would appreciate a prompt response to my concerns. I immediately ran to trash to check the bottom of the 1st bag he had already consumed and there was one dead maggot/larvae in the bottom so I know he ate an entire 5 pound bag filled with larvae and eggs !! That same day he became very lethargic and not wanting to eat , he eventually begins to throw up which is when I take him to the vet and have a very long talk with purina , I was told I would be reimbursed for my vet bills (still haven't heard back in 3-4 days ) but that's not the point . He was fine then he was gone. He was fed "Purina kit and Kaboodle Original Dry Cat Food for Adult Cats" the past year. I purchased every bag from Walmart. This particular 22lb bag was purchased for $16.98 on Oct 20, 2023. The incident happened shortly after opening a new bag. The day before I noticed that the was shaking his head real bad and wobbling a little, but he was an outdoor cat so he wasn't in my constant view. I found him dead the next day, just laying there. There was no signs of trauma. After learning about PURINA making so many animals sick or dying, I strongly suspect that may have been what happened to my baby, but I'll never know for sure.   | 3  | Years  | Unknown                   | Cat | 15   | Pound |  |

Assuming it was just an adjustment to the food since he hadn't had it since he was around 8 months old we skipped giving it to him Thursday. Friday the 12th at around 12:25-12:48 pm we resumed giving him another try at reintroducing the food. Roughly 3 hours later the same day around 5:15 pm he started showing symptoms of anxiousness and distress. Wasn't long until exactly 5:25 pm he started to seize and violently puking up every ounce of the food we had given him. About a week or so later, I noticed that our dog was exhibiting symptoms of food avoidance, lethargy, vomiting, and diarrhea. Took my dog to the vet on December 13, 2023 -she did not receive a formal diagnosis, but she did have a slightly elevated temperature. They prescribed an antibiotic, an anti-nausea medicine, and recommended a very bland diet of rice and cooked ground beef. We followed everything as directed by the veterinarian and she seemingly began to feel much better! We were told that when she started to be normal again, we could re-incorporate her normal dog food, which we did. About five days after giving her the dog food again, she got sick again. Went to the vet again, January 12,2024 Where she had a temperature of 103.1. She tested negative for Giardia and parasites. She was put back on an antibiotic and a probiotic and was recommended a 'gastrointestinal biome' dog food. The only common denominator, both times that she has been sick is the dog food. I am concerned because I am seeing other people saying very similar things in regards to their animals. This many people, and this many pets being affected speaks volumes. Please investigate Purina and other brands causing the symptoms. | 3  | Years  | Retriever - Labrador      | Dog | 76   | Pound |  |

I noticed towards end of the dry kibble she was not excited about her food. she was barely eating breakfast and would eat dinner. but she stopped eating in the morning and only would eat at night. she has a good appetite with everything BUY the dry kibble. 1 week ago I have started to force her to eat by keeping her in the bathroom till she eats. last 3 days she started winning like she was hungry but refused to eat the kibble. I finally broke down after opening a fresh bag and she still would not eat it. she looked at me like mom please don't make me eat it. so I gave in and made her a homemade mix and she ate it up so fast. today I feed her the same homemade food in the morning and she had her normal energy back. See looking back she was lethargic acting and sleeping alot. not wanting to play alot either. I thought it was due to her being smaller and it being winter time but today showed that's not the case. (b) (6) was eating shredded chicken & rice puppy under 2 & (b) (6) was eating shredded beef and rice adult. Both dogs started to reject eating their food once I opened their new bag (35lb bag) I continued letting them graze at their food for a few more days and decided that maybe they were bored of the flavors and bought a small 6lb bag of salmon and rice (mixed with old food) and that's when they both started displaying symptoms of throwing up, more tired than usual, and loose stools (yellow) *the stools have been switching back and forth from loose to semi solid for just over a week at this point. They didn't seem overly sick nor did I think they needed to be rushed to the vet (my goldens are prone to having a sensitive stomach on occasion) so I swapped them to a boiled chicken and rice meal plan for the past 4 days and symptoms have 99% disappeared. I will be keeping them off PPP for the time being, to let their stomachs adjust. I want to add that in the beef and salmon flavored foods it had an unusual smell - different than the normal smell. Salmon having a very strong potent smell. When she began the diet, her skin allergy symptoms improved drastically. She did wonderfully until July of this past summer. We noticed stomach upset, belching, indigestion, and grass eating. Then, she began to have more serious G.I. symptoms. She began vomiting and going diarrhea, and was unable to continue eating this food. We switched to bland food for a few days, and when we switched back to Purina ProPlan Sensitive Skin and Stomach, all of her issues resumed. The issues were so severe, they resulted in multiple trips to our local veterinarian, three emergency room visits, and multiple visits with an internal medicine specialist ir (b) (6) She has had bloodwork multiple times, chest x-rays, multiple stomach x-rays, and an ultrasound. We tried other diets, but she could not tolerate them. So, we would try switching back to Purina, and her symptoms would become even more severe again. At this time, she is still unable to tolerate any commercial diet, and needs a home cooked diet. She also takes metronidazole for G.I. inflammation. She has been unable to stop this. She also has a low white blood cell count and has lost 8 pounds (from 33lbs to just 25now). If G.I. symptoms continue, the veterinarian would like to do an endoscopy. However, this is risky due to her heart murmur.                            | 6 | Years | Poodle - Miniature   | Dog | 25 | Pound |

That evening, I purchased a new bag of purina pro plan, chicken and rice and fed him dinner. He woke up in the middle of the night and vomited several times and had several bouts of diarrhea. In the morning, I fed him breakfast from the new purina proplan and later that day he had diarrhea again. This time there was blood in his stool. I stopped feeding him the purina food and put him on a rice and chicken diet while he recovered. Over the next several days his stool became more firm. She was very hesitant to jump onto the bed or the furniture, which she had done with ease prior to this happening. She became lethargic, not having energy to do things, like eating or going outside to go to the bathroom. She began to develop a high fever. Her eyes began to water, and she would look at you with a piercing blank stare. We took her to the vet on Friday, January 5th, 2024. Her temperature was 104.5 and her panel of bloodwork showed that her white blood cell count was low. She was sent home with an antibiotic and anti-inflammatory medication, in the event it was a weird infection, or even a virus. We called the vet back on Monday, January 8th. She had made no improvements at all with the medication, and in fact, had gotten even more lethargic. We had received a few messages from friends about a possible issue with Purina Dog Food. We immediately took her off of Purina Pro Plan dry food and Purina Incredibites moist pate on Tuesday, January 9th. She returned to the vet on Wednesday, January 10th (as we had set an appointment when we called Monday). Her temperature had returned to normal, she was more alert, and a bit less lethargic. She was taken for x-rays and it showed no signs of any masses, or abnormalities in her body, including breaks or sprains. We were sent home with a steroid, Omeprazole, Gabapentin, and a new food. She was only given one dose of the steroid, because she was making a lot of progress. She was running circles when she was excited to see me, jumping up and down without hesitation, eating well, and sleeping less during the day when we were home. As of today, January 14th, she has made a huge recovery from the symptoms she was experiencing a week prior. | 9  | Years  | Terrier - Rat          | Dog | 19 | Pound |

(b) (6) vomited, had diarrhea, and was very lethargic. By December 28th, she could not walk & refused all liquid and food. On Saturday December 30th we took her to the veterinarian and they ran a blood test and could not find anything wrong except she had 104 degree temp and said it must be a virus or flu. They gave her an antibiotic, anti diarrhea meds and a probiotic. After 3 days we took her back because she was not getting any better. I had to force feed her water with a syringe every two hours. They took and xray and tick test and nothing else was determined except she still had a 104 degree temp. Can | Cheap food. We have four cats and a senior dog. And those aren't the only household financial responsibilities we have. So we needed cost-effective food for our pets. Most of those brands of food were bought from Walmart, and I have had to look up a trickle down chart of who Purina owns in order to make sure that I got a different food just this last week. The Purina Care, friskies, special kitty, the only dry food that I trust right now is Bixbi Liberty And I bought it through chewy. We've been getting grain-free food because we thought (b) (6) just had a grain allergy. I had to take him to the vet last year and spent 5 to $600, to get him a hills science diet and treated for worms, when originally we thought he was going into renal failure because those were the symptoms he was showing. He still can't jump up on counters, or cat trees without almost falling off. He's only three. He's the oldest cat. All of them, have had consistently loose stools, until we switched off of purina-owned brand food. And when I say loose I mean almost straight water. which means that they go in our house instead of the litter boxes, because if you look up the biological behavior of cats? Yeah. Our dog, is currently isolated in the garage. Because the food was upsetting her stomach to the point where she started showing signs of kidney failure and then became aggressive with the cats and us in the house. Mind you I'm 7 months pregnant. So having a dog that I have lived with for years, suddenly growling and lunging at me out of nowhere is terrifying. And then finding out it's because she's sick and her stomach is in pain, and we can't afford to take her to the vet and we might lose her, is a lot worse. My animals are bleeding and pooping water. Out of their behinds. Their moods are off, the safety of the people in my house is now in question because of our dog, and I can't budget to take care of these animals because I am about to have a baby. So now I'm in a mad scramble to find food that isn't going to kill my cats and dog. Because almost everything is owned by Purina. I'm putting the actual dates that we had to take (b) (6) to the veterinarian first because this is when we first started noticing these symptoms in all of the animals, and of course, now it's coming out in the news that other people are also being affected by it. Lovely. I love that it has gone on, this long. Sarcasm. | 2  | Years | Bombay  | Cat | 11  | Pound |

About 2 weeks later she got really sick - vomiting and couldn't keep anything down, food aversion, lethargy, and liquid diarrhea with blood. She's always a very playful, cuddly, and healthy 7 year old cat. When she got sick, she isolated herself and could barely stand and walk around. We never saw her this sick before (maybe a hairball once or twice a year). We took her to the vet and they couldn't figure out what was wrong, considering she just had a wellness check up 2 weeks prior. She got an IV for fluids, anti-nausea shot, urinary extraction to test for UTI and x-rays just in case (they only found inflammation in her stomach and intestines from emesis). They switched her to Royal Canin veterinary and a few days later she bounced back and has been doing more than well since. We have a prescription for Royal Canin now. He was put on a round of antibiotics,, he seemed to feel better after a few days, 2 weeks later the same symptoms came back, but I also noticed really odd colored stool and his tongue and gums were very pale, took him back to vet, they kept him for the day to run test, they found that he was anemic through blood work, so they did an xray and saw shadows in his stomach, anti biotics were given again, and scheduled him for an ultrasound sound the following week. The ultra sound showed, signs of abnormal Liver, and enlarged kidneys and spleen. His anemia was also worse and he was continuing to rapidly loose weight. He had at that point list 15 pound over a period of 3 weeks, the vet said we could do a biopsy of his Liver, but he may not survive the procedure and that it would be better to take him home and spend time with him until the unthinkable has to happen  | 7  | Years | Mixed (Dog)   | Dog | 67  | Pound |

| EON-559352 | 1/12/2024 18:52 | Purina ProPlan Adult 7+  | I began feeding my dog Purina ProPlan at the beginning of 2023. He seemed to enjoy it until about September 2023. He then began not wanting to eat the Purina ProPlan but he was willing to eat other brands of dog food. Due to his refusal to eat, he lost a significant amount of weight (roughly 15lbs since November 2022). He also had vomiting, diarrhea and would act lethargic. We took him to the vet for his annual visit on November 28, 2023 and the vet did a series of diagnostics on him (x-rays, bloodwork and different tests to rule out diseases). The vet determined based on his bloodwork that he was had kidney disease. We opted to hospitalize him for 5 days to see if we could decrease his kidney values. After a 5 day hospital stay and continued subcutaneous fluids & medications at home for a weekend, we returned to the vet the following Monday where they ran more bloodwork and we found out the fluids and medication were not working. The veterinarian diagnosed him to have kidney failure. His quality of life continued to decrease rapidly until we made the decision to euthanize him. | 8  | Years | American Pit Bull Terrier | Dog | 59  | Pound |

| EON-559349 | 1/12/2024 18:12 | Purina one   | 01/18/2024 I came home from work to find that my elder dog had several piles of pure blood all over, he was bleeding out of his butt as well, I took him to the vet as an emergency and they said he had lost a lot of blood according to a cvc panel. His Plt was high, pct was high and Akko was low. I feed my dogs very well, so when the Akko is low it means the dog is approaching malnutrition, which mean the food is not giving him the nutrients he or my other dog needs, something is very wrong with this!! I have since stopped giving both dogs this Purina one food! And (b) (6) is on medications and he is slowly improving, but, this is an unforgivable situation!! He stopped eating the food for a day or two and started to feel better. He's still recovering. We just realized the other puppies wouldn't touch the food either which is extremely unlike them too. They've had different food and now they are recovering. And we noticed it was almost impossible to find the Purina Dog Chow in either flavor in the big bags, almost like a silent recall. Other pet reactions will be described in their respective reports, but please know the other pets did start falling ill shortly after eating Purina Pro Plan food. The only symptom that (b) (6) had the day before she passed away was like a cough/hack at the back of her throat when she yawned. After the other pets started falling ill, I did take the cats to be seen by their regular vet on 11/09/2023 (which was after the dog had to be taken to the ER vet). The cats were able to be seen sooner than the dog. At this time the vet did not report any pertinent problems regarding (b) (6) other than being slightly overweight, but I'm unsure if they investigated my report regarding the hacking. She was only two and a half years old, was perfectly healthy, and had no pre-existing conditions. The day she passed away on (b) (6) she seemed bloated and lethargic. She did not have her regular energy levels and laid on my work desk all day in my presence, which isn't what she normally did (she normally laid on top of bookcase or ran around chasing toys). To be clear, her regular energy levels were usually insane and she didn't really sit still for long. She also didn't seem to be laying in a very comfortable position in the time she spent with me. She did have an episode of throwing up yellow stomach acid after eating kibble this day, which occurred about 5 hours after her breakfast and just a couple hours before she passed. She hadn't had anything else to eat since then but had free access to multiple clean water bowls. Around 5 pm on (b) (6) my fiancé returned home from work and got into the shower, and I got off work. My routine is to feed the pets their dinners right after I get off work. I work from home, so I got up from my office desk and walked to the kitchen to put together their dinners. (b) (6) dinner that night was the second half of a measured-out amount of the Purina Pro Plan cat kibble, which she was fed twice daily (she had received the first half in the morning). | 2.5 Years | American Shorthair   | Cat | 13 | Pound |
|                            |                 |  | The pets had finished eating before I left the apartment to take the dog on his regular after-dinner walk. The last time I saw (b) (6) alive she was scratching the couch, which was a regular behavior for her. While standing at the threshold of the apartment door I yelled at her to stop scratching it, which prompted her to zoom out of the living room and down the apartment hall as fast as possible, which was another regular behavior for her. As she was running down the hall, I then stepped out of the apartment for 5 minutes to take the dog for his walk. Upon my return to the apartment 5 minutes later, I found her laying down and unresponsive on the apartment floor in the in an unusual way. While I was taking off the dog's leash, I was saying her name and was confused why she wasn't moving or responding. I then began to freak out. I will preface this section by saying I am a medical professional. I immediately knew something was wrong. I took 30 seconds to assess the scene. She was down, unresponsive, bloated, not blinking with dilated pupils, and most importantly she was not breathing. Her bladder had involuntarily emptied all the way down the hallway, and there was a puddle of pee that had pooled out her behind where she had laid down and passed. At this point I knew she was suffering, and I ran into the bathroom to tell my fiancé that she's dying and we have to go now. My fiancé immediately got out of the shower, got dressed, and helped me scoop her up into her crate with a blanket. It took us less than 2 minutes to get dressed and get out of the door. We then brought her into the local emergency vet in (b) (6) as soon as possible. She unfortunately did have an extended downtime of about 10 minutes before we reached the ER vet due to the local traffic in our area around 5 pm. We called the ER vet in advance while we were enroute to let them know we were coming and to request resuscitative efforts be performed for (b) (6) upon our arrival.  |           |                      |     |    |       |

|                            |                 |   | When my fiancé parked the car, I ran with her crate and got her to the vet staff as soon as physically possible so they could code her. The ER vet was able to perform CPR, however they weren't able to get line access and chances of resuscitation were low given the extended downtime, so my fiancé and I requested they stop the measures. They let us know she had passed away before we were able to get her to the vet. I found her down at approximately 5:10 pm, and by 5:40 she was gone from this world. We do not know what her cause of death is related to, and it was most certainly not a normal death. I was not offered an opportunity for a necropsy, so we had her cremated. It was sudden and extremely tragic and needless to say we are still shocked and completely heartbroken. The reason why I am writing these reports is because the only new thing in any of the pets' lives had been the switch to the purina pro plan food. I have considered and tried several other options to help with the illnesses of my two living pets to no avail at all. Nothing I had tried was working until I took them off this food. Even now, my cat and dog are still having issues. All of the pets were in otherwise perfect health before I switched them to these foods and had regular vet care. After seeing numerous complaints pertaining to other pet deaths and illnesses resulting from these particular foods AND seeing them start to surface at the same time I switched my pets to this food, I do strongly suspect the food may have caused her death (especially in the context of being so young, healthy, and otherwise perfectly healthy). This report is me advocating for them during their times of suffering. I have since put my cat and dog on different foods and they are just now starting to do better. I have submitted two complaints with purina directly, one complaint for the cat and dog food each, and they are going to send me shipping materials so I can send them samples for testing. My complaint case ID through purina is (b) (6). |    |        |                           |     |     |       |

Upon opening a new bag of Proplan 20/30 salmon at the end of October 2023, both dogs began having intermittent diarrhea. (b) (6) the oldest also began having a weird spasmodic swallowing or hiccup type thing happen. He was rushed to the ER vet upon first instance as we thought something was stuck in his throat. It resolved while at the ER vet and he was sent home without seeing a vet since they were very busy. Subsequent less severe episodes happen over the following weeks. When we were almost finished our bag I saw other reports of issues with Purina and switched both dogs to another brand of food. After a week she was completely on PPP. She had a few vomiting episodes which we assumed she had eaten to fast, however her diarrhea episodes began and by 1/6/2024 she became lethargic and eating appetite decreased, overnight she began vomiting every 2 hours in which we immediately took her to the Vet Hospital. At the hospital, they ran some tests and indicated her liver enzymes were 7x the normal and she was jaundiced. They referred us to a bigger hospital to become hospitalized and begin intensive care. While there she did not improve and was not responding to medical interventions. By (b) (6) she declined severely and was throwing up black tar looking at the hospital and her jaundice was even worse. Unfortunately, (b) (6) health declined so much she had to be euthanized humanely. Leaving us and the kids heart broken. I began gradually adding Purina Pro Plan to her meals ( about 1/4-1/2 ratio) on approx June 28th. She eats twice a day about 1 cup of food at each meal, so she had eaten it for about 5 days when she first started showing symptoms. She stopped eating her meals regularly and was regurgitating undigested kibble. We thought it could be due to nerves from fireworks but she got considerably worse as time went on. We continued feeding her mixture of previous dog food and Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Stomach when she would eat, which was greatly reduced and she continued to regurgitate her food, began losing weight and had a jaundice appearance in her eyes, gums and stomach. At that point, I was worried it might be the Purina Food so we discontinued it and took her to the veterinarian. She had a diagnostic ultrasound done and determined it could be possible hepatitis. She ended up being hospitalized numerous times over the next two months, her health continued to deteriorate, and was taken to specialists in (b) (6) where she underwent a blood transfusion. Over the two months she went from 36lbs to 25lbs, diagnosed with severe pancreatitis, high bilirubin, abnormal liver enzymes, gi bleeding and anorexia. | 10 | Years | Cattle Dog - Australian (blue heeler, red heeler, Queensland cattedog) | Dog | 36   | Pound |

| EON-559308 | 1/12/2024 17:56 | PURINA PRO PLAN Adult Large Breed Specialized   | My almost 9 year old lab has been eating Purina Pro Plan all his life, vet recommended. I am hoping this was a bad batch. We received our regular Chewy delivery (circa Dec31, 2023) recently and began feeding him and after nearly every meal (2 per day), he vomited it up (roughly an hour or so after eating). After a few days, we stopped the Purina Pro and gave him rice/ cooked egg/ chicken / sweet potato. He never vomited those and so, after a few days, we reintroduced the Purina Pro Plan and he vomited it up again. We called the vet yesterday 1/11/24 and have temporarily switched brands. I'm thinking if he had a health issue, the vomiting would have been consistent? Maybe this is a bad batch?? I reported it to Chewy and they asked for the bag/package info, and I reported it to Purina, online. Here it is for you too-BEST BY APR 20253297 1085 1301L03Please look into this, as I've seen where others reported having experienced sick issues much worse. We started introducing the new dog food a little at a time. After about 3 weeks our dog started having accidents in the house which never happens. After 3 days of accidents in the house he started having bad soft stool followed by diarrhea followed by only pooping blood, liquid blood. He also could not keep any food down at this time. We immediately stopped feeding him the new food. He would not drink and continued pooping blood and vomiting for another day. She ate a half of serving one noight, the next morning she refused to eat any of the food, the following morning she threw up 5 times, following day threw up once. I immediately stopped the food, fed chicken and rice. She was not herself, not playing or anything. After 4 days, thank goodness she was better and now she seems to be back to normal. I tried getting a refund from Petsmart but they said they would not and to contact Purina. My dog has been on this food for quite some time and has been OK with it, until the new bag. We noticed him not wanting to eat as much and he was drinking a lot more than normal. Then he started having diarrhea and soft stools with mucus. His poop smelled bad and his behind was sore, dragging it on the ground frequently. His eyes are also always tearing and he was more tired than normal. We Decided to look into this more and I decided to stop the food and give him just bland food. Since we stopped the purina, he has gradually become more himself. While researching all of this we came upon information about a lot of other dogs getting very ill and even dying due to Parina pro plan products recently. This needs to be pulled off the shelf immediately so no other dogs get sick or die and a huge massive recall needs done. I have the food if you would like any for testing. I hope this has no long term effects on his health. We are in the process of finding something safe for our sweet guy. Please, please, please look into Purina. They know there is an issue but they don't want to admit it and it's not fair to the pets that are getting very sick or dying, or as well to their families. | 3  | Years  | Other Canine/dog     | Dog |    |       |

| EON-559216 | 1/12/2024 13:04 | Purina Pro Plan Live Clear   | My cat suddenly started acting lethargic and withdrawn. I noticed he had been dragging his bottom around the floor like I had never seen him do before. I only caught him doing it a few times but after checking him out I realized it bottom was super irritated and inflamed. I took him to the emergency vet and they said he had a blockage and needed to express his glands but would be fine. Two days later he was doing the same thing and was irritated and scooting again. He had never done this before or had any other issues with his glands. I got new food and two days later he was completely fine.  | 7 Years    | American Shorthair      | Cat | 15 Pound   |

I purchased a new bag in December and began feeding as normal around 12/23. A couple days later I noticed he was pooping a lot more. Not diarrhea, just went from 2-3 times a day to 6-8. He also had increased thirst and seemed more tired than normal. Two weeks later he began refusing to eat his food. (That is very unusual for him). He would eat other food, just not his normal dog food. I bought a different brand of food which he has been eating with no issues. He still has excessive thirst and there is some concern from his vet that there could be some kidney failure. She vomited a couple of times. She is a hunting dog. We thought that she just wore herself out and ate too fast. But then November 18th she wouldn't even walk. She was drooling/foaming at the mouth and so lethargic. We took her to the vet. There was so much air in her stomach, you couldn't even see any other organs on the x-ray. Her stomach was so inflamed that it was surrounded by fluid. They told us due to a very high risk of torsion, she didn't have a high chance of making it through the night. She stayed for 2 days and we brought her home. The first night home, she had a bowl of the Purina Pro Plan again. By the next morning she was back at the vet with the same situation. She stayed at the vet again because we were back in the high risk category of torsion due to the severe inflammation and air in her stomach and bowel. She was at the vet for another night. She came home the next day. We suspected it was the dog food after we realized all of this started when we got the new bag of dog food. Especially when she became so ill after eating a bowl the second time she ended up at the vet. Ever since this has happened, she has had residual digestive issues. She now is on a restrictive diet where she can only eat prescription dog food. She has lost about 15 pounds since all of this. Her digestive system is very delicate now. She has never had any issues with her digestion, stomach, or anything at all before this. I have been convinced it was the food since all this happened but hadn't seen anyone else saying anything. I see more people coming out and saying they experienced similar situations with their Purina dog food. | 10 Years   | Retriever - Labrador    | Dog | 165 Pound  |

| EON-559198 | 1/12/2024 13:04 | Purina One Plus Healthy Kitten Formula (Dry food)  | We bought a new bag of the same food one of our cats had been normally eating (Purina One Kitten) and had shown no problems with before this point. The cat that had recently recovered from giardia, started having better stools and was declared giardia-free from lab work our vet performed. She is still giardia free confirmed by more lab work. Shortly after starting her on the new bag of food, her stool started getting progressively worse while on the Purina One Kitten food until it was just diarrhea. Our second cat snuck bites of her food and we only caught him while he was eating the food. Both of their stool continued to deteriorate while she was on the food. Our vet suggested switching to the Royal Canin diet for her and she's been slowly recovering since.  |    |        | American Shorthair                   | Cat |     |       |

Her birthday was in February of 2015. She was having a small itching problem so I switched her food to Purina Pro Plan for Sensitive Skin and Stomach in the early Spring of 2022. Prior to that she was eating a basic Beneful dog food for small breeds. She enjoyed the Pro Plan food but then in the Spring of 2023 "April" (a little over a year of switching her food to Pro Plan) she started throwing up, stopped drinking water, pooped in the house leading me to take her to her vet and then the the emergency vet. Within a week of those symptoms starting I was told she might have Pancreatitis and later found out it was Liver Cancer and my only choice was to put her down. She declined so quickly, in a week and a half, and passed away (b) (6). This was the worst day of my life. I had spent thousands of dollars trying to treat her to find out that there was nothing I could do. By the time I had to put her down she wasn't walking, wasn't eating or drinking, her stomach was distended and she had jaundice in her eyes and gums with a constant fever. I had switched her to chicken and rice during this time, but it was too late. I am reporting this in case it was linked to the Purina Pro Plan food. She was completely fine before I switched foods and within a year was dead. I would love to find out so we can warn other pet parents before it is too late. | 8  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)   | Dog | 21 | Pound |

| EON-559037 | 1/11/2024 12:08 | Purina One True Instincts   | Diarrhea started 3 days prior to needing to go to the emergency vet. The day of going to the emergency vet there were 5-6 piles of bright red bloody stool and vomit with blood in it all over my house when I came home from work. She went to the er and was sent home with meds/antibiotics and was being treated for possible HGE or Pancreatitis. A few hours later she wasn't able to keep any water or the meds in so we responded back to the ER where she was admitted for over 24hrs and given hydration and meds via IV and an NG tube to extract bile from her stomach and attempt to feed. She wound up progressing positively and was discharged Sunday 1/7/24 in the afternoon and continues to do well. As she was being discharged my 2nd dog, Trouble at home developed the same symptoms- we recognized it quick once we saw blood tinged stool and brought him right away. He was given meds and hydration under the skin and sent home. He's 13y yorkshire terrier and he is also doing well now we have antibiotics and are continuing to administer. We aren't whole sure Purina is the culprit however, that's what they eat and haven't been anywhere else. Starting with one dog becoming limb on the hind legs not able to stand( purina one lamb and rice), then 2 other throwing up( purina one lamb and rice), then another one throwing up on purina one puppy, then 3 young puppies got lethargic, not able to stand, seizures, and then one passing away (b) (6), while the same 2 were weak and couldn't stand( ate purina one puppy). All of my dogs were on purina products having the same symptoms.   |    |        |   |     |    |       |

| EON-559033 | 1/11/2024 12:08 | Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Salmon and Rice Kibble | (b) (6) begin having vomiting and diarrhea spells on and off over the course of a week in September 2023. She would get better for a day and then relapse the next day. After about 6 days of this, she worsened significantly and began vomiting and defecating pure blood. I brought her to the vet where she was admitted for two days and diagnosed with hemorrhagic gastroenteritis (I had been consulting my vet throughout and following recommended at-home remedies to no avail). She required significant medical intervention to recover. During her hospital stay, her albumin was incredibly low, but they were eventually able to stabilize it. Her last blood test upon discharged showed extremely high eosinophils with no known explanation (she tested negative on all parasite tests). It took several weeks for these levels to return to normal. Since she was released from the hospital, she had one more minor but similar episode about a month later. I then learned that several dogs were having similar negative reactions to the Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Salmon and Rice Kibble I had been feeding her. It is my understanding they changed their formula this summer, which is when the problems began. I have since switched to a different Purina product and had no issues since. My other dog (b) (6) was also on the kibble, so I initially did not suspect it. But the reports of so many other dogs getting sick on this food combined with the fact that (b) (6) is not a "grazer" who indiscriminately eats things, makes me think there is something in the food that either only affects some dogs or is hit/miss in quantity. I'm happy to answer any questions you may have. This is not an anti-Purina effort (as I still feed my dogs their food, just a different type) but there seems to be enough anecdotal cases out there to warrant a review.   | 4 | Years | Shepherd Dog - German | Dog | 63 | Pound |
| EON-559031 | 1/11/2024 12:08 | Purina Pro Plan weight management chicken and rice                | (b) (6) has been eating Purina Pro Plan Weight Management for several years to maintain a healthy weight. On 12/20/2023, I purchased a new bag of PPP Weight Management from the PetSmart in (b) (6). I opened the bag after the New Year (2024) and began feeding from the new bag. Prior to feeding from the new bag, his stools were well-formed and he was healthy. Within one week of feeding from the new bag, his stools were pure liquid. Very early Sunday morning (1/7/2024), (b) (6) woke me up to be taken out. He had severe diarrhea. I withheld food for 24 hrs to allow his GI tract to reset. He continued to have issues Monday (1/8) so I took him to urgent care. He was kept at urgent care for the day and was given IV fluids and anti-diarrheal medication. The veterinarian did abdominal XRays, and ran blood and urine panels. I was sent home Monday night with (b) (6) and he was prescribed probiotics, Purina Pro Plan EN (wet and dry), and one additional anti-diarrheal dose. I fed him the Rx diet Monday night and Tuesday morning. He was also given probiotics and the second dose of the anti-diarrheal Tuesday morning. He continued to have severe diarrhea throughout Tuesday. I spoke with the urgent care vet Tuesday and he requested i withhold food for another 24 hours to give (b) (6) GI Tract some time to reset. Throughout Tuesday I had problems getting (b) (6) to drink. On Wednesday (1/9) we returned to the urgent care and he was admitted to their ICU. He is still there. All of his bloodwork came back WNL and his urine values were also normal. The vet found nothing in the abdominal XRays and his fecal parasite screening came back negative. The vet has no answer for (b) (6) sudden onset of diarrheal. I feel at this time there is a correlation to the new bag of food I started feeding in 2024. Of note, I own three other dogs who are being fed a different diet who remain healthy. They are all being fed Kirkland Signature Turkey and Ancient Grains kibble. | 9 | Years | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 61 | Pound |
| EON-559030 | 1/11/2024 12:08 | Purina Pro Plan live clear  | I started giving my cats purina pro plan live clear indoor cat food to help reduce allergies. I noticed my cats immediately beginning to vomit the 1st day given. At first I wasn't sure what they got into. Then after the next day of vomiting, I pulled up their wet food that I usually give them in the evening thinking that may upset their stomach. The vomiting persisted the next day after that so I thought I would give it a couple more days to work itself out but it only got worse and cats began to get weak. So I pulled up the dry food, which was the purina, and switched back to Blue and the vomiting immediately stopped. Thing is other people have complained about this particular brand food making their pets ill so I thought I needed to bring it to your attention before someone's pet dies.  | 4 | Years | American Shorthair    | Cat | 8  | Pound |

| EON-559029 | 1/11/2024 12:08 | Purina Pro Plan Adult/Adulte Complete Essentials Chicken &amp; Rice Formula/Formule Poulet Et Riz Chicken is the first ingredient/Du poulet comme premier ingredient | We started feeding (b) (6) purina pro plan dry cat foot kibble starting on 10/12/2023 after buying it from our local Petsmart. (b) (6) symptoms started around the last week of 10/2023/the first week of 11/2023 and have persisted until present day. (b) (6) symptoms, although not as severe has (b) (6) and (b) (6) have been going on the longest. (b) (6) is our senior pet and is therefore more at risk, which is why we have been thankful her symptoms haven't been so bad that she's needed emergency care. But with that said, her symptoms are still serious. Her first symptoms started within the first couple weeks after we started feeding her the new purina food on 10/12/2023. Her symptoms at that time included: an increase in self-grooming (she was grooming and licking herself so much she was going bald on her face and front legs), weight loss, and a steep increase in water intake. She would regularly drink two bowls of her own water a day. I then realized she had been going out of her way to drink extra water from (b) (6) dog bowl, then realized she was drinking more than 2 full bowls of her own water daily. I am currently refilling her water bowl about 3 – 4 times a day. She was seen for these issues and for regular vet care on 11/09/2023 (after (b) (6) went to the ER vet) to make sure she was OK and didn't have an insect infestation or any other conditions. She was confirmed not to have any insect infestations and we preventatively started her on pest infection prevention medicines just in case (given (b) (6) anaphylactic reaction and suspicions at the time of insect bites/infestations). Originally the vet thought the weight loss may have been due to a thyroid issue, but this was ruled out after further testing and the subject wasn't brought up again by the vet (I had previously tried to explain to them it wasn't a thyroid issue and the vet didn't agree, but the vet did mention at the time they have seen cases of weight loss with excessive self-grooming). The vet then deemed that (b) (6) was in excellent health for her age and they didn't mention anything about or treat her skin condition. The weight loss is concerning because (b) (6) has always been very tiny, weighing around 6 - 7.5 lbs most of the time she's been in our lives. (b) (6) weight was getting ready to be declared underweight, as it was almost underneath 6 lbs at the time of that visit. We realized over time that she wasn't eating as much of her Purina dry kibble and related it to that, so we started feeding her higher calorie treats throughout the day and larger portions of her wet food/canned human grade tuna | 11.5 | Years | American Shorthair | Cat | 6.14 | Pound |
|            |                 |   | to help get her weight back up. A couple weeks later at the end of 11/2023 I noticed she was peeing more frequently (instead of once or twice a day, 3 - 4 times a day). The pee amount was a lot larger too - it was soaking all the way to the bottom of a full litter box. Before (b) (6) passed away we had always kept out two litter boxes for ease of access. I have been changing all the litter in both boxes at least one a week to help compensate for her going extra and to ensure the litter is staying fresh. Before, I only needed to change all the litter in both boxes approximately once a month. About a week after (b) (6) (the day our beloved cat (b) (6) suddenly passed) I noticed that (b) (6) really wasn't eating any of the purina pro plan dry kibble - if at all. I thought this was strange but didn't think anything more of it at the time, and I kept putting it out for her to eat as she wanted. I'll note here that because (b) (6) was slightly overweight and (b) (6) was tiny, they had different feeding patterns. (b) (6) always had access to a full bowl of dry kibble 24/7 that we shooed (b) (6) away from. With previous kibbles, (b) (6) was eating an entire bowl over a couple of days. With the purina pro plan, (b) (6) was going through one full bowl about once a week. In the middle of 12/2023 my fiancé and I noticed that (b) (6) skin condition was worsening - she had awfully bad dandruff, her fur was no longer shiny, and she was licking her front legs so raw they had started to form ulcers and weep (just from being so itchy). At this time I started using Neosporin with a mix of some coconut oil (confirmed to be pet safe by my vet) to make sure the leg wounds didn't get infected and were soothed/hydrated while they healed. Additionally, she had developed multiple bald spots on her head/face/body whereas previously there were only a couple on her head only. She was so itchy though that using the Neosporin was nearly pointless because she would immediately lick it all off again due to irritation, and thus irritate her wounds even more. (b) (6) has also had a couple of episodes of throwing up the purina kibble within 10 – 15 mins after ingesting it, which has happened about 3 - 4 times since she was started on the purina pro plan food in 10/2023.  |      |       |                    |     |      |       |

|            |                 |   | Because we didn't originally suspect the food to be an issue for (b) (6) at all, we fed her the Purina Pro Plan food until 01/02/2024. This was when I started seeing multiple complaints regarding the Purina Pro Plan foods. After realizing that all of the pet's sicknesses may be related to the Purina food, I immediately went out and bought her a new bag of food from a different brand. Since starting her on that food she has been doing a lot better. Her leg wounds are starting to heal up, her fur is growing back on her face/head body and is starting to get shiny again, and she's actually eating the new dry food at her regular pace. Due to seeing numerous complaints pertaining to other pet deaths and illnesses resulting from these particular foods AND seeing them start to surface at the same time I switched my pets to this food, I do strongly suspect the food may have caused the death of one of my animals and severe sickness in the other two. This report is me advocating for them during their times of suffering. Please know I have submitted two complaints with Purina directly, one complaint for the cat and dog food each, and they are going to send me shipping materials so I can send them samples for testing. My complaint case ID through Purina is (b) (6). Both (b) (6) and my cat (b) (6) have upcoming vet appointments with their regular Banfield vet on 01/20/2024 for their ongoing symptoms. It was made clear to me at this time that the symptoms they are having may in fact be due to long term effects of food poisoning/bad food and that I should file reports with the FDA and the food manufacturing company. |           |                                   |     |  |     |       |

Since he was fed at the breeder Purina Pro plan I continued to feed it. On November 13th he had a seizure and was taken to the vet. He had been fed Purina pro plan beef and rice and it was a new bag that I opened in November. On November 30th at 11pm (b) (6) began seizing again and had five cluster seizures at home and in the car as I was driving to emergency vet. He continued to have 7 more seizures while in their care and remained in ER until Sunday, December 3rd. He came home and was in terrible condition, couldn't walk on his own and cried and whined. The vet told me he would remain on meds the rest of his life to control the seizures but he will never be cured. As a single, divorced owner it was very expensive and difficult for me to see him suffer and handle him. He has been healthy prior to this. He had diarrhea but I thought it was from opening a new bag of food and the stress of everything that happened. I think there was something wrong with the food so I changed and he no longer has diarrhea. He has remained seizure-free. The toll on him and me has been tremendous. He has been through so much. I hope you can find out what is wrong with the food so it doesn't happen to another dog. He almost died from this. | 3 Years  | Greater Swiss Mountain Dog | Dog | 118 | Pound |

Our dog has been taking this food for over a year prior with no major issues. However, this batch was different and smelled a little off. After we began feeding it to her, we noticed that she became lethargic, her hair was falling off in clumps and she was extremely itchy and uncomfortable. So much so, that the inside of her right ear began bleeding from her scratching so much. She was in constant discomfort and frequently shaking her ears like they were bothersome. Upon further inspection of her ears, both were bright red and irritated. She also chewed on her paw so much, that the fur came off and required an antibiotic topical spray. | EON-558996 | 1/11/2024 11:00 | Purina Pro Plan Adult/Adulte Complete Essentials Beef &amp; Rice FormulaBeef is the first ingredient | (b) (6) (b) (6) for short) was a perfectly healthy and extremely energetic pup before we switched him to the purina pro plan dog food. He had started eating that food on 10/12/2023 after we bought it from our local Petsmart store. (b) (6) started having symptoms starting on 11/02/2023 and has had symptoms since that date onward until present day. (b) (6) didn't exhibit any serious symptoms or conditions until this day despite having eaten the food for a couple of weeks. The onset of the symptoms for both (b) (6) and (b) (6) started a couple of weeks after having started them on the purina pro plan foods and had worsened over time. On 11/02/2023 my fiancé and I woke up to our regular work alarm at 4:45 AM. About 1 minute after the alarm went off, (b) (6) threw up. We then turned on the bedroom light and were astonished at the condition (b) (6) was in. The throw up was clear foam mixed with yellow stomach acid. He had periorbital edema, facial swelling, and his body was covered in hives (I will submit a picture). Thankfully he was still breathing and behaving normally, but he was clearly in critical condition due to having sudden onset of anaphylaxis and physically looked miserable. While my fiancé got clothes on and called out of work, I put on a jacket and boots over my PJs and took (b) (6) for his regular morning potty (since he was otherwise behaving normally). He peed normally but had explosive diarrhea. It was like turning on a water hose at full blast. Once I returned a few minutes later, we loaded (b) (6) into the car and took him to our local emergency vet in (b) (6). The ER vet agreed he was having anaphylaxis and told me they suspected an insect bite vs accidental self-inflicted harm (from scratching a particularly larger hive that was on his face). It is not known for sure if he was actually bitten by an insect or spider, the ER vet said that's only what they suspected based on the most common cause of anaphylaxis in dogs. He received a type of dog EpiPen shot and was doing a lot better about 30 mins later - almost all of the hives and facial swelling had ceased. We were then sent home with a treatment plan of OTC human grade Pepcid and 25 mg OTC human grade Benadryl. We were instructed to return to the ER if anything got worse.  | 1 | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 60 | Pound |
|            |                 |  | The same day on 11/02/2023 I fed (b) (6) and the other pets their dinners around 5 pm, per our family's regular routine. For his breakfast and dinner, (b) (6) was getting 2 cups of dry purina pro plan dog kibble that's measured out and mixed with warm water to make it into gravy (which totals to about 4 cups of dry kibble daily - the recommended amount for his weight). About 30 mins after eating the food at 5:30 the hives started to come back on his body. About 60 minutes later at 6 pm the hives had returned to his face and head, so we took him to the ER vet for the second time that day. He wasn't given any other treats or snacks during that time to help let his tummy settle. So we loaded up into the car and went back to our local ER vet in (b) (6). (b) (6) received another EpiPen shot, was fine shortly afterwards, and the vet instructed us to follow the exact same plan she had laid out for us earlier that day (as it happened, we were seen by the same provider from that morning when we went back that night). We were once again instructed to come back if anything worsened, specifically regarding hives on the face. During these ER visits, nothing was brought up about the food potentially being an issue, but I did let the vet know I had started the pets on the purina pro plan foods just a couple of weeks ago. My fiancé and I didn't think it was an issue with the food until later in 12/2023 when we started having suspicions after the sudden and unexpected passing of our young, healthy cat. Please keep reading.During this time though, (b) (6) suffered. He had continuous explosive and bloody diarrhea over the course of the next week (there was both digested blood and bright red blood per rectum over the course of multiple poops). We did almost take him back to the ER vet on the night of 11/03/2023 for a third time (the next day). (b) (6) stomach was so upset he was laying down and not playing at all and only got up to sit by the front door when he had to go poop again. On 11/03/2023, the extremely upset stomach started after he had a regular dinner of 2 cups purina kibble. He had to go poop literally every 30 minutes for the next 12 hours (5 pm - 5 am). At the time, we decided to take him but only in the AM if the really watery diarrhea had persisted, but we ultimately decided not to because it was getting more solid by the morning and the ER vet was expensive. I consulted our regular vet in the Banfield chatting app on what I could do to help soothe his tummy before we could get him seen at the vet for his appointment at Banfield of (b) (6) on 11/17/2023, and he was started on a diet of partial purina pro plan kibble and rice soaked in beef stock. Over the next few days (b) (6) was able to complete the treatment plan. |   |       |             |     |    |       |

|                            |                 |   | We had scheduled a follow up visit for all the pets after this ER vet experience just to make sure they were all OK. After all, the ER vet did tell us they only suspected an insect bite, so we wanted to make sure the pets didn't have any infestations. The cats were seen earlier than (b) (6) was, and (b) (6) was seen at our regular vet on 11/17/2023. At this time, the vet let me know (b) (6) seemed to be doing better, but they didn't know if (b) (6) reaction was actually from an insect or spider bite. There was no evidence of infestation or even insect/spider bites visible on his body and no evidence of insect infestations in either of the cats. However, because the theme here was originally pertaining to potential insect bites, we didn't suspect the food until later. So, we continued to feed him the food at regular intervals and he continued to do poorly. He has suffered for multiple months. Before we suspected the food, we suspected everything else first. We had all the pets put on pest prevention medications. My fiancé and I deep cleaned the entire apartment (from the ceiling, to the floors, literally). Even though we didn't feel there was an in-house infestation, just to be on the safe side we even treated all of the carpets and fabric covered furniture for pests (mattress, couch, chairs, everything). However, despite all my attempts, (b) (6) symptoms weren't going away. He was still occasionally throwing up, having diarrhea, and getting hives on his body but not his face. On (b) (6) our 2 year old cat passed away due to unknown reasons, but later came to realize it had happened only after she had eaten her dinner. This is when I really started to understand that there was something else going on, because it was clear the pets didn't have infestations and were still suffering despite everything we had been doing. The last time I fed (b) (6) the purina pro plan food was on 12/21/2023. About 30 mins after eating dinner at 5 pm, the hives came back in mass on his body. I then got out the benedryl and pepcid and started him back on the original treatment plan, which worked without me having to take him to the emergency vet for a third time. He was treated with this plan for another 3 days. |    |       |                       |     |    |       |
|                            |                 |   | This is when it clicked for me it was likely the food he was eating. When I realized it may be the food, at first I thought it may have been due to a general allergy based on some research I had done. So, I immediately stopped giving him the purina pro plan food and switched him back to what he had been on before (blue buffalo). While he hasn't had any further severe anaphylactic hive break outs, he has still been getting occasional hives on his body (daily, including today), his skin has been lumpy appearing, his coat has been dull and extremely itchy to the touch, has been moderately lethargic/not as playful as a puppy should be, has had episodes of diarrhea (although not as watery as it was before, and not as frequent), and episodes of constipation (where it's taking him a lot longer than normal to go). There have also been occasional episodes of throwing up yellow stomach acid, with the most recent occurrence of this symptoms being just a few days ago. Another thing I've noticed is that he's drinking a ton more water than normal. I usually fill the water bowls twice a day, but lately I've been filling them upwards to 5 times a day. The reason why I am writing these reports is because the only new thing in any of the pets' lives had been the switch to the purina pro plan food. I have considered and tried several other options (as listed above) to help with the illnesses of my two living pets to no avail at all. Nothing I had tried was working until I took them off this food. All of the pets were in otherwise perfect health before I switched them to these foods and have had regular vet care. After seeing numerous complaints pertaining to other pet deaths and illnesses resulting from these particular foods AND seeing them start to surface at the same time I switched my pets to this food, I do strongly suspect the food may have caused the death of one of my animals and severe sickness in the other two. This report is me advocating for them during their times of suffering.  |    |       |                       |     |    |       |
|                            |                 |   | Please know I have submitted two complaints with purina directly, one complaint for the cat and dog food each, and they are going to send me shipping materials so I can send them samples for testing. My complaint case ID through purina is (b) (6) Both (b) (6) and my cat (b) (6) have upcoming vet appointments with their regular Banfield vet on 01/20/2024 for their ongoing symptoms. It was made clear to me at this time that the symptoms they are having may in fact be due to long term effects of food poisoning/bad food and that I should file reports with the FDA and the food manufacturing company. I GIVE THE FDA MY EXPLICIT CONSENT TO ACCESS ANY OF (b) (6) RECORDS PERTAINING TO THIS INCIDENT THROUGH Banfield Pet Hospital of (b) (6) - WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN AND WILL BE SEEN.   |    |       |                       |     |    |       |

| EON-558992 | 1/11/2024 10:56 | Catit Creamy Chicken & Liver Flavor Lickable Cat Treats   | I visited (b) (6) (b) (6) today January 10th, 2024 to purchase some treats for my cat. One of the items I purchased were Catit creamy cat treat tubes. I go home, give my cat one not thinking that I would have had to check the expiration date prior. You would think the store manager/associates would be on top of that. When my cat is finished I check the packaging to read the ingredients and I'm appalled when I noticed the treated expired OCTOBER 2023! 3 MONTHS AGO. They weren't buried in the back of the shelves they were front and center first package in the box on the shelf. I return to the store and tell the cashier Corey what happened and when I mentioned that (b) (6) unfortunately gave my cat one before noticing the date HE LAUGHED. It's absolutely disgusting. The manager comes, I request a corporate number she bold faces lied to me and said there is none (I had to contact another location to get the corporate office number) she refunds me and tells me she pulled them off the shelves, not only was that box expired but all of them including different flavors excluding one. Something is suspicious about it to me because in hindsight the items were on sale. How do you change the price and have them on sale but have no thought to make sure the items aren't expired? It's not like they're a week past the date THEYVE BEEN EXPIRED FOR 3 MONTHS!!!!!! What if my cat got very ill? What would they do? Absolutely nothing. Putting my pets health and others in danger, WHO KNOWS WHAT ELSE ON THOSE SHELVES ARE EXPIRED!!!! WHO KNOWS HOW MANY OTHER CUSTOMERS HAVE PURCHASED THEM IT TOOK ME SAYING SOMETHING FOR THEM TO TAKE AN ITEM THAT EXPIRED 3 MONTHS AGO OFF SHELVES. I got a robotic forced apology from the manager and laughed at by the cashier. Please look into this, please make your presence felt because I don't think they gave a damn at all after putting my pets health in danger |    |        |                       |     |     |       |

My puppy has been on this food since we brought her home at 8 weeks of age. On 12/12/23, my puppy, (b) (6) began vomiting, had diarrhea, and was lethargic. This continued and I called the vet on 12/14/23, made an appointment for the next day and dropped off a stool sample to be tested. By 12/15/23, (b) (6) symptoms had worsened and she refused to eat and was vomiting yellow bile. After extensive testing including X-rays, (b) (6) bloodwork showed elevated white blood cells and indications she was possibly developing pancreatitis. She was immediately switched to a diet of chicken and rice and immediately started to improve. As she was improving, we tried to slowly introduce her Pro Plan Large Breed Puppy food again and symptoms began again. She again was vomiting yellow bile, had diarrhea and began refusing her chicken and rice if the Pro Plan Large Breed Puppy food was mixed in. After returning to chicken and rice once again, she improved.   | 11 | Months | Rottweiler            | Dog | 80  | Pound |

On December 23, my eldest cat became ill. Vomiting, and refusing to eat. He was put on bland diet and improved slightly, quit vomiting. On December 25, he completely quit eating his dry food. With the holidays, it took until (b) (6) for me to get him into a vet. By this time, he was jaundiced, pale, dehydrated and lethargic. By then he could not be enticed to eat more than a couple bites of cooked chicken. His liver values were high and he was in liver failure so I decided to let him go. During this time 2 more of my cats had become ill, vomiting, diarrhea and lethargic. A few days after (b) (6) 's passing, i saw people mentioning problems with Purina foods on social media and abruptly changed food for the remaining cats. 5 days later and all surviving cats have returned to normal.   |    |        |                       |     |     |       |

She has been perfectly fine and loves the food. However, I recently purchased a new bag before Christmas as she was running out. After feeding her food from the new bag, she immediately started vomiting white foam. She continued to do so for several days after Christmas. After she quit vomiting, I fed her boiled chicken instead of her dog food and had no further issues. Once I felt she was okay, I fed her the dog food again, and the next day she started vomiting mucous and blood. I had to take her to the vet, at which time she was given probiotics, and I was urged to switch food at that time. Since then, I have not fed her the Purina pro plan and she has had no further issues.   | 2   | Years  | Terrier - Yorkshire     | Dog | 20  | Pound |

On 12/13/2023 we received a shipment of a case (24 cans) of Purina Pro Plan Chicken & Turkey Favorites Variety Pack Canned Cat Food 3 oz cans. Towards the end of December we opened the case and began feeding it to our cat. He began having random bouts of diarrhea. On 1/3/2024 the cat began throwing up along with having diarrhea. We took the cat to the vet and the said that his bladder was inflamed, gave him some medicine and was sent home. Later that day he began throwing up and having blood in his stool, was lethargic, and refusing to eat or drink. He was taken to the emergency vet where he was kept for 2 days being given IV fluids. The vet did blood work and scans and advised he did not have a blockage anywhere in his bowels and that his thyroid numbers were a bit off but otherwise his blood work was good (ie no cancer or other major medical diagnoses). The vet agreed to take him off the food. After a few days of being off the food, he got his appetite back and is slowly recovering. Once arriving home, the new dog food was poured into my dogs food bowl that was clean. My first dog (b) (6) went to smell and take a bite of the food. She behaved unusually as she backed up, started gagging and coughing and then fell over underneath the kitchen chair. After a couple of minutes, she recovered and seemed fine. She went over the water bowl and drank some water; she then moved to the food bowl to attempt to eat again, once again it was if she was hit with a tranquilizer as she lost her balance and footing and fell to the ground again. We moved the food bowl away from her and she recovered and moved to the living room where she sat for about 5 minutes. I took the food bowl and placed the bowl in the middle of the kitchen floor and called my dog back over. She came over and placed her nose about an inch from the dog food and again immediately lost her balance and footing. I removed the dog food from the area to include the bag the food came in. | EON-558845 | 1/10/2024 11:44 | Purina Pro Plan Puppy Small Breed Formula  | She was a perfectly happy healthy puppy. She got weaned onto purina one puppy along with pumpkin mixed in and her breeder reported that she wasn't eating much of it but could be her size. Fast forward about a month in and when we started a new bag, she came down with her first bout of bloody, mucus, diarrhea. It would happen on a weekly basis and on the days shed eat more of it the worse her diarrhea to the point she was pooping straight water out and vomiting. We ran every test possible, vet put her on metronidazole, and nothing was helping the random bouts of diarrhea. Over the past 2 weeks I began transitioning her to Orijin out of desperation that MAYBE it could be her food. During the transition you could physically see the purina diarrhea bits mixed with the firm normal looking stool that was darker so I assumed it was the orijin. I wasn't totally sure though so I figured id wait until she was fully off purina and her poop is 100% normal and is dark like the orijin food. This was a nightmare for her and I as she was waking at all hours of the night with this explosive mystery diarrhea for MONTHS and now its completely gone.   | 6  | Months | Cattle Dog - Australian (blue heeler, red heeler, Queensland cattledog) | Dog | 13  | Pound |

Next morning and throughout the next 4 days I saw each cat vomiting at some point, some more than others. Found some spots by unknown cat on carpet multiple times a day and overnight. Varying degrees of lethargy. Seemed to affect each cat a little different (meaning some recovered faster than others). One of my smallest intact makes was affected the worst. He vomited regularly for 4 days and was very lethargic. I gave him a bolus of fluids a couple times. I pulled the food that first day. Went to store for new bag (new looking label than previous bags). Introduced new bag of food back to them. They slowly got better.  |    |        | Domestic Shorthair  | Cat |     |       |

The food was from a new case but the same flavor & food she has been eating for years. The next day, she vomited and had diarrhea. I assumed she had a hairball so I continued feeding the same food. She got progressively worse, with extreme vomit and diarrhea. I submitted a stool sample to our vet to check for parasites. The sample was normal so on 11/15, I took her to the vet. By this time, her vomiting and diarrhea was much worse and she could barely move. The vet ran labs which were all normal. He treated her with fluids, Cerenia, famotidine, Vitamin B12 Metrodiazole and Fortiflora.   | 16 | Years  | Domestic (unspecified)  | Cat | 8   | Pound |

My dog became ill within a week. She stopped eating, vomited up to 20 times per day. Eventually blood was in her vomit and that's when the recurring vet visits happened. She ended up having to have a major surgery for the vet to try and "locate" the issue. The only thing they found was a severely inflamed pancreas. They treated her for this and she got better. She was on royal canin GI wet food for about 3 weeks after surgery at which we slowly transitioned back to purina. She got a clean bill of health at her check up appointment (right before the transition back to purina) and a week after her fully being back on purina she started to decline and fast. Same course of events but this time led to her becoming septic. We had to put her down. I started looking into reasons or to find answers as the vets could not find any. And I stumbled upon a facebook group of 500+ individuals all dealing with the same issues eating the same food.   | 2.5 | Years  | Pit Bull                             | Dog | 46   | Pound |

Last week he started with diarrhea for a few days, so I just fed him a diet of bland chicken and pumpkin. Our other bulldog got into his food one time and also had diarrhea. After two days of bland food and feeling better, I placed him back on Purina Pro and within hours he was sick, Diarrhea, vomiting, crying out in pain so I began to research. What I have learned about Purina Pro which is sickening and killing these dogs is horrendous and it needs immediate addressing. | EON-558800 | 1/9/2024 16:36  | Purina Pro Plan Sport Chicken 27/17  | My dog has been eating Purina Pro Plan dry dog food (of different varieties) for years. Beginning on November 13, 2023, he began vomiting up half digested food. Cerenia would resolve for a day or two, but then the vomiting would recur. He would refuse his food during vomiting episodes. After 3 episodes of vomiting over the course of about 10 days, I took him to the vet. Objective findings were elevated WBC's (eosinophils) as well as gastritis. Subjective findings were lethargy and increased anxiety. He was given Cerenia, amoxicillin, and metronidazole. He was also switched to a bland diet of chicken and rice (home cooked) during this time. After medications were complete, I transitioned back to Purina Pro Plan Sport Chicken 27/17. My dog tolerated this for 4-5 days, and the vomiting started recurring again. My vet had indicated that the next step would be a GI scope, so I switched him to a bland diet of chicken and rice, and have since transitioned to Steve's Dog Food (raw frozen). He is no longer refusing meals and has not vomited since being off of the Pro Plan kibble. His lethargy and anxiety have resolved as well.  | 4   | Years  | Retriever - Nova Scotia Duck Tolling | Dog | 42   | Pound |

| EON-558787 | 1/9/2024 16:08  | Purina Pro Plan Dog Food   | Hi there! I'm trying hard to not be fear mongered into thinking my dog (b) (6) is ill from the Purina Pro Plan but I've been feeding her, her whole life. It's becoming more difficult as she was overall extremely healthy and has never even been on a medication. My dog (b) (6) is VERY sick. She started vomiting bile the 1st week of November 2x that week, 2nd and 3rd week 3x, 4th week 5x. December 1st 2nd week daily. 3rd week until now it's 2-3x p/day. I switched her to a homemade diet to calm her stomach it lessened but was advised to go back on it with Prilosec and it continued. I took her back to the vet for further testing; an ultrasound showed she has a bacteria infection usually from food and Gastritis. She's on 5 prescriptions including antibiotics and has had an IV of fluids. I am struggling to get them down because she doesn't even want to eat. (b) (6) is vomiting 2x a day. She will hardly eat. Her intestinal track and stomach are so inflamed she can hardly chew and swallow. She has lost a lot of weight, lethargic and continues to get dehydrated. I'm so scared right now for her life. My vet bills are depleting my account and I don't know what I'm going to do if she needs more work done or even worse passes away. I know there isn't a recall but please look into this deeper! This seems too coincidental she was healthy and happy then slowly not wanting to eat then sick to even sicker! I can obtain all UPC through my local store. My 4 month puppy (b) (6) threw up a few times in December and she is on a puppy formula also by Purina Pro Plan. Not sure if it's because it's the adult formula (she snuck (b) (6) or coincidence. I'm generally very careful because it's 2 different formulas and feed them separately. (b) (6) has been fine otherwise and hasn't had the adult food since but felt it should be noted. We live in city limits, fenced yard, she hasn't been on any outings or walks in months. Thank you for your time! I stopped feeding her dog food for roughly 12 hours to give her stomach a rest, and then started her on human yogurt, eggs, and boiled chicken for approximately 2 days. She became better and so I slowly reintroduced her dog food kibble until she was back on 100% dog food which took a few days. The cycle began again with vomiting and lethargy. We went through this process two more times and I then took her to the veterinarian. Our veterinarian ran blood tests and did a physical exam. She had lost 7 lb since her last visit, her colon felt loose and empty and he felt this was due to having diarrhea. We kept her on a human grade diet, her blood test all came back negative and her behavior return to normal. As of today, January 9th 2024 she has been back on her regular dog food for roughly three days and is once again exhibiting behavioral changes with lethargy and total lack of interest in any food. | EON-558771 | 1/9/2024 15:08 | Purina One Healthy Weight Formula   | I fed my dog & when he finished eating there was a small yellowish worm in the bottom of his bowl. Since he is a springer spaniel & he always has his nose to the ground sniffing out everything I thought well maybe he drug it in on one of his ears since they pick up stuff. Just in case though I picked up a handful of food before I gave it to him again looked OK, same scenario after this feeding except this time there were two worms . I picked up another handful & came up with a spider web with food tangled all in it. I'm like it's time for me to call Purina. My son came about that time & I told him what was going on & asked him if he thought we ought to pour the bag out to see if there was something dead in it or what before I called Purina > I usually keep the food in a plastic container, but as I am disabled I can't pour it into the container without help. I make sure the bag isn't gapping open until I can get it transferred. My son picked it up & there was no need to pour it out; It was literally teeming with maggots. I called Purina. The man was very cordial. When I described the incident to him he seemed to know exactly what to ask. He first ask if the worms were white like grubs; I told him no that I gardened knew what a grub looked like. I told him exactly what the worm looked like & that it was yellow & then said not bright yellow & before I could say another word he said,"yellowish". (exact description of color) Then he wanted to know the length & if the worm had hooks in it's mouth. I assured him I didn't pick up a worm to see if it had "hooks in it's mouth". I gave him all the numbers he asked for & he agreed to send me coupons for more food. I have fed Purina products to my dogs for quite a number of years (after Nutro became hard to find around here) so I didn't think anything about buying another bag until my son shared this article with me he found on line. A few years ago I switcher her to Purina Pro Plan LiveClear Adult 7+ for her nutrition and my allergies. I noticed her fur was thinning and she had some dandruff when she switched to the liveclear but my allergies were significantly better so we kept her on it. Around oct/Nov she started turning her nose up to her food. Just picked at it. And often, she vomited after eating. I decided it was hairballs or her treats. Ignored it. Around Thanksgiving I opened a new bag and it smelled rancid. I gagged and immediately threw the entire bag away. The next bag wasn't as foul smelling and my cat was hungry so I fed it. I noticed her fur thinning more, she was licking at herself constantly, itching, constipated. She became increasingly lethargic. She was eating less and less. Drinking less and less. Interacting less and less. She stopped eating her Fancy feast gravy lovers wet food; barely locked at the gravey. Her labs are mostly normal, but her vets are now watching her pancreas. She is bloated and guards when you touch her right side. 4 days ago I stopped feeding Purina completely. My cat has started to perk up, is playing, is drinking water in mass quantities, and is eating her non Purina cat food no issues, no vomit, no diarrhea. | EON-558740 | 1/9/2024 12:44 | Purina Pro sensitive skin and stomach turkey and oatmeal   | I started feeding my cats Purina Pro Plan a few weeks ago. I've noticed about 5 throw ups within 2 weeks and our very healthy rabbit passed away from unknown causes. The cat food is very high and out of reach from my rabbits, but with the increased throwing up, I do not know if the rabbit happened to consume some. It could be a coincidence, but I wanted to file a report just incase since my animals have been very healthy and now we have noticed a significant increase in throw up and a passing of one of our other pets. This has not been a problem in the 7 years I've used Blue cat food. My rabbits had even eaten that food two years ago and had no reactions. Hoping this report can help prevent more pet deaths or illnesses.  | 13 | Years  | Domestic Shorthair   | Cat |      |       |

The meals are pre packaged and frozen. Every day I thaw in my fridge the meals for the following day. It started around six months ago, that at least twice a month the thawed meals were leaking liquid in my fridge I started to put paper towels under them. Some bags were slashed in the back (always in the back) which is impossible to notice when the food is still frozen. I contacted them several times but got nowhere with them, and it keeps happening. It's a hazard for contamination and loss of ingredients at the same time. I cannot trust them anymore therefore I am changing companies but I am really shocked that they did not address the issue. I am sure I am not the only one with this happening. A glitch in their packing? I don't know but I am done. It would be great if you could investigate. That food is not cheap, and there is a safety glitch somewhere in their process   |      |        |                       |     |      |          |

Both had stopped eating for over 5 days. (b) (6) stopped eating, drinking, and going to the bathroom. Last time I witnessed (b) (6) drinking of water and using the litter box was a good 4 days. I took (b) (6) to the hospital since he would not even drink and because he was just hiding. He stayed overnight in the hospital, in an oxygen tent, and was put on IVs and antinausea. They were able to get him to eat, which at that point was 5 days. I was able to pick him up the next day. (b) (6) continued to vomit bile up, yet was drinking and peeing. She started eating a few days later. Since she was at least drinking, I was less concerned.I decided to search the internet on their food, Blue Ridge Beef Kitten Grind, and found out that the food was recalled for salmonella and listeria. I found this out after I picked up my cat from the veterinary hospital. I asked my general veterinarian if there were any next steps from his perspective, and he said no medications were necessary due to the cause of them being sick. |      |        |                       |     |      |          |

| EON-558721 | 1/9/2024 12:12 | Purina Puppy Chow Tender and Crunchy   | My goldendoodle had 9 puppies which had reached their 8 weeks, on the morning of December 17 two of my puppies were dead in their playpen and there was a lot of vomit. They had been eating the purina puppy chow tender and crunchy. Then other 6 puppies started showing symptoms of lethargy. They started slowing down and two of them started having seizures. I took them to a veterinarian ER in (b) (6), where they treated the puppies and medicated the two that were seizing. On the way to (b) (6), another puppy passed away in our car. Then at the vet clinic, they could not stop one puppy from seizing after medicating her, she kept on seizing every 5 minutes. We had to put her down. Puppies had their first set of vaccines and never go outside. After seeing the information online I got concerned because I never thought it could be the food, but now I am not too sure. I stopped the purina because my adult dogs and 1 puppy vomitted two days ago with the Purina Dog and puppy Chow. I had 4 puppies pass away, 3 never showed symptoms, and 2 recovered (including one that had had seizures).                         | 8    | Weeks  | Other Canine/dog      | Dog | 1.74 | Kilogram |

| EON-558678 | 1/9/2024 8:37 | Purina One Plus Healthy Weight  | We have been feeding (b) (6) Purina One Healthy Weight kibble since approximately 09/2023, with no issues. We purchased a new bag of this brand on or about 12/30/2023, and began feeding her from this bag on 12/31/2023. About an hour after she first ate, she vomited partially digested kibble. There was no other substance in the vomit, just the kibble. We continued feeding her from this bag daily, and every day she would vomit at least 1-2 times. On Saturday, 01/06/2024, approximately one hour after she ate, she vomited 4 times within an hour time period. This prompted me to take her to urgent care at her veterinarian, (b) (6). They examined her, and also performed xrays to rule out any sort of obstruction, and found none. She was given fluids and an injection of an anti-nausea medication. I purchased a bag of Blue Diamond brand kibble, and we began feeding her that brand on the evening of 01/06/2024. She has had no vomiting since we changed her food. I spoke to her vet on the phone today, and expressed my concerns that perhaps her vomiting was a result of a "bad batch" of the Purina One, and he said that it was absolutely a possibility, and encouraged me to make this report and not give (b) (6) any more of the Purina One. | 2  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 70  | Pound |

| EON-558672 | 1/9/2024 8:37 | Purina Pro Plan - complete Essentials - shredded blend - chicken and rice formula                    | We have fed our 1.5 y/o German shepherd purina pro plan for the duration of his life. In late November, he started having extremely runny diarrhea. The diarrhea did not stop and became extremely bloody and mucousy. He began to have accidents in the home, and he had never previously done that. Eventually, his bowel movements became nothing but blood. Dark blood losing about 3 to 4 ounces each bowel movement he was pooping about every hour to an hour and a half and every time it would be mucousy in Bloody sometimes dark rich blood and other times bright arterial blood. Finally after two days of unrelenting diarrhea I took him to the vet. The vet ran Parvo tests and took x-rays and bloodwork, as well as a sonogram of his stomach and digestive tract and they could find nothing physical to blame. All tests came back negative. They pumped him with fluids and sent us home. Our dog continued to be lethargic, have acute anorexia, and became extremely ill and extremely thin. I then researched symptoms of his that he was having that could be somehow related to what he was experiencing and finally after coming up with no answers, I decided to try a new batch of food. I thought that re-ordering a new bag of food could possibly be the answer to our problems. I threw away the first bad batch of food, and continue to feed him the brand new bag that we had just purchased the diarrhea lessened for about a week and then once we begin the new bag of Purina pro plan food, he began to have the same extremely liquid bowel movements filled with blood, eventually we decided to throw out all of the Purina pro plan food and switch to raw/kibble diet. Almost immediately within switching his diet he became more energetic but his poops were still very liquid and bloody. Finally after about a week or less on the new food diet he became healthy and stopped having blood in his stool and eventually the diarrhea stopped after about 3 to 5 days. I talked to other pet parents that fed the dog Purina pro plan, adult chicken and rice, the orange bag, and they too, said that their dog experience the exact same symptoms and one even perished. | 1.5 Years | Shepherd Dog - German     | Dog    | 65 Pound  |

I went to Walmart in (b) (6) to pickup a few cans to tide us over till our order came from Chewy. We gave (b) (6) just 1.5oz of the Purina One Lamb & Long Brown rice can food. Because Walmart doesn't carry the Purina Puppy Past 5.5oz cans. After giving (b) (6) his morning helping of 1.5oz of the Purina One evening was fine after his evening helping of the 1.5oz Purina One can food he started not wanting to eat his dry food of Purina One Lamb and Rice food which he has been eating since he was 8 weeks old along with the 1.2oz of the Purina Puppy Past. We give him the Purina Puppy Past so he will take his meds. He than became lethargic, whining, curled up in a ball like he was having cramps. By the next morning he was throwing up. Luckily we found a store Meijer carried the Purina Puppy Past 5.5oz cans. We started our (b) (6) back on it ASAP and after a couple days of recuperating he was back to normal. To me the only difference we did was change was his can food. And that little amount we gave him twice a day should never have done that to our fur baby.   | 2 Years   | Dachshund - Miniature     | Dog    | 12 Pound  |

For the last year he has been steadily losing weight (97 pounds to 71 currently) with NO change to food, diet or exercise. The past 4 months he has had 2 days a week where he will not eat, is lethargic and throwing up. He has also developed a hive-type rash that looks like chicken-skin all over his body despite being on Cytopoint and having no change to diet or exposure to anything new. We finally had enough and went to the vet. He all of a sudden has dangerously-high pancreatic values that panicked the vet. | EON-558655 | 1/9/2024 8:36 | Purina Pro Plan Dog food  | (b) (6) vomited several times on December 17th and wouldn't eat for the next 2 days. I took him to the vet on the 19th and was given Cerenia for nausea with instructions to start him on boiled chicken with rice. He was lethargic, which was a side effect of the meds but still wouldn't eat, stopped drinking , leaked urine, lost weight, got weaker and would only come to go to the bathroom once a day. I took him to the animal hospital on the night of December 23rd into the 24th. A fe hours an $800 later, a blood test revealed that he was in kidney failure with pancreatitis. I had to euthanize him about 3:30 that morning. I am grieving pretty hard because he was also my therapy/ESA dog. I threw out the remainder of a bag of Purina Pro Plan because I noticed the dogs didn't really like it. They were picking out chicken I mixed it with and leaving the kibble. I was curious if the food made (b) (6) sick and decided to buy a brand different from Purina. On the morning of 1/8/2024 I was reading Google News and came across an article about Purina Pro Plan. While reading it spoke of Lady who lost her dog with kidney issues and other issues after eating the specific bran of dog food. Further down it revealed more deaths and illnesses associated with the food. I reached out to his vet, the vet hospital, a Facebook group of like people and this website to raise awareness about this brand. | 8 | Years | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog |     |       |

| EON-558653 | 1/9/2024 8:34 | Purina One Chicken and Rice Formula   | Dog food was purchased through amazon. Food was opened on 12/5/2023 and it had an odd smell to it when the bag was opened up, but was not expired so it was assumed to be okay. The chicken morsals also looked different than what we had in previous bags, but we just assumed it changed a little or something. Our dog ate the food for about 3 days (12/5-12/7), then she started loosing interest in eating. On 12/7, she had lots of vomiting and diarrhea. Our vet recommended putting her on a bland chicken and rice diet until symptoms improved. She was on a bland diet from 12/7-12/10. On 12/10 she began vomiting blood and was taken to the emergency vet. The emergency vet ran blood work tests, radiographs, medications and fluids. She was diagnosed and treated for gastroenteritis. Olive was released from the emergency vet on 12/10 to begin her recovery at home with a bland diet and the provided medications. On 12/12 our 2nd Dog (b) (6) (8 month old lab mix, ~30 pounds), who also had portions of this same dog food, rapidly declined with symptoms of vomiting, diarrhea, and lethargy within only a few hours, and she was taken to the emergency vet. Salmon and rice for large breed. I ordered her food from Chewy and the October & November bag of food the kibbles were different but didn't think much of it. October 22nd (b) (6) had her first seizure out of no where and again on November 7th. Vet recommended starting her on Keppra to control the seizures since we didn't know why they were happening. On medication (b) (6) has had 2 more seizures on December 15th and 26th.. after hearing all these things about dogs becoming sick on this brand I began to think could this be why (b) (6) been experiencing seizure when she was perfectly healthy? Since her last seizure our breeder recommended switching her food since he heard alot going on with Purina so we switched her to Wholesome. So far so good it's been 2 weeks and (b) (6) hasn't had another seizure, but if this in fact could be the reason I feel Puri a should take responsibility and recall all their dog food til the problem is fixed. In the interim, my wife viewed a posting on Facebook and Tic Toc in which pet owners were posting similar stories about their pets who were being fed Purina Pro Plan. We conducted a little more research and found a Facebook page: Saving Pets One Pet @ at A Time, which spoke about this issue in depth. I contacted our breeder who recommended that we immediately stop use of the Purina, monitor our dog for any additional signs and symptoms, feed her a diet or rice and broth in the interim and once she feels better change her diet to Fromm. We were also advised to contact our vet and retain the bag of food in question should testing be required, which we did. They have been eating this food for 3ish weeks now. I opened this bag and started feeding it on the morning of 12/26/23. Starting around noon on 12/28 I noticed loose stool in some of them. By that night, most had bad diarrhea. I am a licensed veterinary medical technician so I have access to check stool samples, ect. On 12/29, I did a fecal from the worst pups and just found no parasites. I started them on metronidazole that day. On 12/31 they started vomiting. The vomit isn't consist and it isn't one particular puppy. The food is partially digested. As of today, some stools have got better but most still have bad diarrhea. During this time, some have had bloody diarrhea. I still have some puppies occasionally vomiting. These puppies are raised inside and have never been allowed to go outside. I do not allow visitors. They have had their first set of vaccinations and have been dewormed every 2 weeks starting at 2 weeks of age. All puppies are still acting normal with no signs of lethargy or dehydration. | EON-558638 | 1/9/2024 8:33 | Purina One True Instinct Real Turkey and Venison   | We have used Purina for a couple of years now, juggling back in forth with Purina One lamb and rice, salmon, and True Instinct. The first incident occurred in November of 2023 the night before Thanksgiving. My dog, (b) (6) started vomiting and could not keep anything down. She did this for three days and then was fine. She had not had human food, anything out of her ordinary food, nor had her routine changed. She was lethargic and could only keep down a few sips of water. This happened again this past week. This time, it lasted six days instead of three. On top of the vomiting, she was having diarrhea and stomach gurgles, but was able to keep down other types of food and treats. Once we realized it might be the food, we removed it and switched her open. Since last night, she has been eating great and no more vomiting or lethargy. I am pretty sure it was the food making her ill.   | 7  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)             | Dog | 65 | Pound |

Probably when she was about 2 and a half years old she started to get this horrible reaction where she would throw up everyday. She is in excellent health and is so young. She had bathroom issues as well and got terribly itchy. I went to the vet and they suggested changing food. They stated that pet food vendors can change the recipes in the foods without having to report it and it makes the dogs sick. They stated there must have been a change on the recipe. A dog doesn't just all the sudden start vomiting and getting sick from the food it's eaten since birth. She's been tested, given all recommended shots and I changed her food since and she has been perfect. I will never get any Purina pro plan foods again for either cats or dogs. Cats did not want to eat much of the food, which was unusual. After eating the cats had severe vomiting and diarrhea. It was so bad they animals didn't even have time to get to the litter box and would defecate on themselves. Was unaware it was caused by the food at first. It took until day 2 or 3 for me to switch their food. The vomiting and diarrhea continued for those 2-3 days. Cats became very weak. During this time we were worried about dehydration and administered subcutaneous fluids and anti-nausea pills. When we switched foods the symptoms vanished and cats quickly returned to normal. | EON-558588 | 1/9/2024 8:28 | Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food   | Our dog has been on Purina Pro Plan pet foods since he was a puppy. We have continued to give him Purina Pro Plan foods because he seemed to like it and do well on it. On 12/18/23 we purchased a new bag of Purina Pro Plan food, Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food (30-lb bag). We opened the new bag on 12/26/23 and started feeding it to our dog. On 12/29/23 he had a routine vet appointment and his liver enzymes came back elevated. On January 1, 2024, he had some diarrhea and started to act like he didn't want to eat the dry food anymore. He would even spit it out. We continued to feed him the food, thinking he was just being picky, but then he started vomiting on 1/7/24. We discontinued the Purina Pro Plan on 1/7/24 and fed him chicken and rice. On 1/8/24 he threw up bile with blood in it and had diarrhea. We took him to the vet to receive IV fluids. We performed an x-ray, which showed no obstruction or other issues.  | 1 Years   | Retriever - Golden        | Dog | 70   | Pound |

| EON-558583 | 1/9/2024 8:24  | Purina Pro Plan Adult Complete Essentials Chicken and Rice.   | I've been feeding Purina Pro Plan to (b) (6) her entire life. We received our latest back in late November 2023. We started feeding (b) (6) and her sister (b) (6) (3) this bag in early December, within a week or so of feeding her this food, they both developed severe diarrhea. We tried to control with probiotics for weeks, we'd see slight improvements, but then it would worsen again. I suspected it might be the food causing the issue, so I checked the Chewy reviews and found that several people had reported similar issues. We changed food immediately however we still couldn't get the diarrhea under control, our vet was out of town so we went to an emergency clinic on 12/31 the vet ran stool tests and found no parasites. I told him I thought it might be food and he's reaction suggested I was not the first person he'd seen who suspected PPP was causing their dog's issue. They were on antibiotics for 7 days, and their stools improved but have now become sporadic again. We will go to their vet as soon as we can get in.   | 5 Years   | Whippet   | Dog | 32 Pound |
| EON-558509 | 1/8/2024 11:12 | Purina Pro Plan Complete Essentials Salmon & Rice Formula   | A few days before Christmas our completely healthy cat started to have seizures, excessive salivation, and lethargy. Our veterinarian did several tests with unknown cause. As her seizures and lethargy progressed, the decision was made to euthanize. After Christmas, I saw several posts online that other animals had the same effects and while some had to be euthanized. To be on the safe side, I wanted to report this one my end just in case it is something related. The one thing in common was the brand of food, Purina Pro Plan.   | 3 Years   | Maine Coon  | Cat |          |

After taking the food back to the store in which it was purchased they gave us another bag free of charge. The issue persisted. After a round at the vet a diagnosis of Gastritis and various tests to determine if she had IBD and a vet bill of over $300 dollars in two days. We swapped her food and gave her all the prescribed medication and she has recovered. Our other pet eats Purina pro plan sensitive skin and stomach and we have not seen an issue, however this does not mean it will not happen. There seems to be an increase in sick dogs from this food, and I am currently looking at options to replace if there is no recall placed on the food soon.  | 1.5 Years | Shepherd Dog - Australian   | Dog | 13 Pound |

It started with loud gurgling in his stomach that then led to vomiting, diarrhea. The next day he had excessive blood coming from his rectum. We rushed him to the vet where after many tests they diagnosed him with a known gastro disorder. We immediately put him on a bland diet. After a couple weeks we started to introduce back in his dog food and once again he started having the stomach gurgling and diarrhea. Then this week we were alerted to a website where dogs were having similar issues all on the same food. We had recently purchased a brand new bag of Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Stomach before any stomach issues had started but never connected the incident to that because he has been on this brand of dog food since he was adopted at 8 months old. Now hearing all the similar stories of other pets on this food we believe his troubles are because of it.  | 4 Years   | Mixed (Dog)   | Dog | 28 Pound |

He was given medication and told to eat bland food. He was given boiled chicken and rice for several days. His Purina food was slowly added in and the diarrhea came back. He then was eating ground beef and rice. Once again his Purina was slowly added back in and the diarrhea returned. We have had two vet visits where they did physical exams, a fecal test and a blood test. My vet recommended switching to Hills Prescription diet to get him back on track. | EON-558476 | 1/8/2024 7:56 | Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food | Per my vet recommendation 5+ yrs ago, I started feeding my now oldest dog PPP Salmon sensitive skin/stomach due to stomach issues eating another brand of food. She has had a mix of soft and dry food ever since. She never had any issues in the past but has really bad seasonal allergies, and some days, she is really down. However, I happened to see the article about sick dogs pop up the same day I received a new bag of PPP in the mail but had already opened it and added it to her food bin. Maybe it was a bad allergy day, and maybe it was the food...call it was a huge coincidence that the same day she started a new bag she seemed sickly by the end of the day. I gave her some frozen pure pumpkin I keep on hand and the next day I fed her another PPP brand my youngest dog eats (PPP Complete) and she was full of energy and a full 180 from the day before. I've always been a skeptical of social media bashing without proof and I know there are a lot of PPP haters that live to take shots whenever they can, but I'm not letting my skepticism put my babies life in jeopardy and will hold off on giving her PPP Salmon sensitive stomach until this plays out and I kept the bag if there is an all-out recall. | 7   | Years  | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 33 | Pound |

It shipped out of Pennsylvania. I received it on December 30th didn't open it till the 1st as we had a little bit left of his other bag he's been eating this since he was 8 weeks old when we brought him home as a puppy never an issue until this bag. I fed him three cups of the food on New Year's Day evening by the next morning at 6:00 a.m. he was throwing up he threw up a total of three times that morning he was lethargic and depressed and quiet not usual for him at all. I didn't think anything of it but of course we went through the 24-hour withholding a food protocol just water as all he had he didn't throw up any more but he was very lethargic and laid around all the rest of that day into the next day. After withholding food 24 hours we gave him a couple of spoonfuls of pumpkin puree and warm water watered it down so he'd get more water cuz he wasn't drinking water that well either he ate that kept it down he was still quiet laying around not his usual self that evening I gave him another bowl full of the pumpkin and warm water he kept that down still quiet and suppressed the next day I gave him the pumpkin and water and added two scrambled eggs to that he ate that kept it down and by that afternoon he perked up quite a bit still not quite his self but perked up I gave him another bowl full of the pumpkin scrambled eggs and water mixture he did fine the next day I gave you miss pumpkin and egg mixture that morning and then at 5:30 that evening I added to his pumpkin and egg mixture a half a cup of the Purina Pro Plan to the food that was at 5:30 p.m. by 5:00 a.m. the next morning he threw that up he threw up twice he was puny not I wouldn't say lethargic like the first to go around but he was so very quiet and very subdued he's been like that most of the day and I just gave him after 24 hours with holding again another dose of pumpkin and water without the egg and he's held that down so adding the pro plan back again made him throw up so it is definitely associated with the food. I did note that the food smells a little bit different and it's a slightly lighter color than the other bags and like I said he's been on there since he was eight weeks old he'll be three in March. I did report the problem to chewy it seems like they've had quite a few reports they did refund my money back and I've ordered a different kind of food for him for when he does start eating again the food was stored in an airtight food keeper container but I do still have the bag also as some of the food doesn't fit in to the container | 2   | Years | Retriever - Golden | Dog | 78  | Pound |

We got to our friends house and a couple hours after dinner she had the runs. She woke me up 4 times the first night to go potty (abnormal) & she had the liquids. I wasn't sure what might have been up with her. I gave her breakfast and noticed within the following two it became explosive and she was really straining to go. I immediately started her on a bland diet of chicken and rice, that evening got her some FortiFlora. She was thrilled to eat (loves chicken), however her symptoms didn't improve. Night time 12/18 it got bloody and at this point she was going out every hour or so I called the vet. Since she happily ate her dinner and was drinking water and was alert they didn't think that it was an emergency.I kid you not, I slept on the couch, with my shoes and coat on so we could sprint out to the grass when she needed. The next few hours it was every 15-30 minutes. At this point she started to decline, lost control of her bowels, wasn't able to tell me she had to go out and started to get drooly. I called the vet again and she advised at this point I take her to the emergency room. So at around 4:00am 12/19/2023 that was what we did.She was admitted and aggressively treated for dehydration. The vet determined that her symptoms, timing, and onset, were consistent with what is seen when a dog ingests a bad bag of food. I don't recall the specific reference to what makes them sick, but it started with an A.We spent the day in an emergency vet while (b) (6) recovered. | EON-558453 | 1/8/2024 7:28 | Purina Pro Plan adult sensitive skin and stomach                    | Suddenly started with very loose diarrhea and shortly after that started vomiting up the food even as long as 8hrs after eating at times and would vomit the food as if it hadn't even been digested. Then started with a dermatitis skin infection and acid reflux. She has had numerous tests starting with just simple stool samples to bloodwork to much more extensive bloodwork to X-rays. A lot of different antibiotics, probiotics, injections, etc and switched from Purina a pro Plan adult sensitive skin and stomach to Purina Pro Plan hydrolyzed vegetarian which eventually helped some after much stomach heeling time as this all started back in July of 2023. She has since been on the hydrolyzed diet and is finally seeming to be getting back to normal. Just starting a new food and all seems well so far but we tried to transition her back to the PPP Sensitive skin and stomach a couple months ago thinking she was well enough to start adding it back in to her diet and she started all over again so we had to take her off of it again and this kind of validated that is was indeed a food issue. No recalls at the time so nobody thought too much about it but now my daughters dogs who'd also been on it for a while started with all the same symptoms. My girl was on this food for a year and a half with no issues before this all started and during all of this lost almost 10lbs. She also lost the desire to eat it when it places in her bowl as if she knew it wasn't good for her. She is normally very food driven. I'm hearing a lot of other people complaining about like symptoms on this food so I figured it's worth at least reporting my experience in case it helps others as well to get this problem under control and hopefully recalled so others don't have to go through all of this or the few thousand dollars that were spent to get to where we are now with her. | 3.5 | Years  | Retriever - Golden    | Dog | 61  | Pound |

On Monday, January 1, 2024 my cat threw up and had some diarrhea. He didn't eat his dinner that night and was lethargic. He seemed to slowly be getting better and started eating again the following morning. However, on January 4, 2024, I was at work and my boyfriend was gone. When he came home he found my cat in a pool of urine and a large amount of food that he had thrown up with bits of wet food and dry cat food that was not fully processed. My cat was unresponsive and had already become stiff because he had passed away. This happened in a matter of hours from when I had left for work 10 minutes before 8am. | EON-558448 | 1/8/2024 7:28  | Purina Pro Plan  | (b) (6) had been on Purina Pro Plan (Puppy under 1 year version) for three or four months with no issues. However, on or about December 15, 2023, we picked up a new bag of the same food from (b) (6) in (b) (6) and she immediately starting having problems. She threw up the next morning and began having severe diarrhea and acted dehydrated and lethargic. She exhibited these symptoms for about a week and on December 22, 2023 we took her to the vet. The vet did some tests and prescribed her Hill's Prescription dog food and some other medication. The first day on the Hill's brand dog food made a world of difference. We knew at that time it had to be related to her Purina dog food, but couldn't find any information at that time associated with any problems or recalls. On January 4, 2024, we learned through a news article that other pet owners had experienced similar issues with the Purina Pro Plan. This confirmed for us that it was her old dog food that had caused her to become sick. We now have her on the Hill's brand and she is doing much better, however it was scary for us and did result in an expensive vet bill. | 9 Months | Retriever - Labrador            | Dog | 41  | Pound |

| EON-558445 | 1/8/2024 7:28  | Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Salmon and Rice formula   | We had switched to Purina ProPlan- The first bag was fine, However the entire second bag he was vomiting stomach bile intermittently a few times a week- that lasted approx a month, until I noticed there was blood in his vomit. I called the vet immediately that morning, and they advised to get a fecal sample- it was then I noticed he had loose stool that also had blood in it. The night before he also developed a food aversion and refused to eat that food. The vet had done a fecal test for parasites, a blood panel for organ function as well as an x-ray for any blockage and they all came back clear. The only difference was this specific bag of dog food. The vet prescribed a 3-week antibiotic, an anti-nausea, as well as an anti-diarrheal. They started him on a prescription Royal Canin GI protocol and advised us to switch his food immediately and mix it with the GI food. He had lost 16 lbs within that month- month and a half time frame- Ever since doing so, he has been back to his happy healthy self.  | 6 Years  | Shepherd Dog - German           | Dog | 90  | Pound |

He'd been eating it for 5 years without issue until about late summer last year. It started with vomiting bile and mucous in the mornings and vomiting his food right after eating. Over a few months it got worse and he didn't want to eat hardly at all. It then progressed to bloody diarrhea and bloody vomiting. He was critically ill and we had him at our vet and the urgent care 3 times. Thankfully I did some research on the food he was eating and found all the horrific reviews on chewy's site and purina's site about dogs getting sick recently. I stopped the food and he's been on anti inflammatory diet since then after finishing several meds. He's doing well now thank goodness.   | 5 Years  | Retriever - Golden              | Dog | 60  | Pound |

How the bottom of the bag looked was all over the bag. This is when I noticed my dog doing a weird gaging thing shortly after eating. I even used chicken broth to help it not be so crumbly. Then he soon started to throw up, have diarrhea, pee in the house which never happens. He was having to go so much. After going to the vet we switched him to chicken and baby food to get healthy which he did. I then switched him to purina sensitive stomach to hope that would work. I was adding canned food to support his digestion. If there was no canned food he would end up getting sick. I have been checking for recalls or other complains about the food and I finally found what was happening to other dogs. I have now switched him to instinct dog food either permanently or until there is something discovered about this food. This has happened from the end of November till now in January that I have been dealing with a sick dog. | 5  | Years  | Collie - Border       | Dog | 68  | Pound |

Over the last 4 months he barely eats and has lost 20 lbs. The vet didn't have any answers as to what was happening, they kind of thought he was depressed after his older brother died. He had to be put to sleep because of kidney/bladder issues. I had changed from one formula of pruna pro plan to another thinking that the food might be the issue but it continued to happen. I didn't realize the food could still be the cause until reading an article on others having issues with Purina pro plan. Friday morning he was agitated would not stay asleep on the bed like he normally does. i got up and he was actively throwing up. He had threw up multiple times all over the house and had major diarrhea. He had not been previously sick and they have not been around any other animals or been anywhere in quite some time to have picked up anything. My 100 lb. Pyrenees ate a little boy of this wet dog food also and stares having diarrhea. We thought it may be the food but wasn't a 100% sure. I just saw an article about Purina food making dogs sick and causing death. I wanted to report this because I think it is this food. I am no longer giving it to them and they seem to be doing better. (b) (6) tummy was making a lot of noise yesterday morning and he would not even eat part of my eggs, which he normally would gobble up. He did eat some cut up Bell pepper last night, so I am praying this is out of his system. | 7  | Years | Chihuahua                      | Dog | 4   | Pound |

| EON-558404 | 1/7/2024 19:41 | Purina Pro Plan Performance 30/20 Chicken and Rice Formula         | I purchased a bag of Purina Pro Plan Performance food in the chicken and rice flavor off Chewy for (b) (6). He has been eating this exact type of pro plan for 2 years now. After feeding him this bag for a week, he suddenly refused to eat and drink water on January 5, 2024. He also became very lethargic and had trouble walking. This all happened very suddenly. We took him to the emergency vet and he had to be hospitalized overnight on fluids as well as have multiple x rays and ultrasounds and blood work done. They found no tumors or anything in his abdomen that would cause such a severe and sudden problem, they determined it had to be something (b) (6) had eaten. He had no obstructions in his stomach or bowels either. He was released from the vet after being stable and when we tried to feed him from that same bag of food, he sniffed it and walked away. Once again refusing to eat this bag. Our other dog is on a different type of pro plan and when we fed him that, he ate that food with no issues.  | 7  | Years | American Pit Bull Terrier | Dog | 77 | Pound |

I initially thought it was just from starting a new food. After a couple weeks she started refusing to eat every 3-4 days, vomiting 1-2 times a week, and a soft stools and occasional diarrhea. After finishing a whole bag of the food she still had these things going on and I noticed dry flaking sores on her skin. I saw some people online talking about this food causing their dogs to have the same symptoms and immediately stopped giving her this food. After less than a week on a different non Purina brand food she now has more energy, no diarrhea or vomiting.   | 5  | Years | Whippet                   | Dog | 60 | Pound |

| EON-558398 | 1/7/2024 19:41 | Purina Pro Plan LiveClear Sensitive skin and stomach formula       | Switch from Iams Healthy Adult to Purina Pro Plan Live Clear sensitive skin and stomach. Slowly added 1/4 to 3/4 for a month, then 1/2 to 1/2, 3/4 to 1/4, and fully by mid November. I have two cats, one refused to eat it, so if he didn't eat I would put out the old food. He did not get sick. After fully switching, (b) (6) began vomiting after every time he ate. So after a few days of fully being on the Purine Pro Plan he started vomiting every time he ate. Before that he did vomit intermittently, but I attributed it to his stomach adjusting. After a few days of vomiting, I stopped the pro plan and switched back to Iams Healthy adult. He immediately stopped vomiting, but wasn't eating as much as usual. The first week of December he was hiding, and he's typically a very social cat. He then seemed to have a couple days of acting like he was a little better, eating more, coming out more, so I waited to bring him in thinking he just had a lot of changes with his food. On December 7th we came home from work and he was walking weird and drank some water and threw up. Brought him to the vet Dec 8th, his kidney labs were high and his calcium was high. Due to the high calcium they felt it could be cancer, though did ask a lot of questions about the food changes. He also could barely walk, so we opted to put him down on (b) (6). After I thought more of the food, spoke with a friend whose cat was on Purina Pro Plan and also having similar symptoms, then a cousin's dog got sick the same time frame, it made me search more into the food. I have seen hundreds of posts with cats and dogs becoming sick in the same time frame, all on Purina Pro Plan. I also read that animals affected by their prior recall with high vitamin D levels in their food had vitamin D toxicity, and high kidney labs, high calcium levels. | 11 | Years | Mixed (Cat)               | Cat | 9  | Pound |
| EON-558397 | 1/7/2024 19:41 | Purina Pro Plan adult sensitive skin & stomach small breed formula | Around 8am the morning of December 29th, my dog (b) (6) began throwing up. She had been getting her Purina Pro Plan Sensitive skin and stomach for small dogs food as normal, this bag of food was received by a Chewy.com order on 11/24/23. (b) (6) threw up somewhere between 10-15 times, beginning with a food-colored liquid throw up and ended with bile/spit throw up. After about an hour, she was done throwing up and slept most of the day (not eating any food that was offered, even plain rice or pumpkin puree). Around 2pm the same day, my other dog (b) (6) threw up 2 times, both times the vomit was undigested food. (b) (6) eats Purina Pro Plan adult weight management food, however sometimes he gets bits of (b) (6) food. After this initial incident, both dogs have thrown up a handful of times (we did not keep track of when). (b) (6) more often than (b) (6). Most recently, (b) (6) threw up on 1/3/24 in her cage overnight. This throw up was also food-colored liquid.   | 3  | Years | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 15 | Pound |

Also he has been losing a lot of weight. A specialist did a sonogram and found fluid in his intestines. They tell me he is dying. He was put on a prescription dog food and the dirreah and voimting has stopped and the noisey stomach. More active, alert, etc. She suddenly started declining. She was refusing to eat her food. She would smell it and then walk away but she was interested in eating other food because she would try to take her brother's, which we wouldn't allow. (b) (6) has always had a strong appetite, so this was alarming. She began to become unbalanced, was having difficulty walking, vomiting, and head pressing. She was so lethargic. This after I opened a new case of food from Chewy. I ended up contacting Chewy and shipping the remaining cans back to them. We visited the vet and got some medications to try and help. I also got different cans of food from PetSmart. She started to do better. She was extremely alert, playful, and eating chicken and rice per doctor's orders. On Dec. 8th, I opened a can of food and after two serving from this can, these symptoms of not being able to walk well, pacing the house, head pressing and lethargy began again. I took a photo of the bottom of the can and picked a different can with different numbers. Within two days she was back to normal. On 1/5, I opened a new can of food. After two servings, she began showing the symptoms (head pressing, pacing, difficult bowel movements, unbalanced and lethargic). I then looked at the bottom of the can and the numbers were almost identical to the last can this occurred with. I immediately opened a different can and began that can last night. She ate her dinner and breakfast and I can already tell she is starting to feel better. This problem started much earlier than the date I started making the connection. I had been bringing the dog in with the concerns and contacting Chewy because the dog was refusing the food and the consistency is never the same. The doctor listed is one that I saw during this at (b) (6) but we saw many since we got ultrasounds, blood tests, visited an optamologist, neurologist, etc. I spoke to a female doctor that did her ultrasound when I mentioned the food again as a potential issue. She was going to speak to a hills rep. | 11 | Years  | Dachshund - Standard Long-haired | Dog | 15   | Pound |

Initially, they began vomiting, which I suspected might be due to hairballs, but highly abnormal for them, I hadn't seen any hairballs for over a year. The situation escalated as both cats refused to eat and continued vomiting, eventually bringing up foamy bile. Their bowel movements turned mucus-like and foul-smelling. Despite showing signs of hunger, they wouldn't accept treats or any food, and they also stopped drinking water. Their activity levels significantly decreased.The issue began with (b) (6) and then about 24 hours spread to the other cat, (b) (6) leading me to consider an environmental cause. The only recent change was a new 15lb bag of Purina cat chow complete, opened 4-5 days earlier. Suspecting the food, I discarded it and began manually feeding and hydrating them. Remarkably, they recovered within 48 hours after doing so. I had plans to visit the vet the next morning, but they began eating and drinking again and retained their food. They made a full recovery within 24 hours of starting to eat on their own.  | 3  | Years  | Domestic Shorthair               | Cat | 8    | Pound |

Some days will sniff the food and walk away not eating for a whole day. Others he will eat it with hesitation and then have severe gas, loose stools, occasion vomit, and you can hear his stomach noise while digesting the food. My first indication of something being wrong was in mid November after 2-3 days in a row of diarrhea. We were beginning to transition him from his puppy food (Purina Pro Plan Development Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Large Breed Dry Puppy Food) to adult food (a combination of Purina Pro Plan Adult Shredded Blend Beef & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food and Eukanuba Adult Large Breed Lamb 1st Ingredient Dry Dog Food). I attributed to diarrhea to the food switch and didn't think much of it. From that time until the end of November, I had noticed his interest and appetite for food waning, but again, had chalked it up to him just not enjoying the less calorie rich adult food. About this same time, he also began to sit differently out of the blue. He is normally very centered and square and began sitting lopsided and roach backed. On 11/28, he had some additional behaviors that were very out of the norm for him (growling at people, being uninterested in his toys or playing, etc.). By the next day he had absolutely no energy and he then refused all food and water from 11/29 - 12/6. I brought him into the vet on two different occasions. The first under emergency pretenses on 12/3 as he had not consumed water at that point in 4 days. At that visit, they did an physical exam, x-ray to check for blockages, and bloodwork. All came back normal. He was given an IV bag of fluids and some Cerenia to help with any nausea he may have been having and I was told to wait and see if that prompted appetite. It did not. Over the next couple of days his water consumption was limited to what I could syringe into his mouth. He otherwise was completely listless, no energy, and lethargic. He did nothing except lay and sleep. Our second visit was to our normal vet on 12/6. They re-ran bloodwork, screened for pancreatitis, took a stool sample, and gave another IV bag. They were able to get him to eat a few freeze dried liver treats at the appointment, but that was all. Later that day, I offered some eggs and he ate those as well. From 12/6 - 12/11 the only thing he would eat were ~2 scrambled eggs/day despite offering many other choices. On 12/11, I got desperate and bought three completely different/new varieties of kibble to offer him. As soon as I offered a brand called "FirstMate" he downed almost 2 cups. He has continued on that brand since. | 1   | Years  | Leonberger                | Dog | 110 | Pound |

I have been giving my dog this food since getting him at 8 weeks. On Thursday, 12/28/23 he became lethargic and tired, not his fun playful self. He seemed out of it and exhausted. He then began to whine and cry all through the night and that night he began to have diarrhea. He then began to need to relieve himself from uncontrollable diarrhea every hour throughout the night. He was able to keep water down, but no food was able to be maintained. This continued over the weekend and Sunday 12/31/23 he began to vomit water and food until he could barely stand on his own. A vet visit was made on 01/02/24 in which the vet put him on a "bland diet" with chicken and rice and numerous ant-nausea/anti-diarrhea medications. On 01/03/24, I switched the food to "Fresh pet food from Costco" and (b) (6) appears to be going back to normal now that he is off the Purina Food. upon doing further research I have read hundreds of complaints of this Purina Pro Plan Dog Food due to the dogs having the same symptoms of my dog.  | 6   | Months | Poodle - Miniature        | Dog | 20  | Pound |

| EON-558374 | 1/7/2024 19:36 | Purina kit & kaboodle  | My cat loves to eat this specific brand since he was a kitten. I had use other brand, and he had diarrhea. I bought a 22 lbs bag in Walmart of kit & kaboodle. As soon as that very day he started to have symptoms as thirsty a lot of urine, loss of appetite. He was eating to much lately, so I thought It could be diabetes or some kind of toxicity symptoms as high levels of vitamin d. I wanted to wait , I cant afford a vet right now. Started to regulate his food with a time dispenser machine. It's been more than a week, he tried to eat from my food and I know he doesn't like it. He was desperate to eat by at the same time he doesn't touch his food. He started to look weak , and sleeping more than usual. Decided to buy other cat food, he ate it all, it was about 4 cups of dry food. At that very moment he started to have a better shape and mood. I will take it to the vet, but I'm pretty sure that that food wasn't good this time. | 7  | Years  | American Shorthair              | Cat | 5   | Kilogram |

During this period she was vomiting and had diarrhea. She has only eaten pro plan and has never had any health problems before this. She became so weak so could barely climb the stairs and was unable to jump up on the bed. The vet ran extensive tests and was unable to find another medical issue. I stopped feeding pro plan and began feeding home-cooked food only. She returned to normal. I returned to feeding pro plan in November. She continues to have periods where she will refuse to eat it and has gas, diarrhea and fatigue. Within a few days he started scooted and constant diarrhea in which the vet gave us pro-pectalin to help with diarrhea. We gave him this and it didn't work so I took him off the food and within a few days, the diarrhea stopped. During the time taking the food, he definitely was not himself and just wanted to sleep and started drinking a lot. Once off the food it took a while for him to at least stop the diarrhea. He still drinks a lot of water but at least he seems to be better.. | EON-558362 | 1/7/2024 19:36 | Purina Dog chow  | We have feed Purina for 20 years. One of my male boxers started throwing up. We thought maybe something didn't agree with his stomach. Maybe he got into something. Then my female boxer that was due to have puppies went into labor about 3 days early. The first 2 puppies she had were dead. I have never experienced anything like this before. We took her to the vet because something wasn't right. They gave her a c section. She had 8 puppies left inside of her. They were dead too. The vet said the puppies were already decomposing in her body. It was extremely sad. The next day my female Boxer passed away. After talking to some other breeders they said they had the same problem. That's when realized it is the food. My other male Boxer had been throwing that food up. So we had started him on another food. Giving him eggs and other protein. My Boxer was very expensive and had already had genetic testing done, so I know she was very healthy.           | 3  | Years  | Boxer (German Boxer)      | Dog | 65  | Pound    |

On the day of the event, we put (b) (6) in his kennel and not even 20 minutes later he was having a seizure in his kennel, this seizure lasted 2-5 min. We rushed him to our local vet where they did testing and everything looked normal. Our vet does not know exactly why he had a seizure but recommended we go get him an MRI, which we will. He has not had a seizure yet, but it's only been less than 24/hrs. I believe the food is the cause of his seizure as that is the only thing we changed and he did not consume anything that could cause it.   | 2  | Years  | Shepherd Dog - German     | Dog | 76  | Pound    |

We fed it to (b) (6) in the evening and she ate only half of what she normally eats. She vomitted during the night and had multiple diarrhea. I took her to a vet 20 miles away as she was the only vet I could find who was available to see (b) (6) in the morning of 12/18. She got anti-nausea, appetite enhancer, and GI prescription food but still did not eat for 5 days and continued to have diarrhea for over a week. She usually weighs 8 pounds but lost 2 pounds in the first 3 days. I started force-feeding her on day 5 out of fear of her organs starting to shut down. She gradually started eating on her own and seems to have pulled through and continued recovering but at one point, we thought about euthanizing her. Thank god she made it. | EON-558348 | 1/7/2024 19:32 | Purina Pro Plan For Puppies Large Breed   | I had bought a brand new bag of dog food that was the exact same type of food my puppy had been eating since she was with the breeder as a puppy. She really didn't start having any reactions until this bag. She had a bad case of diarrhea on and off for months. It was watery and she couldn't even hold it in she would just start pooping. She got on anti-diarrhea meds that would help firm her stool a little bit but ultimately once we stopped taking the meds the diarrhea would come back. And this wasn't just diarrhea it was just liquid and she would go 6-7 times in the span of a couple of hours. However once I stopped feeding her the purina she was immediately better. | EON-558332 | 1/7/2024 19:28 | Purina Pro Plan Chicken and Rice, Purina Pro Plan Senior Dog Food With Probiotics for Dogs Shredded Blend Chicken & Rice Formula | My dog started experiencing extreme diarrhea in early September. I took her to the vet where they ran parasite tests which came back negative. She was put on a mild diet and given diarrhea medication. The diarrhea started up again in December. She was taken to the vet again, where another parasite test was given and bloodwork was done. It was also discovered that she lost 10lbs in 3 months. These tests came back clear and it was determined that the food was the issue. We are still in the process of transitioning her diet.   | 7   | Years | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 40    | Pound |

I got up to check on him and he was laying on the floor. He was breathing very heavily, his mouth was open and his tongue was hanging out, and he was drooling. It was really scary and I thought I was going to lose him. After about an hour, he seemed to be better. I took him to the vet the next day. The vet gave him a regular exam, but couldn't tell me anything more without doing expensive test. An x-ray and an ultrasound were offered, but I'm on disability and so both of those options are way too expensive.  | 19  | Years | American Shorthair        | Cat | 12.11 | Pound |

| EON-558324 | 1/7/2024 19:13 | Purina pro plan   | I've been giving this food to my dogs for years now, and I noticed that after purchasing a new bag about 4 days ago, they've been lethargic, my older dogs have diarrhea. I just recently read the reports on the recalls and was surprised as I had been doing extensive research on which food to feed my dogs and purina pro plan was supposedly one of the "good" ones. Upon reading the article and seeing that it did intact affect my dogs health I will immediately stop feeding them this food, but the money wasted and possible vet visits are costly. I urge you to discontinue this brand in its entirety as it has been an issue for decades despite newer products coming out.   | 10 | Years  | Pit Bull                           | Dog | 82    | Pound |

My dog will not eat the food. I noticed it had white specs on the chicken pieces. Upon further investigation every piece with the white spec is a worm. A live worm. The bag was sealed and placed into an air tight container upon opening. Has not been exposed and is inside my house. Some people are reporting adverse reactions with purina so I became suspicious when the dog wouldn't eat it. Today is the day I saw the worms.  |    |        |                                    |     |       |       |

| EON-558318 | 1/7/2024 19:12 | Wellness CORE raw rev high protein  | Prior to switching to this food, she was amazing, playful, happy, had normal bowel movements nothing alarming. I switched her and my other three dogs to this food a little less than a year ago, two of my dogs started eating this food as puppies as soon as they could eat solid food, they were all okay at first. I've seen some questionable pieces of food come out of the bags in the past, but I figured maybe it was normal since they say they use "raw dried turkey" so I let it go. They ate it and slowly, (b) (6) mainly, and my other dog (b) (6) started acting not normal at all for starters their feces had become constantly awful, anywhere from water to soft serve ice cream textures. They had like uncontrollable bowel movements. I thought I was doing them a favor by switching to a more "healthy" expensive food. (b) (6) and (b) (6) have exhibited unnatural and scary behavior example: (b) (6) couldn't even stand up, eyes glossy, she would try and walk and just fall over, almost as if she was poisoned. I took her to the vet and they couldn't identify what was causing it. They ran tests and still couldn't come to a concrete answer for what it was. Her tongue would hang out of her mouth and she wouldn't move. (b) (6) on multiple occasions as well has acted the same, pale gums, lethargic, labored breathing, can't stand, walking side ways, glossy eyes, I thought they were going to die. I couldn't afford the vet visits but I had to their my babies. I didn't think it was the food until today, today I poured out the end of one bag into a bowl, and found TWO extremely noticeably moldy pieces, one clump with white and black mold, and another with dark black mold. The bag says good until 11/12/2024 I knew after seeing this it was an issue and it was the dog food. After reaching out to the company, I did some research to see if anyone else had this issue and in fact they did some had bugs some had large patches of mold. Now I am questioning all those pieces of food I originally questioned but thought it was "normal" it wasn't. | 7  | Years  | Other Canine/dog                   | Dog | 17    | Pound |

December 9th (a Saturday), approx 4 am I let all of our dogs out to pee and also noted the Bernese produced stool. Later at 7 am I went down stairs to let them out again and feed them. At the time I thought there was urine on the floor, I thought it was odd since I let them all out 3 hours prior, but didn't think much more of it. We have a total of 3 dogs, all different breeds and ages. I fed all the dogs as usual that morning and all of the dogs ate their own food. the 2 smaller dogs get different food than the bernese. 2 pm that same Saturday, My husband and I were watching TV when the Bernese was in living room and suddenly vomited brown fecal smelling stomach contents. This was a projectile vomit and large amounts of emesis was on the floor. The dog up to this point had not acted any differently. After this incident we let the dog outside. And again the dog is not acting differently. Later in the evening, we attempt to feed dogs again, now the Bernese is not eating his food. Approx 9 pm it was noted that he again had Emesis and loose stools. This happened 2 times in short period of time. In our rural area we are limited on emergency veterinary care especially in the pm hours. Our plan was to take dog to vet the next day if no improvement was made over night. The next morning the dog is very lethargic but still able to walk on own accord, with encouragement. At 11 am the dog walked down a flight of steps to laundry room where we were assessing him, feeling his stomach and thinking about if there was ANYTHING this dog got into. We came up empty handed. We called vet and after deciding options we were ready to take him to local vet for assessment. In the time that we were on phone with vet, his breathing became rapid and he was unable to hold his head up or have control of his tongue. We got him in back of car and he passed shortly before leaving driveway. This dog has been eating the same brand of food his whole life, starting with the Purina pro puppy formula but had graduated to the purina pro large breed food for more than a year. Also noted we have a fenced in back yard and had no access to any other dogs other than our other 2 that lived with us. | 2     | Years  | Mountain Dog - Bernese   | Dog | 85   | Pound |

From the first feeding our dog didn't want to eat it even though this is the food we have always fed. He would sniff it and walk away and occasionally come back to take a few bites, but would over all shun it. He ate it for dinner one evening and and by that night he has explosive diarrhea. Two mornings later he ate the whole bowl and within 30 minutes was throwing up. He has only ever thrown up one other time in the 6 years we've had time. After his change in behavior about the food, and the symptoms after eating the food, I contacted Purina and gave them all information. They took all the numbers from the bag and I submitted photos as well. I still have this bag in case they wanted a sample to test, but have since bought a new bag and have had no issues.  | 6  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 50  | Pound |

Dog has been fed almost exclusively pro plan dry food most of her life. Occasionally science diet. She had only had pro plan in 2023. The symptoms started in November 2023. Vomiting multiple times a day. She lost 15 lbs between November and December. We removed the dog food on 12/20/2023 and put her back on science diet. The vomiting has completely stopped, and she is starting to put some weight back on. Recently seen an article about possible issues with the food and advised to report her symptoms in case something was wrong with food.   | 7  | Years  | Great Dane                | Dog | 120 | Pound |

Cat had severe vomiting and diarrhea for 24 hours. Took the cat to the vet & was told that no medical issues seem to be the cause. Fed the cat the same food (a new can) & he became violently ill once again. Food was withheld until the vomiting & diarrhea resolved. The 3rd day cat was fed the same food (new can) & once again cat became very sick with vomiting & diarrhea. After waiting for symptoms to resolve, a different brand of cat food was given & cat has had no further sickness. There is clearly something very wrong with this cat food.  | 10 | Years  | Snowshoe                  | Cat | 12  | Pound |
| EON-558291 | 1/7/2024 19:00 | Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach for Large Breed Formula. (Name is also written in French.) | Opened a new bag of Purina Pro Plan, Sensitive Skin and Stomach (large breed) on 12/28/23. Ordered from Chewy.com. A few days later, our dog seemed lethargic, I thought maybe it was due to his canine influenza booster also given on 12/28. He also seem to have a bit of a cough. I even called the vet to discuss if the booster could be causing this and he said no.He also urinated much longer and more frequently than normal for at least several days. His blood test results at his annual physical in September were all normal.Most noticeably, when I opened the bag, the smell was disgusting. It smelled like rotten, salmon and cigarettes. It was so bad that I checked the expiration date on the back of the bag which I have never done before. We were out of food and so I put it in my dogs bowl and he ate it. A few days later, it went untouched until 3 PM. He ate it for approximately six days and has been more lethargic this week since starting this Purina dog food bag.After I learned that hundreds of others have experienced vomiting, diarrhea, elevated liver and kidney, leading to death, and others who have opened bags that smelled horrible, I immediately stopped feeding him the Purina pro plan and have switched to a different kibble.Comments I have read include that this did not happen right away, but after several weeks of eating the dog food. One person reports very high levels of metal as determined by the Kansas state vet lab.Based on the extremely nasty smell, this is not normal, and there is clearly something wrong with this food!I have notified Purina, and have not received a response, and have also spoken with Chewy, Call Center representative, who was opening up a ticket to investigate the batch of food.I do believe this warrants an immediate investigation to determine what is causing the death and illness of so many dogs and cats.Please help! | EON-558290 | 1/7/2024 19:00 | Purina Pro Plan Salmon and Rice   | I purchased a brand new bag of Purina Pro Plan Salmon and Rice dog food from Amazon. I opened the bag and fed a couple of scoops of food to my dog that evening. By morning he had gone diarrhea downstairs which he has never done before and vomited as well. I let him out and he vomited and had diarrhea again. He must have vomited at least 8-10 times that day and probably had diarrhea at least 6-8 times. This went on for 3 days straight and he was very lethargic until I took him to the vet to be evaluated. The vet did blood work, and Xrays. She also gave him anti nausea medication. The next day which was the 5th day he started to feel better. I really thought that I was going to lose him.   | 6  | Years  | Shepherd Dog - German     | Dog | 125 | Pound |

Obtained PPP from Chewy.com and slowly introduced into diet being mixed with previous kibble. About one week into change, dog started having mild diarrhea. Once fully changed to Purina Pro Plan Beef/rice, diarrhea became more pronounced and sometimes very marked unable to hold. Continued for two weeks while feeding PPP. During the first week, added Pumpkin to diet to help firm stool with no success. Went into second week fully on PPP and diarrhea continued with no resolution in site. Suddenly in August 2023, he became very sick, didn't eat, drastic increase in thirst and very lethargic. We took him to the vet and discovered that he had a large mass on his liver which caused liver failure and his passing. We thought it was an isolated incident but less than 5 months later, our 6 year old female goldendoodle, (b) (6), who ate the same food, Purina One, became lethargic and stopped eating too. Her thirst drastically increased also. We took her to the vet and she had the same prognosis - liver failure. I can't help but think this isn't a coincidence. 2 dogs having to be put down within 5 months of each other. Different ages. Different breeds. She had been in to the vet and had her check up and was in good health. She began eating the Purina Pro health dog food, and 3 days later she was dead. On the third day we noticed she was lethargic and started throwing up. We took her in to the emergency vet a few hours later and they determined her body was in a state of shock such as they see if she had been hit by a car. Her body temperature was very low, and they had to do heat treatments for her. They also put her on an epinephrine drip to counteract the shock. After a few hours she seemed to be responding to the treatment and her outlook was getting better. Then her blood pressure began to increase, she had diarrhea and developed a cough. There was fluid in her body that they could not find the source to, and didn't have the resources at that time to try and locate. She began to pee and poop blood, and her lungs were filling up with more fluid which they also assumed was blood. We had to make the decision to at that time to put her down so she was no longer in pain. Our very first response when this began, was that it had to be from food. We tried to do some research, but nothing came up with the pro plan being an issue. Now we are seeing other reports of people having problems with this same food. If this food is the problem, please get this off of the market. Don't let anyone else go through this.  | 12 | Years | Alaskan Malamute          | Dog | 50  | Pound |

We could not figure out the problem because we just moved due to my husband being active duty and we had a new duty station. On this station we were told the water was not safe with mixed reports. We gave our dogs store bought water just like we drink but there were mix ups and tap water was given twice in 8 months. We assumed the problem was the water, but never put together that the problem lasted for months while on Purina Pro Plan sensitive stomach, which we switched the dogs to because they're original food was not available on island. My service dog of 12 years eventually passed away (b) (6) from severe complications and the 2 year old pup kept having bloody stool and diarrhea. We have changed food after being notified of the possible connection and the problems have stopped. I am a military veteran with PTSD and my service dog is gone because I failed him, but the FDA and Purina failed me first! You knew and did nothing. I no longer live the life I did a few months ago due to my symptoms and I have no ability to just replace what is unreplaceable. (b) (6) was my rock, he helped me be a stay at home mother after my service. He helped me feel safe at night and know my children were safe. I now suffer greatly as does my whole family, but we must press on because he is gone. He was in perfect health before we moved save for his one back leg. | EON-558267 | 1/7/2024 18:56 | Purina Pro Plan complete Essential blend Beef and Rice Formula | I purchased a new bag of Purina Pro plan salmon for sensitive skin and stomachs for my dogs at the end of October 2023. On November 1st 2023 one of my dogs had pure bloody urine and was yellow with jaundice. We rushed her to her normal vet where they did lab work and began running tests. She was negative for UTI, kidney infection/stones, negative for leptospirosis, etc. They checked the health of all of her organs. Kidneys, liver, everything and everything was healthy and in good shape. Her condition continued to worsen and we took her in to an ER 11/1/23 at about 11pm. More tests were issued and we were asked by the Dr seeing our dog, (b) (6) if she had swallowed anything metal because her blood levels were high for metal and having metal toxicity could cause jaundice; to ensure she had not swallowed any metal we paid for a quick ultrasound at that ER and later paid for a more extensive and well rounded ultrasound that was done the next day at our normal vets office. 11/2/23 (b) (6) was kept at our normal vet for fluids and the second ultrasound. Ultrasound came back showing there were no obstructions or foreign bodies in her. When I picked (b) (6) up 11/2/23 around 6pm (that's when the vet closed) she could no longer walk, was completely yellow, and had trouble bending her front legs or keeping her head up. We rushed back to the first ER she was seen at and because they couldn't figure out what was going on or what could've caused this, they had us take her to an internal specialist ER. They did give her a pain injection of Methadone before we left there. Fast forward, and we're at the internal specialist ER where they've diagnosed her with IMHA but no idea what caused it. We didn't think to mention the metals in her blood because it had been a crazy few days and she was on the brink of dying at this point. They broke our hearts by telling us she didn't have good survival chances at this point and had us put money down for potential blood transfusions. We paid our girl (b) (6) another visit (even though she wasn't mentally with us anymore) and went him for the night around 11pm 11/2/23. (b) (6) at approx. 5:30am we got a call that it was time to make the decision to say goodbye to our sweet girl. She started have neurological issues and seizures before we were able to make it there to say goodbye.I spent weeks dumbfounded as to why my perfectly healthy dog ended up dying in a matter of days, until I ended up seeing similar cases from people using the SAME food bought around the same time. Since then, I've connected with others still having the same issue with Purina products. There's hundreds. I've tried reaching out to Purina with no luck with a response. Please take to heart what I'm telling you. I can provide (b) (6) bloodwork and labs from all three facilities she was seen by. |    |       |                           |     |     |       |

| EON-558265 | 1/7/2024 18:56 | Purina One Plus healthy weight high protein                    | (b) (6) was always very healthy and active. I decided to change (b) (6) food to Purina One healthy weight on September 2023. A few weeks later she got up in the morning and was shaking her ears and head was tilting and she was in pain. So I took her to her vet on September 2nd and she took a look and treated her for double ear infections. After that she seemed a little better for a while but off and on I noticed her head tilting. Then on December 19th 2023 was awoken to (b) (6) in pain moving around the bed every minute couldn't get comfortable she would not eat or drink anymore and had a high fever. So I rushed her to the emergency vet in (b) (6). She cried out and yelped in pain as they checked her abdomen. She also is very dehydrated so they gave her a subcutaneous pack which they insert with a needle in their back. We went home and about 3 hours later she started to get a lot worse quickly. We then went to our veterinarian and when he checked her eye as it wasn't functioning properly he said sadly there's no response to light she's going to lose that eye if we don't go in and do an emergency surgery to save it. He said with the infection and the head tilting and pain they think it could possibly be a brain tumor which progressed very very quickly. So we sign the papers for the emergency surgery and it failed. The veterinarian kept her overnight and called me the next morning and said he was very concerned as the infection brain tumor went on to the right side the right eye and she would lose that eye also. He suggested a cat scan to look at brain tumor. The CAT scan could not be done until the next day as a mobile CAT scan unit would have to come up from (b) (6). With the high cost of the CAT scan in the condition of (b) (6) we had to make a horrible decision and she was suffering so much she could no longer move they tried to do it just X-ray and she just laid there no movement the pain in her head and her eyes was too much for her we could not bear it any longer. We made the awful horrible choice of putting her to sleep as she would not be able to make it until the next day anyway. I think it's related to the Purina dog food as she was perfectly fine before I started her on that food and then recently reading the stories of other customers saying the same exact thing I think it's totally related to the dog food.  | 6 | Years | Poodle - Standard     | Dog | 47  | Pound |
| EON-558219 | 1/6/2024 15:04 | Purina Pro Plan Adult (Shredded Chicken and Rice)              | I understand there are some concerns about some of the Purina Pro Plan dog foods in recent months causing illnesses in dogs. I am submitting this information not because I want to "pile on", but if there really is something to this, I want to make sure the situation I have had recently with my dog (b) (6) is documented.(b) (6) is a purebred Miniature Schnauzer, born Oct. 2022. I received him from the breeder when he was ten weeks old (January 2023). He is from a very reputable breeder who shows in AKC confirmation, is an AKC Breeder of Merit, is a member of the AKC parent club (American Miniature Schnauzer Club) and is a huge proponent of Purina Pro Plan foods. She had been feeding him Purina Pro Plan Puppy (Shredded Chicken and Rice), so I kept him on that food throughout his puppyhood. I should also probably mention that I am active in dog sports (agility, barn hunt, dock diving, fastCAT) so knowledge of canine nutrition, health, and safety is of greater concern for me than maybe an "average pet owner", and I am also a member of the American Miniature Schnauzer Club.When (b) (6) was about 11 months old, around late September 2023, I started to switch him over to Purina Pro Plan Adult (Shredded Chicken and Rice). About three weeks later, on October 14, 2023, he inexplicably experienced his first cluster seizures and spent the weekend at an emergency vet so they could stop the seizures. Our vet started him on anti-convulsant medication (zonisamide) immediately, and (b) (6) continued to eat the Purina Pro Plan Adult food. And of course, I spoke with the breeder at length about any history of epilepsy in his pedigree lines, and she was not aware of any history of epilepsy in those dogs.Two weeks later (Nov. 3, 2023) he experienced breakthrough cluster seizures despite having been on anti-convulsant medication and spent another entire weekend at an emergency vet trying to control the seizures.Our vet referred us to a neurologist that we saw about two weeks later where (b) (6) received a complete exam including MRI and spinal tap to rule out anything specific going on with his neurological system; all tests were negative. The neurologist changed his anti-convulsant medication to phenobarbital; our vet agreed with the medication change.Right around that same time, I came to the realization that (b) (6) seizures had all started soon after we had changed him to the Purina Pro Plan Adult food, and I immediately ceased feeding him that food. | 1 | Years | Schnauzer - Miniature | Dog | 20  | Pound |

|                            |                |  | He has not had the food since then. He also has had no breakthrough seizures since that last incident in early November. In December, another dog breeder friend told me about some of the online reports about Purina Pro Plan foods causing seizures in some dogs, because she knew of my situation with (b) (6) from the previous months. I understand it may be coincidental, and it may be because of his medication change, but the fact that his seizures stopped entirely since hasn't had the Pro Plan food anymore is certainly of interest. Again, I want to emphasize that I am not doing anything to bash the Purina Pro Plan product online, or "pile on" with complaints you may have already received, but I thought it is important that my case be documented in the event there is truly a problem with the product. Unfortunately, I did not keep food nor the bag and cannot provide specific lot information. We do not plan to discontinue (b) (6) anti-convulsant medication at this time, however, if he is seizure-free for a year or two we may try discontinuing the medication to see if the seizures recur. I am also no longer feeding him Purina foods out of an abundance of caution.                |    |       |                                |     |    |       |
| EON-558218 | 1/6/2024 15:04 | Purina Pro plan sensitive stomach  | My local (b) (6) stopped carrying the brand of freeze dried kibble I use, so I purchased a bag of Purina Pro plan sensitive stomach as many other IS owners I know gave it good reports. I gave it to my pup mixed with what was left of her raw food in the evening and the next day she had the runs. As the day progressed she became lethargic and started throwing up. At first I did not connect the food to the issue and continued to feed it to her for a couple of days. She got worse, sleeping and lethargic, running stools, throwing up, did not have energy for anything but laying down. I took her off the food and switched her back to freeze dried raw and her health has been improving and she is getting back to normal.  | 11 | Years | Setter - Irish Red             | Dog | 56 | Pound |

We thought it. While odd, we convinced him to eat some. After a couple days of being hesitant to eat he stopped eating completely. We gave it a couple days, thinking he may be ill. He acted fine other than not wanting to eat. Then he started to have rear end weakness. I made a vet appt for both issues, not eating and the weakness. At first they thought it was arthritis pain causing the issues. He was put on gabapentin and nausea meds. The following day (b) (6) eye started shifting back and forth and he lost coordination in his back end. We returned to the vet. He was diagnosed with vestibular disease. We started treatment. He refused to eat, was weak, had diarrhea, slept a lot, couldn't get his balance etc. We bribed him to eat the food the vet gave us, but it was short lived. He continued to go downhill and sadly had to be put to sleep on (b) (6).  | 12 | Years | Mixed (Dog)                    | Dog | 75 | Pound |

Best by date of May 2025 the printed code of 11084 0451L01. They started getting sick, vomiting, diarrhea, laying around. They acted like they didn't want to eat but when they did it was that dog food. After a couple of days of them being sick, I quit giving them dog food and made them chicken and rice to put them on a bland diet. After a couple days they stopped throwing up and I was only feeding them chicken and rice so I started giving them a little Purina dog food. Then they started getting sick again the same day they ate their dog food. So I took it away from them and made them more chicken and rice because I believe the dog food is making them sick and I'm throwing it away. I won't be buying Purina Dog food again!!! My dogs are my furbabies, they're not just dogs to me. I'm always with my dogs so I know for a fact that they haven't gotten into trash or anything else that would make them sick. | EON-558211 | 1/6/2024 14:36 | I do not have the following information however I made reports to Purina with the bag information. | As a consumer, I have bought and used Purina for years. I currently have 4 doodles that I was feeding Purina Pro Plan to them until all 4 became deathly ill with vomit and diarrhea. I took my dogs to the vet spending hundreds of dollars in attempt to get my dogs well. I continued to feed Purina Pro Plan. After my dogs continued to be sick, I knew it had to be the food. I changed their food to Purina One however I continued to feed the remaining Purina Pro Plan to the strays outside, so they wouldn't go hungry. Once the food was almost gone, I found mold in the bag of Purina Pro Plan. My dogs were doing great on Purina One until months later, my dogs were sick again with vomit and diarrhea. I stopped the food immediately and I began looking for the problem and once again I found mold in the bag. As a consumer, I will never purchase Purina products again. I value my dogs health and I can not take the risk of my dogs health and lives.  |    |       |                                |     |    |       |

| EON-558206 | 1/6/2024 14:36 | Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Adult with Probiotics Lamb and Oat Meal Formula High Protein Dry Dog Food 24-lb bag. | On December 23 I ran out of my kibble. Chewy had sent me a bag of Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Adult with Probiotics Lamb and Oat Meal Formula High Protein Dry Dog Food, 24-lb bag. My both dogs had been on this before. So I decided I would give them this kibble as everything is so hectic during the holidays. At any rate they each had one bowl that night, the next day they had both morning and night. My 3 year old (b) (6) then pooped in the house on the evening of Dec. 23. he doesn't normally do that. On the morning of December 24th he was passing loose stool, like soft serve ice cream. On Christmas Day I decided to give him just rice and chicken. He did not have a bowel movement all Christmas Day, Dec. 25. On the morning of December 26, his first bowel movement before food, was bloody and shapeless. I called the my Vet. because I was concerned, they were closed and referred me to their sister office, I was told by them to bring in a stool sample. (b) (6) at that point was squatting in the yard, with I presumed the sense of urgency to defecate. He was however energetic and I brought him in within the next 45 minutes he went from a playful dog to hemorrhaging and crashing. We were fortunate enough to have an emergency Vet close by and carried him to the car. He came to but was weak, by the time I reached the vet we had him walk in, which he stood by the front desk and again crashed to the floor and blood was pouring from his rectum. The Vets and the team reacted immediately, carried him in and said he was going into shock. He was severely dehydrated from the amount of blood and diarrhea he was passing. If I had waited any longer he would have died. | 3 | Years  | Collie - Bearded                | Dog | 67  | Pound |

Then, out of nowhere, his poop turned into diarrhea and turned almost neon orange. He had diarrhea and was also constipated, struggling to get anything out. When something did come out it was liquid and orange. He threw up every day. Our vet had no idea what it was. We took him off of Purina pro plan and fed him chicken and rice for the first 2 weeks during his recovery. We had to give him medicine every 4 hours and a supplement for his dehydration. | EON-558181 | 1/6/2024 14:33 | purina pro plan kitten chicken and liver entree  | (b) (6) has been eating this particular food for 3 months prior to getting sick from it. After i ordered two 24 cases off of chewy.com in early december, he started to not eat it and would get really bad diarrhea and lethargic. i would stop feeding him it and he would get better, and then i would start him back on it and the same symptom's would come. so its definitely the particular food. hes been off for a couple weeks now, and hes back to normal. i just read online today of peoples pets getting sick from this particular brand (purina pro plan) and thats why im reporting this, because it seems to be common lately.  | 7  | Months | Maine Coon            | Cat | 11  | Pound |

(b) (6) had eaten this food on and off in the past, but not in the 4 months prior to December 2023. Immediately after his first feeding with the Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Stomach & Skin, (b) (6) vomited. He vomited a total of 4 times that day and ate only once. This continued every day for three days with vomiting multiple times a day.I found our preferred brand of wet food, removed the kibble (I assumed he was gorging and overeating) and gave him the wet food. He did not vomit eating the wet food of a different brand. Today I reintroduced the Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Stomach & Skin kibble and he again immediately vomited and is lethargic with loud stomach sounds. This is surprising as we have fed him Purina Pro Plan kibble on and off for many years without issue, but this recent feeding seems to be making him incredibly sick. It seems like something is going on with this batch of feed and should be looked into. | 11 | Years  | Domestic Shorthair    | Cat |     |       |

He then continued vomiting over the next hour, it smelled like feces so we were concerned about a blockage and took him to the emergency vet. They did not detect a blockage and ruled out pancreatitis, he was diagnosed with gastritis. We had him on boiled chicken and rice for 3 days with no issues but then the day we started to slowly reintroduce the Purina Pro Plan, the vomiting returned along with diarrhea. The diarrhea was happening every few hours so we returned to the vet the next day where they ran tests for parasites which came back negative. They recommended we stop the Purina Pro Plan, return to the chicken and rice, and gave him some probiotics to "reset" his digestive tract. After a day or so, he stopped vomiting and his bowel movements slowly started returning to normal   | 3  | Years  | Boxer (German Boxer)  | Dog | 60  | Pound |

We stopped feeding him wet food about a year ago, so he was only eating dry Purina. About two weeks ago I opened a new bag of Purina Sensitive Tummy and (b) (6) threw it up 5 times in one day. I saw some reports online of Purina making cats sick, so I took all the dry food away and cleaned it all up off the floor so he wouldn't have access to it (b) (6) was still active and very hungry, but looked like he was stressed from throwing up so much, so I didn't think he had an infection or anything like that. Since we had some unexpired Blue wet cat food left, I fed him that for a few days to see if he was sick or if it was the cat food. He had no problem eating the wet food and begged for it immediately when I saw me get it out after he threw up. After a few days, I got a bag of dry Meow Mix for hairball control from the store and now give him the dry Meow Mix and Blue wet food in combination. He has not thrown up since I stopped feeding him the Purina. He is very healthy and active, and doesn't look sick at all anymore. When I had opened this bag of Purina (tender selects) I noticed the kibble bits were a lot darker than the last bag. I don't know if that has anything to do with cats getting sick from it or not, but I would probably look into that if I were Purina. I still have the bag of cat food that made (b) (6) sick if it needs to be sent in for testing. I'm very willing to send it somewhere, but I don't have the money for it. You can contact me through email or texting, but my phone doesn't receive voicemails right now | 5 Years  | Bombay                | Cat | 11 Pound   |

| EON-558141 | 1/6/2024 14:04 | Purina pro plan healthy weight   | Both of my dogs have been on Purina pro plan since 2015. MY oldest dog just a few months ago, stopped eating, drinking, and was very ill. She was hospitalized with kidney failure for 3 days. After fluids, and fasting for 3 days, her numbers went back to normal. I was sent home and was told that she could go back to her normal diet. Well she was eating Purina pro plan for a week and the same thing happened again. She was again hospitalized with fluids again and sent home again, except this time, I started feeding homemade food. We are a month in now on her fresh diet and her numbers have improved. Purina Pro Plan was slowly killing my dog. MY other dog that is 4 has has gastritis and had to put him on prolactin and bland diet a few days, every time I returned to the Purina Pro Plan, the issues started right back over. We have over $2,000 in vet bills now because of the toxic food. | 10 | Years | Terrier - Bull - American Pit | Dog | 50  | Pound |

| EON-558138 | 1/6/2024 13:52 | Purina pro plan sensitive stomach  | Our Lab was on Purina Pro Plan for years, we switched him over to Nutrisource, and in August 2023 we came back to Purina Pro Plan sensitive stomach. (b) (6) was doing well until I purchased his new bag of food in September. September 5 he started vomiting and having bouts of diarrhea. We took him to the vet where he needed IV fluids for dehydration and we were sent home. Put him on a rice and chicken diet for 5 days and gradually added Purina back into his diet. He was not really wa it g to eat the dog food, but we kept enticing him with chicken and broth over it. A couple of weeks went by, he was still not really eating a lot and started having vomiting and diarrhea again. Back to the Emergency vet where he again needed fluids and was started on a few meds. He also had labwork which showed elevated liver enzymes, it showed inflammation, he had X-rays and ultrasound where they said his intestines were swollen. They didn't see any obstructions. Sent us home with meds and again back to chicken/rice for a few days, slowly added Purina back into diet. Told back to vet for recheck. Had more labwork, his liver enzymes came back to normal from using Denamarin. Another couple of weeks with not really eating a bunch, still mixing chicken in with food to entice him to eat. He became more and more lethargic. More bouts of vomiting and diarrhea, more meds were given. Another set of blood work and X-rays were done. Still showed swelling in intestines. No blockages seen once again. Vet said the only other thing we could do was to send him to a different emergency vet for a better ultrasound for another $900 to see if they could find anything more or exploratory surgery which we declined. Brought him back home. Had a few okay days, still on meds and steroids. He took a turn for the worse on 12/3 and on (b) (6) (3 months of this issue) we had to put our beloved (b) (6) down. He was continually vomiting and refused to eat any food. He went from 120 pounds down to 98 pounds. During those 3 months he wanted to eat but refused to eat plain Purina food. He would beg for food but didn't want much dog food and th last week he struggled to get up and even want to eat anything but popsicles. I know it was the Purina food we were feeding him. Something is really wrong with this food. I've been in contact with numerous people all who have gone through the same thing and have had their pets euthanized with the same symptoms. This needs investigated. Our poor boy suffered. He used to love his dog food and when he was putting his nose up at it I should have never continued to give this to him. Purina needs investigated. I spent thousands of dollars trying to save my dog and it could have been prevented and my baby could still be here today. I checked for any recalls with Purina, asked the vets and nobody had any answers for me and I found nothing online until last week. | 6  | Years  | Other Canine/dog     | Dog | 98  | Pound |

| EON-558130 | 1/6/2024 13:52 | Purina One True Instinct   | Fortunately my pets (a dog and cat) are fine. My pets stopped eating the canned dog food made by Purina called One. I usually mix it with kibble for the dog and put a spoonful on a plate for the cat. The both started rejecting the canned food some time around mid December. So I would put the canned food in a seperate bowl and the kibble in another bowl. The kibble is a Kirkland product. My dog ate the kibble and ignored the canned food. They kept her overnight. Gave her fluids and meds (B12 and steroids) & sent her home. She was good for a few days. I called them again when she wasn't better and they ran more bloodwork and stool samples. Only found elevated white blood cell count again and elevated kidney/jaundice markers. We checked for thyroid and diabetes as well. No DX. They sent us home with meds (probiotics and liquid steroid). We changed her food to raw source only and non gmo/gluten/chicken foods bc those seemed to make her vomit more often. When she didn't improve, I sought a local cat specialist. They did an ultrasound and found nothing. Bloodwork remained to show the same numbers and even higher white blood cell count. Setup weekly B12 and fluid appointments at that point. 12/27/23 we had to make the decision to euthanize her. She was so malnourished and dehydrated from everything and nothing was working. She was beginning to die and we were afraid of her passing away in the house alone (while we were at work). Our other affected animals recovered after a few weeks of fresh/raw foods and probiotics. (b) (6) developed Inflammatory Bowel Disease and malnourishment complications that she never recovered from. I myself experienced weird symptoms that I thought were probably just my own IBS/Food Allegries but now I suspect they could've been cross contaminated Salmonella human symptoms. | 2  | Years  | Siamese              | Cat | 8    | Pound |

I received these treats 'unopened' inside the box and the dog treats were molded and mildewed. I contacted the 'seller' on Amazon and they refused to acknowledge my complaint. So, I contacted the (b) (6) Consumer Protection Agency and received a complaint number and reply emails from the representative (b) (6) (Consumer Mediator) and Office of the (b) (6) Attorney General. (b) (6) was kind enough to forward your information due to the fact the company has refused to address all of the factual information (and photo) that has been submitted to them. The Nylabone representatives have refused to reply to (b) (6) and sent me an 'surfed' email requesting I contact them outside of the (b) (6) AG. I am now requesting you will hold this company accountable for molded and mildewed dog treats and I thank you.  |      |       |                           |     |    |       |

| EON-557999 | 1/5/2024 8:52 | Purina Pro Plan Complete Essentials Shredded Blend Salmon & Rice Formula              | We received a bag of Purina Pro Plan Complete Adult dog food, specifically the Salmon version, from Chewy.com on September 8th, 2023. A week or so later our male weim, (b) (6) began turning his nose up at the food, avoiding eating it at all costs but acting starving for other foods (such as treats, table scraps, etc). A week or so after the behavior with the food (roughly two weeks after the opening/use of this dog food), (b) (6) began to show signs of not feeling well. He had increased thirst, increased urgency in urination, and was more lethargic than normal. We took him to the vet on 11/4, where they did some initial blood work and exam. It was during this visit that they found fluid in his abdomen and elevated kidney levels. We continued to run tests after these initial tests to attempt to determine a cause, but it was presumed a potential kidney infection and antibiotics were administered accordingly over the course of the next 30 days. No cause could be found. Testing was conducted after the completion of the antibiotics and while levels had slightly improved, they were still not good. During this 30 day time period, we switched both of our dogs off of the Purina Pro Plan food in an attempt to get (b) (6) to eat more as he was still refusing to eat the plain Purina dog food, as well as to provide a healthier, lower sodium food option to assist with the kidney issues (b) (6) was having. Following the complete removal of this food, much of (b) (6) behavior had improved and he was eating like normal again. We did additional, more in depth/broad testing on 12/26/2023 to hopefully find a cause of the kidney issues. It was during this testing that (b) (6) levels were found to be slightly improved/stable and the fluid in his abdomen was almost completely gone. One of the tests conducted on this day found that (b) (6) had an aggressive form of E coli, which is likely to have been causing his issues/kidney damage up to this point. Given the onset of symptoms coincided so precisely with this new bag of dog food, we have reason to believe the E Coli was contracted from here. We do still have some of the dog food, but we unfortunately do not have the bag it came in, so we do not know the UPC/lot number of this food. According to Chewy, they do not track this level of detail when shipments are sent out. | 5   | Years | Weimaraner                | Dog | 60 | Pound |

As I was in the feed aisle, it was observed that the feed bags had grain mites crawling on them. I proceeded to inspect the surrounding area and also noticed the infestation spread to the horse feed as well. I immediately informed a staff member and they as well confirmed that the bags had grain mites crawling on them. This is the second time since September since my first observation that this location had this problem. At that time, the district manager had informed me that he was taking steps to resolve the issue. I had not followed up since I made contact with Tractor Supply at that time.  |     |       |                           |     |    |       |
| EON-557997 | 1/5/2024 8:48 | Purina ONE High Instinct Protein True Instinct with real beef and salmon dry dog food | Due to the recall of Victor pet food, we were forced to find an alternative, and chose Purina One High Instinct Protein True Instinct w/ real beef and salmon. This product was recommended to us from Chewy.com where we order from because it was the food that was most similar to what we fed them with Victor. We began transitioning them slowly based on recommendations from our veterinarian to avoid GI issues. Roughly three weeks into this transition, our youngest boy, (b) (6) experienced a seizure in the early morning. Rushed him to the ER and was told based on the fact this was his first one, we would monitor him. Two hours later he had a second one that was nearly 3 minutes long and violent. He was hospitalized and put on phenobarbital for the remainder of his life. Tested negative for toxins and drugs. The only change in his day-to-day was this food which I came to find later on has given many people issues.   | 1.5 | Years | Shepherd Dog - Australian | Dog | 58 | Pound |

We had to let her outside every hour because she has runny diarrhea and was in pain. On day 3, we called the veterinarian who instructed us to give her Imodium. She puked this up and continued to have diarrhea. On day 5, I called the veterinarian and scheduled an appointment for the following day. On day 6, we go to the appointment and she is extremely dehydrated and hadn't eaten anything for 3 days and barely drank water. They ran multiple tests and could see her stomach lining was showing as extremely irritated but nothing was inside. We agreed to allow them to cut her open, thinking there might be something stuck inside. They didn't find anything, kept her overnight on fluids, and continued to give her medicine. Thankfully she did recover. However, the veterinarian didn't have a clear answer on what this was. Her diet was the same, we had been feeding her Purina Pro Plan over the last 5 years. While our female dog was staying overnight, our other corgi began to experience the same symptoms (puking and diarrhea). I ordered the same medication from our veterinarian and his cleared up in a few days. I saw on a Facebook group, that a large number of pet owners who fed Purina Pro Plan had dog's that experienced the same symptoms and were not able to get answers from their vet. We quit feeding this brand and they are both back to normal. There needs to be a recall on this, so that more dogs don't continue to get sick. Took to vet and thought may be kidney stones but no evidence. Changed to another brand with no issues. 6 months ago moved back to Origen six fish not suspecting it was food related and the dog began passing blood in urine. This continued to worsen and returned to vet for significant treatment. No known cause. Changed food to Science hill while recovering for several weeks and had no issues. Ran out of Science Hill and fed one serving of Origen Six Fish and he immediately began passing blood. Stopped feeding Origen and Acana six fish / Ocean blend and he has had no issues since. She had diarrhea for 4 days straight and became extremely dehydrated. I could not find this cat food anywhere at the PetSmart stores in the (b) (6) area. I decided sticking with a Petsmart brand (Simply Nourish indoor Hairball control) while I looked for their favorite food would be the best option. I followed the recommended directions for Simply Nourish Hairball Control by mixing very small amts with the Authority Hairball control. My cats loved the food BUT started having more throw up episodes than usual. Within days of trvina/having to supplement because of the shortage, my cat (b) (6) died. It was the (b) (6), I had only started supplementing on 12/20. My poor housesitter found her.I left for a short holiday trip on 12/23. Everyone was throwing up more than usual by 12/25. My house sitter is a very experienced cat person as we both volunteer with our local (b) (6) and the humane society/shelter. There wasn't even time to get her to the vet, it was so quick. She was under my bed, mouth with a little bit of blood, dead. Coat looked great, no prior health issues.We took the Simply Nourish away from my other cats immediately. No one has thrown up since. I searched on my way back from Michigan to (b) (6) (I cut my trip short because of this) and finally found more of their Authority Hairball cat food. Initially I assumed that he had picked up a respiratory virus since that has been in the news. On December 28 I took him to the vet because he had not improved and his breathing became rapid and labored. He was diagnosed with Dilated Cardiomyopathy. He had severe enlargement of his heart and was in heart failure. His breed is not prone to this and he is from a reputable breeder who has a long history of showing her dogs with excellent health history. I took my dog to a veterinary cardiologist on the same day and it was there that I was asked what his diet has been as there have been investigations into young, healthy dogs getting DCM with correlations to grain-free foods, especially with peas or lentils. I have since found a lot of this information online and was horrified that I did not know this previously as I would have made different choices for his food.   | 6  | Years | Whippet              | Dog | 33 | Pound |

She doesn't usually eat purina, I actually just grabbed whatever (It was Christmas Eve, there was A LOT going on). We had fed her a little chicken and brown rice on Christmas Eve and Christmas morning with the last of her of her old food. Christmas Day about 4:30 she had her first bowl of purina. 2-3 hours later she had her first seizure. She has NO health problems except arthritis. She has NEVER had a seizure. She was running around all day, playing with her toys, being her totally normal crazy self she always is. We were naturally terrified and had no clue what was happening. We journaled everything and watched her like a hawk all night and she finally got back to almost normal by early afternoon on 12/26. On 12/26 around 4:30ish she had another bowl of purina and literally 2-3 hours later had her second seizure. We rushed her to the emergency vet in (b) (6) and without having an MRI we won't know if it's a brain tumor or not. We cannot afford an MRI right now. We also just took the word of the doctor saying it's the age and these things happen. The dr said the labs looked fine (I'm not sure what they test for) and that without something else to rule it out they will treat her for epilepsy due to a possible brain tumor and she has to be on medication for the rest of her life. They gave us seizure medication and sent us on our way. She hasn't had any recent vaccinations or flea/tick meds. The ONLY thing that was different in her routine was the Purina Dog Chow Complete Adult Lamb flavor. I had mentioned it to my husband when we were in the waiting room at the er, and we both agreed that it's just a weird coincidence but we still mentioned it to the dr. She just brushed it off like it was absolutely ridiculous. But I had such a strong feeling in my gut that this wasn't right. We know our dog. There was not one other sign. She had 2 seriously violent seizures 2-3 hours after eating that food she never eats. I even told my husband when we were driving home we need to get new dog food because I don't trust that food. He agreed. She has been eating chicken and rice since then and has not had another seizure. Which of course she is also taking seizure medication so I can't say that it's change in food along with the medication. I will not test that theory. | 12 | Years  | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 50 | Pound |

| EON-557274 | 12/26/2023 15:56 | Hill's Science Diet Dry Dog Food Adult Lamb Meal & Brown Rice Recipe 15.5 lb. Bag        | I had been purchasing my dog food from Amazon, the brand Hill Science. After a couple of months I started noticing little bugs around the food, I didn't think much of it, I just killed them. Then in February my dog got sick, I took him to the vet at the time where they tested him. Although no parasites like worms or giardia was found, it was speculated he could have contracted salmonella from the food. He threw up for a few days before I took him to the vet, and after the vet told me to stop giving him his food, he immediately stopped throwing up. Then, because this was a new bag of food for 64 dollars, I started giving him his food again and he started throwing up again. I tried one more time to stop feeding him for a few days and feed him again and everytime I'd stop feeding, he'd stop throwing up. So I decided to stop giving him that bag of food and give him my little dog's food temporarily. Then around the end of April the same thing happened and this time he got sick in his crate again and I went to clean out his crate. I noticed those same little bugs I had seen around the food containers all in his crate, like a LOT of them. Why were they there? Because I fed him in his crate and he'd always throw his bowl over and food would spill everywhere. The crate by the way, for reference is far from other stored food. So I knew it was from the dog food. I immediately called Amazon angrily, who were unwilling to help. Then I called Hill Science who told me these bugs were very common, but to take it up with amazon. Amazon was 0% helpful. I have send them AND hill science a demand letter and they're both refusing to acknowledge what happened here. Because this isn't just what happened, no. About a month later, when the temperatures started to hit the 80's in New York, I started noticing more and more bugs, and ONLY in places where the food was stored. | 6  | Years | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 35  | Pound |
|                            |                  |  | Due to the rising temperatures, I later found out, the hatching period of these bugs shortens from around 15 weeks to only several days.. Hence I suddenly saw SO many of them. I was shocked. I had a tiny bag of food stored in a ZIPLOCK bag with a zipper around it in my walk in closet (at room temperature like you're supposed to store it), and when I went to go on vacation and grabbed the bag to bring it with me (which I had previously put there only a couple days before), that bag suddenly had HUNDREDS of these bugs. They are very small, they're saw-tooth legged grain beetles, they're smaller than ants so hard to see. But I had a good look around me and saw they were everywhere. I was shocked. I then checked my other closet which had a bag in it, and saw the bugs were all over my linen closet, my medicine boxes, everything. It was horrifying. It got so bad I had to fly my mother out from Europe to help me deal with it. I had thousands of dollars in damages, had to throw out all the food I owned, throw away all dog food and dog treats and many of my clothes got damaged because they layed eggs on them and there was worms on them. For months, I had nightmares and PTSD about this and became seriously unwell with the thought of these little bugs being everywhere - WHICH THEY WERE. To this day, I still have so much PTSD and I refuse to buy food from Amazon again. I started purchasing food elsewhere and haven't had a problem since. I also want to emphasize on the unwillingness of both of these companies to handle this properly.. Not only did my entire apartment get destroyed, my dog was sick from their food twice and had to go to the vet. Please help me in resolving this and reporting this.  |    |       |                       |     |     |       |

He had me do strong therapeutic doses of Taurine, L-Carnitine, and Q-10. In three months his heart was back to normal... and I mean 100% normal. He was a SAR dog, and show dog, and was sponsored by a dog food company called Buckeye. Finding out of course it was a VERY poor quality dog that was the ONLY reason he got the problem. Switched foods after tones of research and he never had a problem again. That vet has long since retired, but I don't know if his practice is still there and if they kept the records of the echo. These in bite people and cats. I think when cats eat the food they get infected internally and then there poop is covered with parasites which lead to more flies. I think Amazon.com is intentionally doing this since so many people complained and they still haven't recalled the product or stopped selling it. I also believe this has caused the Covid 19 pandemic. | EON-557265 | 12/26/2023 15:32 | Kirkland Signature Mature Formula Chicken Rice and Egg Dog Food 40 lb.          | After starting a new bag of Kirkland Senior Dog Food (kibble) my dog became averse to eating the food. I started adding treats to the food to encourage her to eat. After about a week I noticed she became lethargic and refused to eat any of the dog food and little other food. She developed some sensitivity around her midsection where she would cry out if touched. I took her to the veterinarian where they ran a number of tests physical, blood, and urine tests. They reported her blood showed possible signs of anemia and found blood in her urine sample. No other findings presented themselves. The vet recommended we schedule an ultrasound to be performed. We were not able to get an immediate appointment unless we admitted her as an emergency case. Since she did not seem to be in an emergency state we decided to schedule an appointment for after a weekend. In the meantime, the vet took another blood sample after about a day and a half. The blood sample looked much better as it was just out of the range of possible anemia. At this time our dog had not eaten the suspected food for several days. She steadily improved over the weekend and we decided to "wait and see" and schedule more blood/urine tests after a month. The food was returned to Costco and I told them I suspected it had made my dog ill. I do not know what or if they did anything. My dog is now eating a different brand of dog kibble and seems to be doing well. We will have her checked with the vet in early January. | 9     | Years  | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 40  | Pound |

This same UPC seems to be on all 30lb bags that I have. | (b) (6) developed explosive diarrhea over night, couldn't keep food/drink down, even bland chicken & rice. As diarrhea started becoming more frequent and became all blood, I took him to emergency vet clinic (9am ish), where we spent all day. Xrays and labs resulted in no definitive cause for his problems and only lab concerns by then were likely caused by his dehydration, presumably caused by the explosive diarrhea. They treated him and gave him fluids under the skin. I made an appt for 11/10 (the earliest they had). I followed the discharge instructions & had been told he should be back to full kibble and normal eating within a few days but he got worse as the under-skin fluids depleted. The regular vet examined him 11/10. They tested him for Addison's disease (per emergency vet recommendations), it too was ruled out. He got more fluids under the skin. We tweaked the bland diet and feeding instructions over the weekend, but he would have explosive diarrhea within 5 minutes of drinking water. He was hungry and thirsty, but as everything gave him explosive diarrhea, he quit eating that weekend for 32 hours (his 3rd time he'd stopped eating due to his illness - ranging 24-32 hours). Vet started a new treatment plan of meds etc and prescription food after I reported his condition after the weekend. He improved instantly on the meds & prescription diet. Each time I tried to follow the plan for re-introducing the lams kibble, he got worse. At 25%, his stool started to get loose again. At 45% it was very loose, so I never dared increase it above 50% ish for fear he'd stop eating all that too. I'm not sure which date to use as the "recovery" date - he was instantly better when we used prescription diet with the meds, but it was supposed to be only for a few days and stretched out for weeks. I consider him "recovered" when I switched to the new bag of lams, as he had no discernible health issues or need to rely on prescription diet or meds at that time. | 3   | Years | Mixed (Dog)               | Dog | 56  | Pound |

|                            |                  |   | I'd noticed my other dog seemed to be having sensitivity around the same time too, but was harder to pinpoint with her, as she has other health issues and is on medications (including prednisone daily). As the weeks went by, I became concerned that the lams was the problem (after ruling everything else out). Went into town and bought a smaller bag from a different store (hoping it was from a different production line as the original food they'd been eating). I also picked up kibble of the prescription diet, in case the new bag of lams didn't work. Both dogs got better with the first feeding from the new bag of lams. I suspect the other dog's prednisone was masking the problem in her or helped buffer from the severe issues (b) (6) had. In her case, she'd been having sensitivities to things she normally gets, could no longer tolerate 1/2 boiled egg twice a day or her 1tsp supplement daily, and started having diarrhea each time I tried to slowly reintroduce either. She had been able to tolerate only 1/4 tsp of her supplement (no egg or anything else in her diet). At night, I could hear both dogs' stomachs rumbling angrily; I'd have to check which dog needed to go out - it could go either way. ALL symptoms for both dogs stopped the first night I switched to the new bag of lams. (b) (6) is now back at 75% lams kibble and could probably be at 100% except that I have an expensive bag of prescription diet food to use up. I've been able to start raising the other dog's supplement - she had no issues at 1/2 tsp supplement and I'll add another 1/4th tomorrow to get her to 75% of her expected dose. I recently started on a new 30lb bag of lams, they seem OK on it. Both the smaller and newer large bags were purchased at Big Lots in (b) (6). Harley had been fine at his regular vet appt 10/12/23, before all these troubles began. He'd had no opportunities to get into anything for weeks &amp; had been on a strict diet for weeks prior to his sudden issues 11/8. I'd had no explanation other than the lams food for his sudden health issues 11/8. The emergency vet concluded he'd most likely eaten something that didn't agree with him; he'd had only lams until that morning, when I tried chicken/rice after he puked up the lams. (He puked up the lams too on 11/8 before we left for the emergency hospital.) |   |       |                       |     |    |       |
|                            |                  |   | I'll have to figure out what date I started feeding from the new bag of lams; I think it was 11/28/23, the same day I picked up prescription kibble from the vet too. (He'd been on canned prescription diet for a couple weeks as I tried to reintroduce lams with it.) For the info below, I'm considering it (b) (6) as his reaction was the most severe, but the other dog's issues started at the same time, which is part of why I ultimately tried buying a different bag of lams to see whether everything for both dogs would improve. (Sidenote: the information from the emergency vet was not all accurately reflecting what I told her. I brought in some stool, which was from early that morning, having flecks of blood. By the time I'd left for the vet, he'd had something like 10 incidents of explosive diarrhea; it had gotten progressively worse until the last 5-6 were just all blood. I hadn't taken any of that in to the vet; it seemed unnecessary. I'd also told them he would be 3 in Dec; they apparently rounded his age down. Other info was wrong also.)  |   |       |                       |     |    |       |

| EON-556605 | 12/16/2023 19:28 | Members Mark Chicken & Rice Dog Food 40lb bag   | Our dog (b) (6) became deathly ill at the beginning of October of 2023. We noticed she had been acting different for a few days and didn't want to eat her food. On October 14th 2023 we noticed she was lethargic, yellow in color, puking up stomach bile, hyporexia and very sickly. We rushed her to an emergency Vet Hospital where she was confirmed very ill. (b) (6) was diagnosed revealed infection, severe hyperbilirubinemia and moderately elevated ALT (liver enzyme). She had an infection at that time, was given a ton of medication for infection (Antibiotics) and medication for her failing liver. The vet recommended she stay with them but we elected to take her home and follow up with vet first thing Monday morning on 10/16/2023. Monday's follow up more blood work was performed, an ultra sound, and check up. It was confirmed with ultra sound that her gall bladder was full of sludge and she was very ill. Doctor (b) (6) prescribed more antibiotics and another medication for her gallbladder, and a special food. She was on about four different medications daily, some twice a day. We had another follow up visit on 11/06/2023 with a recheck progress. At that time all medication is to continue as (b) (6) is slowly progressing but still showing gallbladder issues (sludge still showing). Next follow up visit on 12/07/2023. At that visit she had another ultra sound to check the internal organs and it recommended that she follow up with the internal specialist at another vet hospital. (b) (6) was to continue her Denamarin for her liver support, Doctor (b) (6) said we could stop the antibiotics and the ursodiol but to be watched very careful. On December 12th, 2023 we were able to get her in to see Doctor (b) (6) at (b) (6). During her physical exam revealed a moderate elevation in her ALT Liver enzyme & hyperbilirubinemia. Physical exam revealed a jaundice appearance. Repeat blood work, continue to take the Denamarin, Ursodiol, and vitamin E and her special diet that is vet prescribed until further notice.  | 4 | Years | Catahoula Leopard Dog | Dog | 60 | Pound |

|            |                  |   | (b) (6) was a healthy dog up until she was fed her food back in September then she was dealthly ill come October. We highly suspected it was her food all along that made her super ill and the email that her food company sent to us on November 17th, 2023 confirmed it. The time line follows it to a T. She has had Member Mark Dog Food her entire adult life. We obviously quit feeding her contaminated food to her when she got sick. We have since then been refunded for the food, still have the food stored for proof that the food was what made her dealthly sick. We have called the food company on 11/18/2023 which is the members mark Chicken and Rice 40lb bag with a upc 00193968344207 that the Texas Farm Products Company made and spoke to a person one time. That person stated they would follow up vis email, which hasn't happened yet. Since then I've tried to contact them several times at the number provided 1-866-311-13223 and now nobody will answer that line and you can't leave a message. I'm looking to be reimbursed for all of my current and future vet, medication, and special diet food bills that this food has caused.   |      |       |                           |     |     |       |

| EON-556592 | 12/16/2023 19:24 | PURINA BENEFUL PREPARED BEEF STEWPurina Beneful Prepared Meals Beef Stew with Peas Carrots Rice & Barley Wet Dog Food 10-oz case of 8 | I ordered a case of Purina BENEFUL Beef Stew for my dog (8 meals in separate tubs). It arrived from Chewy.com in a large box with some other items, food and supplies. I put the case on the floor of my pantry and did not open it for a few days as I use it as a topper and did not need it immediately. When I did use the first meal, my dog ate it. The second meal, she refused and would not eat all day. The third day, I noticed a string of ants leading to the case. I opened the full case up and opened one meal from the bottom. It was full of bugs that look like maggots. I took photos. It was disgusting. I submitted a customer complaint to Chewy. They said that I should open and inspect all food prior to serving and refunded me $14. I sent more photos of the box that looked like it was not packaged properly so they could investigate and get to the bottom of it. I got a reply that basically said that if I didn't have any other complaints thank you for telling us. So I sent the Lot # to Purina and am waiting to hear. I have 8 photos of this disgusting mess that was sent to my house with these horrible things crawling around in it. I feel terrible that I gave my dog a serving of it but the one I did seemed fine. But when she didn't eat the second one, I began to wonder because she is normally a good eater. She smelled it and then refused it. I didn't think to empty the entire case of food honestly. I assumed that when I bought Purina food from Chewy that it would be fine as I have been a customer for 5 years and have had only one other bad order, and that was ironically a bag of Purina Pro Plan with moldy food in the bottom of the bag. I reported it to Chewy and they said that they were investigating a warehouse situation that may have gotten the bag wet. I suspect that this food issue may have been either due to delivery and packaging (not enough material inside the large box it was sent in and it moved around during transit until it caused a leakage) or it was infested by the bugs prior to shipping. I don't know enough about these creatures to know how long it takes for them to invade a food source. I cleaned thoroughly and hope that I got everything disinfected. All this for a $14 order of Purina Beneful Beef Stew as a topper for my dog's food which is now Purina One Lamb & Rice. So having been a USDA researcher myself (Youth Development), I decided to let you know that this was the WORST experience I have ever had with an online order of dog food! |      |       |                           |     |     |       |

This continued every meal for 5 days. I finally did a test of giving her boiled chicken and rice and she did not regurgitate at all. We then Fed her the following morning, again she was fine. | EON-556148 | 12/13/2023 10:24 | Identity Adult Cat Food Personality In Pet Food   | I was looking into Identity Pet Food to potentially purchase a sampler pack of cat food online. It indicated it would be 22 cans in the description but only 20 cans were listed. I emailed to inquire and was told the quail was hard to get due to avian bird flu and that a can of dog food would be substituted. I responded saying I was not going to feed my cats DOG food due to very different nutritional requirements of the two species. They said the dog food was perfectly safe for cats and that their dog and cat food have "very little differences except for trace vitamins and minerals." They said their diets "are 95 percent meat, poultry or fish and diets this high in meat will naturally meet the AAFCO food nutrient profiles for both dogs and cats. Thus it is perfectly safe to feed our cat food to a dog and visa versa." I then explained that the dog food has no taurine added into it and that cooking food destroys taurine which is why it's added back into cat food since it is an essential amino acid for cats. They then responded "The dog food does have taurine in it -- it actually has natural taurine as all our products do. Taurine naturally occurs in high levels in meat -- most companies only supplement it because they're not high in meat. We only siuppement taurine so we get fewer questions as our diets are naturally extremely high in taurine. Oh and we started adding synthetic taurine in the dog a few months ago -- we are allowed to use old labels before we have to change the label which is what we are doing."USING OLD LABELS?TELLING ME TAURINE IS NATURALLY IN THEIR FOOD SO NO NEED TO ADD IT BACK IN WHEN I EXPLAINED COOKING DESTORYS ITWhen I asked why they would substitute the quail dog food for the quail cat food when there was a short supply I asked them if it was the same quail. They said "Quail has been difficult to procure because of governments requiring quelling of quail populations to control the avian flu. There is no difference in the quail used for dog versus cat." |    |       |                        |     |    |       |

| EON-556057 | 12/12/2023 9:52  | Purina Sensitive Skin and Stomach   | in July I noticed my dog becoming lethargic, but otherwise normal. In october, she started vomiting in the morning. Within 2-3 days she started having bloody mucusy diarrhea and extreme lethargy, and didnt want to eat. I took her to the vet that Friday and her liver enzymes were very high and they gave me antibiotic. On Monday, we redid blood work, and her liver enzymes were high but also one of her blood cell counts were low. (not really sure about this but can get vet records to make sure this is correct) No other sign of infection or illness but my vet suspected it maybe could be an auto immune disorder. A few days later, another blood test, everything fine but the liver count. Fast forward to about $1,500 in vet bills, she seemed stable but still not herself. Last week, the vomiting started again and I saw on Facebook a post that the purina pro plan sensitive skin and stomach caused a ladies dogs to be very ill and she had the food tested and it came back with four heavy metal toxins. I called my vet and switched my dogs over immediately. I went in to the vets today to make sure my dogs organ function is ok, so we sent out her blood work. I do have a second dog who had one episode of becoming very ill and had issues breathing but I dont know if thats related to the food. I did notice the kibble looked different the last few months and did some research and they had to change their formula as they couldnt get an ingredient. note date issue started was the date she started vomiting, not the lethargy. note sate of recovery is today but she is still recovering and we are continuing to monitor her health with the vet. | 5  | Years | Mixed (Dog) | Dog | 60 | Pound |

She has been doing great on it until this last bag. First she just wasn't acting himself and we were keeping an eye on it. This week she was having obvious stomach discomfort and horrible gas. We thought she was doing better and finally ate a small amount of her food and the symptoms reappeared. I was looking into it online and found several reports of similar situations from other people. We plan to call the vet in the morning to get her in but other people have said that although the doctor couldn't find a specific cause their dogs had elevated liver enzymes and their blood counts were off. Within 2 hours after eating the 8 small pellets, the dog started having very loose stools which progressed to watery diarrhea lasting > 48 hours. Dog did not vomit but was lethargic and had no appetite. Due to the weekend time frame a veterinarian was not available - however will be contacted next week. Product was purchased at (b) (6). (b) (6) also kept the product in a freezer. And I purchased it in a frozen state. Regular kibble food for this dog is NutriSource combination of animal protein and fish protein products. He also eats pate style dog food from both Primal and Dave's which are Turkey and Sardine or Salmon. So toleration of the two ingredients: Turkey and fish is not an issue for this dog. The sudden onset of symptoms along with all of the recent recalls and safety notifications from PRIMAL led me to report this incident. | 19 | Months | Poodle (unspecified)  | Dog | 42 | Pound |

| EON-555687 | 12/7/2023 12:44 | Acana brand multiple proteins. Most commonly selected Freshwater Fish Blend.                 | We've fed our golden retriever Acana (and sometimes Orjen) brand pet food his entire life (7.5 years). We've fed a variety of proteins from this brand (fish, chicken, beef, etc.), but most commonly fish. In the last few weeks he developed a cough and lack of appetite, so we took him to the vet. In his x-ray they found he had an enlarged heart. We took him to the emergency vet where he was diagnosed with dilated cardiomyopathy. Given his diet was grain-free they indicated that he may have developed DCM due to diet. In addition to his heart medications he's now on, he is now also taking a taurine supplement. As a consumer, I wasn't aware that this was a potential problem. I'd chosen Acana because I thought it was a premium food with good protein sources. When the vet asked if my pet was on any special diet I answered no because I didn't even realize he was eating anything unusual. When I went home and looked at his bag of dog food, there wasn't any advertising on the front that said anything like "grain free". I had to read the bag thoroughly and read through the ingredients on the back before I even saw the words that it doesn't contain grain. I feel so frustrated that I didn't know my dog was even on a "special" diet. It's possible my primary vet has asked me in the past if he was on a special diet and I said no because I didn't think he was. Knowing that this could have been prevented is really heartbreaking. I've read online that there aren't further investigations into this issue at the moment, but want to flag it since this is still something that is happening. | 7  | Years  | Retriever - Golden      | Dog | 73  | Pound |

She looks and acts like she's still a kitten and has never had an issues with mobility, eating, or diseases. Jumps 7 foot from the floor in the air without a second thought and has always been healthier than any other cat in her age range. I believe the recalls with Mid America Pet Food is the very reason to her most recent death November 13th 2023.I had changed my food for my cats to victor about a year ago. I have three cats so I gave her mostly Victor since she was older than my other two cats and most likely needed premium. I started noticing around mid summer that she was still eating food but slowly pushing it away and not finishing her meals the way she used to but I persisted kept giving her food until she ate something. She looked like she was developing a cold b/c of the mucus that kept forming at her nose. When she started vomiting her food, followed by diarrhea and light sneezing blood and bleeding from her gums I made an appointment with the vet. 2 days before July 19th I had noticed she had lost a large tooth and thought this could be a factor to her bleeding. However she was already displaying symptoms before she lost it so I was worried. On July 19th I took her to the vet because I was afraid her lost back tooth would lead to a bad infection. My other younger cats were randomly throwing up food too so if there was something spreading I had to prevent further disease. The doctor examined her and prescribed an antibiotic. There was no indication of cancer or major sickness just a small infection. She took this for about a month and was getting better, reduced bloody sneezing and bleeding gums. I was feeding her soft cans of fancy feast and friskies at this time b/c I didn't want food getting stuck in her teeth and victor wasn't available as much in the store at the moment. I went back to her regular brand cat food around mid August switching from victor healthy skin and coat indoor cat, Hi pro plus, mers Feline multicat, and soft can food. October 7th she developed pus in the corner of her right eye. She started sneezing blood again and bleeding from her mouth coughing. Over the course of a month her face looked like it was deteriorating. Her right eye was clouded with what I thought was a cataracts but this was worth. It would bleeding especially when she sneezed and coughed blood. She barely had an appetite. She couldn't really move or jump. She was pooping and peeing in the chair she sits in all day but barely. She was drinking what she could but also looked dehydrated. Lost so much weight. half of her face was now deteriorating literally she had no more muscle and she looked a symmetrical. She was having trouble breathing. And it seemed like her teeth were ready to fall from her gums all this only on the right side of her face. I had to crush her pet food and mix it to make it edible for her. She really was refusing to eat much. But she kept going pushing but she fell over to much weakened and was no longer her self she was when she was getting better. On November 10th I freaked out bc she was bleeding profusely from her mouth. I took her to the ER on the night of the 13th b/c she was barely mobile. Still responding to me and sitting on my lap i could tell she was suffering from something even she knew she couldn't combat and I had to put her to sleep so she wasn't suffering. 2 days ago I learned of the recall for mid America (victor cat food included) announced November 9th 2023 from a notice posted at my local (b) (6) store. And of a prior recall in October that was made for victor dog food. After learning of the symptoms of pancytopenia I believe that she developed the inability to fight off any infections b/c she was exposed to recalled food containing salmonella and perhaps tainted food throughout the year these cases have been developing. She was 100% healthy prior to her initial symptoms and within 4 months deteriorated severely and rapidly.  |     |       |                    |     |  |            |
|            |                 |  | I am at an emotional loss for not only a loved member of my family but financially burdened since at the time of this occurrence I also lost 2 jobs. I know my pets and Ive monitored their health thought the years. She had minimum 5 more years in her and Mid America Pet food / Victor Food shortened her chances of living and took her life. The strange part is when she was sick. I was sick too. When she was coughing up blood and sneezing I was too. I thought we were soul mates but this was odd. I handled her food and The other cats stayed away from her and mostly ate different brands of food at a different part of the house. For a period of time I had diarrhea stomach issues and loss of appetite loss of energy and a fever and chills which luckily passed but I haven't been sick for a very long time either so this was strange to me. When I review the time line and the recall dates it makes sense to me. I'm not only grieving a loss of my family member I'm also approaching this from a logical standpoint. She was old but incredibly well taken care of, loved by me, and with me every single day. Im also worried b/c my other two cats would sometimes go into her area and attempt to eat her cat food. If they get sick too I'll be incredibly upset. They are younger so hopefully they have fought off anything that could possibly had affected them with in the time period they were throwing up as well.  |     |       |                    |     |  |            |

| EON-555295 | 12/3/2023 9:12  | Wholesomes Sensitive Skin & Stomach Large Breed Salmon Dry Dog Food  | On Tuesday 11/28, (b) (6) threw up that evening about a couple hours after eating her dinner of 2 cups of Wholesomes Sensitive Skin & Stomach dog kibble. Wednesday she had no problem eating. Two days later, the morning of Thursday 11/30, she refused to eat her breakfast of 2 cups of the same kibble mixed with a couple tablespoons of her canned food. Since then she's been refusing to eat any of her kibble, has had terrible gas and diarrhea, and has some lethargy. I can get her to eat small amounts of canned food, her treats and dentasticks, and cooked vegetables, but that's it. The kibble was a brand new bag opened on Tuesday 11/28 and the fact she's straight up refusing to touch it and now she's suddenly sick tells me something is wrong with it. There have been no other events of her getting into/eating foreign materials, she never gets into garbage, she is crated when we're not home and she is always on supervised walks, even off-leash. Her last meal with this kibble was Friday 12/1 when my husband apparently gave it to her while I was at work and she reluctantly ate it but had terrible gas right after. I have not given her any of this kibble since then. Her gas has cleared up but she still has terrible diarrhea and is not eating much.  | 4 Years  | Shepherd Dog - German | Dog | 65 Pound    |

After purchasing the food, totaling $65.69, I stopped at Sam's Club to get gas and then proceeded home. I immediately opened the bag to pour its contents into the bin where I keep my dogs food, only to discover a spiderweb-like substance stick to 4-5 pieces of kibble. Unsure of what I found, I picked it up to inspect it, but, assuming it was a one-off instance, I set it aside and grabbed the measuring scoop to feed my dog. It was then that I noticed the body of a dead worm wedged behind a piece of kibble. Then, to my complete disgust, I saw there were more worms crawling through the container. Horrified, I checked in the bag only to find more worms. This is revolting. A company that I have been purchasing dog food from for years has suddenly become a product I will never use again. The bad was dated for expiration in March of 2025, but here we are. I have contacted the company and told them of the issue as well as giving them the batch number information. With photo evidence, I am returning the bag to PetSmart in hopes that they will pull this from their shelves. The Veterinarian explained that heart enlargement has shown to be linked to grain-free diets. Due to sensitive gastrointestinal issues, namely vomiting and diarrhea with most high quality dog food brands our two non-related German Shepherds (5 and 4 year old) have tolerated Open Farm grain-free pork dry food the best since they were puppies. We will follow up with our regular veterinary clinic; but thought this issue is worth reporting since we have consistently fed our dogs this one brand only. Naturally this news is alarming to us. We opened a new bag after finishing the previous, and fed it to him. My husband even exclaimed that the garage where we keep the food became very pungent after just simply opening the bag. We unfortunately didn't think much of it and continued to feed our puppy regularly. 36 hours later, he began throwing up bile multiple times a day for 4 days straight. Our vet prescribed some anti nausea medication and a prescription food. His symptoms subsided for 36 hours, then became even worse with diarrhea and more vomiting of bile. We have run all the tests and eliminated all other causes than severe gastroenteritis caused by the new bag of food.   | 7   | Months | Poodle - Standard    | Dog | 49 | Pound |

| EON-554392 | 11/23/2023 16:56 | Kibbles N Bits   | Both dogs in my household began vomiting after eating from a bag of Kibbles N Bits steak and bacon flavored dog food. The bag was purchased for one dog, (b) (6) a 4 year old, male, 75 lb, neutered mixed breed (GSD and terrier). He is the dog predominantly fed this food. (b) (6) ate the first bit of this food on Saturday evening and promptly vomited it back up. (b) (6) normally has a fairly strong stomach, but I didn't think too much of it. Sunday he was fed again, more of it, as I mix his old and new food together in the airtight storage container I have for it, so as not to cause sudden stomach upset. (b) (6) vomited twice on Sunday after eating the food. On Monday, my second dog -- (b) (6) a 13 year old, male, 30 lb neutered, Jack Russell Terrier (full bred) -- snuck some of the food. He normally would not receive this food, as he has a sensitivity to corn and begins itching non-stop when fed kibble with corn as an ingredient. (b) (6) threw up constantly from Monday through to Tuesday. (b) (6) did not receive Kibbles and Bits that day, instead opting to eat (b) (6) food. (b) (6) did not vomit on Monday. On Tuesday, both dogs received their meals from (b) (6) dog food, and did not vomit. Today is Wednesday, November 22, 2023. (b) (6) was fed the Kibbles and Bits again, and promptly vomited again, and has continued vomiting throughout the day. The bag was purchased at the (b) (6), Walmart on Saturday, November 18, 2023. I do not have the original bag it came in. As stated earlier, I empty the new bag into the airtight container I keep for food storage, and then throw out the packaging. It keeps pests at bay. I'm not sure if there's a way to track batch and lot number based on the date and location of purchase, if you all needed to. I'm not saying it's necessarily the food that's at fault, but it did raise alarm bells when my dogs ate it and vomited it and then had no problems when fed another food the next day -- but resumed vomiting when fed the same suspect food again. It seemed like the kind of thing I needed to report. Thanks. | 4  | Years | Mixed (Dog)            | Dog | 75  | Pound |

I fed the bone to my dog as soon as I walked in the door. He ate half of it before I gave him the FreshPet food (within 5 min. of eating the bone). He then ate about 1/4 of the FreshPet food. Within 15 minutes he started whining and vomiting. For the next 48 hours he vomited and had diarrhea several times. I've had my dog for over 10 years and has never been this sick from food (can eat anything without getting sick). Normally I would not report a sick dog but the severity of it made me concerned for other pets that may not be as healthy as my dog. He has recovered. I'm not sure if it was the bone or FreshPet - both smelled and looked okay before I served him. I should have trusted my gut but it didn't smell different than usual, so I gave it to the cats. Both of them have been eating this product since they were kittens, but both showed suspicion/avoidance. They ended up grudgingly eating it later since it was the only food available, so I gave them a second can at another meal. This time they both experienced projectile vomiting at some point over the next few hours/overnight, which is extremely rare for them. They both recovered quickly after they got it out of their systems and I did not take them to the vet, but I will not be feeding them any more of the suspicious cans. | EON-554381 | 11/23/2023 16:24 | Farmer's Dog                           | I started giving my overall healthy and happy aging Yorkshire Terrier Farmer's Dog food to prolong his life and provide the dog with "natural" incidents as this company advertises everywhere and on pretty much any marketing platform with high rated reviews (probably by "experts" that never fed their dogs with this food). My dog loved the food, but within few months his overall condition started rapidly deteriorate and at first we (as well as our vet) attributed that to aging. Then after about 3 months or so he started to refuse the food, and then a few days after completely rejecting any food and starting to have bloody stool, he died in his sleep, so we did not even get a chance to take him to the vet the next morning. We all attributed it to "old age" and the vet told us it was probably his heart. We were heartbroken, but accepted the reality. Since there was quite a bit of left over from Farmer's Dog food supply in the freezer, I gave it to my daughter for her dog (a mixed breed of about 8 years old and around 25 Lbs). The dog loved it too! And for a month was doing well until one day ended up in ER with GI bleed - likely on time. The ED vet (in (b) (6)) told them that they have been seeing more of GI bleeds and sudden illnesses in dogs who are on Farmer's Dog food and obviously the food was immediately thrown out, my daughters dog recovered with treatment, she also contacted the company to report he incident and cancel future orders, but did not get much of any response other than refund for the payment of new order. I don't think that having 2 dogs suddenly falling ill (one with fatal ending) can be a coincidence and considering also many similar reports I recently read on Reddit and BBB consumer reports, I think that FDA should react on these complaints and seriously look into the quality and safety of Farmer's Dog food, so no more innocent pets get ill from it, while the dog owners keep getting sucked up to all the promises of miracle food and how well the dogs do on it from the company that produces it! I hope that FDA is maybe already looking into this, based on previously posted complaints on various platforms, but of not - please DO so! I am a medical doctor myself, so I know what I am talking about. If something like this would have come up for any of FDA regulated human products the agency would have been all over it by now. | EON-554192 | 11/22/2023 10:20 | Nature's Animals Handmade Dog Biscuits | My dog (b) (6) is 3 years old and he has always loved a particular peanut butter dog biscuit. So for his 3rd birthday 10.23.23 we gave him 2 for a treat. He ate half of one biscuit and then became very sick. We first noticed fatigue, then vomit and diarrhea, then blood in his vomit, and very bloody liquid stool. My question is, has there been any recalls on this product and has anyone else mentioned this as being an issue? I would like to have the food tested to see if that could have been the issue. I have been researching online as to what could make him so sick and Salmonella or other contaminants seems to be something that brings about the symptoms. I have already had him in the vet for 2 days and he is starting to make a turn around. He had blood tests, antibiotics, anti nausea meds, anti diarrhea meds, and xrays to see what could be causing this. We have narrowed down to this biscuit. He seems to be doing a little better today and we are hoping it has not caused serious issues or we were worried about him dying from it due to the fact that he wouldn't eat or drink and had blood coming out in great quantities. We are very worried about our dog and also other dogs that may come in contact with this treat, we are investigating to see what could have caused this to (b) (6). My dogs recently had gotten incredibly sick with uncontrollable diarrhea and gas. They then stopped eating it. This proceeded to be an issue for a week until I decided to try a different food. Immediately after I tried a different food symptoms subsided. My mother's four dogs also have had these reactions until she switched foods. We have also received moldy bags that had remained sealed until use. The food was returned to the store and replaced. When purchasing this product I asked about durability due to our German Shepherd being hard on toys. I was informed about the product Features. " With double-layered fabric, reinforced stitching, and a durable rope core, these toys are ready for some serious fun." " Tuffer Chewers feature an extra thick rope core and double stitched edging that stands up to rough play. Durable double-ply fabric prevents tearing and lasts longer. " "The extra durable fabric, double stitched edging, and rope throughout make it perfect for dogs who love to play rough." This previous weekend November 11th, our dog chewed it into pieces and in the process swallowed some of the toy. He refused any and all of his food for a week and when we took him into the Emergency clinic we had to get an X-ray done and that is where they found part of the toy lodged in his intestines which requires a surgery to remove the product. She then started refusing to eat it. So I purchased a really expensive brand of dog food. (b) (6) got much better and resumed eating. But the other food was so expensive I decided to try giving her the Victor that was still pretty much barely touched. I began giving it to her for a couple of days and noticed a noticeable change in (b) (6) demeanor, then she stopped eating for 2 1/2 days, was shaking, had no energy and I was really worried. I took her to the PetER and had x-rays done. My 1 year old pup had colitis! | EON-553809 | 11/18/2023 9:12  | Victor Super Premium Cat Food   | In June of 2023, (b) (6) began to vomit, had diarrhea and there was a bit of blood around his bottom whenever I would wipe him. It would get worse day by day to a point that he would vomit twice a day. When I would look closer the vomit was mostly dark brown (same color as his victor dry food). The vomiting continued for over two months. The vet did a full check up and an X-ray to see if he swallowed a rubber band or sth that has blocked his system. Took blood test to see if it's a kidney problem. Everything came back normal. Per doctor's prescription, he had to take several doses of Cerenia and Pepcid to control the vomiting. However it didn't stop. I had to take him back to the vet multiple times and they would prescribe the same thing since they check everything and his condition sounded normal. Until the doctor mentioned that it can be "food sensitivity". So they told me to stop feeding him the Victor cat food and prescribed "Hydralized Purina ProPlan". They also prescribed Provable-Forte, Cobalequin, a vitamin B injection, and Cerenia (in case of continues vomiting). (b) (6) took the first two medications for about a month that per doctor they were good for controlling the bacteria in digestive system. The diarrhea and vomiting finally stopped! But my baby was sick for 2.5 months and went on series of medications. Few days ago, I received a message from Amazon (where I purchased the food in late Dec of 22) saying that the Victor cat food should no longer be fed due to the recall. ALL 4 began to experience symptoms after we gave them the new bag of dog food from Victor. This is their normal food brand and the type is the same, but this specific bag made them all very sick. At the height of their illness, roughly day 3, they had severe diarrhea to the point where they were needing to go every 5-7 minutes with straight liquid coming out. Very watery. They became dehydrated and in turn lethargic. In total, it last 5 days for (b) (6) 4 for (b) (6) 2 for (b) (6) and 2 for (b) (6). It was awful. We didn't know what it was and assumed it was a bug they had passed to one another. My partner and I also had similar symptoms that week but didn't think they were related. We stopped giving them the food because I suspected it was a bad bag and sent my partner to the store to get a new one. At that time, he noticed the recall and everything basically clicked. We did dispose of the rest of the food securely so other wildlife couldn't get to it, but I do feel that this recall wasn't announced well at all. There should have been more coverage or publicity on it. We only knew when he went in for another bag. On 11/14/2023, we took her to the vet. She was running a fever and dehydrated. The vet did an exam and bloodwork to determine what would be the cause. She asked about what we feed her. We told the vet we use Retriever brand dog food and the vet informed us that there had been a recall. She said that vomiting and fever are common symptoms of salmonella, which was the cause for the Retriever recall. She believes that contaminated dog food was likely the cause of her illness. I contacted TFP Nutrition, they stated that all dog food effected by the recall was pulled from the shelves BY 10/19/2023 and because we had bought the dog food on 10/20/2023 and 11/2/2023 that our dog could not have been effected by the recalled product. We spoke with the manager of Tractor Supply where the food was purchased and he stated that they were not even made aware of the recall until 10/20/2023. He started drinking anything in sight. Over the course of the weekend, he progressed with the following symptoms: Refusal to eat, vomiting, diarrhea, constant drinking, lethargic, weight loss (he had a vet checkup a week prior to verify this), unable to control his urination and out of character was peeing in the house, attempting to enter bathrooms to try to drink from the toilet. On Saturday 21st of that week, he did eat a small amount of Chicken and rice, per vet suggestion, but was still throwing it up. Would not touch his dog food. He wouldn't play with toys, wouldn't respond to the doorbell like normal, and seemed uncomfortable and moved around a lot on the couch. We thought he was getting better on Saturday and Sunday but seemed to regress on Monday 23nd was still very ill so we went to Urgent Care with him. There they noted that he lost several pounds, his stomach seemed hard, his xray showed no blockage but his spleen and possibly liver seemed enlarged. His bloodwork showed his liver enzymes were elevated. ALT at 868 (where 125 was the highest normal suggested value) and his ALP was 337 (212 highest normal value). The Urgent care suggested we get an abdominal ultrasound immediately. Ultrasound showed possibly enlarged spleen as suggested and no masses. Lepro test negative, not cancer, not diabetes. Urine test was diluted and suggested to retest in a few weeks. Antibiotics and nausea medicine given. Metronidazole and Amoxicillin. It took about a week after seeing the vets on Monday 23/Tuesday 24th for (b) (6) to be "better" but he still refused to eat his dog food so we were feeding him chicken/rice/vegetables only. Even if we mixed the chicken into dogfood he would not touch it. I assume he knew. On October 30th we received notification of the voluntary recall from Chewy.com. We had a half opened bag at that point in a storage container and did not have the bag to identify the lot number. The bag was purchased on September 9th, 2023 and was delivered on 9/12/23. (we likely opened it several weeks later as we have a spare bag on hand if needed). Victor pet foods are denying liability as we do not have the bag to prove it came from them. We reported this to Victor/Mid-Atlantic foods, and Chewy.com. (b) (6) seems almost back to his normal self at this point. We will be taking him for a follow up blood work to be sure his liver numbers returned to normal in the coming weeks. Chewy.com returned our dog food purchase. Mid-Atlantic is being forwarded our $1600 vet bills. | 8  | Years  | Bulldog                   | Dog | 70   | Pound    |

Since the beginning of September they have both lost luster in their coats, have been shedding an excessive amount and have been eating non-food items - grass, branches, leaves, rocks. There were multiple bouts of diarrhea - to which I would then switch them to a bland diet of rice, boiled hamburger, and pumpkin for a few days until their feces would return to normal and then we would slowly reintroduce dry dog food and within a few days it would be back to diarrhea and eating non-food items. Unfortunately one of the rocks (b) (6) had eaten became lodged in her stomach creating a blockage. She had a day of continuous vomiting, I brought her into the vet and they took xrays to confirm where the blockage was and saw all the other rocks that she had ingested. It required emergency surgery to have them removed - it was roughly a pound of rocks they removed from her stomach. The one that was lodged was approximately 3"x1". They told me that she was eating the rocks because she had an upset stomach and wasn't absorbing all the nutrients she should be. (b) (6) also excreted rocks in her feces, thankfully they were all small enough for her to pass them on her own. Both dogs were being fed 3 cups each of food per day. I believe this was all related to either the salmonella that has been detected and prompted the massive recall that has occurred and possibly a change in their quality of ingredients. The surgery was performed on October 2, 2023. | 8 Months  | Retriever - Labrador      | Dog | 37  | Pound |

I have had my 4 dogs on Victor since they were babies. I started noticing diarrhea, vomiting about a month and a half ago and thought it may have been the rescue I brought it may have made them sick. Vomiting continues and developed into a hack and cough with vomiting. I have tried home remedies because it is expensive to take 4 dogs to the vet. I get the recall notification and that sums up what my dog have endured for two months I have taken my oldest dog to the vet because he has stopped eating stopped drinking and losing a lot of weight. He now has an infection with a vet bill of $500! I have tried to contact the manufacturer on multiple occasions, no response! Chewy has reached out to refund me for the 3 months of dog food that was contaminated! But I have a 6 year old dog that is being hit hard with this illness and now vet bills because it has escalated way beyond my other 3 dogs! I was going to hold off on the report until I heard back from the manufacturer, but they will not return a call they will not return a email and I just don't know what more to do.  |           | American Pit Bull Terrier | Dog |     |       |

On the 4th day, I was able to get him to eat some cooked chicken, as a suggestion from our vet. When offered the recalled dog food in his bowl, he would sniff but refuse to eat any. We were notified by Sam's club via email about the recall and immediately stopped providing to both dogs. The second, unaffected dog is an 8-year old spayed, female, Rhodesian. From 08-11NOV23, the retriever occasionally consumed bland chicken, drank water occasionally but mainly slept on his bed and couches while continuing to urinate on himself. Apart from being elderly, the Retriever had no medical issues. The vet was unable to pinpoint what was going on despite testing his blood, urine and feces. An ultrasound revealed a thickened intestinal wall and colon, which they assumed to be cancer. We were considering further testing but due to how quickly he declined, the vet recommended against the invasive tests that would be required. I've spoken with a number of people who also purchased Victor branded dog food that said their dogs were also getting sick and refusing to eat that brand of food. I let her out to relieve herself and she started eating grass. She again got under the bed so I left her alone for a while and then crawled under the bed to take her out. She was bleeding from her rectum. I called the Emergency Animal Hospital but they had 6 patients and could not see her. I drove around calling Emergency vets and no one could take her. It was 7 am and I called my vet and they told me to bring her in. She kept losing blood, would not eat, was on IV's for a week with Vitamin K to get her blood to clot. She survived but barely by the grace of God. I called the company. They asked me to send them the rest of the bag so I did. They said they tested the remainder of the treats and they were fine. | EON-553260 | 11/13/2023 10:40 | Goat's Milk Esbilac Puppy Milk Replacer (PetAg)  | The owner reported this information and timeline to us. The bitch (b) (6) went into labor about 5 days early. She had 13 total puppies and two were stillborn. This was the 3rd litter for this bitch. The owner assisted with labor and cleaning the puppies. It is unclear if all puppies latched to the bitch and got any colostrum, but within a couple of hours, the owner started supplementing with the Esbilac Puppy Goats mild powdered formula. The first two puppies to get the formula started having liquid diarrhea within hours, had signs of dehydration, and died. The owner fed the formula for a few days and after 4 puppies died (in the same manner - liquid diarrhea and death), she switched to a formula from Walmart (not the Esbilac brand). Eventually, all 11 puppies died over the course of about 1 week, all had liquid diarrhea and then died. We did recommend the owner take the puppies to a veterinary ER immediately after the first puppies got sick, which she didn't do. The first two puppies to die were submitted to Cornell for necropsy, histopathology and culture. The owner is very much convinced there was something wrong with the formula, so I am submitting this report for them to allow for further investigation into the formula. Cornell is willing to work with us to facilitate further testing of the formula once this form is submitted. | 2  | Days  | American Pit Bull Terrier          | Dog | 1    | Pound    |

Off to vet, blood work normal except elevated white count and dehydration, X-rays inconclusive due to dehydration. IV fluids corrected temp, new X-rays, thought penetrating wound in intestine so off to surgery. Nothing except intestine thickened so biopsy. Again anti nausea meds, antibiotics and gastro diet. | EON-553201 | 11/12/2023 17:16 | Victor Super Premium Dog Food Classic Hi Pro Plus                | Beginning in May 2023, (b) (6) started to have extreme stomach issues out of nowhere. Nausea, vomiting, extensive diarrhea. He was lethargic, stopped eating, and would lay on the floor with labored breathing at times. He seemed very down and not himself. He felt very warm. I took him to an ER vet who determined he had a type of Gastroenteritis, and he was given injections and meds at the time. He continued to have issues up until his physical 9/27/23 in which it was again determined he still had a "terrible bacterial infection" by our vet and was given multiple, intense meds. On 10/12/23 we were alerted that his dog food, Victor Superior, was recalled for Salmonella. We have spent well over $1000 and time off of work dealing with this issue.   | 6  | Years  | Shepherd Dog - German              | Dog   | 100 | Pound |

| EON-553133 | 11/11/2023 7:24  | Victor Hero Dog Food   | On Wednesday Nov. 8th. We opened a new bag of Victor Hero Dog Food, (b) (6) had eaten her dinner like she normally does the next day she was showing signs of not feeling well she would smell her food and walk away. I tried to hand feed her and she would smell the food in my hand and walk away. This is very strange behavior from her because (b) (6) is very food driven. She drank lots of water that day and seemed tired. Sometime during the night, Thursday the 9th, (b) (6) had vomited pools of blood and what looked like coffee grinds and dog food all over our living room. We have photos. We called the vet and took her in that morning Friday Nov 10th. She was treated for gastro with antibiotics and something to help calm her tummy. Around 2:00 that same day Nov 10th I received an email from (b) (6) alerting us about the recalled Victor Dog food.  | 13 | Months | Mountain Dog - Bernese             | Dog   | 75  | Pound |

| EON-553125 | 11/11/2023 0:24  | Victor Hi-Pro plus   | I ordered her food like normal on Amazon. I didn't open it immediately since she wasn't out of the last food. Once I opened it appropriately 4 days ago, and ever since she ate that food she has had severe diarrhea that now has blood in it, and being lethargic, and practically unresponsive at some points. Due to my medical conditions, this has caused a huge amount of anxiety and stress in my life. Not only did I have that, I also had to worry about if I spent my last $100 on a new bag of dog food, or beg a vet to see her, even though no one would take her as a walk in. I decided to get new food, feed her rice, chicken, and eggs, and sat by her side to make sure she was hydrated. This has been so upsetting, and extremely difficult on my already difficult situations. she still is not fully recovered, which is causing even more stress and anxiety, and causing me to not sleep.  | 3  | Years  | Boxer (German Boxer)               | Dog   | 50  | Pound |

(b) (6) suffered severe repeated seizures, diarrhea, and lethargy throughout the night on 10/24/23. She had a couple more seizures the next day. She refused to eat, and was completely incoherent for 3 days. I initially thought it was a random event due to her older age, and thought she was going to pass away. I sedated her to relieve the seizures. Each day she seemed to improve, and is now acting more normal, but still shows effects from being ill. 1 other dog vomited sporadically for 5 days after. A 3rd dog had intermittent diarrhea. The 4th dog seemed ok. On 10/28/23, one of my horses started showing signs of fever and Colic. I administered banamine and he seemed to improve. On 10/29/23 he started to have diarrhea without fever. On 10/30/23 he started to show advanced signs of distress. My veterinarian came to examine him and determined he needed to go to a hospital for emergency treatment. He was at the clinic for 6 days receiving treatment for Enteritis. The attending vet said one of the potential causes could be Salmonella. I had maxed out my credit cards to pay the $5,000 bill and couldn't afford additional testing. 1 week later, both the dogs, and horse seem to be improving. I had no idea how these animals could suddenly be so sick, when they never had any illnesses prior. Then, I saw the recall for Victor dog food could be contaminated with Salmonella. I don't think this is a coincidence. I believe that the dog food was contaminated and made my animals sick. I feed my dogs in the morning, then straight outside to feed my horses. Its a definite possibility that my hands touching their hay could have transferred the Salmonella to them. | 13 | Years  | Schnauzer - Miniature   | Dog | 15 | Pound |

RADIographs showed some inflammation in the GI tract and the patient was sent home with cerenia . 3 days later the dog was febrile ( 103.9 ) , anorexic, and showing signs of GI distress such as retching, unproductive vomiting, hypersalivation and regurgitation. A visit to the Veterinary Emergency group showed normal abdominal radiographs, but a high WBC count. An in house urinalysis was run and it was concluded that the patient had a Urinary tract infection and was sent home on antibiotics. The patient did not improve in 24 hours, so was taken back to (b) (6) where the owner works as a Licensed Veterinary Technician. Symptomatic treatments and a fast scan ultrasound were performed. The following days the patient had declined again and a barium study was performed. The following day the radiograph taken 26 hours post-administration showed some uptake in the stomach. An endoscopy was performed and the patient was diagnosed with an gastric ulcer. The vet had us try a diet of cooked chicken and white rice. He prescribed metronidazole and cerenia and reglan. She immediately improved . After 2 wks on the cooked chicken diet, we transitioned her back to the Victor Senior Health with Chicken and Rice she had been eating when she became ill. Within 3 days, she was vomiting again with severe diarrhea. The vet said it had to be the food, so he switched her to a prescription diet of Royal Canin Gastrointestinal dry food. She has not had one episode of vomiting or diarrhea and is doing much better since being off the Victor food. After reading about the recall(s) we are convinced it was the Victor Senior Health with Chicken & Rice that made her sick. Meanwhile, the vet did $500 worth of testing - all normal values. I chatted online with a Victor customer service agent that denied it was the dog food.   | 8  | Years | Pointing Dog - German Short-haired                                      | Dog           | 65   | Pound |

We served our dogs the food on November 4th. That night the dogs were sick and kept throwing up. We couldn't understand why. Then on Sunday morning when we went to feed them breakfast we noticed that there were flies inside the package of dog food. This is the second time that this has happened to us. The first time we were able to catch it before serving and thought that the package was damaged during shipping and that was why. I believe this happened in March (2023). So we contacted chewy.com and they replaced it. But this time the box was in perfect condition. We are concerned that this is an issue with their facility and would like the FDA to investigate it. I have already taken the liberty of reporting this issue to Chewy.com this morning, but I would advise the FDA to also reach out. Dog Meal Pouch   | I purchased Portland Pet Food Pouch at Whole Foods in (b) (6) My pet had consumed "Portland Pet Food Company's "BEEF and RICE formula." She consumed the food on February 28th, 2022 in the evening. Later that evening, she had diarrhea and lots of urination. I assumed it was because we had changed foods and presumed it was normal. The following day, she would not eat. I waited until evening and that is when I began to notice she had blood in her stool. Later in the middle of the night, she had what I now understand to be HGE (Acute hemorrhagic diarrhea syndrome (AHDS), also known as hemorrhagic gastroenteritis (HGE), is an acute (sudden) disorder of dogs characterized by vomiting and bloody diarrhea. Some dogs may have a painful abdomen, decreased appetite, lethargy, or fever. Most cases occur without warning in otherwise healthy dogs.) I went to the vet in the morning and nothing was confirmed. She became rapidly and severely dehydrated. She passed away later that evening. The predominant food that my pet ate was Portland Pet Food. I went through her medical records and went through my notes and receipts and discovered that once before she had consumed Portland Pet Food a few months prior. I had forgotten that she also got diarrhea and I had forgotten that we tried this brand of food before. I spoke with a representative of the food company. And I am unsure if the right lot number was tested. I recognized that egg shells, carrots, and peas are used as their primary ingredients and may had caused gastrointestinal issues with my pet twice. Portland Pet Food, "Beef and Rice." had a negative impact twice on my pet. While I wish I had remembered this. I'd like your consideration that the Beef and Rice formula had negative impact twice. I am unsure if its their beef source. If the eggshells should not be added? Would the FDA re-evaluate the formula to see if it is fit for senior dogs. | 16 | Years | Retriever - Golden  | Dog | 40 | Pound |

| EON-552361 | 11/3/2023 8:44 | Pedigree DENTASTIX Fresh   | The manufacturer changed the ingredients, but kept the packaging the same. We noticed that the Pedigree Mint Dentastix smelled different. We then noticed the word "Mint" was replaced with "Fresh". My dog turned away when we offered it to her, but eventually ate it. She always grabbed it immediately in the past, but we noticed it smelled different. Shortly after eating it, she wasn't acting herself and seemed a bit anxious. The next night, we offered her another, and she again turned away from it, but eventually ate it. Then, we saw a much more significant change. She began acting as if she wanted to vomit and urgently wanted to go outside and eat grass. She was acting very nervous and uncomfortable and would seem to be trying to regurgitate. She also had diarrhea. After the 2nd stix, we never gave her another. I took a look at the Dentastix bag and began searching the ingredients. That was when I noticed an ingredient that is toxic to dogs. That ingredient is Green Tea Extract because it contains caffeine! Caffeine is a known toxin to dogs. I reported it to both Amazon where I bought the product from and also to Pedigree. It is supreme negligence that a company making a dog food product would include an ingredient that is toxic to dogs! Pedigree simply responded with a somewhat generic questionnaire even though I also sent them this website link to educate them. https://www.petpoisonhelpline.com/pet-safety-tips/is-caffeine-poisonous-to-dogs/ I requested that they recall the product immediately due to the level of toxicity that includes death. | 7  | Years  | Havanese               | Dog  | 24  | Pound |

I saw in the article there was another recall back on Sept 3, 2023 and that indicated the Victor High Pro Plus 5lb bags. It said that there was salmonella and recalled. That trigger my memory on our 11 month old dog. She grew up eating the Victor High Pro Plus and never had any issues. Recently Aug/Sept she was not eating her food that she use to jump for and couldnt eat it fast enough. In addition to the lack of eating and disinterest, we also witnessed her vomiting. This occurred 3 times in the span of 1 to 2 days. There was a couple other episodes where she also vomited and still not eating her food. The vet thought that this may be due to her not being interested in the food any longer and wanted something new. After seeing this recall on the 5lb bag, it seems that should be investigated and expanded. We purchased the 40lb bag, this was from Amazon and that was back on August 13, 2023. She is still not eating normally and we have never seen this.Please look into this and make sure that other dogs are not getting sick by expanding this recall with Victor High Pro Plus. This most recent bag of food looked and smelled differently than it normally does. All previous bags over the last couple years had larger sized flat kibble that was a very dark brown, almost black in color and had an oily coating. This most recent kibble is brown covered in light brown crumbs and is much drier. I don't know how to describe the smell other than it didn't smell right or good. With this most recent bag, my dog initially ate it but ate much slower than he normally does. After a few days he started to refuse it and was spitting it out as if it tasted bad. I started adding green beans to it and he would finally eat it. After a day or so of him eating it he became really gassy and was having more bowel movements than normal. As days past his stool started to get really soft, but not quite diarrhea. After about a week he started to act like he wasn't feeling well and was refusing some meals and not eating. I had to feed him this food for several weeks while I found a new food that wouldn't trigger his IBD and then had to slowly transition him to the new food. He hasn't had any problems since he stopped eating the food and is completely back to normal. | 6   | Years | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 80 | Pound |

I gave him 1 when I got home and another around 9 pm. On Saturday 9/23, I gave him 1 around 9 am and another 1 at 7 pm. I noticed his stools were loose at his bowel movement in the evening, which was not normal. While watching TV at approximately 10 pm, I noticed him start panting and acting strange, pacing around the house. I realized something was wrong when he started having diarrhea and vomiting, which went on all night, all day Sunday 9/24 and all day Monday, 9/25. The only thing he had outside of his kibble were the 4 treats. He was taken to the vet Monday morning, where he was given IV and medications to stop the vomiting and diarrhea. The vet asked what were the treats and noticed there was garlic powder and onion extract in the ingredients. My concern is that there may be a risk of too much of these ingredients in this product that can affect other dogs. I reached out to JM Smucker company on 9/27, they responded the following day via telephone, they said that there would only be small amounts of those ingredients and they gave me a reference number of 16219044. At some point I decided to switch to the same recipe but fresh frozen packs. I thawed the food in the microwave, gave my dog her morning portion and evening portion. During the night and in the morning my dog was vomiting this food, then she started vomiting foam. Her diarrhea started right after. She was vomiting throughout the morning as well. After a day she started having blood come out of her bottom without her even realising it. She would just sit on the floor and blood would come out. She didn't want to eat, she didn't have energy and couldn't even get up and walk 3 feet.She was admitted into the ER and had to stay there for 24 hours because the doctors couldn't discharge her. Antibiotics and meds were not working for her, she was absolutely dehydrated. It costed us a fortune to keep her there, they did multiple tests and gave her a lot of fluid and meds. At the end the doctor called me and said that the new food caused this horrifying reaction. I was shocked, was I was cooking the same recipe before with the food that I bought from Trader Joes and never my dog had any kind of reaction.I honestly don't know which fish and vegetables Justfoodfordogs uses and how they store it and under what temperature.After sending the ER records to the company - they somehow gave me the answer within a couple of hours (compared to weeks of waiting for the answer) and said - not literally - that there's no particular connection between the justfoodfordogs food and my dog experiencing bloody diarrhoea, vomiting, zero energy and utter dehydration.They told me they can not admit it's their fault because I defrosted the food in the microwave. And they write on the package that you should defrost in the refrigerator (for hours). I hardly doubt that defrosting food in the microwave can make a dog throw up, have bloody stool, feel and look awful for days, and experience pain.I would really appreciate the FDA's help because I don't want other dogs to suffer and equally as important - for their owners to be ignored. Gave her a little bit of kibble mix with the bland and by the next morning she had diarrhea again. At this point we concluded possibly it is the fold. The vet set stick to the bland food, and have the seller refund me as he suspects a tainted food bag. Switch to bland food for about 5 days and she has been fine and firm stool. I ordered new kibble from a different seller and smaller size test if maybe she formed some sort of allergy towards the kibble. Oct 24th I mix a little of the kibble with her bland food. No reaction, gave the best stool for the past week. I continue to mix the kibble and no reaction for now. I believe the original bag might be in fact tainted.   | 11 | Years | American Pit Bull Terrier | Dog | 52   | Pound |

I took him to the vet after about a week of trying antibiotics which didn't help, so the vet did an X-ray and told me he had a bunch of fluid in his lungs and his heart was double the normal size, it was then he was diagnosed with DCM. I scheduled an appointment for three days after for an EKG. however, two days before he went into congestive heart failure so I had to rush him to the ER. The ER staff asked me what dog food he was on, which was ACANA Grain-free, which they then informed me it had been a common food dogs have been on who have gotten this disease. He was only on it for less than 5 years before he started showing symptoms. I didn't want to buy him crummy grocery store dog food so I was willing to pay close to $100 a month on good dog food for his health. He is now on crummy grocery store dog food and three different medications he has to take two times a day.   | 8  | Years | Collie (unspecified)      | Dog | 50   | Pound |

| EON-551224 | 10/24/2023 14:28 | Hills science diet Chicken and barley entrée Adult 1-6   | I adopted a 3-year old female dog, (b) (6) in January 2023. I began feeding her Hills Science Diet, which is a brand I have used with all my dogs since 2005. She's been eating their Chicken and Barley Entree (adult 1-6) pate since I adopted her. I have been purchasing this canned food through chewy.com, on a monthly basis.At the end of July, I opened a can of this food and used some of it to feed (b) (6). A portion of the food was left. I put a lid on the can and put it in the refrigerator (this is a standard for me). I had purchased a case of food, and this was the last can. I had a second case in my cupboard.When I retrieved the can of dog food from the refrigerator and took the lid off, I noticed a red substance around the side of the can and covering the top of the food. I had no idea what it was, so I threw the can away and took a can from the next case of food and used it. There were no issues with this can of food. I was about 3/4 of the way through this case when I encountered another can of dog food with the same substance. Before throwing it away, I went on the web and did a bunch of research trying to figure out what this was. I had never ever come across this before, and so I was really puzzled.I called chewy.com and spoke with someone on the customer service line. I explain to her the issue with the red substance. She asked me if I wanted to return it, I told her I really wanted to know what it was. She said she had no idea but she could offer me a refund. In this case of food, I found two more cans that had this substance in it after opening it, and using a portion of it. It was not present when I first opened the can. This was the end of August and I wasn't sure what to do. It seemed unusual that only a few cans had this substance.I called chewy.com again and spoke with a customer service representative. He had not heard of this and had no idea what was happening. He recommended that I call Hill's directly and gave me their phone number. |    |       |                           |     |      |       |

|                            |                  |  | I called Hill's. I spoke with a woman and I explain to her what was happening. I told her I was extremely concerned about what was causing this red substance to appear in their food. She explained to me that the red substance was a bacteria which was harmful to dogs and it was caused by contaminated utensils coming into contact with the food. When I asked how this could possibly happen, she told me that the utensils I was using for the dog food were not being properly washed. I pointed out to her a number of reasons why this did not make sense to me and why I didn't think that was the problem: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. I have been using this brand since 2005 and have never ever encountered this issue before. Additionally, I was feeding this exact same food to (b) (6) for seven months and have not encountered it during that time. It was not until July that I first began to see this issue.</li> <li>2. I have not changed anything about the way I feed (b) (6) I wash her bowls, utensils and lids the same way I always have.</li> <li>3. Nothing in mine and (b) (6) environment has changed and we have not purchased anything that would effect her food.</li> <li>4. It just didn't pass the common sense test.</li> </ol> She told me I could call chewy.com and get a refund, which I did. After this call, I purchased new lids and began sanitizing (b) (6) utensils and bowl. The next can I opened developed this bacteria. I stopped using the product. This issue has not caused any harm to my dog, and it has not caused any financial harms. However, this issue greatly concerns me. And I would like you to please look into this. The date the problem started in estimate. |    |       |                                 |     |    |       |

His behavior was unusual - he did not come to me for attention. He did not want to be moved or picked up and tried to hide from me, which is not typical. He was lethargic and had copious white foam coming from his mouth. He also had audibly labored breathing. This issue developed suddenly, as the cat had been well and normal that morning. I cleaned up his face. Since he had eaten food and immediately vomited it up twice (the kibbles were still intact and visible), I suspected the food was the cause of his illness, especially after finding that this food product (Iams Proactive Health Chicken indoor cat food) has had multiple recalls due to Salmonella contamination in the last five years. I took the food away and left the cats with water only for that night. There are no 24-hour emergency pet hospitals near my home, so I just left the cat alone to rest overnight. In the morning, (b) (6) was more interactive again, so I offered him a different food, and he ate well. He recovered well. The other cat that was kept with him and ate the same food did not seem to be affected.  | 6  | Years | Domestic Shorthair              | Cat | 20 | Pound |

Several hours later one of my dogs threw up contents that looked like the Nylabone nubz. The next morning my other dog threw up the same thing. | EON-550965 | 10/20/2023 13:40 | Golden Premium Rewards Dog Treats   | I found (b) (6) late one cold rainy night last February, he was laying in the road with a broken leg. After an emergency vet visit and a couple months to recover he was so happy in his new home with his 2 new best friends. I had been giving Golden Rewards Dog Treats to my dogs thinking they were a good choice after checking the ingredients. I had noticed the smallest of my boys "Chihuahua" has gotten sick a few times but thought it was from eating too much or just an upset stomach until last Sunday. I had almost ran out of Treats with only small pieces left, I took out the oxygen absorber packets and put those in the trash and shared the treats with the boys then left to buy more. While I was gone, (b) (6) got the oxygen absorber packets out of the trash can and ate the contents. I had no idea the contents of that package was pure poison..elemental iron powder, not silicon or something safe for animals or humans. (b) (6) died on the way to the veterinarian, I lost something very special that night and I want to give warning to anyone that uses this product. It should be banned until they can make it 100% safe.  | 9  | Months | Mixed (Dog)           | Dog | 30 | Pound |

| EON-550756 | 10/18/2023 11:44 | Hill's prescription diet urinary care C/D multicare  | My cat first started vomiting and became lethargic and did not want to eat. Due to his water intake being mostly from his food (5 tbsp added to prescription canned diet) he was taken to the emergency vet when we could not get into any other vet. Bloodwork showed a possibility for kidney disease. He was given fluids, cerenia and sent home to also get pepcid. Next day he was a little better, but still off. Sunday he was not eating at all again and we went back to the emergency vet and an ultrasound was suggested to confirm a diagnosis. We were sent home again with fluids, iv cerenia and told to come back in the morning on Monday, Columbus Day. Ultrasound was done confirming a diagnosis of pancreatitis. My pet was again given fluids, cerenia, and also Covenia (antibiotic). He is much better since the antibiotic and running, playing and eating like normal. | 10.5 | Years | Maine Coon                | Cat | 19.5 | Pound |

| EON-550537 | 10/17/2023 10:20 | Dog Treats   | We saw some pet food named Dog Treats at a shop in Hokkaido Japan. The package shows that Company which sells the product is located in Hawaii. Ohana Healing Institute / A'ala Herbal Bar and apothecary However, even though the per foods that we feed them to our pets, the labelings are pretty simple. We have been concerned because many people trust that the products were manufactured and sold following the law/rules because the pet food is sold at a shop in Japan. However, as long as we see the labelings, We are actually not sure who make the pet food and the manufacturer has authorization by FDA. If the Hawaii business just exports the ingredients, the business owner is not a veterinarian nor herbalist. We don't think that the owner has knowledge to make pet foods. Moreover, the ship which sell the pet food in Japan is one of the franchise companies of the Hawaii business. But any of them who work at the shop are veterinarian or herbalist who are educated. | EON-550535 | 10/17/2023 9:48  | NuVet Plus Feline Powder (a supplement)                      | I have been feeding a supplement from NuVet Labs, NuVet Plus Feline for over a year and, because I am a breeder of pedigreed cats, have recommended the product to several of my adoptive kitten families. Lately I have been getting comments from families, and in fact with my own cats, that they haven't been eating like they should and there has been some vomiting. I went to my account executive and have had to ask several times for the Guaranteed Analysis on the product. The only information they would send is the ingredients in the product. I finally called and asked again and this is the email I was sent:Our research team went to exacting standards and poured over copious amounts of research to ensure that the ingredients we used weren't just effective, but were also safe and the best version available. Considering the amount of work we put into formulating our proprietary blend, we closely guard information on specific ingredients. What I can tell you is that each batch is tested three times for potency and safety and since 1997 we have had exactly 0 safety recalls. Our testimonials on third party review sites like the BBB and Trust Pilot speak for themselves. The company refuses to disclose any information about the Guaranteed Analysis or the Product Analysis for this supplement. Needless to say I will be writing to all of my customers telling them to stop feeding this product. I had to throw away four containers of the product at a loss of over $100. I don't know if it's required or if it's just 'highly recommended' to provide the information. Everything that is edible, whether for people or animals, all seems to carry this information. My contact information is:(b) (6) Thank you for your help with my concerns. Here is a link to their website: https://nuvet.com/Their products are for dogs and cats. NOTES: I had to have one kitten euthanized without knowing the reason. I've had three kittens from pet owners that I refunded the purchase price because the kittens were underweight and not eating well. |     |       | Abyssinian cat        | Cat |    |       |

| EON-550070 | 10/11/2023 15:16 | Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food | We've been feeding my dog Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Salmon and Rice Adult recipe for around a month - she had previously been eating the puppy version of the same exact food. We transitioned her food per vet recommendation over a two week period. Once we transitioned her off of her old food, we started seeing some weird signs that something wasn't right. She started growling at us when we would release her to eat (she had previous resource guarding issues that we had resolved, so we thought she was still having some insecurity around food). She has thrown up 4 times in the past month, once in her crate which is super unlike her (has never had a single accident in her crate). She has been restless and more destructive than usual (biting chairs and door frames, and tearing up blankets in her crate at night, which she hasn't done for months), and we provided more enrichment and exercise but she could never seem to get enough. She's been more skittish and on edge as well. She's been rejecting almost all of her morning food, and only eating her dinner because by the end of the day she's starving. She'll smell the kibble and then leave, and when I try to get her to eat some through hand feeding she'll spit it out. We've tried putting warm water in it and toppers in, but she still hadn't been eating like usual. To give some context - this is a dog that normally devours her food in 15 seconds or less, and we used to train with her puppy kibble, but haven't been able to at all with this food, because it's more of a punishment than a positive. Yesterday, I tried giving her a special treat after I went to Petco and she didn't eat any and instead hid it. This is when I knew something was definitely wrong - she's been to the vet before because she got too excited and swallowed 8 inches of a bully stick whole. I switched her off of the kibble last night and her behavior has 180'd completely. For the past 3 meals (chicken and rice), she has been eating enthusiastically again (slow feeder necessary), has been able to calm down at night and otherwise, has stopped growling when I give her food (releases for food on command), and while she's still been more nervous than usual we're hoping she'll fully recover when she starts feeling better. We will continue to watch her behavior, but are planning on going in to the vet to get her checked out in case there are any health issues this has created. I've reached out to Purina to let them know something is wrong with the food with very little response, so am reaching out here. There are countless posts on Chewy's website, Purina's website, and Petco's website about other dogs having issues with the food. | 1 | Years  | Mixed (Dog)             | Dog | 53 | Pound |

| EON-549602 | 10/10/2023 10:08 | Redbarn Bargain Bag   | On Thursday my dog was given the bone from the redbarn bargain bag. He's had other brands before no issue. This bone broke so easily into many pieces, I never seen this happen before. We tried to take them away but he ate several. He vomited 7 times before taking him to the hospital Friday morning. The hospital said they can give some anti-vomit and try to get him to natural digest the bones. He sadly was unable to and was hospitalized and later required surgery. He's now on 9 medications and slowly recovering. I initially let redbarn know he was on the way to the hospital. They said they're sorry, hope he's ok and can provide another treat option for free. I was of course upset and waited to respond. I then informed them he's not ok, had to get surgery and has a long road to recovery. There were times we thought he wouldn't survive! There's still a risk as he still needs to hit a few more progress marks. They said they can open an investigation if we are able to provide them the information on the bag. I am waiting for their response after providing them the information. This treatment/surgery is costing us over 8,000 dollars.   | 8  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)            | Dog   | 73 | Pound |

He is in a leash & with me when I'm home until he is completely trustworthy with all behaviors-potty/chewing/jumping etc. He has not gotten into anything(no opportunity), he is not allowed to be outside alone or in the house alone yet. My other dog(5 year old 92lb Bernedoodle) is NOT sick & has complete freedom & is NOT crated or locked up at all. My 5 year old shared toys with & plays with the puppy. Since July, from multiple retailers the cans have had a horrible smell when opening them and no longer smell like chicken like they normally did. I've been having to return the cans after almost every purchase.At first I thought that I had a lot number that were spoiled, but later found that this wasn't the case as the issue is consistently happening with multiple lots. Then I thought the cans may have spoiled from being exposed to heat during shipping but again have found that this isn't the case.This first occurred with a delivery ordered from Petco; the retailer marked the cans as contaminated/spoiled and didn't resell the cans. I then ordered the cans for store pickup and the same thing happened. I then had to wait for both the cans to be ordered and search for them elsewhere which is why I started buying them in store at Pet Supplies Plus and Petsmart. Unfortunately the same issue happened at all three retailers and happened after the summer heat dissipated. Most recently this happened at Petco with an order that was shipped and delivered when the temperatures were in the 40's and 50's consistently. I again am being forced to spend money on food that is spoiled or contaminated.I am disabled and not able to work and this is really putting a dent in my already difficult/low budget, there have been over 100 cans that have consistently had this issue for over the last three months. The store has been great in allowing the returns and when I bring the spoiled product in each time they are agreeing with me that the product is spoiled. I did have more difficulty with Petco's web customer service facilitating refunds for the defective orders that were placed online for delivery but with time and contacting them multiple times they did so. |    |        |                        |       |    |       |

| EON-549429 | 10/7/2023 15:08 | Hills Science diet senior vitality   | I slowly switched my dogs to science diet senior vitality after one of my clients gave me a bag after their dog was put down due to health issues. This was in March or April 2023. In July 2023, they were both fully on science diet senior vitality. Within a week of fully being on this food, my 12 year old dog quickly declined. She appear bloated, struggling to walk (she has had weak back legs for some time, but this was extreme suddenly). She started to have excessive thirst, accidents in the house (urine), pacing, heavy panting, unable to run or jump onto couch, and overall ill appearance. The other dog seemed to be just fine on this food. After 2 months of this, I realized the owners who gave me the original bag when their dog was put down had dealt with the exact same issues (weakness, accidents, excessive thirst). They put the dog down due to the quality of life. I decided to put my dog back on her previous food and over the past month she is nearly back to normal. She can even do a little running. 0 accidents, no excessive thirst, no obvious bloating. No longer pacing either. Still gassy at times, but is able to get onto couch again. There seems to be an issue in some dogs who eat this food. I've spoken with our vet during this process and am concerned there is an issue with this food for some dogs and on the surface doesn't seem like it's food but more normal aging and decline. I worry more dogs are being put down for this when it's actually the food! | 12 | Years | Unknown                           | Dog | 40  | Pound |

| EON-548967 | 10/5/2023 8:00  | Putina One Lamb & Rice Formula  | We have 2 dogs in our house one (13) and the other (6) and we have been feeding Purina One Lamb and Rice food to for years. The last larger bag we bought the dogs seem to avoid or struggle to want to eat it. A short time ago roughly 2 weeks ago the older dog started to spit out the larger pieces of lamb and wouldn't eat them. We tried to feed him some of the smaller pieces of lamb and he also spit them out and shook his head like they were bad or something was wrong with them. We removed the lamb pieces but continued to feed the kibble part. Neither dog was too keen on eating this so we tried some other foods we have. On Tuesday September 26 he started to vomit and the time frame was getting shorter in between him puking . Thursday September 28 I called our vet and they squeezed us in to get him checked out. Did blood work and found out Kidney and liver functions were not very good . Was given meds to try and correct the issues but his health continued to get worse to where he would not eat or drink . We did get some meds in him but the puking continued and got worse. We used syringes we had to keep water and a food paste we made with corn syrup to maintain his blood sugar level. Was getting increasingly harder to get anything in him. At this point he could not walk anymore as he is too weak and his blood sugar level is slowly falling. Its now evident to us he's dying on us and there is nothing more we can do. On Sunday night Oct 1 around 6:50 PM he passed away. Our other dog is being watched closely as she is struggling a little bit to eat sometimes. We are wondering if there is a way this food can or should be tested in some way in case there are more bags of food out there that may have an issue. At this point we don't know what way to turn on this matter. Please advise if there is something you feel needs to be done for a test or investigation of the food. Thank You.  | 13 | Years | Great Pyrenees       | Dog | 68   | Pound |

We weren't seeing enough improvement from the food he was previously eating, so we decided to switch back to fish as the protein. On July 18, 2023, I purchased Zignature Trout and Salmon formula and started transitioning him over the next day. He has been eating the Zignature Trout and Salmon continuously since then.In December 2022, he weighed 69 pounds at his vet appointment at the age of 13 months old. In August 2023, he went back to the vet and weighed 76 pounds. We were informed that he was a bit overweight and the vet would prefer him to slim down to 70 pounds. We reevaluated the amount of food he was eating, and consulted the recommended feeding guidelines on the bag, dropping him down to the lowest recommended amount for a 60-80 pound dog - 4 cups. Additionally, we cut out all treats and chews and even tried to feed closer to 3 and a half cups, but he wasn't losing weight.He has been quite itchy still, so I started looking at other foods and when comparing the small bags of the different brands, we discovered that according to the 4lb bag of Zignature, he should only be eating 2 1/4 to 2 3/4 cups of food per day. However, the 12.5lb bag and 25 lb bag, both of which were the ones I was purchasing, have an incorrect feeding chart and kcals on them. When contacting Pets Global, they informed me of a formula change that increased the amount of protein, therefore increasing the number of kcals, and to consult the website for the most up-to-date recommended feeding guidelines. According to my bag, there are 337 kcal per cup, whereas the website says 395 kcal per cup.As a result of an inaccurate recommended feeding guidelines chart after a formula change, which was not publicly shared and the bags were not all updated to reflect this change, my dog now weighs 84 pounds. He gained 8 pounds in less than 2 months on this food as he was eating double what he should have been eating directly resulting from incorrect information on the bag. He is 1 year and 10 months old, and he was previously a healthy weight. Now, he pants like he was running and doing super strenuous activity for a long time after a brisk walk around the block. | 2  | Years | Retriever - Labrador | Dog | 84   | Pound |

| EON-548625 | 9/30/2023 18:04 | WholeHearted soft & slims stick treats for dogs salmon recipe   | I purchased WholeHearted Soft & Slims Stick Treats in the Salmon Recipe flavor at Petco in (b) (6). I checked the expiration date to confirm it was still good, but did not notice the see through window in the packaging to examine the treats. I purchased the treats thinking that they were safe and immediately gave my dog one when we got to the car. Upon arriving home, I had my first chance to look inside the bag distraction free and as I reached to grab another treat for my dog I noticed that 1/5 of the tops of the treats had white mold growing on them! Quite a bit, too. Days later, I took the time to write to Petco about the incident. I asked that they reach out to the manufacturer and said I would, too. After emailing, I went to look up WholeHearted and found that Petco owns the brand. In their first email reply I was told to return it to the store. I live a ways away from (b) (6) so I couldn't. I posted a review including the moldy photos. After that, they reached out again and offered me a gift card for the amount spent, but both times they did not mention if they were investigating the matter, removing or recalling the product, or if they let their WholeHearted department know about the incident. I don't think they were going to look into it. I'm filing a report just to be safe as I'm unsure if they will do anything for the safety of the pets that consume the food. I asked them again to let the manufacturer know and that I would also like to contact them to ensure something is being done.  |     |        |                       |     |      |          |

The vet found an greatly enlarged heart. This was the first time he'd been x-rayed to my memory, but his previous check ups had been fine. I was referred to a cardiologist who diagnosed him with the following and cited a possible link to his diet: Dilated cardiomyopathy (weak heart muscle disease) Concurrent degenerative valve disease Moderate mitral valve regurgitation (backflow) causing murmur Severely enlarged left atrium and severely enlarged left ventricle Moderately decreased heart muscle function Mildly enlarged right heart Left-sided congestive heart failure (fluid in the lungs) We immediately started medications to address the congestive heart failure. I also immediately transitioned his diet away from the suspect brand (v-dog) to a recommended diet. Unfortunately, (b) (6) passed away several months later. The illness was sudden and potentially not directly caused by the heart disease, but our treatment options were severely limited by his heart.  | 10 | Years | Beagle                    | Dog           | 45   | Pound |

When I opened the first can, the color and texture seemed off but it had varied in the past so I fed (b) (6) a can. Within 15 minutes he started to projectile vomit all over the room. I quickly checked another can and it was also off. On 8/29/2023 I went back to (b) (6) to show them that the food was bad and they agreed that something was wrong. They said that they would let the company know and gave me a full refund. They also gave me additional cans from a different lot number (which were completely fine). On 9/8/2023 I went back and purchased two more cases thinking that there was only a problem with the first case and that the company would take care of it. I then left my cats at (b) (6) so that I could go on a work trip and dropped off one of the new cases for (b) (6) to have during his stay. After a few days, they called to tell me that he was vomiting right after eating and they worried something was wrong with the food. They quickly changed his food, and he was fine. When I returned on 9/14/2023 and picked up my cats, I quickly checked one of the cans, and it was spoiled like the first time. On 9/18 I returned to (b) (6) to share that this batch was also bad and that it made (b) (6) sick multiple times. They gave me a full refund again and said that they would contact Farmina again. They called me later that day to say that Farmina would contact me directly, but they never reached out. (b) (6) was great with refunding the costs associated with the bad food, but I was annoyed that the company never reached out to me directly to explain what could have happened and the steps they would take to prevent this from happening again. (b) (6) is no longer eating Farmina and I hope that no other pets were also made sick | 10 | Years | American Shorthair        | Cat           | 20   | Pound |

We immediately changed food to a different Purina product and the issue cleared up. We recently went out of town and our pet sitter got ahold of the Purina Cat Chow Naturals bag being reported -- I came home a week later and my hedgehog is deathly ill and showing all signs of Salmonella or other severe GI issues. He's on a strong dose of antibiotics and anti-diarrhea medication and is gravely ill. The only difference in the week we were gone is the food that he was fed -- he was a healthy, normal hedgehog when we went out of town and now we're concerned that he may not live the week.  | 3  | Years |                           | Other Rodents |      |       |

The first few batches were great. They looked good, smelled healthy and like lamb and were a natural color. A little while ago my new batches arrived (from Chewy.com who have been notified and refunded my purchases) that were an artificial reddish in color and a nasty smell, like rotting meat. At first I thought I was imagining things but found an older can and it was not the same produce at all! Occasionally there were black spots where I threw the whole can away. I did some research and saw that they have had many years of problems and corruption. Please investigate. It wouldn't surprise me if it wasn't even lamb but horsemeat or something worse. My pet has not been sickened but my stomach turns over every time I smell it, and I don't like the idea of dyes in my pet's food. Also why the unannounced change in formula. If I had to guess I'd say they have gone back to their old corrupt ways. (Of course I didn't know their history until just now). Thank you for investigating this troubling product.  |    |       |                           |               |      |       |

They referred us to a specialist vet, which was only booking 1 month out so we had an appointment booked for Sept 4. His cough was getting worse, and on August 31 he was really having trouble breathing, and his abdomen looked like it had retained fluid, so we took him to the emergency vet. They diagnosed him with dilated cardiomyopathy (DCM), an enlarged heart. Since his age was so young, and the disease is not common for his breed, they determined the cause of the disease was being on a limited ingredient kibble diet, that included Peas and Lentils as a top ingredient. They mentioned this is known research that peas and lentils cause this kind of heart disease. | EON-547910 | 9/21/2023 13:24 | Purina Pro Plan  | A couple of years ago, we purchased a bag of Lamb & Rice Pro Plan while traveling. Both dogs (Pointing Griffon and Pug) became ill will terrible diarrhea. We threw it out and considered it contaminated from the distributor's warehouse. In the meantime, Purina had a "shortage" of dog food - especially the shredded lamb. Since that first time, it happened with other Purina lamb dog food. We switched our dogs to a different brand. In the meantime, we know of 3 dogs that have dropped over DEAD with no warning and no underlying conditions - all 3 within the last year! Two of them were Labrador retrievers who were young - around 2 years old. Yesterday, my daughter's 8-year-old French bulldog died suddenly without warning, just like the labs. The Frenchie was eating Purina Pro Plan. The labs were both being fed Purina. Coincidence, I THINK NOT!!!! PLEASE investigate Purina dog food!!!                         | 5  | Years | Griffon - French Wire-haired Pointing | Dog | 70 | Pound |

| EON-547907 | 9/21/2023 13:24 | There was no label.  | I went to (b) (6) as I had seen it on facebook and I noticed some meat and other products seemed to be unlabeled or homemade but the way the woman spoke about my dog, I felt she knew what she was talking about. I wanted my baby to have better food aside from kibble so i trusted this woman. Her name is Adia, the owner. My dog seemed to veer away from the food when I offered it, but (b) (6) usually does that when something is unfamiliar. I have him his regular food for a few days and eventually he warmed up to this new "better" and natural food. The night after he had it, he just seemed odd. But I thought he had a little doggy mood, but the next day, he wasn't at the door to go outside. He didn't seem to want to do much. He had the most pitiful bark. Then the diarrhea started. I took him to the vet immediately as this was very unusual and i was concerned about him. when the vet asked if anything had changed, I told him no. just that i was trying new food. he asked where i got it and such and i told him. He said my dog was sick and had food poisoning. Of course he recommended never giving my dog unlabeled food. I thought this was a legitimate business as she has this location and talked about opening another. I'm concerned for all pet owners and anyone who comes across this woman. It could have been so much worse. My poor pup was sick and it was horrible to watch. Someone has to stop this woman.   |   |       | Retriever - Golden    | Dog |    |       |

| EON-547905 | 9/21/2023 13:24 | Hill's Science Diet Adult Perfect Digestion (Chicken)  | The dog initially became lethargic. She then progressed to neurological symptoms-walking in circles nonstop, pressing her head into corners, bumping into things, unsteadiness. Eventually progressed to focal and generalized seizures in addition to previously described behavior. She appeared to be in a lot of pain (crying, head pressing, trying to climb the walls in her outdoor kennel). Eventually had to euthanize the dog due to severity of condition. 1 week prior to that dog developing symptoms, our other siberian husky (b) (6) male, 11 years, 89 lbs, previously good health) who was not related to the other dog and was eating the same food also had rapidly progressing neurologic symptoms with cluster seizures (progressed rapidly within 24 hours from tremors to grand mal), blindness, and inability to walk. He also was euthanized due to severity of symptoms. We have multiple other dogs, but these 2 were the only ones eating this specific food. This was from a brand new 5.50z bag. Rehydrated with some water and mixed on their regular kibble. Kibble was part Orijen Regional Red Ancient grains ( had used bag for a week with no problems but still could of been problem because says raw on package) The other portion of kibble was Big Jac Puppy Select (been feeding this since 12 weeks old) Both dogs had sever diarrhea by bedtime. Next day both dogs would not eat and still had diarrhea. Male dog was visibly sicker. Would not move and standing in corner. Took both dogs to emergency Vet (b) (6) ) Male dog was severely sick with 105 fever, triple normal blood cell count, thickened & inflamed colon and other issues. First question they asked me after examining dog: Did I feed them any Raw Food including freezer dried raw? Male dog was kept for 2 days at emergency clinic. Female dog was sent home after receiving fluids and given diarrhea medication and a deworming medication. Male dog was sent home after 2 days and is now taking antibiotics, anti worming, anti nausea, anti diarrhea meds. Need to go back in two weeks for recheck of ultrasound, X-ray and bloodwork. The male dog had to go back to my general Vet 2 days after coming home for sever skin irritation on his Testicles from the Urine/Diarrhea getting on the skin. So he now needs to wear an Elizabethan Cone on top of all his other issues from this event to prevent him from licking the irritated area. It needs to be sprayed 2x daily with a steroid spray to calm the area down and heal.The ER Vet and the Internal Medicine Vet who the dog was turned over to at the Emergency Clinic after stabilized and my own Vet said it was most likely the Freezed Dried Raw Orijen Kibble or the Stella & Chewy freezer dried Venison Patties. The dogs got a Parasitcal Infection from the food. They said never to feed any type of raw food again because the process of freeze drying does not kill the bacteria. They said they have seen this before and it can show up at anytime in these types of food. I told the Pet Co Store Manager and he told me he can't do anything about it and I could contact the company on their general website contact link. | 16 | Months | Poodle - Standard  | Dog | 60 | Pound |

However, 2 months ago, I purchased an 18lb bag of that same pet food from PetSmart (where we always get it) and I noticed that they changed their branding from "Power Function" to "Raw Blends" but with no indication of having changed their formula. Within a day of consuming it, my dog began itching his paws and face, nibbling his paws, scooting, and having loose stools. I Googled the pet food online to search for a notice in change in formula but to no avail. Thinking that maybe we got a bad batch, a few days later, I purchased another 18lb bag of the same dog food directly from the Only Natural vendor website. My dog's symptoms (especially scooting and loose stools) persisted to the degree that he got an abscessed anal gland and required expensive emergency surgery at the vet ER. I did some more Googling and noticed recent customer reviews that pointed to the fact that the formula did change, by removing salmon (a key previous ingredient) and replacing it with chicken and other fillers. It is completely unacceptable that the vendor makes no mention ANYWHERE of the formula change, and only calls it a "branding" change in their marketing. We stopped feeding our dog this food after the ER visit and are outraged at Only Naturals for putting our pet and others in danger.  | 5  | Years | Mixed (Dog)                     | Dog | 25 | Pound |

I gave one box of JUST FOOD FOR DOGS PANTRY FRESH TURKEY AND MACARONI in the morning, approximately around 830 am and a second box of the same flavor. Aug 30, approximately 830 am I gave my dog 1 box of the Beef and Russett potato flavor. For context, at my dog's 75lbs weight, he would need 2.5 of the 12.5oz pantry fresh boxes a day. He received exactly 2 on the first day and 1 on the second. On the morning of Aug 31, my husband and myself woke up to at approximately 6am to two watery brown pool of ammonia smelling diarrhea and dried vomit patches in multiple parts of my home. We also noticed heavy drooling pouring out of his mouth. This was discovered again approximately 430 pm when I returned home for the day. We did not feed him that night as he was obviously not feeling well. Needless to say we were both concerned and made an emergency vet appointment for the next morning at 10am. On the morning of Aug 31, approx. 7am we discovered similar multiple pools of very strong ammonia smelling diarrhea but heavily mixed with blood.Our vet determined it was absolutely the food and heavily processed high fat foods can cause this reaction on dogs. He was diagnosed with Pancreatitis, given subcutaneous fluids, Cerenia inj/ml, Metronidazole 500mg and Proviale-Forte Med/Lg Dog kit as well as multiple blood tests, x rays, and chem panels.I reached out to the company through multiple avenues and received a social media response that "since beef and potato is high in fat, some dogs do not do well on it. Lower in fat recipes are best to avoid developing pancreatitis"I feel like they are knowingly producing a product that can be harmful to dogs. I opened the Costco package in late August and the Nubz were completely covered in white mold. I checked the other packages I had, which were also covered in mold. I notified Chewy, and they sent me three new packages. I opened these immediately upon arrival. Mold was evident in these packages as well. Costco said they have pulled the product because of similar reports. Chewy continues to sell this product despite knowing of the issue. It was terrible, I started to analyze what changed had taken place before the onset of the symptoms, and the thing that had changed was his dry food, I stopped giving it to him, within several days the symptoms stopped. At the end of August I unfortunately tried to give (b) (6) Blue Buffalo Salmon Snacks thinking that it was a very different product, and the symptoms returned, he started getting anxious and paranoid again, was trying to hid in the washing machine among other things, it was painful to watch him. I am an extremely paranoid pet parent, and since 2012 I researched the BEST dog food to give to (b) (6) In 2012, petwebsites recommended the top and most healthiest dog food was GRAIN FREE. I specifically chose MERRICK because it was stated to be made in only the USA, and I am paranoid about ingredients from China. (b) (6) since 2012 has only eaten Dry DOG FOG from MERRICK GRAIN FREE. With the exception of human food such as boiled chicken, seet potato, and the occasional boiled beef or pork. I am very paranoid about what (b) (6) eats, because I want him to be healthy and live a long life. He also has a sensitive stomach and has diarrhea when he is introduced to new foods. The only dog KIBBLE (b) (6) has had from 2012-2019 is from MERRICK. I noticed he had severe coughing in 2019, that is when I took him to the Vet for X-rays and we informed of his enlarged heart, degenerative valve disease, and mitral valve prolapse, and that GRAIN FREE diets may cause this. After finding that out, I immediately stopped giving (b) (6) all forms of Dog Food and have since only given him healthy human food such as boiled chicken. This is unforgivable that a dog food sold in stores can cause this and is not even labeled with this warning. Since researching this company, I have also found out that not everything in MERRICK is 100% made in USA like they claim. This dog food from MERRICK is not cheap, as it is one of most expensive dog kibbles in Petco. (b) (6) condition requires him to do visits to a DOG CARDIOLOGIST which is NOT CHEAP - ~$1000 a visit, and to be daily on a medication called VETMEDIN, which is also not cheap! Cans | I hope this message finds you well. I am writing to express my profound disappointment and frustration regarding my recent purchase of Friskies wet cat food variety pack, specifically the "Turkchicken Extra Gravy Chunky, Meaty Bits, and Shreds" in 5.5 Oz cans, totaling 40 cans. The experience I encountered was both shocking and unacceptable. I purchased this product from amazon and had opened it through the top initially to feed the community cats I care for. Yesterday evening I noticed the cats had gotten sick on the porch after eating the food. Today when I properly opened the box I encountered something very alarming. Upon un-packaging my order, I was immediately alarmed when I detected an unusual slimy substance on one of the cans. To my utter horror, as I proceeded to inspect the can further, I discovered that a black, slimy residue covered not only the initial can but also every can in the same row of the package. This was a deeply unsettling discovery, and it has greatly distressed me. In an effort to address this issue, I promptly transported the contaminated cans to my sink to mitigate the potential health risks and to cleanse my hands thoroughly. After donning gloves for my own safety, I examined the cans more closely and was appalled to find that they were infested with black mold, with fuzzy growths emanating from this mold. This not only compromises the quality of the product but also poses a significant health hazard to both my household and, potentially, any pets I would have continued to feed this product to. |   |        | Domestic (unspecified)               | Cat |     |       |

My toe older cats also got into some of the leftovers. All began to take ill within hours - vomiting and diarrhea. I wound up at the emergency vet the following night/morning because Ash had been vomiting consistently for 24 hrs and started having diarrhea with blood. (b) (6) had been vomiting but stopped, and the four week old kitten had been vomiting and having diarrhea for 24 hrs too, but recovered. Diagnostics were run to confirm he had not swallowed a foreign object and a blood panel was also done. The vet confirmed it was a case of food poisoning and he was put on meds to help stabilize and rehydrate him. Given that the Blue Buffalo product (salmon kitten food) was the last thing he ate and all three of my cats took ill in the same manner at the same time after eating it, this was considered the cause. I have stopped feeding them it, switched to Fancy Feast, and all symptoms ceased.  | 3 | Years  | Domestic Shorthair                   | Cat | 7.5 | Pound |

I currently have another cat here who is a 9 yr old male very sick and a male kitten also who is so sick that im not sure if they will make it. They all ate the same food and all either sick or dead. Took my second cat to vet after having same thing happened to my male 3 yr old a week a part and unfortunately due to not being able to go to vet day before on labor day when illness started my cat died within 2 hours after arriving. We mixed half cup of the Costco brand food in with 1 1/2 cups of (b) (6) regular food. After two days, (b) (6) stopped eating any food. After our other dog experienced adverse reactions, we no longer gave either dog the Costco brand food. One week after introduction of the Costco brand food, (b) (6) is still experiencing intermittent vomiting and diarrhea, although his symptoms are very mild compared to our other dog.  | 4 | Years | Great Dane             | Dog | 140 | Pound |
| EON-546672 | 9/6/2023 11:28 | natures domain salmon and sweet potato formula                       | We tried switching foods from Purina salmon sensitive stomach to Costco brand salmon sensitive stomach to save some money. We added in about a half cup of food on the first day into our dogs usual food, and then did the same the next day. By the third day our dog would no longer eat the food and starting having diarrhea. We thought these were side effects of the new food and just a tummy upset so we stopped giving the Costco food after that second day. Within the next day or two he started drinking a ton of water and was having accidents in the house. He was also vomiting clear liquid And refusing any dog food. This lasted just over 36 hours and we ended up at the emergency vet because he became very lethargic. At the vet they found evidence of kidney failure and it seemed as though his organs were shutting down. He was on fluids and medications for about 12 hours but was continuing to decline. He passed away (euthanasia) almost one week to the day he first had the Costco brand food. He had never been to the vet for an illness prior to this. He was a completely happy, healthy dog until he had the Costco brand dog food. The vet was baffled by the fast decline and ordered some testing to see if it could have been from a virus, but results are still pending. Symptoms started two days after his first meal with the new food mixed in, and our other dog also experienced vomiting and stomach upset which leads me to believe it was indeed the food. | 4 | Years | Great Dane             | Dog | 150 | Pound |

The clump was moldy dog food that was full of larvae. I realized that there were many pieces of moldy kibble in the bag and I was feeding the dogs this food since early-mid Aug. Both of my dogs have been throwing up at least once a day since I was giving them this food before discovering the larva. On Thursday, August 31, I stopped, giving them the food and feeding them homemade dog food. They have since been better and haven't thrown up once they have more energy. | EON-546634 | 9/5/2023 20:16 | Purina Beneful chopped blends   | I purchased the food, purina beneful, at Walmart on Saturday August 26. On Monday, (b) (6) started having diarrhea, and she had not been anywhere prior to the house in over a week. She continued to have diarrhea every day. Tuesday, August 29, another one of our dogs started having diarrhea as well. That Thursday, August 31, we took her to the vet and they diagnosed her with either gastritis or coronavirus. We then stopped feeding her beneful and switched to chicken and pumpkin. She improved Friday, and then Saturday had to be rushed to the ER for severe nausea and issue with stomach emptying. They did bloodwork and it was normal other than possible signs of pancreatitis. They also did X-rays and heart/lungs were clear. (b) (6) had to stay the night and the ER. The next day they redid images and her stomach still had not emptied. She later that afternoon had to have surgery to empty her stomach and stay another night in the ER. We took her home Monday and started giving her chicken only. Monday evening, the other 3 dogs received Beneful for dinner and today Tuesday, all of them, minus (b) (6) have been sick. We have no other answers as to what caused (b) (6) to have these issues. | 11  | Years | Terrier - Yorkshire  | Dog | 18    | Pound |

However, the bag was sealed closed at the time of purchase. The owner didn't see anything else wrong with the bag and continued to administer food to pets, only half the bag was given to the pets at the beginning of the month. The owner's cats had been sick, and throwing up more than usual, the food was not digested and half eaten food was found around the house almost every other day. The second half was distributed 5 September and as the owner poured the food into the automatic dispenser, live bugs were found in the bag. The food was then discarded and the store the bag was purchased from was notified due to owner's findings.  |     |       |                      |     |       |       |

| EON-546036 | 8/29/2023 11:12 | Taste of the Wild Trout GRAIN-FREE Limited Ingredient Recipe Dry Dog FoodTaste of the Wild Grain Free Prey and Beef were bought too | My beloved Golden Retriever died very unexpectedly at the age of 5 years old. Multiple Veterinarians suspect related to Grain-Free diet. Him and I kept very physically active (exercising everyday) and at his yearly vet physicals they always reported him in great health (no known heart condition, great weight, lungs sounded great, handsome, happy).I noticed a cough on June 7th that seemed odd. I took him into the vet. The vet said he would likely heal on his own possibly from swallowing something and scratching his throat. (b) (6) became increasingly lethargic and not himself and stopped eating Sunday night. I took him back into Vet Monday and they did a chest X-ray which revealed he was going into severe heart failure. Vet warned me prognosis of recovery seemed poor. I rushed him into (b) (6) where they gave him oxygen for elevated respiratory levels. Tuesday an echocardiogram revealed he had an enlarged heart, weak and thin walls and fluid build up-DCM. Both vets asked about diet and suspected this condition was acquired from the Taste of the Wild Grain Free food he was eating. They said there is research linking this grain free brand (along with others) to DCM. They put him on heart meds and recommended change in diet and supplementation of Taurine for heart. Unfortunately, Wednesday night they told me (b) (6) seemed to be starting to suffer as they struggled to ween him off oxygen and it was best to say goodbye. I have been COMPLETELY DEVASTATED ever since. As I have done more research I see that there are many others who have gone through similar experiences related to this brand and other brands especially grain free dog food brands that include legumes, pea proteins. This seems absolutely criminal these brands have not been taken off shelves or that a lot of Vets aren't advising against these (like mine), not until my loved one was very sick and dying. I will do ANYTHING to share my story and provide details to help save other dogs. I hate that it's too late to save (b) (6) but I must do everything I can to advocate anti-grain free. This all happened so so "out of the blue" and suddenly. I think he could have been starting to suffer before I noticed cough symptom but as we know dogs can't always communicate with us and (b) (6) always showed me love and happiness. He must be so strong and resilient but it makes me sad knowing he could have been in pain from this heart worsening condition before I was aware something was wrong. I would have done ANYTHING in my power to keep him alive but when the vet told me he was suffering and quickly declining, I had to make the absolute HARDEST decision of my life to euthanize. | 5   | Years  | Retriever - Golden             | Dog | 75  | Pound |

| EON-545938 | 8/28/2023 11:20 | Fancy Feast  | We have been feeding our cats cans of fancyfeast for years without any issues. They love it! A few months ago one of our cats started vomiting and having diarrhea. We took her into the vet and all her tests came back normal. They put her on a bland diet and prescribed an antibiotic. We started her on the new diet and started administering the antibiotic. About a day or two later our other cat started vomiting and having diarrhea too. We switched his diet to bland as well to see if it helps. After about a week or so they were both back to normal. We started to feed their usual diet of fancy feast again and after a couple days the diarrhea and vomiting started back up again. That's when I realized that it must be the food. We switched their diet completely away from fancy feast. They have had no issues for the last few months. We recently started looking into finding them new food that's a little bit more affordable. We bought a store brand box of canned wet food to try and see if they like it. They loved it! After couple days I noticed one of my cats start having diarrhea and out of curiosity I grabbed one of the can and in little letters on it it said that it was made by fancy feast.  | 9   | Years | Domestic Shorthair   | Cat | 12 | Pound |

| EON-545936 | 8/28/2023 11:20 | Wellness Core Grain Free Large Breed Formula                       | My previously healthy, three-year-old dog (b) (6) recently showed signs of not feeling well, such as not eating much, occasional vomiting, and general depressed demeanor. I took him to the vet, and blood tests revealed that his ALT level was off the charts -- a level of 1,583 when the upper limit of normal is just 125 U/L. He was sent immediately to an emergency veterinary hospital, where they began treatment and performed an ultrasound, which revealed hepatitis. The cause is currently unknown, but there are no known toxic exposures. I was shocked to find out that many dogs suffer from copper-associated hepatopathy from an over-supplementation of copper in commercial pet food. I looked up the dog food I have been feeding him for all his 3 years, Wellness Core Grain Free Large Breed Formula, and discovered that in 2011, the copper levels in that brand and formula were 22.5 mg/kg, one of the highest of any foods listed and 3 times the minimum. Although I did careful research to select a high-quality dog food through sources such as Dog Food Advisor ( https://www.dogfoodadvisor.com/dog-food-reviews/wellness-dog-food-core-dry/ ), I had no way of knowing the copper level of the food, because this information is not printed on the bag. Because the copper level is only available by contacting the dog food company directly, I sent an email to see if the food is still high in copper, but for now I immediately stopped feeding it. I do not understand why the upper limit was removed and why the copper level is not more easily available. I have spent thousands of dollars so far on just the beginning of his treatment, but much more importantly, I do not know if my dog's liver will recover. I'm a recent widow, and (b) (6) provides so much support and comfort to me, and this experience is extremely distressing. What if it was preventable! I implore the FDA to take corrective action to lower the maximum copper concentration in commercial dog food to mitigate this avoidable and potentially fatal illness. | 3   | Years | Mixed (Dog)          | Dog | 52 | Pound |

She was drooling heavily afterwards and lethargic for an hour or so and then she acted normal. The 5th day, when my husband put her kibble in the bowl, she refused to eat. It never occurred to us that her food was causing the issue, but when she refused to eat, my husband smelled her dry food. It had a chemical smell and nothing like dry dog food. We have this food shipped every 6 weeks in 40lb. bags from Chewy.com We always empty a new bag in a sealed dog food container so I did not have the bag at the time I reported this incident to Chewy. They asked for a Lot #, but I could not provide it. We took our dog to the Vet on August 2 for her physical. That same day, I gave our dog one of the chews and he ate about 25% of it. By Saturday morning, our dog had bloody stools and diarrhea. I gave our dog chicken and rice over the weekend to see if that would help resolved the issue. On Monday, the dog was still experiencing a good amount of blood in his stool and watery diarrhea. He had several episodes of diarrhea in the house, which he could not control. We took him to our vet and he was give several medications, including sucralfate, famotidine, and Cerenia. The dog was still having bloody diarrhea on Tuesday and the vet added metronidazole. We sent pictures of bloody stool to the vet and there were large undigested and sharp pieces of the yak chew in multiple stools. The chews contain milk, lime and salt. We thought these would be digestible. I contacted the company and they stated "in drier environments and times of year, our Yak cheese is more prone to cracks and breakages." I also looked at reviews on Amazon and there are similar experiences of the yak chews potentially causing damage to other dogs. I am opening this report in hopes that other dogs will not be harmed by these chews. We have used these before with no issue, but the inconsistency in this product seems to make it unsafe. I also had an order from Amazon previously that had mold all over the chews, this also seems to be happening to other consumers based on product reviews. Our dog did recover eventually.               | 2  | Years  | Mixed (Dog)                | Dog | 50  | Pound |

I went through boxes of Kleenexes and daily Benadryl. I did not think it was the dog food; I thought he and I had allergies. I had checked for food recalls but there was none on this food. As his health deteriorated, I took him to the vet on 8-18-23. My Vet cultured his nose and the culture came back as: Pantoea agglomerates, Enterococcus species, and Meth Resistant Staph schiefieri coagulants on the nasal swab. The sneezing has turned from clear drainage with sneezing to thick yellowish white drainage, then turning pink drainage. My vet is starting him now on Baytril after just getting the culture back. He has been just miserable and hangs his head down and does not want his head touched. My sneezing (and his too), stopped after I finished the dog food bag, but now the drainage in my nose is blocking my breathing ( just like it did with him) and as of last night I had chills and it felt like my sinuses on the right side of my face were on fire! Random little fruit flies came out of no where from within the can itself. I began to suspect the cat food company or Amazon.com intentionally created this issue and that it may be linked to Covid. I decided to record video footage of the mold and flies in the cans that I saw. I also decided to confirm my suspicions by isolating a fresh opened can inside a plastic shower cap to see if the bugs were coming from the cans. After 5 days I open the bag and see white worms moving on their own and weird fruit flies swarming the can after opening it. These came directly out of the can and started moving after removing the shower cap that sealed the can as a cover. I used a shower cap because it was see through. The cat food did not look normal from other companies that sell cat food as it looked like weird fat or egg shaped things were inside and the texture looked way off. I believe these cans cause cats to get some kind of parasite or infection that makes them a bit weird, have fleas, have their poop attract or create random flies, and making the cats behave weirdly like peeing on random places. It persisted the rest of that day and the following day. At times there was some blood in it. Then she went to spend the day with the petsitter on the 3rd day. When I picked her up I was informed that she had thrown up her dinner. I stopped feeding her the food then and submitted an inquiry on the dog food company's website but so far I have not heard anything back from them. | EON-545085 | 8/16/2023 15:44 | Canidae Pure Real Lamb and Brown Rice dry food  | We have been ordering our dog's food (Canidae Pure Real Lamb and Brown Rice dry food, 24 lbs) through Petco online for more than a year and have had no prior issues. However, our order from 5/20/23 (order no. (b) (6)) made our dog sick. When we opened the bag (UPC 640461019625) on 6/17/23 he initially ate the first feeding for dinner, but then threw up three times the following day on 6/18/23. In the days that followed, anytime we tried to feed him the food, he would smell it and only take a few bites, often spitting the food out. He would only eat maybe a half to one feeding per day, whereas before he would eagerly eat two feedings per day with no problems. We had a separate smaller bag of his food that we decided to try on 6/23/23. Our dog immediately ate it and had no stomach issues after. We contacted Petco on 6/24/23, who said they would report this to the manufacturer, and they sent us a replacement bag of food. We tried that bag, and our dog again immediately ate it and has had no stomach upset since then. |    |        | Mixed (Dog)             | Dog |      |          |

| EON-544750 | 8/13/2023 0:08  | Purina One Complete Cat Chow  | While portioning out my cats food, I found a maggot in the food container which is kept air tight. Purina has made statements that they make their food from fly larvae but this is not the first time I have found maggots in my Purina cat food. I used to free range feed my cats and every once in a while would notice worms crawling around in it, but would dump the food bowl out and refill the bowl with new food, thinking something had come in from outside and gotten into the food. but now I portion out my cats food and noticed the same worms in the food straight from the airtight container. Maggots are harmful to cats as most maggots cannot be digested by cats and the larvae will remain in the cats digestive tract. This is unacceptable to be allowed to be purchased from stores.   |   |       |                       |     |     |       |

| EON-544496 | 8/10/2023 10:24 | Bada bing bada beef   | Bark box website displays an outdated formulation of their bada bing bada beef product. What is ordered does not match what is revived. The formulation shown on the site has a guaranteed analysis of crude fat min 5.1%, crude fiber max 0.2%, and moisture max 9.5%. However what is being sent has a different guaranteed analysis crude fat min 10%, crude fiber max 2%, and moisture max 10%. The packaging is similar such that customers who order one item but revive another are in my opinion likely not to notice the difference. I notified bark box of this concern on Monday 8/7 as their site was still displaying an outdated guaranteed analysis. I implored them to update and notify their customers as this change could have made my dog very sick with life threatening illness, due to his pre-existing conditions.As of today 8/10 I have spoken with customer service representatives verbally, over the phone and via email notifying of this concern and I have yet to see any communication or change on their site notifying their customers of this formulation update.This is urgent as this item is already being sent out not as advertised and the changes if un noticed could cause serious harm. our pets specialist has stated that he can not have anything over 7% fat. I have previously called and verified with bark box that the fat content of the bada bing bada beef met this requirement. This new formulation is no longer within the scope of what (b) (6) can eat, and it is barley noticeable change. |   |       |                       |     |     |       |

| EON-544221 | 8/8/2023 3:36  | Fancy Feast Chicken Feast Classic Pate  | First of all, this canned cat food doesn't contain enough taurine for proper nutrition for a cat. The label says that it only contains a MINIMUM of .05% of taurine, but it is supposed to contain a MINIMUM of .10% of taurine. My second complaint is that this canned cat food contains "artificial flavors," which isn't good. (I saw this on the "Chicken Feast Classic Pate" cat food label, but this ingredient may be in the other flavors of this cat food also.) The third complaint that I have may have already been remedied, but I'm not sure. In regard to recent cans of Fancy Feast cat food that I have purchased, including the "Beef Pate" flavor, I saw "sodium nitrite" on the label; this is a cancer-causing agent. The sodium nitrite is used for "color retention" in this cat food, but "color retention" is not necessary because the CATS DO NOT CARE WHAT THE CAT FOOD LOOKS LIKE, as long as it tastes good!!!. So please increase the amount of taurine in this Fancy Feast canned cat food--all flavors--to .10% or more, and please leave out the sodium nitrite--any cat food flavor that contains it--and please leave out all "artificial flavors" when you are producing/manufacturing this cat food. Cats do not need to consume cancer-causing agents such as sodium nitrite that may cause them to have cancer in their bodies, and they do not need to be consuming "artificial flavors" either; and they need at least .10% of taurine in their cat food in order to get enough taurine to maintain good health. We want our cats to live long, happy, healthy lives--right? I know that I want this for my cat and for any cats that I own in the future (and for any dogs that I will own also). I usually buy Wellness canned cat food for my cat because it contains more healthy ingredients in it than the canned Fancy Feast cat food does, and it contains an adequate amount of taurine and does not contain sodium nitrite, but I can't afford to buy Wellness cat food right now, since it is so expensive--but I wouldn't change any of its ingredients because they are high quality ingredients, and I will start buying the Wellness canned cat food for my cat as soon as I can afford to do so. |    |       |                      |     |    |       |

She had to be sedated, she had welts, bad ear issues, skin issues and hair loss. She is now on 39 days if high dose antibiotics and steroids. I looked at the ingredients and there is chicken in it. I believed it to be beef and no chicken was in the description. Just said grilled steak and vegetables.I called the company today, 08/07/2023 and spoke to someone and explained what happened. I was told no claim said it was beef and was ok to have chicken in it. Was also told that they get several calls about this issue and what they do is ok. It is not ok. When people see steak and vegetables, that's what we think they are getting. Not chicken. I states that they need to add chicken on the front, example; grilled steak, chicken and vegetables.I asked is it acceptable for the company to deceive their customers. We have never had this issue before. Every single time, I feed either cat this food, regardless of the flavor (Salmon & Tuna, Ocean Whitefish & Salmon, Chicken & Beef, and Chicken: All Adult 7+, Prime Plus, Best by Nov 2024) it makes them howl and projectile vomit. I still have the cases here, should you want some serial numbers (i.e. The one currently in my hand now says: 23321162 L1DM50744) I have never had this issue before, so I experimented by feeding the food (1 flavor at a time) to each cat intermittently (i.e. waiting days or a week in between feeding them the ProPlan), and the reaction has been consistent - both kitties vomiting. Our cats have no health issues, and are strictly indoor cats. My husband and I are convinced that Purina must be processing meat and fish (or fillers used in all flavors) that has gone bad, and we're worried this may seriously harm or kill someone's elderly cat, as it's specifically for seniors. He had full bloodwork completed to make sure he was in tip top shape prior to the dental cleaning and he was. After medical intervention and change of formula, the kittens slowly recovered. The only reason I considered the formula as a source of the issue is that I spoke with a fellow rescuer in the area and she had gone through the same situation about a month ago. At first I did not notice any problems, but then I opened a can of the tuna flavor cat food yesterday (7/31/23) and noticed a foul odor. I thought the smell was coming from something else in the room, so I gave the wet food to my cats as usual. They did not finish eating the food (which is unusual for them), so I cleaned out their food bowls and noticed that the food smelled like it had gone bad. I thoroughly cleaned the bowls, opened another can of the tuna flavor, noticed the same rotten smell, and disposed of the opened can. Then I opened a can of the seafood flavor, smelled it to make sure there was no foul odor, and fed it to my cats. So far, I have not noticed any signs of illness in either of my cats. They seem happy with the seafood flavor of Fancy Feast that I fed them tonight. I have not opened a can of the salmon flavor yet, but I will check tomorrow to see if it smells alright and if my cats will eat it. All of the wet food cans that I received are printed with an expiration date of 2025; none of them have an earlier expiration date, so I do not believe that I was given an old batch of wet food. However, it seems like this particular batch of tuna flavor has something wrong with it, and I will not be feeding the other cans of tuna flavor wet food to my cats.  |          |                        |     |    |       |  |

I own 5 cats and have 8 others I'm fostering. This one particular case of food, the cats refuse to eat. It's the ONLY thing they eat, but they kept refusing it, meal after meal, even though they were letting me know they were hungry. After a couple days (I gave them some dry food, I'm not a monster) I set out their plates again, again they refused, and then I opened a can of the exact same stuff from another case, put it on plates and set it down right beside the plates they had just refused. They sniffed it, and then proceeded to inhale it like they hadn't eaten in days. I waited a couple days and tried one more can from that case (ok, it was actually an accident, I had set the case aside and forgot) and got exactly the same response. Won't touch it. I don't know if it's contaminated, or maybe has an off smell, or what, but they've never done this before, and so I'm sure there is something wrong with that case. Nobody got sick, but then, nobody ate any. I'm only submitting in case there are other complaints. She is supervised constantly and always with me (as we are travelling in an RV). (b) (6) went for a checkup at a new vet on 7/19/23. This vet fed her approximately 20 tiny pieces of these treats (1/4" to 1/2" cubed). I questioned the amount and the vet said dogs with sensitive stomachs handle them fine, the amount they gave her would not be a problem, and treats are ok. (b) (6) loved them so I purchased a tub later that day at PetSmart. That evening (b) (6) had zero appetite and was very lethargic, both which I attributed to the long day, excitement, and too many treats. After about 2 days her appetite returned and her bowel movements were mostly normal. However, her stomach was very bloated and very firm and hard to the touch. On 7/24/23 I opened the tub I purchased and fed (b) (6) approximately 5 small bites (1/4" cubed size) of the treats. On the morning of 7/25, (b) (6) had 2 abnormally large bowel movements that each contained a lot of an unusual gelatinous type substance in the stools. She then had a very large abnormal bowel movement that was almost diarrhea consistency. It was obvious from her behavior she felt unwell. About 5 hours later, she had 2 more bowel movements, both extremely soft diarrhea with small bright red bits visible in it. Alarmed I thought it could be blood. The next morning she had a bowel movement that was a loosely formed stool, but still incredibly soft, with no visible red. She later threw up all her food, which is unusual but has occurred before. | 7 Years  | Poodle (unspecified)   | Dog | 26 | Pound |  |

|                            |                 |  | About 2 hours later she then had another bowel movement that was pure diarrhea with water like consistency, but no visible red. Then about 3 hours later, (b) (6) vomited a lot of clear fluid (very abnormal for her) and instantly had a massive bowel movement that was watery diarrhea full of bright red blood, followed by a significant amount of pure bright red blood flowing out directly after the diarrhea. I rushed (b) (6) to an Animal Hospital where they saw her immediately. There she had another bowel movement, pure watery diarrhea accompanied by more significant blood. Lab/Blood work showed an elevated liver number, but all other numbers were within range. XRays showed excessive gas and inflammation in the intestines. The vet diagnosed extreme colitis / gastroenteritis. I explained everything the same as explained here and the er doctor believes the colitis is due to the treats, and the bleeding is a reaction to them. (b) (6) is being treated with medicines and her condition is now improving. I believe that the treats contain too much iron/or other mineral and this had a toxic effect on (b) (6) I called and wrote the manufacturer asking for clarity on how to read the nutrition label and guarantee analysis. They stated that the amounts on the label are per kilogram of food, and 1 tub of treats equates to approximately 1/2 a kilogram. They also stated that any overdose would not lead to toxicity but possibly only diarrhea. I report this issue because I believe the labeled analysis may be inaccurate or there is something harmful in these treats. The ingredient list is only Beef Liver, however the treats themselves contain many hard bits and what looks like dehydrated byproducts. I firmly believe these treats are responsible for (b) (6) current medical condition. |    |        |                   |     |      |          |

| EON-543253 | 7/28/2023 11:04 | Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon and Rice Dry Dog Food Adult  | My dogs food was Purina Pro Plan Sensitive Skin and Stomach Salmon and Rice formula. My dogs did well on this prior to May 2023 for approx 1 year. My dog started intermittent vomiting and had diarrhea. My dog has a sensitive stomach and when my husband and I noticed the symptoms we took him to the vet. During this time around May/June 2023, I researched this dog food and there was formula change to this brand and type of food. My husband noticed the bag that was opened was a new look where the old had orangish coloring on it where the new bag with the formula change was purple when his symptoms started. I also noticed the reviews from other dog owners with having similar issues on Purina's website and Chewy's website. This food used to be an almost 5 star dog food. Currently on purina's website it is now 3.8 with many issues continuing with other dogs. My dog has had major issues since and has lost weight and possibly caused IBD flare in him. I am a concerned citizen for not only my dogs but other peoples animals. This is now July 27, 2023 and issues seem to be continuing with this formula change. I have concerns that there may be a quality issue in the product or possible other changes that may not being disclosed to consumers. I appreciate your time. My dogs have been eating this for almost a year now. Willow is highly food motivated and loves the food. Once we opened the new bag we observed her demeanor completely change. She was lethargic, food aggressive, nauseous, experienced bloody vomit and bloody diarrhea, and began refusing to eat or even smell the food. We switched to a bland diet (chicken and rice) and when she returned to normal we began feeding her the same food again- thinking she had a stomach bug. Her symptoms started all over again. Another bag of food was delivered from a different lot code on July 25 and she was extremely excited when we opened the bag. Once she had a serving of the new bag on July 25 it was as if she was instantly cured. It came in a 31.1 lb bag, UPC Code 17800-14935, NZ 0800 738 847, AU 1800 738 238. The best by date in the pink box is so light it is illegible. The batch code is BCP 01-20-23 04:11. This is unrefrigerated dry kibble. I noticed the lighter kibble had an irregular shape and consistency. I put the regular shaped kibble and irregular kibble in water to see if it would dissolve. The dark kibble dissolved and the lighter kibble floated. It is obviously sponge rubber. I've notified Purina and suggested they recall this product. I also notified Chewy so they could avoid sending out this product in case of widespread contamination. I stored the kibble in a plastic container with lid. I did not notice a foul odor. I have the bag and kibble and will gladly send it to you if needed. My dogs weigh 15 and 19 pounds, are spayed, ages uncertain as they are rescues but both are 8+ years, a poodle and snoodle. I picked out the irregular kibble so they did not consume much foam and don't appear to have suffered any health issues. This is a veterinarian prescribed food, and supposed to be carefully regulated as a prescription diet for food allergies. In a recent order (Petco order #R33095247) I have discovered two cans (so far) that have a tiny, blue, plastic-like foreign object. I believe the lot # reads 316C2RS002 05:29 RFRP. The first piece was found in a can I had already opened (and stored in the fridge with a food-saver lid), so I thought I could not be certain it hadn't come from my home, though I could find no nearby source around where the food had been. My dog became lethargic and had an allergic reaction to the food. I have been feeding her this same food since she was 8 weeks old with no problem. She had diarrhea, bloating, severe vomiting and nausea and dehydration. There was also a piece of something in her food that looked like a cork. I took pictures and reported it to Fresh pet and haven't heard anything back from them. She refused to eat the food after that. I had to take her to the vet because she was vomiting brown liquid, which was very concerning. The veterinarian said she had an allergic reaction to her food. She also has hives and is very red around her muzzle and paws. I reached out to fresh pet and they did nothing.   | 22.5 | Months | Bulldog - French       | Dog | 27   | Pound |

On Monday, July 17, I fed my 2 kitties Special Kitty Mixed Grill Dinner. I have fed them this food countless times in the past. Usually I don't feed the 2 cats the same canned food at mealtime (I believe the reason why is irrelevant here), but Monday I fed both of them the Mixed Grill. (b) (6) became listless, lethargic, and had no appetite for the rest of that day, decreased appetite for 2-3 days afterward. For (b) (6) this is HIGHLY unusual (the last time it happened, he was riddled with parasites that required veterinary Tx.). Since both cats were similarly affected, I suspect the Mixed Grill food was the cause of their issues.  | 4    | Years  | Domestic Mediumhair    | Cat | 12.5 | Pound |

I have fed them this food countless times in the past. In fact, (b) (6) had eaten it daily for approximately 3 days before this event. Usually I don't feed the 2 cats the same canned food at mealtime (I believe the reason why is irrelevant here), but Monday I fed both of them the Mixed Grill. About lunchtime, (b) (6) my 14-year-old cat, threw up his canned food, and proceeded to throw up repeatedly throughout the afternoon and evening (approximately 6 times). Around 8pm, I dosed him with Cerenia (that I had left over from another cat), which helped. He was listless, lethargic, had little appetite until July 20-21. After swapping to a new bag of the same food he began having uncontrollable diarrhea for 4 days. A trip to the emergency vet as well as a regular vet have ruled out many other possible causes. The vet recommended him to eat a bland diet of chicken and rice for a few days. When on the bland diet he had no GI issues. After swapping him back to the kibble he began having the same issues. This is how I have determined the kibble to be the source. He never had an issue with the last bag this same food. I believe these issues are a result of this food. I wanted to try this product so I ordered it online. The product came with a coating that I thought was normal but now I am not so sure as my dog violently threw up 30 mins after eating a dose it was yellowish green foamy texture. I figured it was just a one off but she never really has thrown up before. Shortly after she repeated to vomit and probably about 10 plus times mid day diarrhea came with it and by end of the night there was blood present in both. At this point I was frantically calling emergency vets as it was around 1 am when the blood was present. I could not get her in to a emergency vet until 830 next morning. They took her right away and did fluids and testing they asked me if she may have gotten into anything or change or food I said no because the first incident was rihht when we got up and right after giving her the supplement her throwing up and then going outside. I mentioned zesty paws and that it was a new thing for her. She had a bad case of gastritis they sent us home with fluids in her body probiotics and anti nausea medication. 2 more days went by she hasn't eaten at this point for 4 days I had to return to the emergency vet they did more testing and sent me home with more medication the morning I took her the second time I was really scared for my dog she was a shell of a dog not present lethargic seeing imaginary flies refusing to eat and treats the only thing positive was she was still drinking. After 6 days she's finally on the mends and a stop to giving zesty paws supplement the day she threw up. We have purchased Nulo for years. We had issues with their other flavors last year when the consistency changed and the cans basically became mush. We continued using Salmon and Mackerel because it hadn't become mush... until recently, much to our disappointment, it, too, has become unusually "mushy." (b) (6) started hissing (completely unusual behavior!) He laid on his side with one of his legs up in the air and was making nonstop mumbling type noises that he had never made before. I also found blood tinged mucos on our step with a little brown (poop) mixed in. This was from a can dated 10/24/2025. We stopped giving cans with that date for a few days. There wasnt any more blood. This morning my husband gave a can with that date again and I found a nickle size amount of blood outside of the litter box. His stool was also much runnier than normal. I contacted Nulo. They said, "From 2020 to 2022, the pet food industry experienced unprecedented supply challenges that affected ingredients and production capacity. The canned pet food category was especially affected. In response, Nulo employed a number of different strategies to help ensure availability of our products for dogs and cats. By late 2022, many of these issues have been resolved by adding another supplier to increase production capacity and minor formulation updates have also been made to help alleviate some of the constraints on raw materials that have been in low supply. Very minor differences are present in a few of the essential nutrient supplements used in each formula.... These formulas may be in the market through 2026, due to the 3-year shelf-life of our canned products." I would also like to add that we were buying this food in 12 packs. | EON-542069 | 7/14/2023 13:52 | Pro Plan Classic Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Entree   | One threw up. They both had severe diarrhea, unrest, lethargy etc. One of the dogs was examined. Both were placed on antibiotics, prescription probiotics, and a prophylactic dewormer and special food. Fecal sample showed no worms etc. Got better with meds, time and special diet of home cooked tilapia, chicken and rice. Small amount of purina was reintroduced. Dogs got sick within a few hours; were placed on another round of antibiotics and prescription probiotics and continued special diet. At time, we thought maybe Heartguard may have irritated their stomachs, but we were wrong. Got better. Small amount (less than a quarter of a fresh can per dog) of purina was reintroduced. Dogs got sick again within 12 hours. We've dropped off another fecal sample and reported issue to Purina. At this point, we believe we've isolated that the wet dog food is the source of their issue.   | 2 | Years  | Shepherd Dog - German | Dog | 75 | Pound |

| EON-541895 | 7/12/2023 12:16 | Purina Pro Plan 27/17 Lamb   | I am reporting what the dog food did to my dogs. (b) (6) a yellow male Labrador retriever champion show dog. My dog was being fed Purina Pro Plan 27/17 lamb. I started to notice when he would eat he would choke on his food & have difficulty swallowing. I was very concerned & took him to the vet. I also took a video of him choking. If I soaked the food he could swallow it which made no sense. After watching him I noticed it was within 20 seconds when he started to eat the dry food. I took him to the vet & a ct scan & scope was done. It showed a severe infection in his stomach & an enlarged palate. I gave antibiotics & soaked food for a while & improved a little but if I gave him dry food he would choke again. It made no sense. He also drooled a lot to the point of leaving puddles of drool on the floor. He was very restless at night & from that video he was appearing to be in pain throughout the night. Back to the vets & now he has pustules on his palate. Once again treated & tried dry food & he choked again. This was not making sense & he was still sick & losing weight. This was going on over a few months & took us a few months to discover the problem. The vet gave him a bowl of a different dry dog food in front of us at the clinic & he ate it fine no choking. I stopped at the store on the way home & got him Fromm & he ate it fine & no choking. He continued to eat Fromm & also Royal Canin & eats fine. He suddenly started getting better & no more infections or choking. He also had allergy tests to rule out that issue. He has been fed grain free & grain inclusive dog food & is healthy again. As soon as he was changed to a different brand he became healthy again showing it was something in the dog food. I also have photos of how bad he looked from getting sick from this food. At a similar time I was also feeding a 30/20 to two other Labradors. One day one started vomiting violently to the point I have never seen before & I have been raising Labradors for over 20 years. That evening when I went to feed I found a different dog food in it. I stopped the food & that dog got better. I have the 27/27 food an opened bag & an unopened bag the same lot & expiration date. From the vet records it shows the food is what was making my dog sick. I am just trying to find out what in this dog food could have made a champion show dog get so sick & I do not want to see this happen to someone else. I also have video of (b) (6) choking I would like to send you. | 4 | Years  | Retriever - Labrador  | Dog | 90 | Pound |

| EON-541383 | 7/6/2023 5:24   | Royal Canin Veterinary Diet Adult Selected Protein PR Loaf in Sauce Canned Cat Food 5.1-oz case of 24  | In January 2023 my cat, (b) (6) was put on a prescribed diet of Royal Canin Veterinary Diet Adult Selected Protein PR Loaf in Sauce Canned Cat Food, 5.1-oz. Initially I purchased some of this item from the Vets office to get started. (b) (6) is under weight due to lymphoma and is a very picky eater, so I was delighted when she DEVoured this food and would even beg for more. The next few cases I purchased from Chewy, which there were no problems with, and she continued to eat it no problem. During her check up at the end of February, (b) (6) weighed 3kg up from 2.2kg the previous month so it was clear the food was working. However it was after that visit that things went from. I decided to switch to purchasing the same exact food from Petco, since I had a membership with them. Unfortunately once the Chewy cans were depleted and I started to try and feed her from the Petco supply, (b) (6) not only refused to eat the food but ran from it every time I would set it down next to her. I tried for several weeks to get her to eat the food from Petco with no luck, and when I took her in for her next appointment in April she was back down to 2.4kg. While at the vet I purchased a few cans of the same exact food so I could figure out if she was just over the food or if there was an issue with the cans from Petco. When we got home from the vet I popped open one of the cans I had just picked up and as soon as I sat the bowl down she was once again devouring the food. At that point it became clear to me there was something wrong with the food from Petco, so I called their customer service number to report the problem and set up to return the food to them, however after speaking with a supervisor for over an hour, I was told "the warranty of merchantability does not apply to pet food" (WRONG) and that "we don't consider a product defective or in need of being investigate just because your cat won't eat it." These same points were echoed by a second supervisor I spoke to a few days later. What Petco is choosing to ignore is the fact that (b) (6) IS eating the food just NOT the same exact food purchased from them. This tells me that the problem lies in how Petco stores and/ or handles the food while it is in their custody. This food is not cheap, costing around $100 a case, and I purchased 8 of them from Petco, so I intend to take Petco to small claims to get my money back, however I feel strongly that Petco's supply chain needs to be investigated and thoroughly scrutinized since its clear they aren't doing so themselves. |            |                           |     |      |          |

Only a couple weeks after seeing the cardiologist her heart experienced a fatal arrhythmia related to her DCM and she passed away. She was only two years of age. She had been to our local vet three months prior for her hip and elbow OFA certifications, and her heart had not been affected as of yet. She was in prime condition and not overweight at all. Then she completely did not wish to walk which was odd as we would take walks daily. Took her to the vet. He stated she had Jaundice and sent me to the (b) (6) specialists 2 1/2 hours away. They stated she needed a biopsy and gastrointestinal biopsy as her blood showed problems with the liver. The liver came back with high contents of copper. I have always had her on expensive dog food and the veterinarians told me to stop. The type of dog food had copper chelate and they told me that they really didn't have a maximum on copper so they did not check it often but it was 14 or higher. I have always kept her on the Dog food "only" to make sure she was getting all her nutrients, but what I did not realize is she was getting large amounts of "natural" copper in her diet from the dog food her breeder had her on and I have had her on. Copper chelate is the issue and none of the airedales my breeder owned previously had a problem with sensitivity to copper. However, he also is not using the dog food or any dog food as he has noticed his dogs started to have problems of losing energy, females not able to keep a litter, etc. He now makes his own dog food because of the max copper in the dog food is not controlled which he thinks was the problem as the dogs are all doing well now and recommended I do the same. 11K later, (b) (6) is on 9 different medications, I am starting to make her food from hand, have stopped feeding her any dog food as Hill's prescription diet could not tell me what type of copper they are using in their food. Fromm is the dog food I had fed her all her life which I found has copper chelate in it and not natural copper.   | 4  | Years | Terrier - Airedale   | Dog         | 55 | Pound |
|                            |                |  | I feed my dog a balanced diet of a low copper veterinary-approved homemade food mix that I make and some Scoop dog food as it has only natural copper. Please place the max levels of copper on the dog foods as this is yet another dog impacted by the maximums being removed on copper in dog food. To have copper chelate instead of natural copper means they do not have to put as much meat in the dog food and it also means they can use a high concentration of copper that is provided in the copper chelate without worries of maximum copper. Please see the University of Michigan study on this as well as Cornell Veterinary school. I am a college professor teaching Masters in Public Administration. This is an example of a government agency not having all the facts when companies are trying new elements in the products and it takes years and several thousands of animals that lose their lives early because the agency will not move on the problem. Poor animal foods and stockyards feeding animals chelated copper for early growth just under the levels that the feed animals do not perish prior to the 6 months is not only a worry for future animals but for people who are consuming copper-chelated feed animals. Please make sure to work on this issue and not wait any longer. Contact the universities that have not only a piece of my dog's liver (Univ of Michigan) but several thousand others. The problem is most owners will not go this far to save their pets as 11K is well above any pet insurance levels covered, and many of the animals die with the symptoms and no verification of the liver biopsy. Please place the max levels back on the dog food levels and demand regular testing of the dog food. We do not know if she will survive, but we are working it daily and are told it will be a long road to recovery but her life span will be shortened. |    |       |                      |             |    |       |

My Belgian Malinois is 6yrs old female spayed and has been on it her entire life and has done great, along with my 3yr old male neutered Dachshund and 1yr old intact male goldendoodle. All of these dogs have been on proplan 30/20 chicken since pups never had any issues till a few months now I have been keeping watch and recording each dogs appetite, bowl, behaviors and the food in the bag before feeding. I have found hairs that are not my dogs hairs mind you opening the dog food bag in my laundry room to ensure none of my dogs hair is getting in I have found random dog hair through the freshly opened bags, I have found a lot of bits of plastic to include in the kiddle after adding water to it. I loved proplan so much and how great it kept my dogs body weight even when not excersicing and how amazing it has been for my senior toy poodle. Once I started seeing changes in the food I noticed each dog would go through a period of diarrreah. The do not eat anything else at home just kiddle and beef liver baked treats done by me for more than 15yrs. I started seeing my poodle and doodle throwing up right after eating, my belgian gets super lethargic right after eating sometimes and wont it again for acouple of days, I used to only use kibble as training rewards and now in the last couple years they lost all urge and want for the kibble they eat teice a day only portioned controlled and I can put the food down and they wont start eating till they seem like they are starving and have no choice. It wasn't like this before. My toy poodle because of the diarrreah has now had in 6 months time anal gland issues which he has never had. My doodle constantly is puking up the food and diarrea. My Belgian starts diarrea and just wont eat the food at all. Once she eats again she is okay for a couple days and starts again. It isn't an allergy issue due to none of them showing allergy symptoms. My dachshund has to now kind be forced to eat so I now feed them all together to entise each to eat. Food quality has changed I don't know why or how when we are psying almost 100$ for 50lb bag of dog food. | Years    | Mixed (Dog)       | Dog |    |       |

He and his housemate (b) (6) (see other report) were fed Hill's Science Diet Urinary Hairball Control and a new bag was opened on 6/19/23. (b) (6) began vomiting on 6/21 and had a decreased appetite starting 6/22. He was first presented to the hospital on 6/24 and found to be mildly febrile (102.9). He was started on Orbax and Cerenia and there was immediate concern that his illness was related to (b) (6) due to their symptom similarities. Bloodwork was sent out on (b) (6) (day that (b) (6) died) and found to have mildly increased WBCs and severly elevated creatine phosphokinase (1168). He began projectile vomiting fluorescent green liquid on 6/28 (appears identical to (b) (6) vomit in the hours before his death) and Ollie was hospitalized on high rate IV fluids and IV antibiotics+Cerenia. Pet initially improved on 6/28, but began slowly decompensating during 6/29 into 6/30 (during continued hospitalized care). 6/30 AM pet appeared near moribund, stomach was immensely distended with fluid, renal pelvises radiolucent on xrays, pet repeatedly projectile vomited green fluorescent liquid, and was lethargic and minimally responsive. Placed nasogastric tube and drained approx 200cc green liquid from stomach. Added GI motility agents (metoclopramide and azithromycin) and antacids (famotidine) to treatments. Pet clinically improved after gastric fluid removal. Daily chemistry panels show no azotemia developing. Continued all treatments through 7/3 - pet is still doing well and being discharged this evening.   | 4 Years  | Domestic Longhair | Cat | 15 | Pound |

An Nasal Gastric Tube was installed and It took weeks to get a diagnoses. An MRI and Liver biopsy, &amp; $16,000 later, (b) (6) was diagnosed with Copper-associated hepatopathy (CAH). 53 in every 100 Labs are diagnosed with this disorder, and that study was only up until 2009 I believe. Thats over a 1000% increase in diagnosis since the 80's. Why are you, the FDA, not regulating the amount of added copper that goes into dog food? (b) (6) is now 5 and is currently sick again. She has a secondary issue caused by Copper-associated hepatopathy (CAH) and is bleeding via her lower/small intestine. I have owned 4 labs in my lifetime. They have all lived to 13 or older. This dog is on medication for life, and currently suffering, because of manmade chelated copper being added to dog food. The rate of diagnoses is skyrocketing and this is only in labs that I am somewhat educated on. I do not know the numbers for other breeds but I know it cannot be good. In addition to trying to navigate this illness, I have also had to do my own research on what food is safe and unsafe. After days of reading and researching, because (b) (6) has stopped eating her perscription foods (its something she associates as not feeling good and when she becomes anorexic shes too smart for her own good and knows not to eat the food that made her sick) I have to make sure that the new food I am giving her has no chelated copper in it. I need to also stress that I am not a pet owner who hyperfixates on her animals wellbeing. I want what is best for my animals of course, but I do not make a fuss over things like food. I am not a " raw diet is the best diet" BUT I know my dog is dying because of this chelated copper being added and it needs to stop. YOU need to do something. Disregard the monetary issue, but the stress alone. i am loosing sleep over her suffering. DO BETTER FDA. You are allowing memebprs of our families to be poisoned slowly. This is a long drawn out death for an animal who only knows how to love. | 5 | Years | Retriever - Labrador | Dog | 80 | Pound |

| EON-558962 | 1/11/2024 1:00 | Adult Sensitive Skin & Stomach Salmon & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food | On 1/8/2024, a complainant reported illness in her dog after switching her food to Nestle Purina Pro Plan Adult Sensitive Skin &amp; Stomach Salmon &amp; Rice Formula Dry Dog Food. Veterinary care was obtained. The product is packaged in a 30-pound bag. The complainant identified her dog as (b) (6) an 11-year-old, 70-pound female Catahoula Leopard/German Shepherd mix. (b) (6) has the pre-existing conditions of joint pain and a skin condition which manifests as a rash on her abdomen; she is a healthy dog otherwise. Prior to this event, she was fed a Wellness brand dry food (the complainant didn't recall the specific variety). She was fed 1-cup of the food twice daily. The complainant explained (b) (6) was being seen by (b) (6), on or around 12/19 for her existing skin condition and it was recommended she try the Nestle Purina Pro Plan product. (b) (6) was transitioned to the new food over a week's time, receiving both the dry and canned types from that point (est. 12/26) until 1/4. During this period, she began losing patches of fur from her back. A medicated soap was used every other day; however, she did not appear to improve. A week in, she developed diarrhea, which continued for 1 to 2-weeks. On 1/2, she was returned to the vet where she received an antibiotic, X-rays and blood work and it was determined she exhibited high liver enzymes. The vet remarked that (b) (6) liver enzymes were dramatically elevated from her recent blood work, prior to switching the foods. In the interim, the complainant read online about a recent recall of Pro Plan dry dog food for excessive Vitamin D content. I determined her product was not part of the recall. CONTINUED IN REMARKS: |

The owner said they had eaten the food in the past without a problem but this recent episode caused both dogs to have diarrhea and vomiting. The complainant said her house partner uses this product for her dog and the complainant's dogs have eaten it on occasion. This time she received a free sample pack of three flavors, Turkey, Chicken and Beef. She isn't sure which of the flavors made the dogs ill but afterward she had to take them to the vet because of the severity of their vomiting and diarrhea. The complainant said she called the firm and was told to throw away the product she still had on hand.   |

| EON-558814 | 1/10/2024 1:00  | Greenies Dental Treats Original flavor Teenie size        | Complainant reporting problem with Greenies veterinary treats causing her two healthy purebred Maltese dogs to get sick with pancreatitis and kidney conditions. Both had high glucose levels in their blood. Complainant said her dogs went to the vet routinely, and always had good bloodwork results prior to this incident. They were just fine on their normal food, and only displayed symptoms after consuming these dog dental treats. She first gave them treats 11/14/23, and the 13 year old female vomited 15-20 minutes (hadn't vomited in 2-3 years, as they are meticulous about what the dogs consume), and she continued being sick and vomiting over the next few days, and was in ER overnight 11/18-19/23 until she was stabilized. The female dog's kidney also started shutting down, so she was administered meds via IV. The 2 year old male was given treats 11/14-15/23, and he vomited 11/16/23, had intestinal blockage, then had diarrhea on 11/18/23, then he was taken to the ER. The boy had dark stool because of blood in the stool, and the vet thinks the product harmed his intestines (not confirmed, as no surgery was performed). The mala received 2 pancreatitis shots &amp; IV for treatments while in the ER 11/22-23/23. Because their primary vet was closed for the Thanksgiving holiday, they took the male dog to their secondary vet (b) (6) on 11/24/23 for continued care of the pancreatitis symptoms. The male dog went back to the primary vet on 11/30/23 and had more IV drugs because he was still struggling with the pancreatitis. |

She couldn't figure out what was causing the illness until she went to purchase the product again and was informed that it had been pulled from shelves because of salmonella contamination. She doesn't have product packaging information or lot codes, as she threw away the bags as she fed the product to her dog. Her dog is now being treated for diarrhea for the last two months by two different vets. On 12/01/23, Complainant called back and said her dog is still being treated for diarrhea, but the vet says the stool sample results show the dog has Giardia, not Salmonella. Vet doesn't know the source of the Giardia. Dog has had diarrhea since he was 9 weeks old when she got him, and he's now 5 months old. On 1/8/24, the complainant reported this is standard product for feeding her two dogs, 14 yr old Labrador Retriever mix and 15 months old German Shepherd Labrador mix. She stated last month, three out of four weeks, both dogs had diarrhea, drank more water than usual, unknown root cause stated it had to be the food. The complainant stated her dogs did not eat any other products or dog treats during this time and saw in the media illnesses associated with Purina Pro Plan pet food. She stated stores the dog food in a container and discarded the remaining product, and bag/packaging, lot code, product details unavailable. The complainant self-care her pets at home, did not take them to the veterinarian. She stated presently the dogs are feeling better.   |

She is in good health, but has food allergies. She has been taking fish oil for 4 years. In November 2023, Complainant purchased 2 cases of Hydrolyzed Dog Food from Chewy.com. There are 12 cans in a case. She has been feeding her dog one can a day. Complainant mentioned that she opened three cans of Hydrolyzed Dog Food and they all bubbled as soon as she opened the cans. She did not feed it to her dog. They fed her prior cans from that lot. Nothing bulging or dented in anyway. For a whole month, she had a can of Hydrolyzed Dog Food. After that, her dog had behavior changes described as dementia, and other symptoms. Such as, severe insomnia, fast walking, jumping in a circle, running everywhere, agitation, anxiety, extreme hunger, and tremors. When she took her off the dog food two days ago (12/17/23) all her symptoms stopped. Complainant called a doctor and spoke a veterinarian multiple times. (b) (6), a toxicologist, but not the dog's veterinarian told her that it could be botulism. A biologist told her it could be contaminated with bacteria. No previous health incidents or conditions reported. Consumer purchased a new bag of the Kibble n Bits on 12/13/2023 around 9 pm. At 10:00pm the consumer gave a brand new bowl of the food to her miniature schnauzer. The consumer had another dog but this dog did not eat any of the food The morning of 12/14/2023, the consumer had noted their dog had vomiting all over their cage during the night and was extremely lethargic in the morning. Through the day, the dogs symptoms worsened. The dog became extremely lethargic and unable to move. The dog refused to eat anything and would only drink sips of water. Consumer also noted their dog seems to have trouble with their eye site. No other food was consumed. Vomiting also continued. The morning of 12/15 the consumer awoke to find their animal had passed away. The consumer buried their animal on their property. No autopsy performed. The consumer noted that on 12/15, one of their cats (male) had also started vomiting multiple times. The consumer believes the cat ate some of the dog food that was left over in the bowl and is now having the same symptoms. Consumer did not have the specific product information available during the 12/15 call, but will be going back to Walmart to get the specific variety of food and will provide this to FDA. Consumer does not have product packaging, but they do have most of the food the dog consumed in a sealed bin in their home. No medical treatment for the dog was sought as the only vet was closed in town. [end of narrative] |

The explosion caused considerable pain in four fingertips and nailbeds of my right hand. I recently (within the last 30 days) purchased the case of food with this can from the (b) (6), drove directly home, and stored the case in my kitchen pantry. I have fed my dogs 8 cans from the case without incident. I am concerned about both the pain caused by an exploding can and the quality of the food contained within. Needless to say, I did not feed my dogs the contents of that can. Only today, I purchased two additional cases of 4Health dog food. Now, I am hesitant to feed it to my dogs since I don't know what caused the build up of pressure in the can.  |

On (b) (6), a 7 year one month old, German Shepherd died. All seven dogs ate the product. The younger dogs less than 4 years old did not get sick. The three older dogs (4-7 yrs. old), a Female Boxer, Chocolate Labrador, and German Shepherd ate the pet food and vomited. On 11/14/ 2023, before the 7 yr. one mo. female German Shepherd died, the veterinarian took an exray and gave her prednisone for chronic bronchitis and she was getting better. She took 1 tablet every 12 hours for 5 days and then one tablet once day for another 5 days. Before the sickness she was a healthy and enthusiastic dog who ate a lot and she had 2 puppies. She was not unsupervised, but fenced in. After eating the pet food (on 11/28/2023) she started acting weird and was running around and jumping on her owner. By 12 am, she became lethargic, her legs went out, vomited blood + water, and breathed hard. This went on throughout throughout the next day. At 8-9 pm, the 7 yr. one mo. old German Shepherd went outside and that's when complainant saw her diarrhea. She did not get better and died on (b) (6), at 11:50 pm. It was on 11/28/2023 or 11/29/2023, complainant did contact the veterinarian and the vet told her to stop feeding her and only give her water. She did not ask to see her and no diagnostic was performed. Complainant suspects it is the dog food. Complainant looked up the pet food and it was not on the recalled list.   |

The second dog is a Miniature American Shepherd, male, 10 y/o (est), 10 lbs (est), neutered, and in good health. The Complainant stated that both dogs are supervised when they go into the yard. She doesn't recall dates of last check-ups. On 11/12/23, she purchased a bag of the Wellness Simple Limited Ingredient Diet, Lamb &amp; Oatmeal Formula from (b) (6). The was first use of this product and they had been using another brand of dry, dog food for some time, but had decided to transition the dogs to the Wellness dog food due to the other brand being so expensive. On 11/14/23, at 7:00 pm, she fed both of her dogs the Wellness mixed with the other brand, 1/2 cup each. The Maltese dog ate the other brand of food, but did not want to eat the Wellness food until the Complainant put human-grade, canned salmon on top of the Wellness food and then she consumed it. On 11/15/23, the Maltese experienced lethargy and a change in mood and was not playful as she had previously been. The other dog did not experience symptoms. At 7:00 pm, the Complainant fed the dogs the Wellness food mixed with the other brand. On 11/16/23, the Maltese vomited 1x. Her other dog did not experience symptoms. At 7:00 pm, the Complainant fed the dogs the Wellness food mixed with the other brand. She put the human-grade Salmon on the food. The Maltese did not want to leave her bed. The Complainant thought that the Maltese may be experiencing symptoms of old-age and her husband though that it was just an upset stomach. The Maltese's lethargy and change of mood persisted. (continued in Remarks below): |

She stated when her dog was younger noticed her pet was itchy after consuming chicken, the complainant avoids buying product that contains chicken. She stated feeds her pet one can per day of this product, most recent feeding was today and noticed that she was itchy about one hour after consuming product, symptoms lasted 6-7 hours. She did not take her pet to the veterinarian for this incident, but have taken her to (b) (6) several times in the past for anti-allergy shots when she was itchy. She read the label, discovered chicken is first on the ingredient list, stated the front label indicates Chopped Ground Dinner with Beef, Bacon &amp; Cheese Flavor. The complainant reported this information to the company but was not satisfied with their response, informed her it was marketing. The complainant plan on switching brands that does not contain chicken. She alleged mislabeling as the front of the can indicates beef, bacon and cheese flavored, the complainant stated the label should include chicken since chicken is listed in the ingredients and that she should have read the ingredients on the back of the label and had she realized this, would have avoided buying this product. UPC 0 23100 01017 5 BB 060725 21BU underneath 323F3KKCFC0024 |

Petco.com sells cat and dog food online. The cats have been eating the same brand of food for a long time. They all eat can cat food (b) (6) becomes disinterested in the food (mostly with turkey pates) and (b) (6) is the finicky one (mostly with turkey pates). Problem:The pates are the ones that come with a film, and/or what appears to be dried out and pasted against the can. The Flakes formula is usually inconsistent with either flakes of chicken breast with small nibbles of dark meat, other times mainly dark meat nibbles, and many times barely any meat in the can but mostly broth,- they also at times refused the flakes. Also as I may have pointed out that cans that come packaged in a case of 12 can be badly dented even if they are nestled in the center of an enclosed case with no signs of damage to the putter cans of the enclosed case. I am attaching a sample of what an enclosed case looks like, please note the clear packaging of the case. It's not until the case is unwrapped that the dented cans can be found. Sometimes the damaged cans are at the bottom of the cardboard and some are in the center rows right above the bottom ones - We believe they are packed damaged. Nonetheless has been frustrating to have the experience. Currently, (b) (6) has switch to Solid Gold, Petco has removed the SolidGold line from third stores and it can only be purchased online. On Saturday, I was able to create an online order for the Solid Gold line of food, ( put all items in the online Shopping Cart ) , but upon checkout it would not process the order because it appears the items are not available. . Solid Gold is also the older cats diet so we were in urgent need of the food, luckily we found it on Amazon and were able to get it the next day. Continued in Remarks..... |
| EON-548217 | 9/26/2023 1:00 | Sensitive Skin Dry Dog Food                      | On 9/22/2023, the Washington State Department of Health (WA/DOH) reported they were notified by several Washington counties of four human cases of E. coli. O157:H7 with Hill's Science Diet brand dry dog foods as an epidemiological link [related complaints are: XXXXXXXXXXXX]. The subject of this complaint is a complainant living in (b) (6) , who used Hill's Science Diet Z/D Food Sensitivities Dry Dog Food. On 9/25/2023, I reached the complainant who verified the reported details and provided more information. The product is packaged in a 25-pound paper sack, coded ""BEST BEFORE 08 20 24 M224 2041 LG 142[Stamped on opening seal] ""[Stamped above UPC]: 23 108 B&amp;B 5 12109"" , read to me by the consumer who also emailed photographs (uploaded in CMS). The complainant, aided by her sister, reported she ordered the product from Chewy.com. She received and opened it approximately 6-weeks ago and at the time of our interview, she had used all but 3-cups of the food. I asked her how she scoops food from the bag, and she responded with a measuring cup. The bag is stored in the garage and smaller portions of food are stored in the house in a Tupperware container and scooped out with the measuring cup. She added, the food appeared lighter in color than she's observed with other bags. The dog is fed the food twice daily and is also provided four types of treats: Greenies Dental Treats, Nature Gnaws, Instinct Freeze-dried Treats, and Better Belly Dog Treats. The complainant added she was interviewed by the CDC and they told her they were coming by for the food sample. I reiterated they should not provide the food to anyone, but the FDA and she agreed to hold it for the FDA. CONTINUED IN REMARKS:   |

She recommended a product called Rejensa Joint Care Chews For Dogs because of a previous knee injury. The owner of the dog reported a worsening of head tremors after giving his dog 1 chew daily. The complainant said that she had recommended these chews and sold them to multiple dog owners and no other adverse reactions were reported. I spoke with the owner of the dog, (b) (6) and was told the dog was given 1 chew daily between 4/17/2023 and 5/29/2023. The dog had two head tremors during that time period, 1 on 5/15/2023 and 1 on 5/29/2023. The owner stopped giving his dog the chews. (b) (6) has not experienced another head tremor since the owner discontinued use of the chews on 5/29/2023.  |
| EON-543116 | 7/27/2023 1:00 | Freshpet Small Dog  | CCC CIN-DO received email from USDA. Per report: "We bought (3) bags of Freshpet dog food products from our local Target store on July 8th 2023. As of 7/22/23 one of their products has a Best Buy Date of 10/06/23 and it has mold on the product. (2) of their products don't even expire until the beginning of September of 2023 and has no visible mold. We keep this food properly sealed in our refrigerator with a constant temperature of 39 degrees. Our dog ate some of this product on the day of purchase and couldn't stop having diarrhea for 3 days."  |
| EON-542999 | 7/26/2023 1:00 | Chicken Recipe Cat Treats   | On 7/25/2023, a complainant reported that a live spider ran out of a bag of Inaba Foods /Churu Chicken Recipe Cat Treats upon opening. No spider bites or injuries were reported. The product is a semi-soft cat food packaged in a .50-ounce heat-sealed packet and is intended to be opened and expressed out of the packet for a cat to lick. There are 4/.50-ounce packets to plastic bag, heat-sealed shut. The product is manufactured in Thailand. The complainant explained she opened the plastic bag, and a big brown spider ran out and disappeared in her house. The complainant gave me permission to share her contact information with the importer. I then contacted Taz Pacheco, Customer Service Manager, Inaba Foods, Torrance, CA (310-818-2270) who reported no similar complaints and verified their Thai manufacturing site. Mr. Pacheco said he planned to reach out to the consumer for further follow up.   |

| EON-561717 | 2/2/2024 1:00 | Chicken & Rice Formula Dry Dog Food | On 1/31/2024, a consumer reported illness in her dog which she associated with his consumption of Purina One Chicken &amp; Rice Formula Dry Dog Food. No veterinary care was sought. The product is packaged in a 16.5-pound paper bag. The consumer reported her dog (b) (6) is a 3-year-old, 56-pound male American Bulldog, healthy with no pre-existing conditions. He was adopted from the Humane Society and was receiving a Science Diet dry formula at that time. He was switched to the identified food 6-months ago and experienced no problems. (b) (6) was fed two-thirds cup of this food and one-half-cup of wet food in the same variety twice daily. He also received various dog treats from the time he was adopted, and no problems occurred. (b) (6) is a single pet that lives in an apartment and is walked on-leash when outside. The complainant explained that (b) (6) was boarded for 10-days (11/18 - 27/2023) at the (b) (6) around the Thanksgiving holiday while her family traveled out of state. She brought a new bag of the Purina One food to the kennel, and he received it while boarded. The complainant mentioned that (b) (6) was upset at being left at the kennel. After a week, the kennel called the complainant to notify the complainant that (b) (6) had become ill with bloody, mucousy diarrhea and they requested permission to place him on a bland diet. He remained on the diet until he came home on 11/27, at which time he was transitioned back to the food in the same bag of the Purina One product and became ill again. The complainant found reports of other dog illness associated with Purina products on the Internet and decided to transition (b) (6) to a similar formula of Blue Buffalo. He recovered soon after. She reported the issue to Nestle Purina at that time and was provided case #23114811. CONTINUED IN REMARKS:                     |     |         | Bulldog - American | Dog     |        |            |

|     | 5/14/2024 | Premium Wild Finch Food (bird seeds) | On 5/14/24, the complainant stated has been purchasing bird seeds to feed wild birds and ducks that come in her yard for the past six years without issues; the product is the purest bird seeds. Recently, she noticed about 1/8 of the bag of bird seeds contains fillers (pieces of hard corn kernels and large hard peanuts) and debris (straws, shredded papers, and twigs as if the machinery scrapes off the seeds and twigs got in it). Additionally, she stated about 50 burrs or spiky thorns were in the bag of bird seeds. The complainant stated the product used to be pristine and is the purest of the bird seeds. She reported mailed a bag of the fillers and debris to the company but have not heard back from them.  |     |         |       |         |        |            |
|     | 3/1/2024  | Victor Hi -Pro Plus                  | Complainant stated that her four dogs got sick with a significant amount of diarrhea. One of the dogs was taken on February 5, 2024 to (b) (6) to prepare for his surgery on Feb. 6, 2024. While dog was there overnight for observation and preparation the staff noticed that he had diarrhea with blood. The next morning they noticed he had diarrhea but this time with no blood. And because they knew that our dogs had been affected with Salmonella they cancelled his surgery. The vet sent home with a liquid probiotic and a capsule probiotic. One of the dogs spent one night in the Emergency Room of (b) (6).   |     |         |       |         |        |            |
